One day, their wanderings brought them to the bank of a river. Also at the river was an extremely beautiful woman trying to figure out how she would get across. Without any hesitation the old master picked up the beautiful woman in his arms, carried her across the river and set her safely on the other shore. The young monk was in an absolute state of shock at the master's actions.

They traveled on together in silence for many miles. All the while the young monk's mind continued to stew over what he had seen the senior monk do. When he could stand it no more, he broached the subject with his master.

"Master, you know the vows we have taken. You know how the world constantly tries to tempt and distract us. How could you carry that beautiful woman across the river back there?"

The wise old man replied, "I left her at the river bank. Why are you still carrying her?"

The more I think about that story, the more I can remember things in my life that I still carried when I should have left them at the river bank. We cannot escape various misadventures and trials in our walk of faith. But once you learn the lessons they have to offer, more benefit is gained by listening to the Lord's wisdom and moving on. If we don't move on, discouragement can creep in and really do a number on our confidence.

I am in awe of the ministry of the apostle Paul. By worldly standards, he had everything you could ask for: money, prestige, and power. But there was a hungering in his heart that none of that would satisfy. He discovered the true purpose of his life when he found Jesus. To paraphrase an old gospel song, he "lost it all to find everything."

Looking at his life he wrote, "We have this treasure in jars of clay to show that his all-surpassing power is from God and not from us. We are hard-pressed from every side, but not crushed; perplexed but not in despair, persecuted but not abandoned; struck down, but not destroyed." You see Paul perceived those words on the run. People had tried to kill him. They had thrown him in jail. He had been tried on trumped up charges. Yet through it all he recognized the priceless treasure that each God-given day of life really was. Instead of circumstance dictating his frame of mind, he trusted that God was at work through it all.

You and I have innumerable moments and death valley struggles. What we need is to learn how to keep on an even keel through it all. We can if we learn to carry those things we really need to carry and leave behind those things that we don't. Rather than fixing our eyes on what we can see, we need to fix our eyes on the unseen. God has a purpose in everything we face. God has the power we need to get through whatever challenge that may confront us. And if we learn that these jars of clay work best when we live each day in the presence of the "Master Potter" who formed us, the rest will go easier than you might have imagined.

Cost of school lunches goes up this fall

By Jamie MacMillan

Meals at the school district's cafeterias will be more expensive this year after the Charlevoix Board of Education voted Monday to increase the prices of hot meals, starting this fall semester.

The measure, approved in a 5-0 vote, will raise the lunch room prices for the first time since 1994.

Scott Boss and Barney Way were absent from the meeting and did not vote.

The schools' lunch prices at the high and middle schools will increase by 25 cents while at the elementary school it will jump by 50 cents.

The cost for a Type A, full price lunch — which includes a protein, fruit and vegetable — will now be $1.75 in all three cafeterias.

Breakfast prices were also made uniform, with all morning meals now costing students $1. That's an increase of 25 cents at the elementary school, but only a nickel at both the high and middle schools.

Milk prices will also increase by a nickel at all three schools, from 25 to 30 cents.

According to district business manager Judy Boss, the elementary school's price increases are more severe because each meal will now include more food, in this case a "nutritional dessert."

Typically, the K-5 lunches would not include dessert, and students had the option to purchase a dessert on a la carte basis with choices ranging from candy bars and cookies to fruit roll-ups.

The new lunches will include either pudding or applesauce for dessert and students at the elementary school will no longer have a la carte options.

Boss said that parents don't like the fact that their children could buy sweets basically at will from the a la carte menu and in some cases, hoarded up milk money to buy extra candy.

"We'll still give them a dessert, but the extra 25 cents on top of the regular increase covers that expense of more food," she said.

School officials said they hope the increased prices will also bring in more revenue to cover an aspect of the district's budget that continues to run in a deficit situation every year, getting worse each year.

Last year, the cost to run the hot lunch program outspent incoming revenues by over $6,500, reducing the lunch service fund balance to $4,614.

According to Boss, this year the program is expected to outspend revenues by $20,000. Boss said those projections do not include the price increases. She won't know to what extent the price increases will remedy the situation until budget amendments are done in October.

Part of the higher spending from this year includes the purchase of three Command Control Registers for a total cost of $14,719.

Part of the higher spending from this year includes the purchase of three Command Control Registers for a total cost of $14,719.

Local youth attend state rabbit expo

4-H members from Charlevoix County recently participated in a statewide 4-H Rabbit and Cavy Exposition, held at Michigan State University July 18. Competitions included rabbit showmanship, cavy (guinea pig) showmanship, a written quiz, breed identification, a skillathon, live meat judging, fur judging and crafts. Joining the exposition and earning honors from Charlevoix were (from left) Elizabeth Arnold, Gina Attee, Ashley Smith (Bozoye City) and Michael Sayward.

A new computer register will be installed in each cafeteria and the machines are expected to keep better tabs on both incoming cash and total of type A lunches sold.

The district gets reimbursed 17 cents from the state for each type

A lunch sold, and school officials feel they weren't recording an accurate number of type A's sold under the old system, which had no technology and kept count on a notebook.

Command Control officials told board members during a presentation in June that the average revenue increase expected from the machines is 11 percent.

The board of education next meets at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 14 in the high school study hall.

DEDICATED TO AFFIRMING LIFE BY PROVIDING COMPASSIONATE CARE

Hospice...It's Not What You Think

Q: When should a decision about entering a hospice program be made and who should make it?
At any time during a life-limiting illness, it is appropriate to discuss all of the patient's care options including hospice. Understandably, most people are uncomfortable with the idea of stopping an all out effort to beat the disease. Hospice staff members are highly sensitive to these concerns and are always available to discuss them with the patient and family.

Q: Should I wait for our physician to raise the possibility of hospice or should I raise it first?
The patient and family should feel free to discuss hospice care at any time with their physician, other healthcare professionals, clergy or friends.

Q: Can a hospice patient who shows signs of recovery be returned to regular treatment?
Certainly. If the patient's condition improves and the disease seems to be in remission, the patient can be discharged from hospice and return to aggressive therapy or go on about his or her daily life.

Q: Does hospice serve only cancer patients?
Cancer is not the only condition for which hospice care would be appropriate. Other illnesses or conditions include: Alzheimer's and Parkinson's; neurologic, respiratory and cardiac diseases; infectious and parasitic diseases; and other life-limiting illnesses that without medical intervention would run their course in six months or less.

Q: What support is available for bereavement and grief recovery?
Caring for the body, mind and spirit of the individual is an integral part of hospice's care philosophy. Bereavement support groups explore normal grief reaction, remembering the person who has died. The groups also provide methods for coping with anger, sadness or guilt, and build strengths to deal with future issues. By providing weekly support groups where participants can freely express their feelings in a safe environment, hospice can help prevent undesirable behaviors, which may surface later in life.

as a result of unresolved grief issues. Hospice also equips children with coping skills necessary to deal with grief in positive and affirming ways.

A new event and an old favorite draw happy crowds

Historical society Sunset Cruise and Waterfront Art Fair are both successful

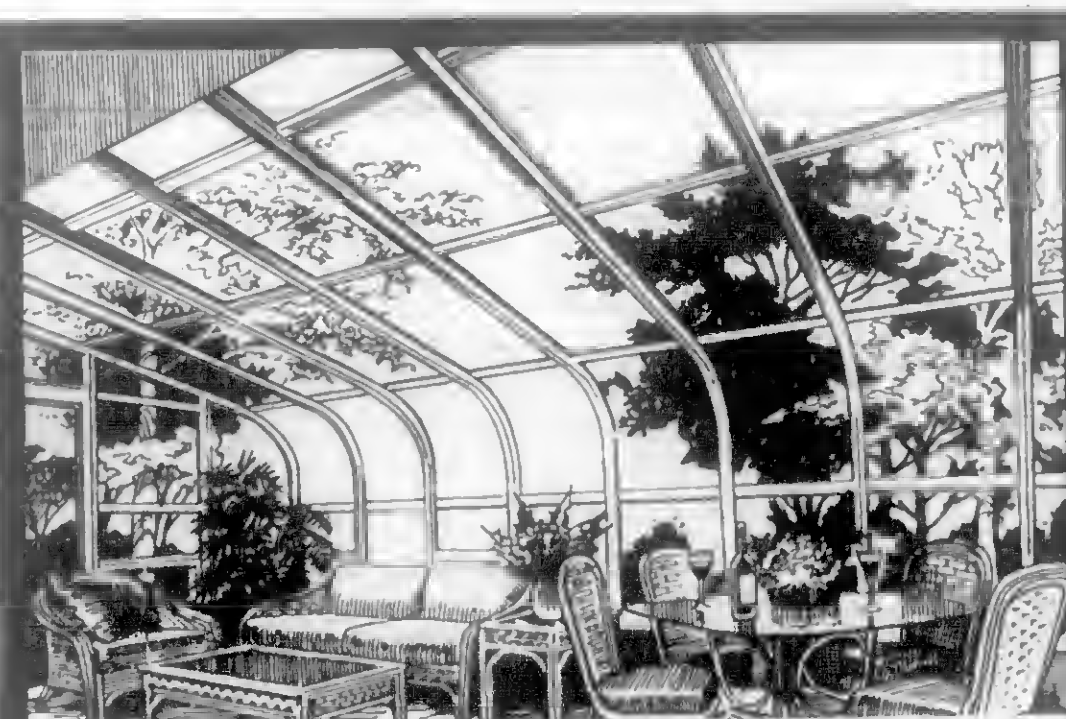

A heavy morning rain which drenched artists as they set up their booths did nothing to deter a large turnout for the 40th Annual Waterfront Art Fair. The weather improved as the day progressed. Russ and Sue Bolt, local Charlevoix artists, had one of the more popular booths during Saturday's fair. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

Two bomb scares were false

By Jamie MacMillan

Money and clothes, assumed to be bombs, had the Michigan State Police Bomb Squad called to Charlevoix on two different occasions last week.

The hysteria began at 7:30 p.m. last Monday, Aug. 3 when sailors aboard the U.S.C.G. Cutter Acacia witnessed a lone man in a row boat approach shore from Round Lake.

After securing his vessel, the Grand Rapids man made his way inland, leaving behind a briefcase and a pair of life vests just off the stern of the Coast Guard boat.

According to city police chief Dennis Halverson, the Acacia then evacuated its moorings while police cordoned off the area and called in the bomb squad headquartered in Grayling.

Response from the squad was slow because of the time of day, but after tracking down the owner of the vessel by tracing the license numbers on the dinghy, Halverson said they were able to determine the contents of the case and call off the bomb squad before the crew arrived.

At 11 p.m., police ruled out a bomb upon discovering "typical briefcase" items such as pens, paper, a cell phone and some cash, according to Halverson.

When he was informed of the stir his discarded items created, the man was "very apologetic," Halverson said.

The concerns about bombs continued over the weekend at the new M-66 post office when an apparently unmarked cardboard box was spotted in the lobby area.

At 1:40 p.m., postal employees contacted the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department who, like the city police earlier in the week, evacuated the area and called in the bomb squad.

The explosives experts arrived at 5:15 p.m. and determined that the bomb was instead a package of clothes to be returned to a mail-order catalog business with an address face down on the bottom of the package.

Last week's activity followed on the heels of an incident the week before on Townline Road in Bay Shore near the Charlevoix/Emmet county line where the bomb squad was brought in to check on a two-liter soda bottle lodged in a mail box.

Authorities in that case blew up the mailbox themselves to make sure that no possible bomb placed inside would detonate.

"They're tough calls to make," Halverson said of possible bomb threats. "Unfortunately, now there are possibilities out there that force us to treat these things with a suspicious eye."

Charlevoix Pool group raises money to burn their mortgage

After more than a decade of raising money to build an indoor pool, the moment of triumph arrived Sunday, Aug. 2 when members of Charlevoix Friends of the Pool turned a facsimile of its mortgage on the Charlevoix Community Pool.

The mortgage-burning was made possible by the successful auction which reached its goal of raising $30,000. Nearly half the money came from two social memberships given by the founders group of the Charlevoix Country Club. Successful bidders on the memberships were Dr. George and Michalene "Mike" Wright and William and Lori Schulman.

"Even though we don't have the final results, it's clear that now we can pay off the real mortgage once pending pledges are paid," said Friends of the Pool president Steven Hansen. "We may even be able to complete the first phase of enlarging the pool's parking lot."

Hansen added that, since the pool is not a tax supported facility, fundraising efforts will have to continue to pay for pool operating expenses and to keep fees affordable for pool users.

Currently, an annual $30,000 grant and user fees help pay for operations of the facility owned by the Friends of the Pool. Additions to the endowment fund are being sought to help make the pool completely self-supporting.

Citizens Bank makes changes in northern Michigan

Citizens Bank released three announcements today regarding plans for offices in its northern markets. The plans involve Citizens Bank offices in Traverse City, Ellsworth, Eastport and Beaver Island. These actions are subject to regulatory approval and are expected to be effective within 90 days.

Citizens Bank has signed a definitive agreement to sell its Beaver Island branch to Charlevoix State Bank.

Citizens plans to close and consolidate its Eastport and Ellsworth offices into the Central Lake and East Jordan offices.

Citizens Bank plans to purchase the former First of America office located at 1057 E. Front St. in Traverse City and to consolidate its operations now located at 880 Munson St. in Traverse City. The Munson Street location is a leased facility.

In making this announcement, James R. Kanary, President of Citizens Bank-North, said, "We greatly value our relationship with our clients and look forward to providing them with even better service at the Traverse City office on Front Street and the Central Lake and East Jordan offices. We plan to provide more details to our clients in the near future.

"It has been our pleasure to serve the families and businesses of Beaver Island," Kanary said. "Both Citizens Bank and Charlevoix State Bank are committed to making the transition as smooth as possible."

Citizens Bank is a subsidiary of Citizens Banking Corporation, a diversified financial services company providing a wide range of commercial, consumer, mortgage banking, trust, investment and financial planning services to a broad client base. With a long-standing tradition of community banking, Citizens serves markets throughout Michigan and in suburban Chicago, Ill. through over 125 banking offices and over 130 ATMs. As of June 30, 1998, Citizens had assets of over $4.4 billion.

New business fills void left by Ben Franklin departure

By Jamie MacMillan

Hoping to fill a void in the wake of last summer's departure of the Ben Franklin store, a local mother-daughter team has ventured into the yarn and craft business.

Sally Wynkoop and her daughter Vicki Moses opened the Family Affair Yarn and Craft Shop last month at 1516 South Bridge St. in the Airport Plaza.

The store is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The new shop is closed on Sunday.

"Just from talking to people from the area, it was pretty clear there was nowhere to go to get threads and yarns," Moses said. "We saw a need for it."

Seeing a need turned into filling a need over a family barbecue on Memorial Day weekend.

Sally knew of rental space available for a storefront, and pressed her daughter during the get together about how interested she would be in joining forces to start up a store.

Wynkoop said her own interest would have waned had her daughter not shared the enthusiasm. Moses, however, was instantly intrigued with idea. Despite her already busy schedule as a mother and E.M.T. responder, she took her mother up on the offer.

The next day the pair rented out the storefront and a month later had opened its doors for business.

"Basically in 24 hours we decided to do this, and away we went," Wynkoop said. "Things fell together real well."

The store's main focus is yarn products. For the moment, they said they have a standard line of yarn because they want to pinpoint customer needs before ordering and stocking their shelves.

Moses said they have the ability to offer every sort of imported yarn and can special order with delivery in only a matter of days.

The pair hopes their store can mature as the summer turns to fall when people have more time to devote to their craft work.

"People are just starting to find us and we're still working out the kinks," Moses said. "We'll be a unique store that offers a lot of what other stores don't have."

Other products include craft supplies, paints, leather and hemp threads, doll making materials, candles and beads.

Moses said during the store's opening weeks their line of memory books caught customers' eyes.

The store has a back room that Wynkoop would like to use as a teaching room for various craft skills. If that falls through, it will be used as extra shelf space, she said.

Youth groups and any supplies bought for school projects will receive discounts, Moses said.

In addition to the excitement of running their own business, the couple is equally pleased just to be working as a mother-daughter team.

"It's been a lot of fun," Moses said. "I know how life can be short and we're spending more time together than we usually would."

Golf pro aims for 100 holes

Golf professional Steve Braun, from Charlevoix's Belvedere Golf Club, has played a lot of golf in his many years as a teaching professional in both Flint and Charlevoix.

But what he plans to do Monday, Aug. 24 is even beyond his golf appetite. He will play 100 holes of golf, starting at dawn and going to dusk.

Steve is playing the marathon round as part of the PGA of America's annual fund-raiser for Junior Golf.

This year, the event is a 100-hole National Golf Marathon and pledges are being taken for each hole played. Fifty percent of the funds are earmarked for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association, 35 percent will stay in the PGA Foundation and the remaining 15 percent will go to the Michigan section PGA Junior Golf Program.

After helping the local Junior Golf program as teacher, Braun is ecstatic to volunteer his time in a new way.

"We have a fine program and have, in our four years of existence, introduced many kids to golf who would otherwise literally never be able to afford the game," he said.

Braun has been a teaching pro in Charlevoix for seven years; four at Dunmaglas and the last three at the Belvedere Course. Prior to his stay in Charlevoix, he was a pro in the Flint area and was associated with that community's Junior Golf program which won the Golf Digest's award as National Community Program of the Year.

Dean Davenport, who organized and directs the local Junior Golf program, was elated about the fund-raising event, calling Braun "A tremendous asset to our program."

Davenport highlighted many of the program's needs, including more loaner sets of clubs for youngsters without golf clubs. The program would also like to buy its own trailer to transport equipment back and forth from the area clubs it plays on and for storage purposes. Davenport also noted the organization would like to send more deserving juniors to golf camps on scholarships.

Plans are being organized to provide Braun with a caddy/cart driver for every 9 or 18 holes he plays in order to conserve his energy. Anyone interested in filling those roles is encouraged to contact Davenport at 547-6433.

Meanwhile, Braun said he has been pleased with the generous pledges already collected from local residents. Anyone wanting to contribute a pledge can contact Braun at 547-2611.

"A pledge for so much a hole is all we're asking and the cause is a great one," he said.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Community forum planned to discuss Venetian Festival

The Venetian Festival Committee will conduct a Community Forum to solicit input from the public on this annual event that is held in Charlevoix on the fourth weekend of July. The forum will be facilitated by Tom Kern of the National Cherry Festival in Traverse City.

The Community Forum, open to all area residents, is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 18, at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, 104 State St., Charlevoix. The forum will be designed to allow citizens to voice their concerns and suggestions as to the future of the festival.

Area residents interested are encouraged to attend.

Delegates to be chosen for State Convention

The Charlevoix County Republican Convention is at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13 at the Charlevoix County Commissioner room. In attendance will be all elected delegates.

Guests are welcome to meet and choose six delegates and six alternates for State Convention in Grand Rapids Aug. 28 and Aug. 29.

Back-to-school shots being planned

The Immunization Coalition of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties will meet at 1 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 17, at the Charlevoix offices of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. On the agenda will be planning for back-to-school immunizations. Anyone interested is welcome to attend. For more information, call Jane Sundmacher, Community Health Planner, at 547-6523.

Public invited to senior center dinner

The Charlevoix Senior Center will be hosting their famous roast beef dinner from 5-7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 25 at the Charlevoix Senior Center, 06906 Norwood Rd. The cost is $6 adults, $3 children (5-12). There is no charge for children under five. The public is invited.

Car club hosting show for sixth year

For the sixth year in a row, the Street Legends Classic Car Club of Charlevoix will host their annual car show from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 16 at Shanahan Field, just off US 31 and Martin Road, north of town.

For more information call Bill at 547-2387.

ZBA meeting canceled

The Zoning Board of Appeals will not meet Wednesday, Aug. 19, 1998 as scheduled, due to the lack of agenda items. The next scheduled meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 16.

A complete agenda will be posted prior to the meeting.

Hayes Township will have special garbage pick-up

Hayes Township will have its annual clean-up day this Saturday, Aug. 15.

Township residents are asked to have all items to be thrown away near the curb by 7 a.m. that morning.

Waste Management trucks will pass by each residence only one time during the course of the day.

All items must be bundled, neatly stacked or in a container. Do not leave items loose.

Residents are encouraged to mark any containers "Save" that they want left and not to have anything near the road that is not to be picked up.

The following items will not be accepted: household trash, pesticides, car batteries, yard waste such as grass clippings or tree limbs, vehicles, any type of liquids such as paints, oils, varnish and cleaners and any refrigeration units with Freon.

To remove Freon from any appliance units, residents are asked to call Ken Staley, of Staley's Service Center, at 547-2985, or any other appliance business that has "in-house" service. All units must have attached tags to certify that it's Freon free.

As for liquids, old paints may be mixed with sand or kitty litter to change to a hardened form. Paint tops, however, must be removed.

Waste Management will pick up car or light truck tires, but only four per household.

As for vehicle removals, residents can call Rod, at Parks Auto Parts, 547-4116 or 547-9178, or Robert Mogford, at Mogford Auto Parts, 347-5870, to make arrangements to have any vehicles picked up. Residents will be responsible for any charges.

Youth band to perform in East Park

The Charlevoix Community Youth Band will be performing at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 12 in the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park.

The youth band is comprised of students who have been studying privately all summer with Evelyn Wujcik and Dwight Smith.

Gary Stutzman, organizer of the youth band, said this performance will be the first regularly scheduled annual event. The concert is a culmination of the students' summer efforts. Intermediate and advanced level students may join the group next year.

SCRAPBOOK

Food merchants used to deliver to your house

By Marilyn Boss

Back in the 40s, buying items to eat was quite a bit different than today. You didn't go to the supermarket — the people who had goods to sell came to you.

Right after the war, a lot of boys who came back to town had to find or make jobs for themselves. I remember Herb Moore going door-to-door with a panel truck, delivering wonderful baked goods, which would whet the appetite of all of us in the neighborhood as we ran out to see what he had.

Larry Ecklund, who had also been in the service, lived at 207 Clinton St., and he began a milk route, complete with horse and cart, which he kept in an enclosure in the alley behind his house. Maxbauer's Dairy, which Dale worked for, was taken by surprise, and were forced into home delivery using two old worn out prewar trucks they had on hand. They didn't want to lose all their business to the newcomers.

Dale remembers a fellow by the name of Singing Sam walking down the middle of Mason Street during noon hour, shouting at the top of his lungs, and juggling squash, trying to attract attention. Mrs. Medsker was following behind in her little black 1940 Plymouth, carrying the garden produce which they sold. Frank Zeiler and sons had a little 1929 Model A Roadster pickup that he drove and the boys sold vegetables at each house. The Edwards family sold produce also, from an old Dodge truck with a wooden body. Jerry Whitley and Harry Oldham tried their luck at reselling potatoes which the Sneathens grew. They had an old Model T truck with an enclosed wooden body, which they used to deliver them. However, the potatoes got frozen, and a week later people were complaining that the potatoes were rotting and tasted sweet. Needless to say, they didn't do so well in that particular venture.

Delora Richardson's mother had a large flower garden located where St. Mary's Church parking lot is today. She had an old converted baby carriage which she would fill with flowers. Then she would hire someone to push it around the air would. Vern Jones delivered ice for Charlie Heise, who owned Charlevoix Coal and Ice Co. Bill Sharrow delivered ice with a horse and wagon. His horse would drink a bottle of beer in one gulp. Bill would pour it right down while he was resting on the street. Jim Sherwood also delivered ice, and he gave you a card worth so many pounds of ice. He would pick a hole in the card with his ice pick, designating the number of pounds you purchased.

Eggs were also delivered to the door. Albert and Florence Elliott, and Orville and Marie Hilton brought their eggs in to town. Mr. and Mrs. Nobel Harper delivered eggs and butter, with a nice old 1932 Pontiac in the summer time, and in the winter, they laid the car up and used a horse and covered sleigh with a nice heating stove inside, which they fired to keep themselves warm. It was comical to see it going down the street with smoke pouring out the stack. In the fall of the year, farmers delivered their fruit. Clayt Smith always had apples, peaches, pears, etc. Then, of course, there was always the Raleigh man, the Jewel tea man, the Fuller Brush and Watkins products men.

They say history repeats itself, and at my recent class reunion, Mrs. Tom Hamlin told us that in downtown Chicago, the door-to-door milkman is coming back with glass bottles only. Change is good, but it is nice to remember the days when friendly merchants came along the street to sell their wares.

Neighbors enjoyed chatting with the door-to-door merchants. (Art work by Marilyn Boss)

Hometown Chronicles

Belvedere Club so the resorts would have fresh flowers every day. Mrs. Elwin Johnson also raised a large garden of flowers and peddled them around town.

It was always fun to have the ice man come. He would chip off a few pieces for the kids, as he was getting the right size piece for their ice box. There were several ice men in town. The ice was harvested in the winter from Lake Charlevoix, and stored in ice houses with layers of sawdust to insulate it until summer. Fran Noble was an ice man for years, and during the war, he couldn't get any tires for his truck, so he stuffed them full of old rags, and drove around town like that. His tires always looked partially flat because the rags couldn't fill them up like

Room and board for feathered friends

By Laurie Lounsbury

When the sun climbs over the horizon and streams into Jim Stoneham's backyard, he takes a fresh cup of coffee and his black Labrador dog, Wesley, onto his deck, where he sits and watches birds flit out of their birdhouses and into his vegetable garden.

"I never thought I'd get to liking birds, but they're fascinating," Jim said.

After his morning coffee, Jim might pick some vegetables or do a little weeding.

One thing Jim doesn't do is worry about bugs eating his crops.

"This year I've never had a bug — I just can't believe it," Jim said.

The absence of insects and worms was a pleasant surprise for Jim — not an event that occurred by design or through the use of pesticides.

The garden pests are rapidly and effectively consumed by the birds that have set up housekeeping in Jim's birdhouses.

Jim Stoneham spent his first year in retirement building birdhouses for his wife, Donna. "I kept bugging him to build some birdhouses," Donna said. "I wanted to watch the birds."

So Jim built 38 individual bird-winter of retirement building birdhouses for his wife, Donna. "I kept bugging him to build some birdhouses," Donna said. "I wanted to watch the birds."

houses and one, 16-unit martin house.

Each house was carefully painted by Jim in a variety of colors and designs, including a maize and blue house for the University of Michigan bird fans and a green and white house with a letter 'S' for birds who prefer Michigan State University. The birdhouses have varied sizes of openings for different species of birds.

When Jim posted the birdhouses on his fence posts this spring, the birds came by the flocks.

Apparently, affordable housing is a highly sought commodity for feathered inhabitants of Charlevoix. And with a vegetable garden nearby, the birds get both free room and board. They simply fly the short distance to the garden, where they feast on insects and worms. In case they get dusty or thirsty from dining at fresco.

Probate court to get more state funding

By Jamie MacMillan

Changes in cost sharing laws have given the Charlevoix County Probate department more spending money and could result in the addition of two new probation officers.

Money spent on certain probate, child care services such as foster placement/care, institutional placement/care and in home care is split 50-50 between the county's probate department and the state of Michigan.

In Charlevoix County, such services are paid through probate's child care budget.

In 1979, though, the state began to cap how much counties could spend and still get reimbursement from the state. Any expenses above the cap would be absorbed entirely by the county.

In the 1979-80 fiscal year, Charlevoix County's cap was $65,865 while during the last fiscal year the capped figure was $107,198 according to probate administrator David Rauch.

Through recent court rulings, however, the state may no longer place a cap on the counties and must reimburse each county half of what it spends on child care services.

Both Rauch and probate judge Frederick Mulhauser explained the changes during last week's county board of commissioner meeting.

Last year, the child care budget for the county was $719,846 with $206,000 coming from the child care fund, an additional $372,000 from the county's general fund

Two drug arrests made in Charlevoix

By Jamie MacMillan

Two suspected marijuana peddlers of varying degrees were arraigned in Charlevoix County's 90th District Court last week with preliminary hearings in the state's criminal case against them set to begin next week.

In separate cases, Christopher Porter, 19, and Christopher Jay, 21, both of Charlevoix, stand accused of selling marijuana to undercover informants from the Straits Area Narcotic Enforcement (SANE) team.

In all, Porter faces four charges, with two of the counts for the actual delivery of marijuana. He also faces counts of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver and a manufacturing of a controlled substance charge.

If convicted, Porter could face one to four years in prison and a $20,000 fine on each count.

After staging consecutive buys between Porter and the SANE informant on Thursday, July 30 and Friday, Aug. 7, county sheriff deputies were able to earn a search warrant and arrested the suspect later in the day on Aug. 7.

Upon searching Porter's residency at 06007 U.S. 31 South, police found two pounds of pot and the state reimbursing the rest. During last week's meeting, the pair requested a 1998-99 child care fund budget of over $840,000, an increase of over $110,000 from last year.

Absent of any cap, though, the county's additional general fund expense will decrease by $113,746, Rauch explained.

"We expect a decrease in actual county dollars spent," Mulhauser told the board.

As a result, it was requested that the department hire two extra probation officers. Currently the department has three full time officers and one part-timer.

Rauch explained the desire is to promote the current part-time officer to full time status as well as hire one more officer.

Also requested was a part-time clerical worker who would work two days a week at a starting pay of $9 an hour, Rauch said.

Rauch told the board that current standards call for a probation officer for every 20 clients, but the Charlevoix department runs a ratio of one for every 30 clients.

Despite not showing any open opposition to the plan, the board tabled the decision and referred it to its budget committee before voting on the matter.

Board chairman Phil Johnson did say he was concerned about the fact that extra probation officers would require turning one of two lawyer-client conference rooms into private probation offices.

The state requires that all child care budgets be submitted for re-hate purposes by the first of September and the child care fiscal year runs from Oct. 1 to Sept. 30.

With that time line, Johnson said it will be on the board agenda for a vote during its next session.

In other news, commissioner Carl Price gave the board an update on the county's parking lot project between Mason and Clinton streets.

The city planning commission approved a new parking lot between those streets in October 1995, but it was contingent on zoning approval of a final site plan.

Only last month did county officials turn in a site plan which would add 31 parking spaces to the county's parking lot. The current lot behind the county building has capacity for 81 parked vehicles.

The city's zoning department approved the final plan, and Price said the county is waiting official written notification from the city prior to letting bids out on the project.

The land which sits in between a law office and the Charlevoix Middle School along Mason Street is expected to be black-topped before winter sets in.

Price did not want to speculate on the price of the project, but the county did appropriate $100,000 from its general funds into the county's renovation fund in anticipation of the work.

Also to be spent from that transfer is approximately $17,000 to update the phone systems in several county offices to be compliant with the year 2000. Older phone systems in the offices of register of deeds, friend of the court, treasurer, equalization and building inspection will be replaced with new systems like the ones already in place in the county's district and probate court offices.

The board also approved the purchase of five new computer monitors from C.T.L. Systems for a total of $3,750. They also signed a grant contract enabling the county transit authority to receive three new buses worth a total of $204,750.

The cost of the three buses, with varying capacity of 10-15 passengers, will be covered mostly by funds from the Federal Transit Administration with the Michigan Department of Transportation picking up the tab for the remaining $41,000.

The board next meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 26.

Birds earn their keep in local man's birdhouses

BIRDS

Jim placed a bird bath — literally, an old claw foot tub — near the garden, so the birds can have an after dinner drink and wash up before heading for home.

It's the ultimate, mutually satisfying landlord/tenant relationship.

Since putting up the birdhouses, Jim and Donna have spotted over 30 species of birds in the birdhouses, including purple martins, evening grosbeaks, hummingbirds, sandpipers, kingbirds, vireos, bluebirds and a host of other, more common birds in the area.

"The bluebirds liked the U of M house," Jim joked about the house featuring a primarily blue color scheme. "Bluebirds are the most beautiful. That's what I wanted here."

Jim got even more than he wanted, or at least planned on, when he discovered the birds were eating his garden bugs.

"I don't like to use pesticides. I'm eating it (the garden produce) and so are my kids and grand kids," Jim said.

It would seem that a garden full of bugs should be enough to satisfy even the hungriest of birds, but it's proved not to be the case. Jim and Donna still feed the birds about 50 pounds of bird seed every week.

"They're like me — they like to eat," Jim said, patting his middle.

When the birds migrate to their winter homes in the south, Jim will still have work ahead of him for next year's flock.

"The martins like to have their homes cleaned out every season, so I'll need to take the roof off and clean inside," Jim said.

Boy, oh, boy — human tenants should have it so good.

Whether the birds' tastes run toward a cozy, single-family dwelling or a 16-unit high-rise apartment building, they can find a place at Jim and Donna Stoneham's yard that will make them feel right at home. Included in the housing development is a scenic view of the vegetable garden and a spacious claw foot tub for luxurious bathing. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

War paintings find a good home

By Laurie Lounsbury

JoAnne Beemon decided to donate two war paintings to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy with the hope of auctioning them off, not knowing what type of response she would get.

The paintings, acquired by Beemon at a resale shop, depict World War II scenes of soldiers landing on a beach in the Pacific. Beemon bought them for $6 because she was touched by the scenes of young men fighting for their country.

Local artist Russ Bolt saw the two paintings at the membership kick-off celebration last Thursday and immediately submitted the winning bid.

Unbeknownst to Beemon, Bolt had a special interest in war illustrations.

He was a war illustrator in the Second Marine Division of the United States Marine Corps from 1951-53. It was the time of the Korean war, although Bolt never was sent to Korea.

Instead, Bolt made a variety of illustrations of American soldiers on maneuvers in Puerto Rico and other training areas in the Caribbean and United States. He painted pictures for the defense effort called, "Know Your Enemy." Bolt even illustrated a souvenir cruise book for the men training in the Caribbean islands.

"Fortunately for me, I never had to go to Korea," Bolt said.

Bolt's brother served in Europe in World War II, and was sent home because he froze his feet in Belgium.

"He was fortunate too," Bolt said.

Bolt plans to reframe the paintings and will probably hang them where more young people can see them, whether it's at his home or business.

"Young people don't know about the sacrifices made, just because they're living in a different time," Bolt said. "I'm very patriotic, and grateful to be living here in the United States."

The money raised from auctioning the paintings, along with new membership subscriptions, will help the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy start renovations of their headquarters at 108 Park Ave.

OPINIONS

Monica Lewinsky's mom could have used Edith's advice

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

I'm truly puzzled. If I were Monica's mother, that dress she put in my care would have disappeared long ago! That's what any real take-charge mom would have done to protect the reputation of a mischievous daughter.

Then, if Ken Starr came knocking on my door, snooping for "evidence," I would have explained that perhaps a dog ran off with the dress.

Starr: "Madame, you don't own a dog."

Mother: "I know, but when I carried the groceries into my apartment, a little dog followed me, and while I was putting the Ben and Jerry's chocolate ice cream in the freezer, he grabbed the plastic bag with the dress in it, and ran out into the hall and I never saw him again."

Starr: "But Madame, they don't allow dogs in your building."

Mother: "That's true, but visitors sometimes sneak them past the doorman. Everybody knows that."

Starr: "All right. Let's forget about the dress for now. How do you explain the 37 visits to the Oval Office, may I ask?"

Mother: "Monica was teaching the President how to play chess."

Starr: "Chess? There has never been a chess set in the oval office, Madam."

Mother: "You're right. However, I gave Monica a portable chess set for her 12th birthday. She often takes it with her when she visits her friends. We both love to play chess and she's quite good at it."

Starr: "Where is the set now?"

Mother: "I'm afraid Monica left it in a taxi a few weeks ago. She doesn't remember the name of the taxi company. She cried when she told me it was lost, it meant so much to her because I gave it to her for her birthday."

Starr: "So much for the 37 visits to the Oval Office, but how do you explain the 20 hours of tapes? How do you explain THEM?"

Mother: "Well, you remember that Monica graduated from Beverly Hills High School, where they have a strong drama department.

Many of her friends are children of the Hollywood movie crowd. They are all interested in writing plays and critiquing movies. Monica has a lively imagination as most creative writers do, and she was using Linda Tripp as a sounding board for a new play that she was writing. She told me the setting was to be the White House and the focus of the plot pertained to the shaky security system and the brave men guarding the President. That was the REAL reason for the 37 visits to the Presidents' office. It's all so easy to explain —

Now here's the kind of testimony a devoted mom, Republican or Democrat, would offer in defense of her child. As I said before, it's a puzzle to me that the dress didn't disappear like a sock in a washing machine.

Letters to the editor

Ballot proposal would allow physician-assisted suicide

Editor:

A doctor-assisted suicide proposition will be on the Michigan ballot this November.

If passed, this proposition would give patients who are terminally ill and mentally sound a chance to end their suffering on their own terms.

Two physicians must certify that the patient is terminally ill and not expected to live more than six months. They must also be certified mentally well and not just depressed. The patient can then ask the doctor for a prescription for a lethal dose of a drug. After waiting a week, the patient can get it filled.

This proposal would prevent the kind of assisted suicide that Dr. Kervokian has been promoting because there are safeguards — the two doctors' opinions, the waiting period and the confirmation that the patient is mentally sound.

Gov. and Mrs. Milliken head the committee backing it.

Petoskey Avenue traffic a problem

By Laurie Lounsbury

Several years ago, residents living on Petoskey Avenue on the north side of town complained of motorists exceeding the 25 mile-per-hour speed limit.

Following up on their concerns, the city police department, in conjunction with the Michigan Highway Department of Transportation (MDOT) did a traffic study and discovered that most motorists were indeed driving about 10 miles over the speed limit.

So MDOT raised the speed limit to 35 miles-per-hour.

It was not the solution that residents were looking for.

The problem is back again, further south on Petoskey Avenue, just before southbound motorists approach the bend in the road that takes them down the north hill into town.

Resident Steve Bennett, who owns MacDougall House Bed and Breakfast on Petoskey Avenue, came before the city council Monday night to discuss the problem.

"Traffic on U.S. 31 is worse than ever," Bennett told the council. "The speeds of pickup and regular trucks is too much." Bennett noted that local truckers are the worst offenders.

Bennett had previously discussed the problem with city police chief Dennis Halverson and city manager Mike Wiesner. At Wiesner's suggestion, Halverson submitted a report on the speeding and policing of Petoskey Avenue in the problem zone.

Halverson's report stated that a traffic survey done between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. revealed that 34 heavy trucks were clocked at the intersection of Lewis and Petoskey, where the southbound speed limit changes from 35 to 25 mph.

The average truck speed was 33 mph. The fastest truck was going 41 mph.

Halverson pointed out in his report that on any given street, 15 percent of motorists will exceed the speed limit.

"On U.S. 31, that 15 percent represents 1,500 to 2,000 cars per day," Halverson said.

Most of the city council agreed that traffic speeds on Petoskey Avenue are a problem.

"Everyone was running at 35, so they (MDOT) raised the limit," said councilman Butch Russell. "Then they started running 45."

Mayor Josh Barnes directed council to put the speeding problem on the study agenda for review. He said that strict enforcement of the law might be the only solution.

"If we enforce it, the word will get around," he said.

Engagement

Amy Elizabeth Stock and William Ratigan Ranger

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Burch Stock and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Alvin Ranger announce the engagement of their children, Amy Elizabeth Stock and William Ratigan Ranger.

Amy is a senior ophthalmology resident at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, Mich., where the two of them met. She received a bachelor of science degree in biomedical engineering in 1991 and an M.D. degree in 1995, both degrees from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

William also attended the University of Michigan, where he received a bachelor of science degree in cellular and molecular biology in 1986 and an M.D. degree in 1990. He has joined the vascular surgical practice of Kitzmiller, M.D. and Rimar, M.D., at William Beaumont Hospital. The couple plans to be married in a 1999 summer wedding in Charlevoix.

Local singer to perform in East Park concert

Dan Tollas, a Charlevoix native, will appear in the East Park Clarence Odmark Pavilion at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 20, offering his unique renditions of folk music on his acoustic/modern guitar.

This will be Tollas' first appearance in the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's summer concert series. He has played for various private functions in the area, and has also appeared at the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, the Bear River Brewing Company in Petoskey, and at Blissfest.

Included in his repertoire are songs of John Prine, James Taylor and Neil Young.

Next concert on the Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau schedule is 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 28, when the "Willie Nelson Sounds" of Chris Martin will be featured. In the event of rain or inclement weather the concerts will be canceled.

FAMILY

Wedding

Tasha Tchozeski and Ed Stielstra were united in marriage in a family garden wedding at the Charlevoix home of the bride's grandparents, Sandy and Agatha Matchett. The ceremony was performed by Pastor Kendall Harger of Belding, Mich.

The bride is the daughter of Steven and Joyce Tchozeski of Belding. The groom is the son of Mike and Phyllis Stielstra of Ludington.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father.

Cassandra Melville was maid of honor. Best man was Chad Stielstra. Nature, the couple's black Labrador dog, was ring bearer.

A reception was hosted at Whiskey Creek Resort in Custer.

The bride graduated from Belding High School and Michigan State University.

The groom graduated from Ludington High School and Michigan

State University.

The couple resides in Ludington, where they own Nature's Kennels sled dog racing team.

Julius Gilbert scholarship awarded

In her four years at Charlevoix High School, Katie Golski distinguished herself in many ways. Taking on a rigorous academic program that included advanced placement and college courses, she earned a 3.97 grade point average; scored in the stratosphere in her ACT exams; participated in forensics, drama, and numerous other extra-curricular activities; was honored statewide and nationally for her scholarly accomplishments; and found time to work and volunteer in her community. Now, her efforts have won her a full-tuition scholarship to The University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, where she'll begin studies later this month.

Katie was chosen to receive the first Julius Gilbert Memorial Scholarship, named to honor a Charlevoix philanthropist known for his generosity and work on behalf of the area's hospital. Charlevoix summer residents Bob and Wally Klein, who shared a long friendship with Gilbert, established the scholarship fund this spring with the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Graduating seniors from Charlevoix High School will be eligible to receive the scholarship, based on their academic performance, community service, extra-curricular involvement, and character references.

"I'm so grateful for this opportunity," said Katie, who will take premed courses at Michigan's College of Literature, Science, and the Arts' Honors Program. "Eventually, I hope to attend medical school, become a surgeon, and return to Charlevoix, where I can give back to the community that has helped me so much."

Katie is the daughter of Harry and Ann Golski of Charlevoix.

The Gilbert Scholarship fund is one of more than 70 different funds administered by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Income from the various funds is used to benefit many civic, cultural, educational, and community development efforts throughout Charlevoix County.

More information about the Julius Gilbert Memorial Scholarship, or other scholarship funds at the Community Foundation, is available by calling the foundation office, 536-2440, or writing c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727.

City offers free trees to replace loss of older trees in town

There are many gaps in lines of trees along our city streets, which need to be filled in — due in part to loss of old trees.

Now is the time to get your requests in to have free trees planted along streets in front of your homes and businesses this fall. Tell your neighbors too. Call the Charlevoix City Hall at 547-3270 and choose from the several types of shade trees available.

We know how trees add to property values, provide shade and help the environment.

These trees will need to be watered mainly during July and August for the first two years.

First Baptist Church celebrates 120 years of service

After 30 years of being on display without being used, the bell at the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix rang again to commemorate the church's 120th anniversary. The bell was placed on the nearly completed bell tower at the church on M-66 Saturday, Aug. 15, in time for Sunday's anniversary celebration.

Past and present members gathered to reminisce and hear Revs. Robert Smith, Milton Walton and Jack Harris, former pastors at the First Baptist church, speak for Sunday's anniversary service. Also in attendance was Rev. Bill Nelson, representing the American Baptist Convention. Members and friends gathered after the service for a chicken barbecue and time to visit with former church leaders. The pastors came from around the state and the nation to join in the celebration. Rev. Smith came from New Jersey and Rev. John Cail came to Michigan from New York but was unable to attend because of an injury incurred while in Kalamazoo. Rev. Walton drove in from Big Rapids and Rev. Harris came from Holly, where he has been since he left Charlevoix. Rev. Harris was the pastor from 1962 to 1970 and was instrumental in building the current facility on M-66.

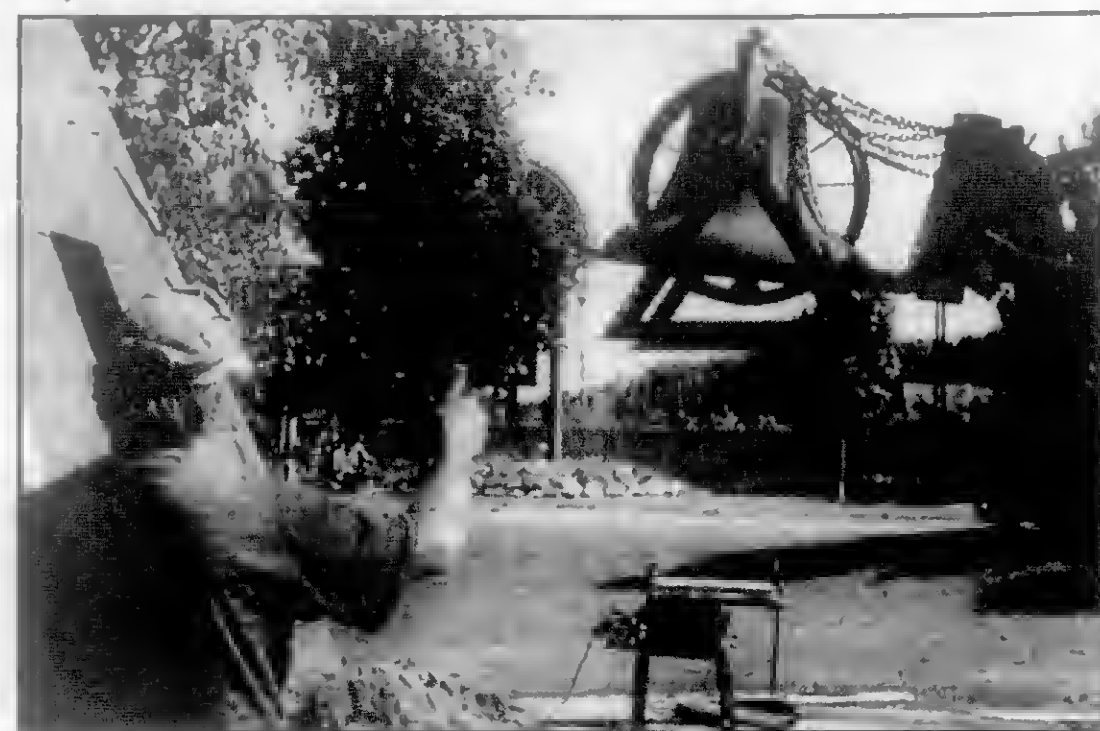

The First Baptist church has experienced much growth under the leadership of Pastor Michael Dennis and is currently working on an expansion project with a gymnasium and classroom facilities.

The church was founded in 1878 with a group of nine people. They met in a house on Barnard Road until 1898, when the original church was built on State Street, where the fire hall is now located. The church grew with the assistance of many of the members of the Belvedere club, who were Baptist ministers, teachers and businessmen. Mr. S.B. Randall presented the church with the bell in 1890. There were a number of well-known people attending the church at the time, including the R.E. Olds family of automobile fame and Sara Teasdale, a noted American poet.

Church hosts guest speaker Betty King

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church invites the public to an afternoon of fellowship. The guest speaker is Betty King. Mrs. King's love for the Lord, expressed in candor and humor, has made her a popular speaker at retreats across the country. She has been a workshop leader at Winning Women for Christ retreats. She also teaches a weekly Bible class of over 100 women in Southfield, Mich.

Please attend at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22 at 104 State St. Light refreshments will be served.

At one time the church was operating two other "preaching outlying stations" in Barnard and Marion Township. The church was the site for an eight week-long revival in the early 1900s, and Chautauquas, which is a type of revival with speakers coming from sister churches all over. The women's missionary groups were also involved in providing for the needy in the Charlevoix area.

In 1939, the servants and workers that came with the members of the Belvedere Club, Chicago club and residents on Michigan Avenue used the church facilities for Sunday evening musical services, which continued for many years.

In 1965, the decision was made to build a new facility instead of renovating the old one. The current church location was formerly the Matthews farm, and after a few setbacks and plan changes, the current facility was started in

Alpha course offered in Charlevoix

This is the fourth presentation of the Alpha course in Charlevoix, and it is an ecumenical effort. Although this time it is hosted by the Community Reformed Church, other courses have been held at Christ Episcopal, United Methodist and Church of God. One course was presented in Petoskey.

The Alpha Course meets from 6-9 p.m. every Wednesday beginning Sept. 9 and ending Dec. 2.

Anyone who would like to better understand fundamental Christian concepts and seek answers to life's spiritual questions should attend. This includes everyone from the curious, to the seeking, to the mature Christian. All are welcome, and all will benefit.

The course is structured so a person may join at any time. Every evening begins with a shared meal, some singing, the videotape presentation, and a small group discussion of that evening's topic. Child care is provided.

To consider the Alpha Course, everyone is invited to an introductory dinner at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 9 at the Community Reformed Church, served at no charge by past participants. At the dinner we will view an introductory videotape on the topic: Christianity: Boring, Untrue, and Irrelevant?

For more information contact Jane Boss at the Community Reformed Church, 547-9482 or Rev. Stephen Guthrie, 547-4681.

Two men face drug charges

in sandwich bags, 18 grown marijuana plants and $40 of the pre-recorded buy money.

In addition to the slew of pot charges, Porter also faces charges as a "habitual offender" stemming from his conviction of larceny in a motor vehicle in Wayne County's Third Circuit Court.

According to police files, Porter was convicted of that charge on Jan. 28, 1997 and served an 11 month sentence for the crime.

Porter's preliminary hearing will begin at 3:45 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27.

Meanwhile, Jay faces one count of delivery of marijuana after allegedly selling pot to an undercover informant on Wednesday, May 20.

If convicted, Jay could be facing a jail sentence of one to four years.

According to police files, a staged buy between a SANE informant and Jay occurred that day in a downtown Charlevoix apartment above the former Mollie's storefront.

At the time, authorities could only identify the suspect as Chris "LNU" (Last Name Unknown). More investigation revealed a more exact identity and county sheriff deputies arrested the suspect on Sunday, Aug. 2.

Both men are free on bond pending the conclusion of their respective trials.

Junior class collecting cans and bottles for class fund-raiser

The Charlevoix High School class of 2000 will be collecting bottles and cans in Charlevoix and in the area resort clubs from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22. The effort is to raise funds for the junior class activities and class prom. Any returnable bottles or cans may be contributed to the drive.

Class members will be going door-to-door in the area to collect bottles and cans.

Any donations are welcome.

Big Rock Point hosting tours of restoration project

Even though Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point nuclear plant has been permanently shut down for almost a year, extensive activity continues at the plant site.

Renamed the Big Rock Point restoration project, the plant is in the midst of an ambitious decommissioning and site restoration effort that is projected to return the location to a "green field" by 2005.

To help the public learn about the restoration effort and the rich history of our nation's longest running nuclear plant, Big Rock Point employees are hosting a public open house the last week in August.

Tours will begin in the plant's visitor center at 9 a.m., 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 25 and 27. Tours will be conducted at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Tours will not be held Aug. 26 in order to accommodate an employee blood drive on behalf of the American Red Cross. A ticket is necessary to attend the tour. The tickets are free and are available at the Charlevoix and Petoskey chambers of commerce.

During the tour, visitors will view a videotape of the plant's historic shutdown on Aug. 29, 1997, visit the control room and turbine/generator building, and receive an update on decommissioning and site restoration efforts.

Tours will be conducted by plant employees. Visitors must be 10 years of age, need picture identification and should wear closed-toe, comfortable walking shoes.

Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and an important research site for the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down on Aug. 29, 1997, after 35 years of service, making it the nation's longest running nuclear plant. Due to its many contributions to the nuclear and medical communities, Big Rock Point was named a Nuclear Historic Landmark by the American Nuclear Society.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation, is Michigan's largest utility providing natural gas and electricity to more than six million of the state's nine and one-half million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy kicked off their membership drive with a celebration last Thursday evening, where supporters danced to swing sound of the Up North Big Band. The event was hosted at the conservancy office at 108 Park Ave., where visitors sat beneath the shade of a graceful old apple tree while listening to the band.

County fair opens Tuesday at Petoskey fairgrounds

The annual Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair opens Tuesday, Aug. 25, with the judging of recently harvested fruits and vegetables, livestock and poultry highlighting the first few days of the event.

The fair runs through Sunday, Aug. 30 at the fairgrounds on Charlevoix Avenue in Petoskey, with the Skerbeck Brothers family midway opening at noon Tuesday, Aug. 25.

Tuesday, Aug. 25 is free admission for senior citizens. Kids from 1 to 90 can take advantage of Kids Days Wednesday, Aug. 26 and Thursday, Aug. 27 when a $12 armband will let you enjoy all the rides in the midway from noon until closing.

The Birdman, Mark Preston and his feathery entourage will entertain with three shows daily Tuesday, Aug. 25 through Saturday, Aug. 29. Preston will perform a magic show and animal act with his exotic birds and his amiable black mutt, Auggie-the-Doggie.

Other features of this year's fair are the Flying Star Rodeo, scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, free concerts in the tent featuring Gaylord's Jeff Fitzgerald & The All Night Crawlers as well as The Chase Buchanan Band from Arkansas and Nashville. The Demolition Derby is sure to draw a large crowd again this year and is set for at 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 29.

Call 347-1010 for more information.

New World Cafe offers new dining experience

Touting food for the third millennium, proprietors at one of downtown Charlevoix's newest restaurants report a busy, but fun first summer of business.

"It's been hectic and exciting," said New World Cafe manager Jeff Karbowski.

New World Cafe at 111 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix specializes in vegetable wraps and quesadillas and is modeled after Cousins New World Cafe, a full service restaurant in Midland which opened two years ago.

The difference between the two places is the downstate eatery is a full service restaurant, while Charlevoix's New World Cafe is mostly take-out.

Despite its take-out motif, the facility does have seating for over 20 people and in the warmer months offers outdoor deck seating overlooking Round Lake.

"The only way to get out there is through the kitchen, and it's neat to show people how we do things in our kitchen," Karbowski said.

Karbowski and Patty Hickman moved up north to manage the restaurant and the pair does all the cooking.

The Midland diner was opened two years ago by Karbowski's friend Don Hayden. Karbowski worked in the kitchen while Hickman managed the floor staff and free time was spent traveling north to Hayden's cabin in East Jordan. It was during those trips that the idea of expanding to northern Michigan was hatched.

"Basically we dreamed about it until it happened," Karbowski said. The restaurant is open seven days a week, from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., although Karbowski said on week-ends they've been staying open almost to the stroke of midnight.

Fresh baked goods are available in the morning hours and during that time breakfast is served. No morning menu exists, though, as all breakfasts are made to order.

The pair decided to go ahead and cook whatever breakfast orders they could, such as omelets and Eggs Benedict, because they were already there preparing the baked goods.

"Cooking breakfasts is my specialty," said Karbowski.

At lunch, an assortment of vegetable, turkey and whitefish wraps in 12-inch spinach or tomato tortillas are the hallmarks of the New World Cafe.

Karbowski points out that all vegetables used in their meals are purchased from local farms.

The menu also includes quesadillas, deli sandwiches and pizzas.

The eatery will be open year-round, and once the hectic pace of summer slows down, they will announce a full dinner menu.

Fresh pies, salads and a create-your-own juice bar are also offered. Thus far, carrot-apple and carrot-celery mixes have been the most popular juices, Hickman said.

Despite their youth — Karbowski is 22 and Hickman is 20 — they've been veterans of restaurant kitchens since their teenage years. Still, running the show has proven an exciting challenge. "It's been a dream come true," Karbowski said. "It's been a good learning experience for both of us." New World Cafe can be reached at 547-3801.

Wind in their faces and a race in their hearts

By Jamie MacMillan

Wind, as defined by Webster's Dictionary, is the movement of air of any velocity.

Depending on the situation, that movement and its accompanying velocity can have different effects on us.

For example, a strong wind can turn a mild winter day into a downright freezing day while in the dog days of August, a gentle rolling breeze provides natural air-conditioning.

On the athletic fields, a relenting wind can make scoring close to par on the golf course impossible, but that same wind will carry pop-up fly balls over the home run fence at Wrigley Field.

Nowhere in sports, though, is wind more of a factor than in sailing. It's the engine that moves the boats forward, slicing through the blue water. Without it, any sailing race would come to a numbing halt.

Boaters who can manage the winds and its shifts in speed and direction usually find themselves in front of the pack. Conquering that element is what drives many sailors into the sport.

"It's the reason sailing is fun," said Charlevoix resident Ken Heininger. "It's the constant challenge and attention needed to make the boat go as well as it can with whatever wind you're experiencing."

Heininger, his wife, Jeanne, and their boat Cheemaun are one of the 70-boat fleet registered with the Charlevoix Yacht Club, many of whom take part in the club's weekly sailing races in addition to the other races on the northern Michigan sailing circuit.

Beginning in the early 1970s, the yacht club races have evolved into a summer tradition, with about 30 sails spreading out over Lake Charlevoix every Wednesday between May and October.

The race course has six marking points — one at Depot Beach, Pine Point, Oyster Bay, Two Mile Point, Raspberry Bay and off the Foster Boat Works.

Races are either windward and leeward, back and forth from two marks or triangle laps around three of the designated markings, based on wind direction. The first leg of every race forces boaters to beat directly into the wind.

Its season is divided into three series of races in the spring, summer and fall. Hoo-AAH, Cabaret, MI Joy and Superfluus took home top honors in the spring series while Wednesday, Aug. 19 is the club's final race in the summer series before beginning its fall schedule on Sept. 2.

"A couple of the races are real close," said Michael Miller, a race committee member who keeps tabs on the leader board.

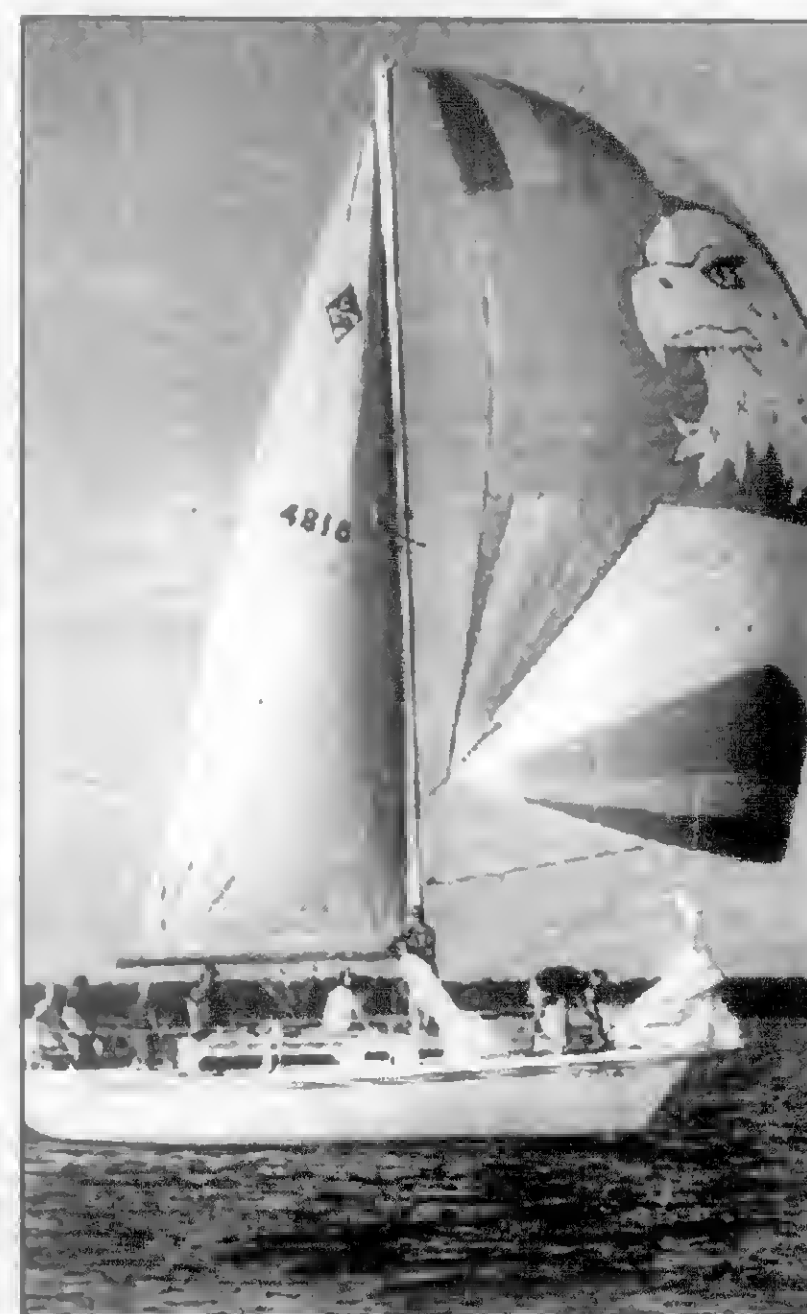

"When you've got 10 or so boats with the same performance capability, it makes it really competitive." Heading into Wednesday's final leg, Gotchal, M3, Tireless, and MI Joy lead their respective divisions, but each can be overtaken by their followers depending on tonight's outcomes.

Two divisions are in a dead heat going into the final race. In the main and jib division, Apothecary and Cheemaun are tied while in the J-22 division, Hussy and The Boat Formerly Known As Floyd are deadlocked.

"I have ideas of curing that," joked Heininger, Cheemaun's owner and the 1997 summer series winner.

Whatever lures anyone into sailing, getting involved with organized racing will help improve your ability, most racers said.

"You really become much more attuned with your boat rather than just roaming," said Bill Kenifeck who captains Hoo-AAH and has taken part in the Yacht Club races

Over Labor Day weekend, a variety of boats will participate in the Red Fox Regatta, from Charlevoix to Boyne City on Saturday with the return leg to Charlevoix on Sunday.

Of course, it is not mandatory that any race has to be done under such organized and official circumstances.

"Anytime you have two boats on a lake, it's a race," Kenifeck said. "It's all about going faster than the other guy. It's competitive, but it's all done in good fun."

SCRAPBOOK

Kamp Kairphree was a cure for young girls' stresses

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

Long known for its aesthetic beauty and curing powers, the Lake Charlevoix region has a long history of youth campers who made the annual summer trek to our area. One such destination was Kamp Kairphree.

Once located on the present day site of Camp Seagull, Kamp Kairphree's tenure began on Lake Charlevoix in 1927, not long after county commissioners voted to change the name from Pine Lake to Lake Charlevoix.

But the story of the camp didn't start in Charlevoix County as readers might suspect. Instead, it began north of Alpena, near the waters of Lake Huron.

In 1922, University of Michigan graduates George R. Swain and his wife, Edith Louise Rice, formed Kamp Kairphree north of Alpena, near Lake Huron.

Their goal was to provide a summer camp for girls that would foster health and enjoyment and strengthen individuality during an era when those attributes were not widely encouraged. At the camp, up to 32 campers and 11 counselors pursued superior to the former location." Another Lake Charlevoix camp, Camp Kairphree, a character camp for boys, established itself the previous summer.

Kamp Kairphree girls relax and enjoy a sing-a-long in front of the camp's fireplace in the main lodge. The camp's logo is seen over the fireplace, bearing a double K. Today, the camp is Camp Seagull on the east side of Lake Charlevoix. (Photo courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society)

Once on Lake Charlevoix's north shore, then part of the 160 acre Shore Acres Farm, the Swains continued their pursuit of a rugged, but enjoyable, stay for 52 girls and young women from around the country. Kamp Kairphree was designed to counteract the nervous unhealthy state of living young women of the time were experiencing, largely due to "long hours of schooling, private lessons, attending movies and parties." Largely populated by Michigan residents, the camp attracted campers ranging in age from 8 to 18 years of age to stay in large tents for six to eight weeks.

While staying at Kamp Kairphree, campers enjoyed the benefits of hiking, horseback riding, swimming, dancing, dramatics, archery, riflery, photography, canoeing, and contributing articles to the camp newspaper, the Kamp Kchatter. These activities took place while also striving to erase the typical behavior of "selfishness and over-sensitive types for the give and take attitude of loyalty and fair play in the great outdoors."

The Swains maintained the camp until sometime in the 1940s. While an exact date is not known, the camp was last listed in a 1940 Charlevoix phone directory. Its successor, Camp Q-Gull, was listed in 1948 and was owned by Edythe Cugell and Francis Philipp (Phillip) from 1945-1949. One can only speculate if the camp's name was phonetically contrived from the Cugell name. The next owners, listed as Francis Philipp and William Nagler, purchased the camp property in 1964 and named it Camp Sea Gull, Inc., although the camp has probably been in existence since approximately 1954. Campers still flock to the camp every summer.

I would like to thank the staff of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds and Betsy Reynolds of the Harsha House Museum for their invaluable service in writing this article.

If you would like to learn more about Kamp Kairphree or other Lake Charlevoix area summer camps please visit the Harsha House Museum at 103 State St. or by phone at 547-0373.

Children of Chernobyl visit Charlevoix

By Laurie Lounsbury

Anastasia Morozova, 11, wears thick-lensed glasses with simple pink frames.

Denis Kharohin, 14, also wears thick glasses that greatly magnify his big brown eyes.

Vitaly Valoshin, 11, is completely blind. He carries a white cane that he waves playfully in the air when he gets bored.

Nickolai Jorov wears no glasses, but has difficulty focusing his eyes.

These four children from the small country of Belarus have a decidedly different view of life, likely because of a nuclear accident that occurred 12 years ago.

But their view of Charlevoix was crystal clear — they loved their visit to our northern Michigan community.

Anastasia and Vitaly hadn't even been born when a reactor at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant in the Ukraine exploded April 26, 1986, sending massive, unprecedented amounts of radioactive isotopes into the air and around the world.

That nuclear accident was called the greatest technological catastrophe in world history. And now it has, for many people, become a largely forgotten incident.

The children of Chernobyl will never forget.

of radioactive material.

Most heavily impacted were the people in Belarus, a country that borders on Chernobyl. The country was directly downwind of the radiation clouds that drifted from Chernobyl to their villages, pastures and see BELARUS, page 10

Shopping center may be built on north side

By Laurie Lounsbury

Jim Uhrick has been a part of the Lincoln Log Motel on Charlevoix's north side for 35 years, either as an owner or partner with his brother, Jerry.

Some time ago, it was fairly simple for the Uhricks to hire the help they needed — people were hungry for jobs and were willing to work nights or weekends at challenging positions.

But that has changed, and the change brings about new plans at the site of Uhrick's motel.

A shopping center will soon take the place of the Lincoln Log Motel on U.S. 31 just north of Mercer Boulevard, if all goes according to plan.

"I'm not really happy about it, but I can't get any help, and I'm tired of doing it myself," Uhrick said. "Everybody's having the same problem in town," he added, noting that he pays his employees a starting wage of $7 per hour.

The developers of the shopping center, Eastwood Custom Homes of Traverse City, plan to include a grocery store, gas station and bank at the new center. Beyond that, not much is known.

For north side residents accustomed to shopping at Don's IGA, Haney said he would like to be able to triple his produce section and double his wine inventory, which would be possible in a new location. He would also like to build on the popular take-out lunch

Former florist sues insurance company

Blaze destroys business, but insurers won't pay

By Jamie MacMillan

Amid an ongoing criminal investigation, a former Charlevoix business owner has filed a civil suit in Charlevoix County's 33rd Circuit Court against his insurance company.

Ron Taepke, owner of the former Expressions Unlimited flower shop, is suing Lake States Insurance Company for failing to compensate him after a fire destroyed his business.

The business, located at 306 Petoskey Ave., burned down in the morning hours of Feb. 11, 1997.

Reported to 9-1-1 at 8:32 a.m., 30 firefighters from a handful of departments used 50,000 gallons of water before finally extinguishing the flames around 11 a.m.

According to firefighters on the scene, the fire started in the basement before moving to a work area in the back part of the main floor.

Taepke's suit alleges that the insurance company has failed to pay him for the damages. The suit outlines three counts to be argued against the insurers: breach of contract, violation of the Michigan Compilation laws, and violation of the Michigan Consumer Protection Act.

The breach of contract portion of the suit is demanding damages in excess of $25,000 for failure to follow through on Taepke's insurance policy.

Under the state's compilation laws, if an insurance company is dilatory — intentionally causing a delay — then the insured is entitled to additional payments of up to 12 percent interest on the policy.

As for the Consumer's Protection Act, the suit alleges that since it was promised that Taepke would be compensated after an accident, the insurers are in violation since no payment has ever been made.

The suit was filed in circuit court Thursday, Aug. 6 and no legal response from the insurance company has yet been received.

Taepke, who has since moved downstate to St. Clair Shores, will be represented by Michael Fabian of Fabian, Sklar and Davis of Farmington Hills.

Meanwhile, a criminal investigation looking into the cause of the fire remains both "active and open," according to city of Charlevoix police chief Dennis Halverson.

Investigators have ruled out the possibility that natural causes created the blaze, and Halverson said his department is pursuing interviews with people who may "have guilty knowledge" of what happened that morning.

Halverson would not comment whether Taepke or anyone else in particular was the target of the probe.

"We have reason to believe that the fire was set," the chief said.

Halverson said of the investigation, which is now over 18 months old, that arson cases usually run long. It's similar to investigating plane crashes in that the main evidence is gone and you're left sifting a variety of rubble that may or may not be important.

He also said tackling the science of fires and the multitude of agencies involved from state fire marshals to insurance investigators slows the process.

In this particular case, Halverson cited the moving around of witnesses which forced officers of the department to travel to Georgia to conduct an interview has also slowed the probe.

Dr. Naghmana Farrukh emerged uninjured from her vehicle after rescue workers removed the windshield from her Nissan Pathfinder. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

No one hurt in rollover accident

Seat belts and air bags prevented injuries in an accident that occurred at about 10:30 a.m. Friday, Aug. 21.

Naghmana Farrukh, 35, a doctor at Charlevoix Area Hospital, was northbound on Bridge Street when she turned left, heading west, onto Garfield Street and was struck by a southbound vehicle in the outside lane. Farrukh's Nissan Pathfinder was rolled onto its side in the accident.

Driving the southbound Ford van that struck Farrukh's vehicle, was Andrew Steven Bacha, 69, of Lake Ann, Mich. His passengers were his wife, Dorothy, and Beverly and Michael Bacha. The two couples were heading back to their homes in Lake Ann after visiting relatives in Paradise in the Upper Peninsula.

No one was injured in the accident. Farrukh was wearing her seat belt, as were all the passengers and driver in the Bacha vehicle. Air bags in the Bacha vehicle deployed on impact.

Farrukh was found at fault in the accident for making an improper left turn. Her vision was obstructed by a southbound vehicle on Bridge Street which was waiting to make a left turn onto Garfield, heading east.

City recreation director Ike Boss drove the Bachas back to Lake Ann, since their vehicle was inoperable after the accident.

Venetian Festival may be cut loose from chamber

By Laurie Lounsbury

Their numbers were few, but their opinions were strong — the laser show was a bust and fireworks should be brought back to the annual festival.

"We felt strongly that the laser show was worse than nothing," said Brownie Flanders. "It was a big negative — it didn't work."

That was the consensus of the 25 people who attended the second Venetian Festival Community Forum last Tuesday evening.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce hosted the event to get input about the festival while it was still fresh in people's minds.

"This year was the year for change," said Tom Kern, executive director of the National Cherry Festival in Traverse City, who moderated the forum. "That's why we're here tonight — to get your reaction to the changes."

In January, a similar forum drew over 100 people to voice their opinions.

Along with taking input from people at the forum, Kern offered his own opinions about the Venetian Festival.

When discussion turned to the ongoing problem of finding enough volunteers to implement changes or new ideas, Kern posed a thought-provoking question to the audience. "Where does this event go?"

Kern asked. "Should it remain a chamber event or become its own entity?"

A small group attending the second Venetian Forum listens to suggestions made by Tom Kern (right), moderator of the forum and director of the National Cherry Festival. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

Kern said that the large group gathered for the first community forum had great ideas and suggestions, yet many new ideas never got off the ground due to a lack of volunteers.

"There's no manpower to do those things," he said. "The community has grown accustomed to allowing the chamber to do it (run the Venetian Festival)."

Kern's suggestion was that the Venetian Festival become its own nonprofit organization, as is the National Cherry Festival.

"The chamber is a business organization, and its primary function is to create a healthy business environment," Kern said. "They are not a special events group."

According to Kern, if the Venetian Festival becomes a stand-alone organization, the festival will need to be more inclusive and more involved with the community.

"The event will only be as strong as the volunteer base," Kern said.

Taylor resigns as Venetian Festival chairman

The decision to make the Venetian Festival its own organization may have just been expedited with the resignation of John Taylor, festival chairman.

"I quit," Taylor said simply. "I can't devote the kind of time it really deserves," he added, explaining his decision.

Since Taylor was an unpaid chamber volunteer, the chamber of commerce is now in a position to cut the apron strings on the Venetian Festival and let it become its own organization.

According to Taylor, the chamber of commerce has been considering a move to a stand-alone Venetian Festival for years.

If the festival should become a self-sustained, nonprofit organization, Taylor said the new group would be better off without him.

"I don't want to bring in any preconceived notions to a new board," he said. "I want them to have a fresh start. Since I don't have the time to devote to get them started, I could be more of a hindrance than a help."

Taylor was expected to tender his resignation at the chamber of commerce meeting Tuesday night.

The board was also expected to continue with discussion of removing the Venetian Festival from the chamber's duties and responsibilities.

"It's not that the festival has grown so much, it's that the chamber has grown, and they're too busy with regular chamber work to be running a festival," Taylor said.

Star-gazer arrested at Boulder Park Terrace

Seemingly innocent star-gazing somehow developed into a case of breaking and entering at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Center at 10:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department was dispatched to a report of a suspicious vehicle parked on West Garfield Street outside Boulder Park Terrace on the evening of Aug. 13. Upon arrival, Sgt. Don Sproul located a person who claimed to be using a telescope to view the stars. Moments later an employee of the nursing home reported that someone had just tried to break into a patient's room and had set off an alarm.

Sheriff's officers arrived at the scene to assist and, based on the ensuing investigation, the star-gazing suspect was arrested for breaking and entering into Boulder Park Terrace.

The suspect is a 33-year-old resident of the city of Charlevoix. He is currently lodged in the county jail.

pending arraignment in the 90th District Court of Charlevoix County.

When Heidi smiles, the whole world smiles with her

Laurie Lounsbury

Sixteen months ago I wrote a column about my niece Heidi, who had just been diagnosed with cancer. The ray of hope in that column was that her boyfriend at the time sold everything he owned — a car and a stereo — to pay for his trip from Tacoma, Washington to Chicago so he could be by her side through her upcoming ordeal. Before the cancer road got rough, Jeremy proposed marriage to Heidi.

Cynic that I am, I was touched by his devotion to her, yet couldn't help but wonder — how can such a fragile new love withstand the rigors of surgery and cancer treatment? I know of couples who have been married for decades, yet are almost driven apart by the strain of coping with cancer.

At that point in time, I didn't know Jeremy. If I had, I never would have had a single doubt.

I don't usually like to borrow other people's words, but this time it seems appropriate to quote Paul Harvey:

"Here's the rest of the story."

Heidi and Jeremy did indeed survive the cancer ordeal. Jeremy was by Heidi's side every step of the way, learning all about her treatment, hooking up her IV's and adjusting her medication levels.

When her hair fell out, he was still there, and still thought she was beautiful.

She was. When she was sick from chemotherapy, he was there to hold a cold wash cloth to her brow.

When she was crippled from the surgery that replaced her cancerous thigh bone with a cadaver bone, Jeremy supported her, both literally and figuratively. Day and night, Jeremy helped Heidi.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremy Larcom

Night and day, Heidi loved him for it.

The strain for both of them must have been tremendous. Heidi was literally fighting for her life, letting the chemotherapy take her as close as possible to death without letting her slip over the line.

Added to the strain was the fact that Jeremy had to live in very close quarters with Heidi's family for more than a year. In my sister's words, Jeremy was a type X personality trying to live harmoniously with a family comprised of type A personalities. Jeremy's so laid back he makes a Barca-lounger look like a straight-backed wooden chair. His in-laws, on the other hand, can barely sit still long enough to tie their tennis shoes.

In spite of it all, the romance of Jeremy and Heidi survived. A few weeks ago, I had the pleasure of attending their wedding.

I needed four Kleenex travel packs to get through the ceremony. I cried when the bride, with her new crop of dark curls framing her face, walked gracefully down the aisle on the arm of her proud father (who was also fighting back a few tears.) I cried when the congregation rose to sing the hymn, "Joyful, Joyful We Adore Thee." I know that "Thee" in the hymn is supposed to refer to God, but in this case, I believe it was the bride and groom to whom we were singing.

The entire congregation joined me in merry weeping when, mid way through the ceremony, Jeremy stepped up to the podium and faced his bride.

In a clear tenor voice, Jeremy sang a solo love song to Heidi in front of a packed church, all of whom were now sniffling audibly.

While he sang, Heidi smiled the small, serene smile of a woman who knows she is truly loved. And in that moment when Heidi smiled, the whole world smiled with her.

By the time Jeremy's solo ended, everyone in the church was snorting and sniffing so loudly almost no one heard Heidi as she put her slender hands together and applauded her husband. She was the only one clapping — the rest of us were busy dabbing our eyes with wads of damp Kleenex.

While I wish all newly married couples all the very best in life, that wish is particularly fervent for Heidi and Jeremy.

For a long time, Heidi has smiled too little and been burdened too heavily with life's cruel struggles and worries. Now she is blessed with a wonderful, free-spirited husband who will no doubt be her navigational guide along the road to wedded bliss.

He is the compass, and she is the magnetic force. Together, they will always be pointed in the right direction.

and deli section the store currently offers.

If the opportunity makes good financial sense, the Haneys would sell their current building on U.S. 31 and move their grocery business to the new shopping center.

"It will be the same Don's IGA, with the same food and service, same staff, just bigger," Rebecca said.

For Uhrick, the sale is bitter-sweet.

"I like this spot; I'm sad to see it go," he said. "But I'm ready to try something new. I'd like to find some cabins on the lake to buy, but it's not the easiest thing in the world to find in this area."

The developer signed a contract to proceed with the project, but the deal won't be finalized until Oct. 15, according to Uhrick. If it becomes final, the developers plan to break ground for the shopping center in the spring of 1999.

The developers were not available for comment before press time. The realtors handling the transaction, Dave Campbell and Greg Bryan of RE/MAX, also did not return phone calls before press time.

Camp McSaubia enjoys a successful year

Editor:

Another summer of Camp McSaubia is in the memory book for many who attended our day camp. At the end of each week there were several kids begging their parents to let them go back to camp again the next week.

This year we had some children attend every session of the summer! We were blessed with the presence of 504 campers this summer, with some weeks going over our limit of 65 kids. There were also many who were turned down. We have put on a 1,500 square foot addition, but even with the extra space, we still believe we will fill every session, so just to be safe - get those applications in early next year.

At this time I would like to thank the organizations that funded our program. Without the help of United Way of Charlevoix Area, the Rainbow Shoppe, American Legion Auxiliary #226, VFW Auxiliary, Mark and Eileen Kleiman, Tom and Karen Siegel, Owen and Barbara

Junior Golfers say thanks for program

Editor:

This letter is intended to acknowledge Charlevoix area golfers and the Junior Golf Association Board, the director, teaching staff, and volunteer mentors. This summer we were awarded scholarships to attend a week of golf camp at the renowned Ferris State University Golf Academy. We all agree it was a terrific experience and we learned a lot about golf and about ourselves while away from home for nearly a week.

Summer school enriches education of 45 students

The Charlevoix Summer School Enrichment program which ends this week, enrolled 45 students with four classes: third and fourth grade, fifth and sixth grade, seventh and eighth grade and a high school English class.

The third through eighth grade classes focused on math and reading skills and were offered for students who wanted extra help.

The high school English class was offered for a semester's credit toward graduation if class requirements were met.

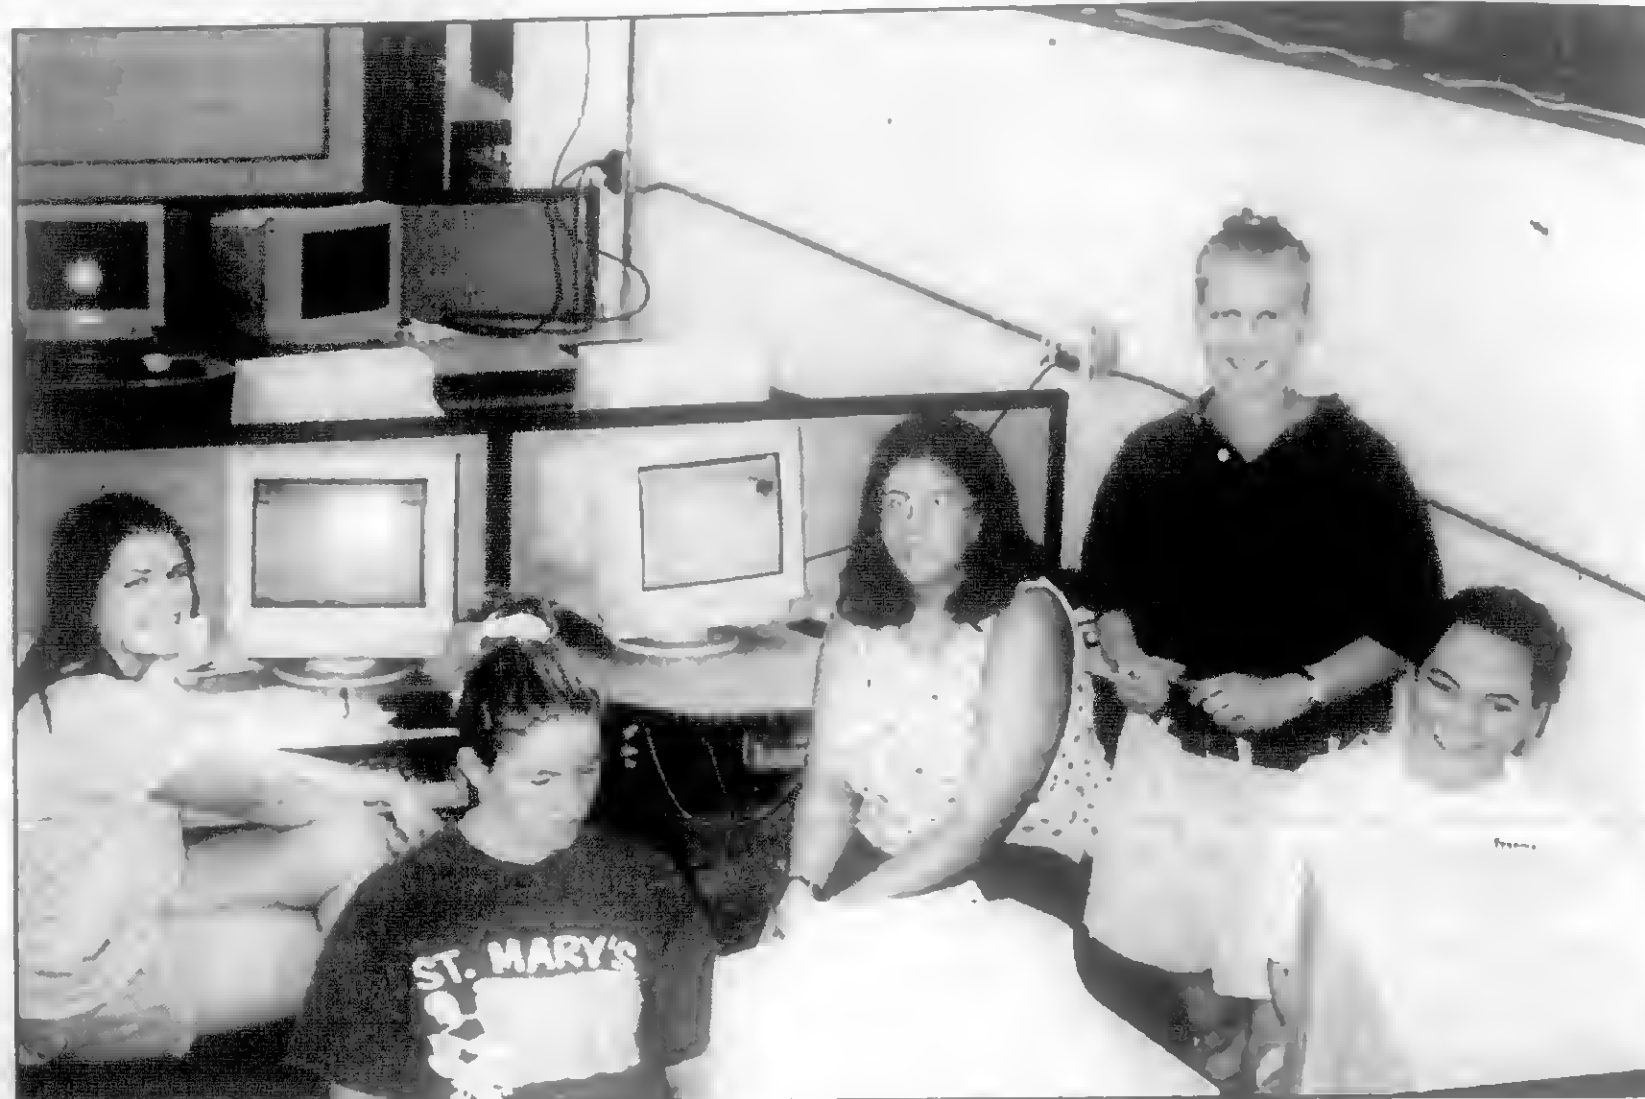

Students in the third through eighth grade were offered computer-assisted instruction as well as related field trips to their subjects. Field trips included a trip to a trout pond by the third and fourth grade class where they cleaned and cooked the fish. This ended their unit of reading about fresh water fish in our area.

The high school class traveled to Mackinaw Crossings to see "Stage Struck."

The summer school enrichment staff included Marlynn Hughes teaching the third and fourth grade with Christie Kaczynski assisting; Kari Koffman teaching the fifth and sixth grade with Dana Seelye assisting; Pat Miller teaching the seventh and eighth grade with Terry Bonar assisting; and Dixie Darling teaching the high school with her daughter Dana Ashton assisting. Sue Goss taught in the computer lab and worked with the computer-assisted learning.

The enrichment program ran four days a week for four weeks.

Sounds of Willie Nelson come to East Park band shell

Performer Chris Martin will bring his acclaimed "Willie Nelson" sound and other talents to the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27. It will be his fifth appearance in the annual Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau summer concert series.

Martin describes himself as a successful entertainer who doesn't just sing.

"I am an entertainer, not so much a musician," Martin said. "I don't care so much if the notes come out wrong, as long as the crowd is having fun."

His musical career began at the age of 5, and he moved to the area in 1989 after a successful career in Detroit. Today, Martin has a full producing and recording studio where he produces and develops original songs.

In addition to his entertaining ability, Martin is famous for something else. For five consecutive years, his recipe for ribs has won the title of "Best Ribs in the North." The award-winning ribs will soon be available at Little Caesars Pizza outlets throughout northern Michigan.

Martin's eclectic mix of a variety of music and fun, paired with his charismatic humor, make up his program and make it a crowd pleasing performance.

Next concert in the summer series is Wright Brass, who will be performing at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5. In the event of rain or inclement weather, the concert will be canceled.

Belvedere Club awards local youth with college scholarships

On the course or in the classroom, the Belvedere Golf Club is helping three young Charlevoix men polish their skills and strive for success. The club recently awarded its second round of scholarships to the students, all of whom have worked or caddied at the course.

Christopher Mikulski was awarded a $1,000 scholarship to Michigan Technological University; Robert Sommerfeld and Dan Pardee each received $500 scholarships to Michigan State University.

The three Charlevoix residents also received Belvedere Golf Club scholarships last year and, providing they maintain good academic standing, the scholarships will continue until the completion of their undergraduate degree programs.

The Belvedere Golf Club Scholarship Fund was established in 1995 by club members to provide higher educational opportunities to deserving and loyal employees or children of employees. Recipients of the scholarships are selected on the basis of their academic performance, community service and leadership traits. The fund, which is administered by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, is open-ended and can be added to at any time by club members or others interested in contributing. Donations to the fund are tax deductible and qualify for a special Michigan tax credit.

The golf club scholarship fund is one of more than 70 charitable funds held by the local community foundation. Income from the funds is used to support civic, cultural, and economic development initiatives, as well as to provide scholarships to many of the area's deserving students.

Information about the Belvedere Golf Club Scholarship or other community foundation funds is available by calling the foundation office at 536-2440, or writing c/o P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan 49727.

Chernobyl nuclear explosion creates staggering needs

homes.

As is so often the case, when the media coverage of Chernobyl waned, so did public awareness.

The accident was not much more than a footnote in newspaper archives for many Europeans five years afterward.

But a woman in Ireland, who had visited Belarus, didn't forget.

In 1991, she received an S.O.S. from doctors in Belarus:

"For God's sake, help us get the children out!" was the message.

Adi Roche, the woman who received the faxed S.O.S., started the Chernobyl Children's Project. The children's project works ceaselessly to bring children out of the radioactively ravaged areas of the Ukraine, Belarus and Russia for a much-needed vacation from radioactivity.

The group also works to get medical supplies back into those areas.

Twice a year, they form a huge convoy of trucks and ambulances that travels from Ireland to Belarus and western Russia with medical supplies and humanitarian aid, driving it there personally to make sure the supplies reach their destination safely.

Many of the people still living in Belarus, Ukraine and Chernobyl stay because they don't have the money or resources to leave. The nuclear power plant in Chernobyl is still operating a reactor, and since jobs at the power plant pay well, residents trade in their health for a pay check.

Four Belarusian children found their way to Charlevoix last week, with the help of the Chernobyl Children's Project.

"In Ireland, they're putting out a cry for help," said Kevin Kamps, a Michigan contact for the Chernobyl Children's Project. "The need is staggering."

The path that brought the group here is amazingly ironic.

Kamps, a native of Kalamazoo, has spent most of his adult life actively studying the hazards of nuclear power and nuclear weapons.

When Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant hosted a public information meeting Nov. 13, 1997 to discuss their decommissioning plans, Kamps made the trip north to hear what they had to say. Kamps was acutely aware of the hazards of nuclear power — In 1995, he went on a peace march from Belgium to Moscow and saw for himself the results of the Chernobyl explosion.

Charlevoix's beauty — and the need to protect it from a nuclear accident — made an impression on Kamps.

When Kamps and his wife, Gabriela Bulisova-Kamps, arranged to bring Belarusian children to Michigan, they decided to include a visit to Charlevoix.

It was concern over nuclear hazards associated with the Big Rock Point decommissioning project that originally brought Kamps to Charlevoix. It seemed logical to bring the Belarusian children to a place that is both beautiful and also in the shadow of a nuclear power plant.

"Now, it's come full circle," Kamps said.

After their arrival in Michigan, the four children attended an art camp for blind and visually impaired children at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

"It was a totally new experience for them," said Anna Goncher, the 18-year-old Belarusian interpreter who travels with the children. "They don't have anything like it back home."

When art camp ended, the group came north to Charlevoix, where Congregational Church youth director Cara Hochhalter arranged a variety of activities for the kids, including roasting marshmallows over a bonfire at Mt. McSaubia with teens in the local youth group. They also went horseback riding at Birchwood Farms and canoeing through the Six Mile-St. Clair Lake Natural Area.

Through Anna, the kids said they were enjoying their visit to Michigan very much. They agreed that Michigan was quite different from their homeland.

"It's different because of the levels of radiation," quipped Denis, demonstrating both a sense of humor and the profound knowledge that comes with living in a radioactive fallout area.

The children returned to southern Michigan, where they will stay until Sept. 13, when they return home.

"I never want to leave America," one of the children said before leaving Charlevoix.

For more information about the Chernobyl Children's Project, call Kevin Kamps at (616) 383-9317 or visit the Chernobyl Children's Project web site at: <http://www.aardvark.ie/ccp/>

Charlevoix-Emmet County Fair is in full swing this week

Demolition derby, horse races wind up fair this weekend

The Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair is in full swing this week, providing family entertainment that's both fun and educational. Still to come in the last four days are many of the fair's biggest events, including the market livestock auction, horse and tractor pulls, concerts in the tent and the popular demolition derby.

Thursday, Aug. 27, is the second of two kids' days, with a special arm band offered to kids and adults for unlimited rides on the Midway for $12.

Also on Thursday is the market livestock auction at 3 p.m., the lightweight horse pull at 2:30 p.m., and the heavyweight horse pull at 7 p.m.

Friday, Aug. 28, fair activities start with the 4-H horse show at 8:30 a.m. Grandstand events include the pony pull at noon, the garden tractor pull at 4:30 p.m. and the tractor pull at 6:30 p.m.

Jeff Fitzgerald and the All Night Crawlers will perform in the tent Friday evening, followed by a concert featuring the Chase Buchanan Band from Arkansas and Nashville. Concerts are free.

Competition continues Saturday, Aug. 29, with the open horse show at 8:30 a.m. and one of the most popular events of the fair, the demolition derby, at 7 p.m. in the grandstand. During the intermission between the preliminary and final heats, there is a "Powder Puff Derby." Women who wish to participate are called from the stands. They compete in a heat of their own, using cars that have already been eliminated.

The fair closes late Sunday, with the carnival running from noon until 6 p.m. and an open speed horse show at 1 p.m.

Admission to the fair is $5 for children 12 and under, and $7 for adults.

For more information, call the fair office at 347-1010.

Norwood Township considers use of dry fire hydrants

By Jamie MacMillan

In an effort to make fire fighting easier and possibly reduce fire liability to its residents, Norwood Township officials have begun a process that could add a series of dry fire hydrants along the Lake Michigan coastline of the township.

A dry hydrant differs from a wet hydrant in that they are located above the surface water and firefighters would have to pump water into them from the water source. They are very typical in rural areas which are without central water services.

Township supervisor Earl Muma said three locations have been pinpointed to install the hydrants: Clipperview Road at the Witmer Road intersection, in the township park at the base of Lake Road, and down the road from the park at the south, dead end of Lake Shore Drive.

Muma said property easements are in place for the latter two and the location at Clipperview would be on county road commission property.

Only one hydrant, on Gennett Road, currently exists within the township's borders.

“More of these (hydrants) in the proximity of houses could result in less fire insurance for homeowners,” the supervisor said.

It is expected that homeowners' fire insurance liability rating would decrease from a 7 to a 5 as a result of the additional hydrants, Muma said.

It looks like a candy cane sprouting out of the ground, but a dry hydrant is not a piece of confection. It brings water to rural areas for fire fighting. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

A rating decrease would likely reduce homeowners' bills, but to what extent, if any, a rating decrease from additional dry hydrants would occur remains in doubt after conversations with insurance agents.

“It could be significant,” said local AAA agent Dan Michalski of possible savings. “But everyone uses a different criteria to determine those numbers.”

His firm uses an independent firm, which rates the actual fire department for homeowners' policies. Among major criteria that the independent firm uses includes travel distance to the department's coverage area and the amount of full time staff available.

According to Michalski, the city of Charlevoix's rating is 7, but whether more hydrants in a township it services would lower the rating was unclear.

Connie Doan of Charlevoix Insurance pointed out that only the installation of regular wet hydrants would decrease any liability rating. She did note, though, that such a decrease from 7 to 5 would decrease the insurance bills for a $120,000 home by about $150 annually.

Despite insurance savings, local firefighters said additional hydrants, especially in that area, would make for better emergency services and ultimately a safer environment.

According to city fire chief Doug Carver, firefighters can tap directly into the hydrants and fight a fire 3,000 feet away. If the blaze is beyond that limit, firefighters fill their tankers with water from the hydrant and then go to the fire.

It's labor intensive and takes time to do, but Carver said it makes a big difference if the hydrant is one or two miles away from the blaze as opposed to seven miles, the distance from the city to Norwood Township.

“We have numerous dry hydrants around the area, but we are trying to locate more in Norwood Township,” he said.

Muma is ready to go forward with the project and has already obtained permit applications from both the Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Corps of Engineers to install lines into the lake leading to the possible hydrants.

Before proceeding at full throttle, though, township officials want to meet with City of Charlevoix firefighters about the project as well as do a feasibility study on possible costs.

With the recent fire and an insurance protection millage approved, about $12,000 — usually the amount spent to contract out fire fighting services with the city — has been freed up for other uses.

Whether or not that money would be used for this project and whether the township can afford to proceed is unclear, Muma said.

There are two other alternatives to provide firefighters with a better water source, Muma said. One would be the installation of a large, multi-thousand gallon water tank. The other possibility would be to contact township residents with ponds about the possibility of tapping into their water supplies.

“It's a matter of what we can afford,” Muma said. “Everyone is in agreement that we want to do something with this.”

The township board next meets at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 21 at the township hall.

Ironton store is back in business with new owners

By Jamie MacMillan

Changing his store's product focus amid its first summer season has turned into a pleasant surprise for Gary Frye.

After spending much of the last decade in California, where most recently he was a human resources director for the local hospital, Frye returned home to Charlevoix and opened Frye's Bait and Tackle this past Memorial Day.

Intended to be an outdoor sporting goods outlet, the addition of groceries to the shelves has given the store its greatest amount of sales, Frye said.

"We really have moved more toward a party store than a bait and tackle store," he said of his store in the Ironton area.

The added grocery business came about for two reasons, Frye said. He wanted to give residents of that area a grocery stop without having to go all the way into downtown, and in order to add beer and wine to his shelves, the Liquor Control Commission requirements called for more groceries.

On the shelves are assorted breads, dairy products, canned foods, breakfast supplies, sandwiches, microwave snacks and ice cream. Frye said next summer he plans to scoop ice cream cones and add a mini deli.

Frye was recently granted a license to sell beer and wine.

"Moving to more groceries seems to be a good move," he said. "I don't know if I would have stayed open in the off-season without it."

While the food supplies are providing the store a solid sales backbone, it's the sporting goods that give it a dose of fun.

Moving back from the west coast, the Charlevoix class of 1986 graduate had an urge to run his own business and the outdoorsman in him figured an outlet store for outdoor sports was the best type of business to open in the area.

Currently the store's sporting focus is on fishing. The store sells rods, reels, lines, tackle boxes, a slew of lures including Panther Martins and Rapalas and batches of live bait from night crawlers to leaf worms to leaches.

Frye said stocking his sporting goods shelves is an ongoing process.

"When people come in and we don't have something, it's a good sign to start stocking it," he said.

Gary Frye and his wife, Lily, take a break from their busy schedule of running a store in the Ironton area, where they sell grocery items and sporting goods. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

"We want a little bit of everything, so we'll continue to add things until we figure out the best market."

The store will offer hunting supplies and ammunition as hunting season gets closer and will also have ice fishing supplies. Frye noted he's trying to work out an agreement with the Department of Natural Resources to allow the store to hand out fishing and hunting licenses.

Frye runs the store with his wife, Lily.

"She has the retail background and I have the sporting goods background," Frye said.

The store, located at 03619 M-66 near the Ironton Ferry, is housed in a renovated cedar building originally constructed in 1947.

The store is open seven days a week, from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. Frye's Bait and Tackle can be reached at 547-5955.

Junior golfers take home awards

The Charlevoix County Junior golf program completed its fourth summer with its annual awards day.

Awards were given out to young golfers who topped their age brackets after skill-testing in putting and chipping.

In the 8-year-old bracket, Zeta Anderson won both the putting and chipping contests, as did Jason Foster in the 9-year-old category.

In the 10-year-old division, D.J. Stewart won the chipping contest while Ivan Parker had the top score in the putting contest.

In the 11-year-old division, Josh Wood earned top putting honors while Andrew Tillotson won top prize among chippers.

In the 12-year-old category, Kasey Davenport swept both the putting and chipping contests. Among 13-year-olds, Byron Spencer and Donovan Swanson tied for the top prize in the putting contest, while Corey Britton topped all chippers.

In the 14-year-old division, Allen Brooks won the putting while Sam Ciske won the chipping.

In the 15-16-year-old bracket, Chad DeKorte won the putting while Ben VanGuilder won the chipping contest.

In the longest drive contests, Chris Smith, Matt Kochanny, Chris Golski and Josh Teten won their respective age divisions.

Over 170 golfers from around the neighboring communities participated in the program this summer and six received full scholarships to the Ferris State University week-long golf camp by virtue of their golf potential. Earning the scholarships were Zack Bajos, William Foster, Brian Jakeway, Dennis Avery, Allen Brooks and York Smith.

Traveling golf league completes first season of play

The men from A-Ga-Ming held off a hard charge by Antrim Dells to take championship honors at the conclusion of the inaugural season of the Northwest Michigan Golf League.

The clubs knocked heads last week after eliminating the Charlevoix Country Club and Dunmaglas the week before.

In the finals, A-Ga-Ming and the Dells tied at 3-3 in six head-to-head match play set-ups. However, because they entered the finals with a 4-2-1 record as opposed to the Dells' 4-3 mark, the tie was enough to secure A-Ga-Ming's overall victory.

Little separated the two top clubs as all six matches were decided on the final hole.

Dunmaglas, 2-3-2, and Charlevoix Country Club, 2-4-1, ended in third and fourth place.

With an exciting first year on the books, the league is already looking ahead to next year. According to coordinator, Dean Davenport, league organizers and team captains will soon meet to assess the summer-long competition and determine the course of action for next year. Several courses have inquired with an interest to join the league, Davenport said.

Anyone interested in joining the league next season may call Davenport at 547-6433.

Ice Cream Social hosted by historical society

Charlevoix Historical Society will be hosting an Ice Cream Social at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 1 at the Depot Museum. Members and the public are invited to attend.

Animals honored in ceremony at humane society

Because animals provide us with so much love and comfort, yet ask so little in return, the Charlevoix County Humane Society is honoring all animals and pets with a small ceremony.

The ceremony, called the Blessing of the Animals, will be at 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30 at the animal shelter, 1004 Grant St. in Charlevoix. All pets are asked to bring their owners and to be on leashes or in carriers.

Walk in Charlevoix to benefit Alzheimer's families

The Northwest Michigan Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association is sponsoring an Annual Memory Walk through Charlevoix from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19. The 3.5 mile walk through downtown Charlevoix will begin at East Park, continue along the water's edge across the bridge, through the neighborhood to Depot Beach and return through the Earl Young stone home area.

The walk is designed to continue education and support services to local Alzheimer's patients, their families and caregivers in northwest Michigan.

The Northwest Michigan Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association is a nonprofit organization that is solely funded by Memory Walks and all funds raised remain in an 11-county area to help local families. Grandvue Medical Care Facility in Charlevoix County is one of the sponsors of the walk.

For more information, call Chris Weaner, executive director of the group at (616) 929-3804.

State senator's aide will be in Charlevoix County

State Senator Walter H. North (R-St. Ignace) announced that his district representative, Don Weeks, will be in Charlevoix County Wednesday, Sept. 2.

Weeks will meet with constituents at Boyne City Hall in Boyne City from 10 a.m. to noon and at the county courthouse in Charlevoix from 2-4 p.m. Any citizen with concerns regarding state government is encouraged to attend and should bring all relevant information pertaining to their case.

For more information, contact Senator North's Lansing office at (517) 373-2413.

Free immunizations offered at county fair

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency will be offering free immunizations on their new Northern Michigan Wellness Wagon from 2 to 6 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27 at the Emmet County Fair in Petoskey. Immunizations are available for kids through age 18 in an effort to increase immunization rates in Emmet County.

All kids who get immunizations that day will receive a free gift, but they must be accompanied by a parent or guardian, and they must bring their immunization record.

Questions regarding a child's immunization record or the free immunizations can be directed to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency at 1-800-432-4121.

Evening garden club to meet

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will be meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 1 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Jeanine Rupert from Pine Hill Nursery will be presenting the program "Putting Your Garden to Bed."

We welcome anyone who's interested, and we welcome new members.

For more information call Linda Purdy at 582-6517.

Hospital guild hosts membership tea

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild's Membership Tea will be from 2-4 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 15 at Virginia Rountree's home at 14566 Park Ave. in Charlevoix. All visitors are welcome to attend the tea and meet many of the hospital's volunteers.

For more information call Kathy Johnson, hospital volunteer coordinator, at 547-8502.

Annual Hymnsing camp to meet in Boyne City

The annual Northern Michigan Camp Hymnsing will be at 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30 at the campground, which is five blocks north of the Boyne City Dairy Queen.

Everyone is welcome to attend, and finger food would be appreciated for the time of fellowship after the service.

Teen center continues with used book sales

Because of the overwhelming response to the BASES Teen Center's used book sale, the Teen Center is happy to announce that the book sale will be extended through the end of summer. Teen Center hours are 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Used hardcovers, paperbacks, reference and children's books are available during the sale. Donations of used books may be dropped off during regular business hours.

SCRAPBOOK

Politician out for night ride saves sailors' lives

This is a sampling of news stories, compiled by Cynthia Postnus with help from the Charlevoix Public Library, from the Charlevoix Courier in past years and decades. We are printing them exactly the way the stories originally appeared, complete with grammar, punctuation and spelling errors so as to include the full flavor of these old stories.

PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF DOG NUISANCE

Canines Run in Packs and Have Attacked Individuals
(Charlevoix Courier, Oct. 26, 1927)

Charlevoix citizens are again vigorously protesting over a condition that in some parts of the city has become almost a menace: The trouble is DOGS — allowed by their owners to run loose, destroy personal property, and in several instances they have attacked people.

The most vigorous complaint comes from the Chicago Club. According to James Gaskins, warden, this seems to be their favorite meeting place. He says a pack of five or six dogs of the Police breed are destroying flower beds, killing his chickens and in several instances have attacked workmen on the ground. Besides this pack, the grounds are being overrun with hounds and other breeds of dogs. In another column of this paper Mr. Gaskins publishes a warning to dog owners. And he means business too.

It appears to us that this condition is entirely uncal for. If dog owners do not observe the law regarding the care and keep of their dogs, officials whose duty is to see that all laws, dog laws or otherwise, are enforced, should shake the dust off their heels and get busy.

We have a dim recollection of a warning to dog owners published in all county papers some weeks or months ago. We've never heard of a dog being killed nor a dog owner being prosecuted. No change of condition has been noted, either. Dogs are still running loose, many without licenses, and apparently the matter has been forgotten. We may look this matter up more thoroughly and find, if possible, how much is owing the county from unpaid dog licenses.

POLITICIAN HEADED A BOAT RESCUE PARTY

REP. R. L. LEWIS HELPS TO SAVE FIVE LIVES
Locates Struggling Sailors with Car Spot-light, Then Speeds For Aid
(Charlevoix Courier, Aug. 8, 1923)

Two men and three boys, the amateur crew of a storm-beset sloop, last Friday night owed their lives to the timely appearance and rapid action of R.L. Lewis, state representative, who came upon their boat, driven aground and overturned off South point by a gale that would have made an attempt to swim ashore disastrous.

The way it was

Mr. Lewis and his wife, driving along the shore in an automobile, were attracted by a call for help through the darkness. Playing his spotlight into the lake the motorist finally located the sloop with five persons clinging to its upturned side.

Speeding back to the coast guard station two miles away Lewis found that the station's one regular boat had just gone out on another call, but with Capt. Francis Partridge and another member of the guards who remained at the station he hurried back to the sloop.

A small boat, located by the life-savers, was launched into the storm and the sloop's crew, nearly exhausted by their battle of several hours against the waves, were brought ashore.

Although expressing their deep gratitude to their rescuers the five refused to give their names, saying they did not want relatives to learn of their mishap.

The ill-fated vessel proved to be the thirty-foot sloop, Columbia, owned by Dr. R.S. Morris, a member of the medical faculty of the University of Cincinnati, who, with four of his friends, had left Old Mission. Thursday morning, bound for Harbor Springs, where they were going to enter the races. Rainy weather and the treacherous reefs of the South Point proved to be too strong adversaries, however. Calm weather, earlier in the day, slowed them up so that they were unable to make the harbor. During Thursday evening, a rainstorm came up and the party, unable to get their bearings and unfamiliar with the coast hereabouts, landed on the South Point reefs at about eleven p.m.

Friday efforts were made to get the boat off with the assistance of the gas boat Josephine. As the small craft proved unequal to the task, arrangements were made with Harry Oldham, owner of the S.S. Bruce, to draw the sloop off. The Bruce proved to have sufficient power but had difficulty in getting close enough to the wreck. It was necessary to pass two hundred feet of line to get hold of the sloop. The crew of the Bruce were assisted in this operation by three men from the coast guard station and two young men from town who had gone aboard as spectators but proved to be able amateur seamen.

Dr. Morris' boat was badly stove in, sinking as it slid from the reef. While being towed from the Point to the harbor, which was reached after two a.m., the top of the thirty foot spar was completely under the surface. The U.S.S. Sumac raised the boat in the harbor and Roy Ranger is in charge of the repairs.

Don't Get Angry

If you receive notice that your subscription account must be paid, but consider that we have accounts also which must be paid, and have been giving good service for a long time, and now must put our subscription list on a business basis. We intend to start the winter season with a clean paid up list so get in line and help make a still better paper. (Notice in Charlevoix Courier, Aug. 12, 1908)

THEATRICAL One of the Best of its Kind.

One of the best plays of the season, "A Dangerous Friend," will be at the Charlevoix theater Friday evening, August 28.

"A Dangerous Friend" is an American play of a melodramatic character without being coarsely sensational. The interest of the audience is not assuaged with murder, shooting, vile sentiment and exaggerated brutality, but on the contrary is maintained very cleverly with plenty of comedy, natural pathos, genuinely impressive scenes and a group of good characters. Fred G. Conrad, the author, has introduced love and heroism, with triumphant virtue, in five strong and picturesque acts of surpassing vividness. The play comes under the direction of the author and very naturally he has taken especial care in selecting the company to present his drama.

ROLL OF HONOR BANK

1905 Under State Supervision 1930

We Want More Deposits

A bank cannot perform its full duty to the community unless it is in a position to loan money safely, where that money will do its full share in the development of the community. Of course, larger deposits, mean more loans and consequently greater profits for us, but if we can assist the community to prosper, why should we not prosper too, and our desire for larger deposits may be said to be equally divided between our ambition to make greater profits for our stockholders and our ambition to be of far greater usefulness to the section that supports us.

Charter school names new administrator

Academy considers joining forces with area school for sports

By Jamie MacMillan

Entering its third year in business, the local charter school, Northwest Academy, will undergo leadership changes.

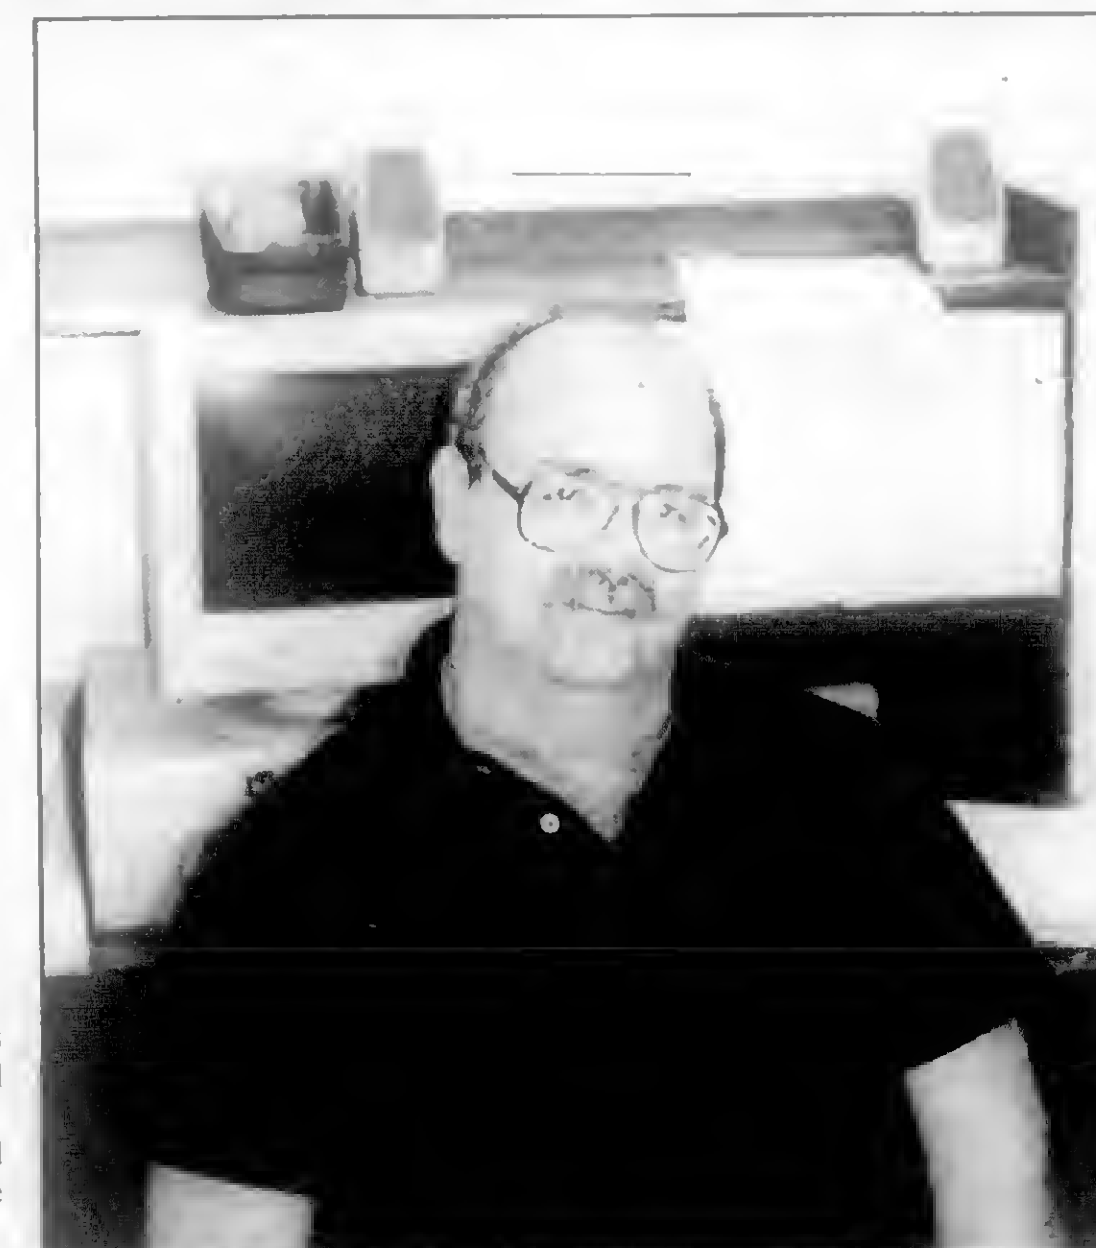

Paseale Asbury, who has been the school's head administrator since the school opened its doors in 1996, has resigned to take a position in the French consulate's Chicago office, according to school board director Gerald Chase.

"She's been offered the job, and it looks like she'll take it," Chase said.

In addition to overseeing the day-to-day operations of the school, Asbury taught two French classes.

Replacing her will be Charlevoix resident Steve Bennett.

Bennett has been involved with the school since its inception, when he started as a substitute mathematics teacher during the 1996-97 school year. Last year, he became the lead middle school algebra instructor.

Bennett, 47, was born in Charlevoix, raised in East Jordan, and moved to Chicago shortly after earning a business administration degree from Ferris State University in 1973.

He remained in Chicago for nearly two decades working as a retail manager for both the Kmart and Service Merchandise corporations.

In December of 1992, he and his wife, Sandra, returned to Charlevoix to run the MacDougall House Bed and Breakfast, which the couple still owns. They have two children, Daniel, 17, and Marcie, 14, both of whom attend Charlevoix High School.

"He has many years of management experience in customer service organizations," Chase said of Bennett's background.

Bennett's rise from substitute teacher to a superintendent role at the charter school will come with an annual salary of $36,000. Last year Bennett earned $15 an hour as a part-time algebra teacher. Bennett will continue to teach one pre-algebra class and two algebra classes at the middle school level.

Bennett's promotion is only one part of the school's administrative restructuring. The school is creating two new positions similar to principal jobs. One will oversee the middle school students and the other the high school students.

"They won't be new hires, but existing staff members with new duties," explained board member Mark Muniaik.

Venetian law suits will likely go to court in year 2000

By Laurie Lounsbury

1998. Plaintiffs and defendants must file and exchange their witness lists by Feb. 12, 1999. Plaintiffs must also disclose expert witnesses by that date.

Plaintiffs and defendants must file and exchange all exhibits by March 12, 1999.

All discovery by lawyers must be completed by Aug. 11, 1999.

Sept. 17, 1999, is a day that's been set aside for mediation. The mediation will start at 9 a.m. There will be three mediators — one chosen by the plaintiffs, one chosen by the defendants and the third chosen by the two previously selected mediators.

A final pretrial settlement conference will take place at 9 a.m. Monday, Nov. 22, 1999.

According to Judge Pajtas' instructions, a settlement will be fully explored at the conference and no motions will be heard during the conference.

If a jury trial is needed, the date will be set at the final pretrial conference. The trial date will be set for approximately three months after the final pretrial conference.

The scheduling of a timetable for the law suits does not mean that no more cases will be filed regarding the fireworks explosion.

The most recent plaintiffs who filed cases are Frances Joan Ladi and Laura Lee Wilson. Ladi, a Charlevoix resident, was at the fireworks with her niece, Laura Lee Wilson.

Ladi was struck in the face by a piece of shrapnel that broke her jaw. Her niece received a cut on one finger from the explosion.

Ladi and her niece are being represented by Charles F. Glass and Deanna M. Zawacki, Harbor Springs attorneys.

In Ladi's case, her lawyer stated that she received open and multiple fractures of her mandible (jaw), swelling and abrasions on the left side of her face, ecchymosis (ruptured blood vessels which cause bruising) on her left shoulder and upper arm, pain and trismus (spasms in chewing muscles) in her oral cavity and numbness in her chin.

Her niece's suit states that she received a laceration on her finger. Both plaintiffs say in their complaint that they are suffering severe anxiety and mental distress, loss of enjoyment of life, past, present and future; permanent and severe impairment of bodily functions and a host of other trauma-related problems.

If any of the six cases go to trial, they will be tried separately.

Charter school wants to share sports with high school in area

While Bennett's chores will mostly be financial, the high school and middle school directors will deal with curriculum issues and parent involvement.

"We hope this can be a better channel of communication for our parents," Muniak said.

Despite school beginning in less than a week, the school has not yet officially named the teachers who will serve in those positions. In addition, the level of compensation above their teacher's pay has yet to be decided, Bennett said. Based on experience and level of education, full time teachers at Northwest Academy make between $22,000-$30,900.

The creation of administrative positions for the high school and middle school students coincides with a movement to further separate those grades during the school day.

New this year will be two classrooms devoted entirely to high school studies, Bennett said. The move is to give high school students a more mature learning environment, giving them space to "prepare for adulthood."

Financially, the school expects a 1998-99 fiscal year that projects more revenue than expenses. Based on an enrollment of 90 students, the school expects total revenue to be $558,850.

Meanwhile, expenses for this year are projected to be $543,681. In the 1997-98 fiscal year, the school outspent revenues by $15,000 and this year's tight budget is expected to reverse that.

Of the school's expenditures, $338,965 — approximately 62 percent — will go to teacher and administrative pay and benefits.

Bennett expects a solid, 90-student enrollment, with the bulk of the students being in the middle school grades 6-8.

Last year, the school was 75-percent middle school students, but this year that percentage is projected to increase to 85 percent, Bennett said.

This year's eighth grade class is 30-strong, with another 27 combined in the seventh and eighth grades.

Conversely, the academy will have a senior class of just two pupils among the expected 30 high school students.

Bennett pinpointed the lack of extra curricular activities, notably athletics, as the driving force behind the schools inability to draw high school students.

"Our augmenting their education with computers and technology isn't enough to keep them here," he said. "Kids like extra curricular activities, and will go to the schools that can afford them."

Despite fledgling ski and soccer clubs, Bennett said the school is interested in entering a co-op agreement with another local school to give their students a chance to play varsity athletics.

In the past, the school has received only chilly reactions from the Charlevoix School District in regard to beginning a co-op. As recently as this past spring, it was a topic on the Charlevoix Board of Education's extra-curricular committee's agenda. A Northwest student had expressed interest in playing football, but the topic was quickly swept away with the blanket statement that if they want to play for Charlevoix High School they must attend Charlevoix High School, according to the academy's administrators.

Those responses led to preliminary talks with the East Jordan, and according to Bennett, those talks have proven fruitful.

"They (East Jordan) were receptive," he said. "They indicated that it was a possibility and said they would like to do it."

Bennett did note that nothing is close to being finalized with East Jordan, and that Northwest would enjoy another chance to attempt a co-op with Charlevoix, especially in light of that district's changes in administration.

"I think it would be better for our town," Bennett said of working a co-op agreement with Charlevoix.

Northwest Academy will start school Tuesday, Sept. 8, with a departure from past tradition.

The fall school semester will start this year with a trip to Camp Seagull. The school will plan field trips throughout the year, but has opted for a more traditional start to this school year.

"We want to get right into the books and learning aspects of school," Bennett said.

Even though he's running a school for the first time, Bennett is confident that his past business experiences will give him the needed edge.

"Dealing with a customer who wants a $100 refund can be more stressful and emotional than dealing with a parent about his child's grade," Bennett said.

Discussing Asbury's departure and her performance at the school, Chase said she did everything that was asked of her.

"We had certain missions and criteria that we wanted to establish and she was able to do that," Chase said.

From afar they look like a typical golfing foursome, attacking the links during a late afternoon round of golf — perhaps they could even be two fathers sharing some time with their adult sons.

Up close, though, the difference that sets this quartet apart from the rest of the field shines through. The two older men walk slowly with stuttering limbs. Their swings, too, are slow with small back swings. Meanwhile, the pair of young gentlemen don't stray too far from their sides, always asking the men how they're feeling and if they want to play one more hole.

This scene, which plays out at the Charlevoix Country Club every Monday throughout the summer, is one not of trying to score par, but one of rehabilitation.

The two older men are recovering from recent strokes while the younger pair are local physical therapists from Northern Michigan Hospital.

The weekly nine holes of golf are part of their recovery process.

"It reemphasizes how important exercise is," said Boulder Park rehabilitation manager Sue Bush of the golf outings for patients. "Hopefully it carries over when they get home and they don't become sedentary."

Local hospitals have been taking stroke patients out to the links for three summers, usually two at a time, each with a therapist watching out for them.

Robert Stowe, a physical therapist at Northern Michigan Hospital who has been in charge of this sporting rehab, said whether patients go golfing is dependent on many factors, notably the patients' interest in the game and how far along they are with their rehabilitation.

"It's done in their free time, so it must be something they want to do," Stowe said. "For some, it's been a real motivator." Stowe does recall one patient, though, who at all times needed to be held up either by a therapist or by leaning against the golf cart in order to take a swipe at the ball. His shots went anywhere from 15 feet to 50 yards, and for him the goal was just to reach the green, Stowe said.

"Now that's a die hard golfer," Bush noted.

The therapists labeled golf a unique sport in the world of stroke rehabilitation in that it combines three basic, but integral elements of recovery. Balance, strength and endurance are all combined within the sport without forcing the patients to be quick or to run, Stowe said.

"After a stroke, the first goal is to become functional with walking," Stowe said. "After that you just want to keep reaching for higher levels of balance and strength."

For the most part, the patients have regained a good sense of balance before embarking on a round of golf. Endurance is gradually built. Stowe said some rounds last only three holes, with the goal in the end being a nine hole round.

According to the patients, the biggest challenge in golfing is maintaining strength throughout the round.

"People don't realize how strong you need to be to play golf, and how much strength you lose when you have a stroke," said Dr. Richard Westmeyer of Harbor Springs.

Westmeyer and fellow stroke patient Gil Redmer of Boyne City golfed with Devin DeBoer and Phil Beaverson, therapists at Northern Michigan Hospital, at the Charlevoix Country Club last Monday.

For the patients, positive steps aren't recognized in sinking long putts or driving the green in two on a par 5. Instead, it's simple things like being able to pick up their tee without any problem or being able to swing with both hands on the club even if it's only a half-swing.

"This was my first round without a double digit score," Redmer said, proving that despite any condition, your score does matter.

Beyond the physical attributes of golfing, Bush said hitting the links may prove more beneficial to the patients from a mental standpoint.

"The emotional aspect of just getting out with people and doing the things that they used to do is a big part of this," she said. "It gives them something to hold onto."

Westmeyer, who was hitting the links for only the second time since a stroke befell him this past spring, agreed.

"It's invigorating to be out there, whether you hit 20 yards or 200 yards," the Toledo, Ohio native said.

One thing quickly realized after hacking away nine holes with this foursome is that golf is always golf, regardless of their position in life. The patients begged God to grant them just one par putt as they staked out the green. They retired

OPINIONS

Summer of 1998 was a winner by everyone's standards

EDITH

By Edith Gilbert

EDITH GILBERT

People are marveling at the gorgeous weather we have enjoyed "up north" this summer. I could tell it was unusual, because my grandchildren did a very brisk business with their pink lemonade stand in front of my house. Come to think of it, their lemonade stand was a good barometer for the general booming economy. Their homemade sign read "25 cents a cup," yet sweaty joggers willingly handed them a dollar saying, "Keep the change."

Both Lake Michigan and Lake

Charlevoix have been warm enough to swim in every day. Awesome luxury yachts lined the harbor. The bridge, with its newly painted railings, has gone up and down continuously, leaving long, long lines of cars on both sides of town, but people didn't seem to mind. I've noticed drivers letting people cut in frequently, and only one man shook his fist at me when someone else waved me through. (He must have been a newcomer from downstate).

Since early spring, flowering trees and shrubs have exploded with color, and my lush perennials have spread so fast that I am pleading with friends to come share. Juicy tomatoes and peaches have never tasted better than now, and are begging to be canned. Four-generation families are frequently enjoying picnicking at the new and charming pavilion at Depot Beach. Concerts in the park have drawn repeat crowds.

On the downside, we have more BEES in town than ever before, and the Pest Control Service is having a field day. Northsiders complain that they can't walk to the Post Office anymore, but Southsiders enjoy all the handy conveniences of the new Post Office, in spite of the two bomb scares. Unlike people who have P.O. boxes, my mail is delivered at home regularly once a day. (I can remember when it was delivered twice a day!) While sitting on my front porch reading the mail and sorting catalogs, there's a steady stream of parents with single and double strollers parading by, as well as bicyclists, in-line skaters and joggers. Occasionally a 16-year-old, spreading his new found wings, will speed by in a souped-up car. Vroom!

My neighbor's cat, that everyone on the street knows as "Baby," insists on sitting on the porch with me. No matter how many times I've nudged him off the padded chairs, he's always there in the morning when I reach for the Free Press.

Finally, I've rediscovered that Charlevoix is truly a Grandparents' haven! The seniors don't need to flash photographs from the wallet anymore, no sirree. Here comes the real thing in a stroller! Sometimes real thing is asleep, but always awake, sometimes asleep, but always adorable. You'll see them everywhere, in restaurants, parking lots, playgrounds and tennis courts.

"I took my three-year-old grandson to the park and borrowed a kid's Rollerblades, and you should see him try to skate," one grandfather proudly reported.

"I took my five-year-old to the community indoor pool and the swimming instructor taught him how to do the "Cannonball Jump. For a scared kid who wouldn't go near the pool in Florida, he now swims the whole length!" this proud grandmother acknowledges.

"I babysat my grandson while I played a round of golf. He loved driving the cart and watching me hit the ball!" confided another young grandmother.

And then, of course, there are the darling kids who attend Camp McSauba, who proudly bring home marksmanship awards for shooting BB guns and present them to their astonished "pro gun control" grandmothers!

Yes, the weather this summer has been unusually glorious, and we've had none of the usual three day howls in August. Charlevoixans are divided in their opinions — does this weather change mark a trend, or do the heavy red berries on the mountain ash trees indicate we are going to pay for it with a heavy winter? It's anybody's guess.

Letters to the editor

Charlevoix's beauty instills social action in former resident

Dear Editor:

I lived in Charlevoix from 1952 to 1958, between ages 3 and 9, and I recently visited there for the first time in 30 years, just to see how the town really looks, and to see what emotions and memories got stirred up.

Charlevoix is even prettier than I remembered it, and I was filled with feelings of gratitude that my parents (Dr. Isaac Terr and Mildred Terr) chose to live in such an idyllic place, if only for a few years. Although I found almost no old friends to connect with, so many of the old sights, houses, beaches, woods, parks and landmarks were as beautiful and alive as ever. Charlevoix is truly a blessed place, and I hope that people who were raised there appreciate what a gift it is.

Having moved away at age 9, perhaps I was able to retain some of that idyllic idealism about Charlevoix - and about life - before I saw some of the less idyllic things that life can offer. And perhaps that has fueled an idealistic, social-action streak in much of my subsequent editorial and entertainment work. It would be nice to think that the natural beauty of an area can actually infuse a person with a sense of justice and social action that carries over into their life in general.

Perhaps in support of that our volunteers offered to store some of our equipment at their home in Boyne City. Between Aug. 20 and 22 their home was burglarized. In addition to many personal items of value, four customized saddles of the Exceptional Riders Program were stolen. These saddles are necessary to our program so our riders can ride safely.

We realize that the person or persons who took these saddles may not be aware of their value to the handicapped citizens of our communities and how important they are to the operation of our program. We ask that you find it in your heart to return these saddles so we may continue to provide riding lessons to the handicapped children and adults. If these saddles are not returned, many volunteers will need to begin another concerted effort to raise money to purchase more saddles for this fall's program.

We have provided riding lessons to over 300 individuals over the past 14 years. In some cases, being able to ride a horse in our program is the only recreational activity some of the persons experience. Learning to ride a horse is a great accomplishment and gives the rider a feeling of independence and freedom.

Exceptional Riders is funded by the United Way. In addition, many local individuals, businesses and other civic organizations make contributions to help us operate the program. Many volunteers also put forth considerable time and effort to do fund-raising activities for our program. This money is used to purchase liability insurance, horse feed, veterinary and farrier services, safety equipment for the riders, saddles and other tack for the horses.

If you would like to return these saddles or have any information regarding these saddles, please call Barb Lane-Harrington at 347-3300.

Labor Day is a time to honor all workers

Dear Editor:

This Labor Day, I would like to thank the "Other Guys" — the millions and millions of workers in our country who have chosen to exercise their freedom of choice and who have chosen not to belong to a union.

These dedicated, productive, hard-working open-shop Americans can be found everywhere, in every walk of life, in every industry, and yet, they seem to get little of the recognition that their union counterparts receive on this day.

The AFL-CIO will publicly proclaim the virtues of its union members. The Department of Labor will likely do the same. And while these workers do deserve recognition, we hope the Department of Labor will not overlook or underestimate the "other guys" who work just as hard, just as long, and, in fact, far, far outnumber their union counterparts in the American work force.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that organized labor represents 14% of the national work force. Simple arithmetic would conclude that nonunion workers are in the vast majority.

I have the privilege of serving as executive director of the Northern Michigan Chapter of the Associated Builders and Contractors, a national association representing more than 21,000 merit (open) shop construction and construction-related firms. I have seen the accomplishments of the open-shop crafts persons first hand. They're trained to the highest national standards of skill and safety, with no limit to how many crafts they can master or how far they can go. These dedicated open-shop skilled crafts people ply their trade and are essential to the overall welfare and stability of our industry and our country.

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge and thank the "other guys," just in case others forget.

Sincerely,

Visitor's bureau ends concert season with several offerings

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau has extended its concert series in East Park through Labor Day weekend. All performances will take place in the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park and are free to the public.

As previously scheduled, the Wright Brass Quintet will perform at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5. Their brassy blend of sound, style and entertainment is sure to dazzle audiences.

Wright Brass is one of many groups from within the United States Air Force Band of Flight. Wright Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

The band's mission, past and present, is to support military commanders in enhancing esprit de corps through the long-standing ceremonial traditions of the services. It also has the critically important responsibility of promoting our national heritage, building and sustaining national pride and enhancing patriotism in the American public with musical presentations throughout the Midwest.

In the 50 years since its founding, The United States Air Force Band of Flight has serenaded U.S. presidents and vice presidents, visiting heads of state, cabinet officers, and congress. Always on the move, the band travels nearly 100,000 miles each year.

At 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 6, the entertainment begins with a two-hour concert by the Community Youth Ensemble conducted by Gary Stutzman, the director of bands for Northwest Academy. The ensemble consists of a group of students from the northwest Michigan area. During their performance, they will be joined by Interlochen Arts and Academy student vocalist Kristin Stutzman.

At 4 p.m., comedic entertainer Mark Moore returns to the pavilion after a popular performance during the Venetian Festival. The day of music will culminate with guitarist Dean Parker performing from 5-6 p.m., who will play a variety of folk music songs from groups such as America and Gordon Lightfoot.

Giving him a hand

Jessica Zednick, 5, of Sault Ste. Marie, granddaughter of Charlevoix's Judy Zednick, claps to the music of Chris Martin, who entertained in East Park last Thursday evening.

Wedding

Frances Levitski and James Marsh Jr., both of Charlevoix, were married Aug. 22 at the Community Church of God, with 100 guests in attendance.

Pastor Bruce Hamilton performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of the late Beverly Levitski and the groom is the son of Mary and James Marsh Sr. of Charlevoix.

Andrew Marsh, son of the groom, and John Rosser, brother-in-law, gave the bride in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin with lace. She carried a bouquet of white tulips with corn flowers and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Julie Horn, who wore a long dress of navy satin and carried calla lilies. Ashley Marsh was the flower girl, wearing a white satin dress with lace.

Ray LaVoie was the best man, and ushers were Jimmy Marsh and Tara Marsh.

A reception was hosted at the Rod and Gun Club by the groom's parents and the bride's family.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

They had gone to Buckley to the fly wheel show and they were tent camping. It was Mom, Dad, a four-year-old daughter, and their two-year-old son. As much fun as it was to go camping and be in the outdoors, the kids had never been in a tent during a storm before. They had gone to bed about midnight. Mom and Dad settled in about 2 a.m.

Just about the time they thought they were sleeping, the first peals of thunder rolled across the campground. A burst of lightning nearby not only woke their little boy up, but also sent him pouncing on top of his sleeping dad's tummy in terror. A lot of loving patience got him settled down but as for getting him to sleep, that was another matter.

Dad finally figured the trick out by turning his son's head so that his chest covered one ear and he used one of his hands to cover his other ear. Now, parents do special things for their children, but they are also human. As long as the boy's ears were covered, he would sleep. After awhile Dad needed to drift off to sleep. Every time he fell asleep, his hand would slip off his son's ear and every time it would slip off, this little two-year-old would reach down and pull his father's hand back up to cover his ear.

I hope your memories of your father's care are good ones. I trust that your care for your children has more than a few precious moments in it too. What I would like for you to see is that your heavenly Father's love will go even farther.

Psalms 121 begins, "I will lift up my eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." There are a few hills and valleys around here. If you've ever been in them during a thunderstorm and heard the echoes, the power is awesome. If you've ever watched the sunrise over the ridge line on Barnard Road like I have or seen the sunset by the lighthouse on Lake Michigan, the sight cannot help but touch your heart.

I was thinking of my friend's young son when I read in that same Psalm, "He will not let your foot slip — he who watches over you will not slumber..." Our children know instinctively that they can turn to their parents in tough moments. What will it take to remind us grown ups that we too can turn to a parent, our heavenly Father, when times get rough for us?

Just as that little guy would reach out and take his father's hand to shield him, the right hand of God is within your reach. That same Psalm says He is anxious to shade you. He will keep you from all harm. I can think of more than a few circumstances where that would help a lot of us. A sickness takes you unexpectedly. The doctor's news is not the best. Would you rather tough it out on your own or would you rather have some help? I'll be bold enough to say that I'm not as strong in some areas as I would like to be. I need God's help to get safely through.

When was the last time you let the child in you come out? When was the last time you sought shelter in the arms of your heavenly Father? Speaking from experience, I know the difference being surrounded by the arms of God can make. I hope you do too.

Junior Achievement program seeks funds

Group gets support of chamber of commerce

Businesses throughout the Charlevoix area have received letters within the last week asking for their financial support of the local Junior Achievement (JA) program. The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board has endorsed the JA program and this fund campaign.

"The dividend from the business community's investment in JA is employees who come to their first job knowing that their performance reflects on the success of the business," Jacqueline Merta, President of the Charlevoix Area Chamber said.

Junior Achievement is the oldest, largest and fastest growing non-profit economic education program in the country. It creates a partnership between the business community and the schools to better prepare students for their future in the work force.

Volunteer consultants from the business community, including several members of the chamber board, have been facilitating the Junior Achievement sessions for students in the sixth and seventh grades in the Charlevoix Public Schools. A successful fund-raising campaign will allow those classes to continue in the 1998-99 school year.

Persons wishing to invest in the program with financial support and/or as volunteers should contact Bill Blackburn, manager of the Northern Service Office for JA at 348-9766.

Burns Clinic appoints a new executive director

Burns Clinic is pleased to announce that Chris Dugger has been named the clinic's Executive Director. Dugger was originally named Interim Executive Director in May, and then interviewed for the permanent position.

"Since arriving I've realized what an excellent health care facility this is and have been impressed with the strong commitment Burns Clinic physicians and staff have toward their patients," Dugger found out that I was chosen to fill the position." Dugger has an extensive background in health care, most recently working for PhyCor providing operational leadership to various PhyCor entities. He holds a Master's in Health Services Administration, and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science.

"Mr. Dugger clearly brings to us exceptional operational skills, as well as a broad management experience that will help us regain our momentum and thrive as an organization," said Harry Colfer, M.D., President of Burns Clinic. "I am very pleased to have Mr. Dugger on our management team."

"My family and I are looking forward to becoming a part of this community, and I am excited to be able to be a part of such a dynamic health-care facility," said Dugger, whose wife, Trish, and children Lauren, 13 and Ian, 4, will be moving to the area soon.

Dugger noted that he is looking forward to continuing to strengthen Burns Clinic's 60-plus year history of providing quality medical care to residents across northern Michigan.

"Burns Clinic is a vital resource to northern Michigan and the Eastern Upper Peninsula and I'm proud to be part of this organization," he said.

School's in session — drive carefully

Sheriff Lasater wants to remind motorists that with the start of school, you need to be alert for children on their way to and from schools and bus stops.

"Kids are out a lot earlier than we're used to, and we may not be able to react in time if a child runs into the path of a car," Lasater said. "Slow down around intersections and school bus drop-off points, and please obey the school zone speed limit."

The sheriff also urges motorists to obey the traffic laws when they encounter a school bus. Cars must stop at least 20 feet away from a bus when the red lights are flashing. You may proceed only after the amber lights are flashing, or the bus turns off its signal lights. Approach intersections with caution. Many times cross walks will not have a crossing guard, and kids rushing to get to or from school may not check for cars like they should.

"Let's be especially alert this time of year," Lasater said.

Young basketball team opens against tough players

Spirited play

By Jamie MacMillan

The 1998 girls' basketball season tipped off last week with rough openers for the Rayders, who were squeezed 71-38 by Cheboygan and 76-31 by Petoskey.

The Rayder team consists of newcomers to the varsity level and their inexperience showed in the games against the more savvy class B schools.

Against the Chiefs, the Rayders fell behind 17-4 after the first quarter and found themselves in a 38-11 hole at intermission. They steadied the game during the second half, but still lost ground, being outscored 33-27 during the final two quarters.

The Chiefs nearly tripled the Rayders' scoring in the made basket category, swishing 27 to Charlevoix's 10.

Karianne Miller and Kristy Shindorf scored eight points apiece to lead Charlevoix.

The Rayders were able to stay closer with Petoskey at the game's onset, but a 25-4 run spread out over the last minutes of the first half and the opening minutes of the second half proved too much to overcome.

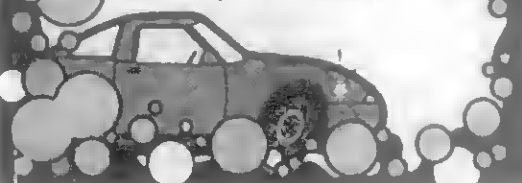

Shindorf, Jamie Gowell and Leslie Hoffman each tallied six points for Charlevoix.

The Lady Rayders played last night at Benzie Central, but results were unavailable at press time. Their next contest isn't until the Lake Michigan Division opener Thursday, Sept. 10 at Traverse City-St. Francis. A junior varsity game tips off the action at 6 p.m.

Soccer season off to a good start

Outscoring its opponents 9-0, the Rayder soccer team got a leg up on its new conference foes by sweeping a pair of Northern Michigan Soccer League games last week.

After topping McBain Northern Michigan Christian 3-0 in last Tuesday's home opener, they headed on the road and white washed Forest Area 6-0.

The wins upped Charlevoix's record for the young season to 3-1, 2-0 in league play.

In the Forest Area contest, Jon

Boss and Ryan Vogelheim each tallied two goals while Sean Stockman and Roscoe Serrels each scored once. Stockman was in on two other goals with two assists. Michael Ricks had two assists and Kiel Tilley helped on one.

Chris Tilley earned his first complete game shut-out at the net. Tilley and Will Wright shared the goal keeper duties in the win over McBain earlier in the week.

Stockman and Boss each had a goal and an assist and Matt Dennis added the third goal.

Charlevoix was up 1-0 in the waning moments of the first half when Stockman's shot was redirected into the net off a McBain defender. The goal seemed to deflate the Cougars, who didn't muster much of an attack during the second half of the game.

The Rayders continue their first-ever trek through a conference schedule with a home game against Pine River at 5 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 3. A non-conference game with Harbor Light Christian will take place.

Volunteers gear up for CROP Walk

The 15th Charlevoix County CROP Walk, which will take place Sept. 26, will once again challenge walkers to raise funds to combat hunger needs locally, nationally and globally.

Last year, 109 Charlevoix County CROP walkers contributed $7,500 to the final county total of $17,264. The county goal for 1998 has been set at $18,000.

Food pantries in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan share equal portions of the funds which are returned for local hunger needs.

If you would like more information about the CROP Walk, check with your local pastor or call Kay Smith at 547-2920.

House fire in Ironton believed to be arson

According to investigators, arson was the cause of a blaze at a home in Ironton.

At 10:05 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27, the Charlevoix Fire Department responded to a structure fire at 3560 M-66 in Eveline Township. The home is owned by Daniel Skrzeczkoski.

The majority of the items on the main floor of the one-story house were lost; however the utility room, basement and garage contents were protected from the fire.

The Charlevoix City Fire Department was assisted by the Charlevoix Township and East Jordan fire departments, along with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The department's arson investigator and the Michigan State Police Fire Marshall investigators inspected the fire scene Friday, Aug. 29 and determined that the cause of the fire was arson. They are continuing their investigation, and ask that anyone with information regarding the incident call the fire department at 547-3279 or the arson tip hot line at 1-800-44-ARSON.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Autumn craft show seeks participants

The East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce is still accepting applications for their Fourth Annual Leaf Pecker Craft Show, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 17 in the Jordan Valley Express.

The fee for a 10-foot by 10-foot display space is $25. Electricity is available on a first come, first serve basis for an additional $5. Tables and chairs are available at no extra cost.

For more information or an application form, call the East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce at 536-7351.

Charter school hosts open house

Northwest Academy, Charlevoix's public charter school, will be hosting an open house at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 3 at the school located at 115 W. Hurlbut St.

The public is cordially invited to tour the facility, meet the staff and discover the educational opportunities Northwest Academy offers as a public school emphasizing science and technology.

Applications for enrollment are currently being accepted at the middle and high school grade levels for the 1998-99 academic year.

For more information, for an application or to arrange a personal visit for students and parents, call 547-9000.

Northwest Academy is open to all students and does not charge any tuition. The academy is a public school and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, religion, national origin or sex.

Raven Hill offers arts and crafts day

Arts and crafts enthusiasts will enjoy spending the afternoon at Raven Hill Discovery Center from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5 for the Make and Take Festival. Staff will be on hand to assist visitors in making all kinds of intriguing things. Even young ones, with a little assistance from mom, dad, or a grandparent, will take home something.

Visitors are encouraged to try their hand making stained glass sun catchers, marbled paper note cards, Origami animals, handmade paper stationery, paper gift boxes or other art activities. Participants can wander from station to station trying their hand at various projects, as well as enjoy Raven Hill's standard fare: the hands-on museum and the animals. Cost for the afternoon is $10 per person and $30 per family. All materials are included. Call Cheri at 536-3369 to register or for more information.

Schools hosting community breakfast

The Charlevoix Public Schools invites the community to a Partnership Breakfast at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8 at the elementary school.

The welcome and introduction speech will be given by Allen Telgenhof, school board president, at 8 a.m., followed by a welcome from John Sturock, superintendent.

Introduction of new staff and comments on the upcoming school year will be presented by school principals Dick Swenor (elementary school), Dennis VanGilder (middle school) and Gary Grundman (high school). To attend, please

R.S.V.P. by calling 547-3200.

Senior center offering Swiss steak dinner

The public is invited to enjoy Bill Stevens' famous Swiss Steak Dinner from 5-7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 9, at the Charlevoix Senior Center, 06906 Norwood Road. The menu will include Bill's famous Swiss steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, vegetable, cole slaw, roll, pie and beverage.

Cost of the dinner is adults $6, children $3 and kids under 5 dine free.

Garden club to meet at arts center

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will have a double treat at their Sept. 8 meeting at McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey.

Terry Clayton, Master Gardener, will show slides of blooming perennials and offer landscaping tips on fall planting of old favorites.

Following the program, members will stroll through the Crooked Tree Art Gallery to see "Little Gems of American Paintings" from the Manogian collection.

September hostess, Barbara MacArthur, made the arrangements. Co-hostesses are Anne Banfield and Doris Lundteigen.

The garden club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc. For more information call Joan Knecht at 547-5072.

Class of '48 looking for company of classmates

The Class of 1948 would like all former classmates to join them after 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12 at the Grey Gables Inn on Belvedere Avenue.

Masons hosting pancake breakfast

The Boyne City Masonic Lodge and Evangeline CH. 95 OES will hold a pancake breakfast from 7 to 11 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 6 at the Masonic Hall, 212 North Lake St. in Boyne City. In addition to pancakes, the menu offers eggs, sausage, juice and coffee. Everyone is welcome.

Bomb scare empties post office for second time in one month

For the second time in one month, the Charlevoix Post Office on M-66 and the surrounding area had to be evacuated due to a bomb scare. The scare and evacuation happened around 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 25.

This time, the scare was closer to the real thing than it was in August.

An anonymous person called 9-1-1 to report a suspicious box containing what appeared to be a pipe bomb sitting in the north side parking lot of the post office on M-66. The phone call was made from a pay phone at Taco Bell on the north side of town.

Sheriff's officers responded to the call, evacuating the post office and examining the box, which was not sealed closed.

The Michigan State Police Bomb

Squad was called to the scene, where they detonated the pipe.

The pipe contained no explosives, but was designed like a pipe bomb.

The bomb squad gathered evidence for analysis, which has since been sent to the sheriff's office.

"We do have some evidence and we do have some targets, people we're looking at as suspects," Sheriff George Lasater said.

Lasater said his department is working with the U.S. Postal Inspector to follow up on the leads.

In August, a bomb scare turned out to be an overturned package sitting outside of the Post Office lobby.

Since it appeared to be an unmarked box, it was treated as a suspicious object.

Below: Police barricaded M-66 between Stover Road and Ferry Avenue last Tuesday, when a bomb scare was called in to 9-1-1. The scare turned out to be an object that looked like a pipe bomb but contained no explosives. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

Varsity team starts with young players

By Jamie MacMillan

After graduating seven seniors, four of whom were starters, from last fall's club, Charlevoix girls' basketball coach Tim Volovsek is looking to jump start this year's team with a batch of new faces.

Bolstering five 12th grade players, only two of whom saw serious action last year, will be eight new faces to varsity club: five juniors and three sophomores.

"We're new, we're young and we're small," Volovsek assessed, "but we're going to give it a roll and see who steps up."

First in line to step up will probably be senior center Jamie Gowell. Entering her third season on the varsity club, Gowell has progressed into one of the league's better interior forces. By the end of last year, she was stuffing the stat sheet regularly with double-doubles in points and rebounds en route to earning all conference honorable mention titles.

After Gowell, though, Volovsek said to expect many line-up combinations.

"After Jamie, I have 10 who are all good basketball players who figure to be fighting for playing time all season," the second-year head coach said.

Senior Christine Sweeney, who flashed some of her best play during last year's three game tourney run, will see some time at both guard and forward positions.

Battling for the other court minutes in the back court will be seniors Mandi Webb, Julie Swenor and Michelle Potter, juniors Taya Drost and Erika Kammermann and sophomores Leslie Hoffman and Karianne Miller.

Up on the front line, juniors Lindsey Carland, Kristy Shindorf and Sarah Parrish and sophomore Megan Vogel will be in the rotation.

Volovsek's club is dominated by small guards and small forwards which he said will alter the club's style of play.

"We'll often play four on the perimeter, and we're going to run a lot," he said. "We'll be playing a different style of play this year."

Volovsek said cutting down on turnovers like fumbled passes and improving on low shooting percentages, both bugaboos of last year's 9-14 squad, are vital to the team's success.

In the chase for the league title, Volovsek still picks Harbor Springs, despite the loss of four key players from last year's regional qualifying team, as the preseason favorite. The guard tandem of Christy Shibata and Jenny Brogger gives them an edge no other club has, he said.

After the Rams, he said it's a toss up and Volovsek wouldn't be surprised if the league champ suffers at least four losses when it's all said and done.

"With all the different faces we could be 5-15 or 15-5," he said. "If we can get, who knows what we can do."

Below the varsity club are teams of underclassmen being led by different, yet familiar coaches.

Lisa Carlson will be coaching the junior varsity team. While it's her first season at the helm, Carlson entered the program last year as a varsity assistant.

Her first junior varsity club is 13 players strong, 10 of whom are holdovers from last year's freshman club: Lanie Lopez, Kelly Dreyer, Abby Schaperkotter, Molly Arnold, Melissa McDonough, Emily Hughes, Michelle Martin, Amber Parsons, Lisa Miller and Shandra Spentley.

Joining the 10th graders is a trio of freshmen: Danielle Vogelheim, Kathryn Ricks and Jennifer McClellan.

Golf team welcomes new players

Lady linker joins golf team for first time

By Jamie MacMillan

A year after dominating the conference and securing a spot in the state championship field, the Charlevoix golf team will have a much different look.

Last year, the club was led by a three-headed monster with Ryan Murdick, Jason Vincent and Keith Grunch all scoring consistently in the 70s.

That monster has been broken up with the recent graduation of both Murdick and Vincent, leaving only Grunch and a cast of newcomers to try to guide the club to its fourth conference title in five years.

"We're young," said fifth-year coach Jim Glynn. "Our roster will be up in the air with fighting for positions week after week."

Grunch is the undisputed leader of the team and individually has a chance for a stellar final high school season on the links. Already this season he has one course record under his belt after scoring a 76 at the Belvedere in an early season match-up with Traverse City Christian.

Despite Grunch's round, the club lost 337-363 to T.C.C., underscoring the need for some on-the-spot development from the players below Grunch.

"He can score low, but we have to have four scores for a team score," Glynn said.

Junior Jon Sell and sophomore Craig Siwarga were the fourth and fifth players on last year's team and will have expanded roles on this year's team.

Glynn said seniors Steve Pirie, Levi Bakker and Andrew Moats, junior Tyler Lieberman and sophomore Chris Smith will likely see time in the varsity's top rotation throughout the season.

With a young club, Glynn said the schedule is purposely weighted to play more invitationals during the season's early weeks.

"We need to play in those tournaments along with a lot of good long practices to tune up for conference," he said.

So far this season, the club has already played in the Russ Harvey Invitational at Boyne Mountain.

There, the team finished fifth in the 10-team C-D field. As a team, the Rayders shot a 360 with Grunch's 84 leading the way, Siwarga shot an 89, Pirie, 93, Smith, 94, and Lieberman, 96.

Columbus Academy of Ohio topped the C-D field with a 310, which was good enough for the second straight year to top all schools, regardless of size, in the field.

With league titles in 1994, '95 and '97, the Rayders have been the recent local class C golfing dynasty. Glynn, though, tabbed Traverse City St. Francis and Kalkaska as the two Lake Michigan Division front runners as the season begins.

"We have an outside chance," he said. "If we keep improving, we can make a bid for it. I feel we're right on the edge of turning our games around."

Front lines on football team are Rayders' strength

By Jamie MacMillan

Experience in the trenches to go along with one of the area's better halfbacks has injected some much needed preseason enthusiasm into the Charlevoix football program.

After a 2-7 season — the program's fifth consecutive losing season — second-year coach Todd Klinger feels his team has the ability to have a breakthrough year.

"We're optimistic right now," the coach said. "The kids we have back have been working real hard and we're pretty much right on schedule."

The gem of the team is senior tailback Colin Carr. Carr exploded onto the varsity scene last fall, gaining 1,056 yards and scoring 11 touchdowns. He exceeded 100-yard gains in six of Charlevoix's nine games and earned first team all-conference as well as honorable mention all-state in the Detroit Free Press.

A versatile back, Carr can beat defenders to corner as well as run between the tackles. He became a more dominant runner as the season wore on. He averaged 150 yards per game over the final three contests, which included wins over Elk Rapids and Boyne City.

Of course, in front of every good back is an offensive line that makes running between the tackles easier. With a line that returns intact from last year's unit, Klinger envisions a power running game that will be hard to stop.

Tackles George LaBlance and Brian Ward, guards Wally Wujcik and Carl Goff and center Caleb Levensgood are all returning starters. Throw in tight ends Justin Thorp and Tom Cunningham, also returning starters, and the makings of dominant running game are in place.

"No doubt, we should be running the football," Klinger said of his not-so-hidden strategy. "The kids on the offensive line worked hard all summer to get stronger and we're counting on them."

Finding a quarterback, though, is a question mark. T. J. Carey and Steve Felter have departed, leaving a void. Adam Wood and Mark Yager are likely candidates to be the next Rayder quarterback, but Klinger remained unsure at press time who would lead the club in their opener this Friday, Sept. 4 against St. Ignace.

The offense appears solid, but it's the defense, which gave up over 30 points a game in 1997, that will need to improve for Charlevoix to have a chance at a winning season.

Charlevoix will operate out of a basic 5-2 front, but will throw some 4-3 looks at their opposition throughout the year.

"Our front seven is the strength — it's a very experienced group of kids," Klinger said. "As for the secondary, we've got a lot of good athletes with good speed."

Klinger was especially excited about his group of linebackers, which include Cunningham, Ward, Shay Hutchison and Ben Coen.

Up front, Thorp, Goff, Russ Ward, Erik Butcher and Ben Nortley will rotate at defensive ends while Wujcik, Levensgood, LaBlance and Adam Kline will anchor the tackle positions.

The secondary will be patrolled by Carr, Yager, Jeremy Rafacz, Matt McClellan, Brian Cornett and Tino Tripicchio.

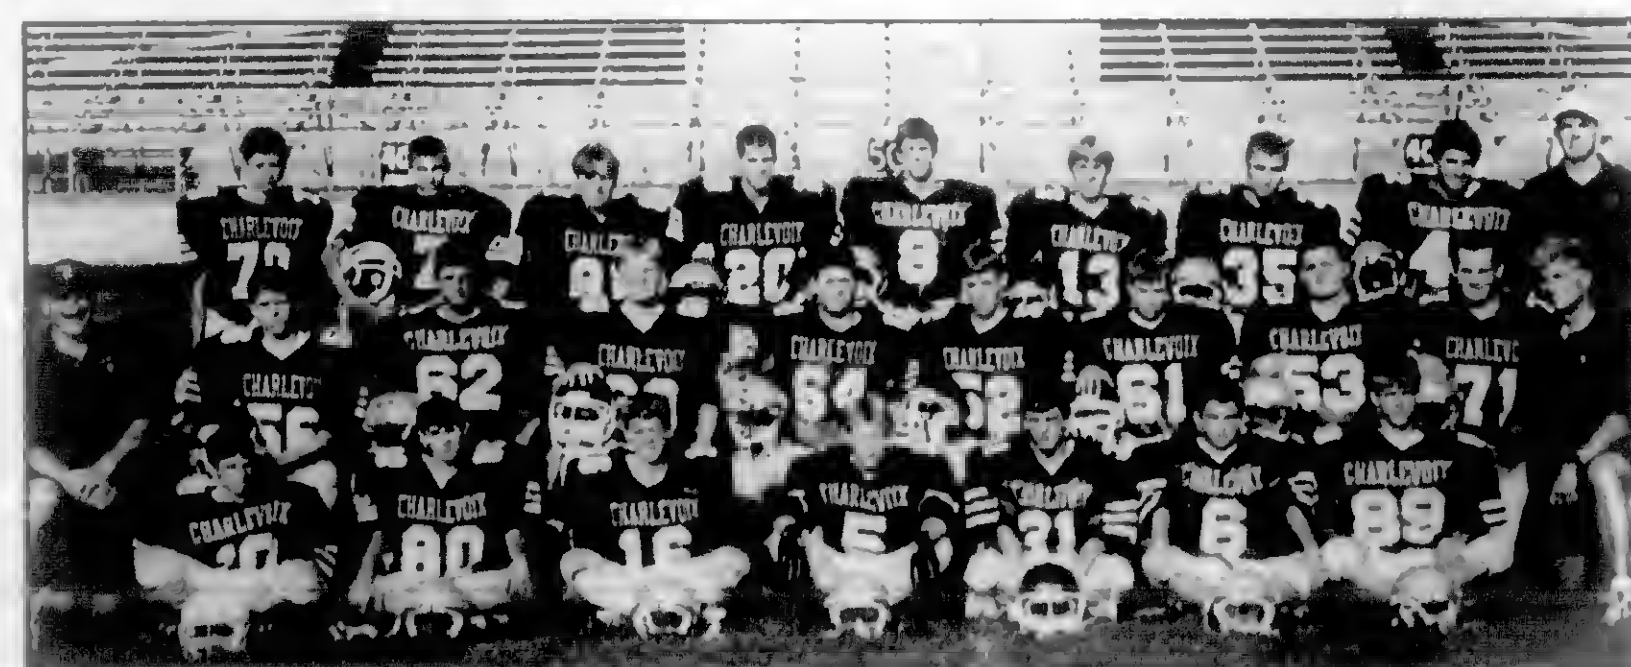

Five times last year, the unit gave up more than 35 points a game and were victimized time and time again by the "big play."

Klinger said limiting those big plays as well as minimizing turnovers on offense have been the focus of the preseason. How well the practice translates to the actual gridiron will determine this club's success.

"If we can do those things, we can be in every ball game and have a chance to win in the fourth quarter," Klinger said.

The schedule remains difficult even with the deletion of the annual season closer with Petoskey. Replacing the Northmen will be a trip to Johannesburg-Lewiston to close the year.

The club opens with St. Ignace and Benzie Central before diving into conference play. The team ends the season with three straight road games, at Elk Rapids, Boyne City and Johannesburg-Lewiston.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross country teams are over 40 strong

With over 40 girls and boys on his cross country teams, coach Ken Plude's 1998 running Rayders should have enough depth and experience to overcome personal losses from last season's clubs.

The boys' club is 20 strong, and Plude feels his club can at least compete for the conference top spot after a third place finish last year.

"We're much improved and I think we're a good team," he said. "We'll see if we're good enough. Second place would be an improvement and hopefully we can close in on East Jordan."

The Red Devils won the boys' conference title last year en route to a seventh place finish in the state finals.

Leading the boys' club for Charlevoix is a quartet of seniors: Jeff Popenhagen, Nick Grosberg, Matt Campbell and Tom Kennedy. Juniors Luke Whitley, Allen Keehn and Jon Tebeau along with freshmen Josh Popenhagen add both depth and ability.

On the girls' side, the Rayders look to remain competitive despite the loss of four, multi-year letter winners from last year's team who have helped the Rayders to four straight conference titles.

"We've got some strong frontrunners, but there will be a little rebuilding there behind them," Plude said.

With 25 runners on the girls' club, he'll have plenty of options when rounding out his roster for each meet.

Seniors Tricia Hodge and Liza Gorkiewicz are those frontrunners Plude mentioned and have been on the varsity club since they began high school. Seniors Melissa Swem, Laura Schairbaum, Alyssia Westebrook and Emily Martinus along with sophomore Katie Romig will battle for the remaining spots on the varsity team.

Despite new faces, Plude feels both clubs have potential because of strong senior classes.

"They've slowly been schooled, and now it's their time," he said. "It'll be a fun year. It's a good group of kids who work hard. I'm having fun coaching them."

Like previous seasons, the club got a start on practice with a trip to Beaver Island for training and team work building.

"It was good hard work," Plude said. "We had great weather and also had some fun."

This year's meet schedule is full with the Rayders running in invitations nearly every Saturday this season to go along with dual meets throughout the week.

The highlight of the home schedule is the Charlevoix Classic held at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 12 in Plude's back yard obstacle course.

SOCCER

Experienced players dominate soccer team

By Jamie MacMillan

Entering his third season at the helm of Charlevoix's boys' soccer team, coach Josh Block is excited about finally having an experienced team.

Dominated by underclassmen the last two years, Block's 1998 roster consists of 11 upperclassmen; five seniors and six juniors.

"With a majority of freshmen and sophomores it's been like playing a JV team," Block said of the past couple of seasons. "This is the first year, I think, that this is actually a varsity team because we're mostly upperclassmen."

While the club is the most experienced Block has seen during his tenure, the season will begin with Block breaking in a new goal keeper.

Junior Chris Tilley will be the net-minder after some spot duty at the position last year.

"He's been working hard to fill those shoes," coach Block said. "He really wants to do a good job."

Backing up Tilley between the posts is sophomore Will Wright, a newcomer to the club.

Whoever is in goal will have the luxury of playing behind a steady, imposing group of fullbacks led by seniors Matt Dennis and Nick Kessler. Junior Andy Granath and sophomore Ticker Bakker round out the defensive backfield.

Offensive sparkplugs will be the halfback trio of Sean Stockman, Troy Smith and Todd Schaperkotter. Zach Dennis will also see playing time at the halfback position.

The top striker line will be juniors Michael Ricks, Jon Boss and Ryan Vogelheim.

Block lauded his team not only for its experience but also for its off-season dedication by attending camps, playing in summer leagues and conditioning themselves into better shape entering the first day of practice.

"It's made a big difference — we have nicer offensive attacks and an overall more intense level of play," Block said.

That extra edge could help propel the Rayders to the top spot in the inaugural season of the Northern Michigan Soccer League.

The conference, seven teams strong, is split into two divisions, north and south. Charlevoix, along with Forest Area and Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian will be in the north division with Roscommon, Houghton Lake, Pine River and McBain Northern Michigan Christian occupying the south.

Harbor Light Christian was expected to be the fourth team in the north division, but dropped out of the league. Charlevoix athletic director Keith Haske said the league is pursuing Harbor Springs to fill that void starting with the 1999 season. If that fails, the league may look to Bellaire, which started a varsity program this fall, Haske said.

Teams will play two games against schools in their division and one game apiece against the clubs in the opposite division. Division winners will meet Saturday, Oct. 17 to determine the overall champion. At press time, a site for the finals hadn't been determined.

Despite some of the schools having tiny enrollments, Block expects the league to be highly competitive during its first season.

"You can't judge by the schools' sizes," he said. "Some of the schools don't have any other sports, so the cream of the crop plays soccer."

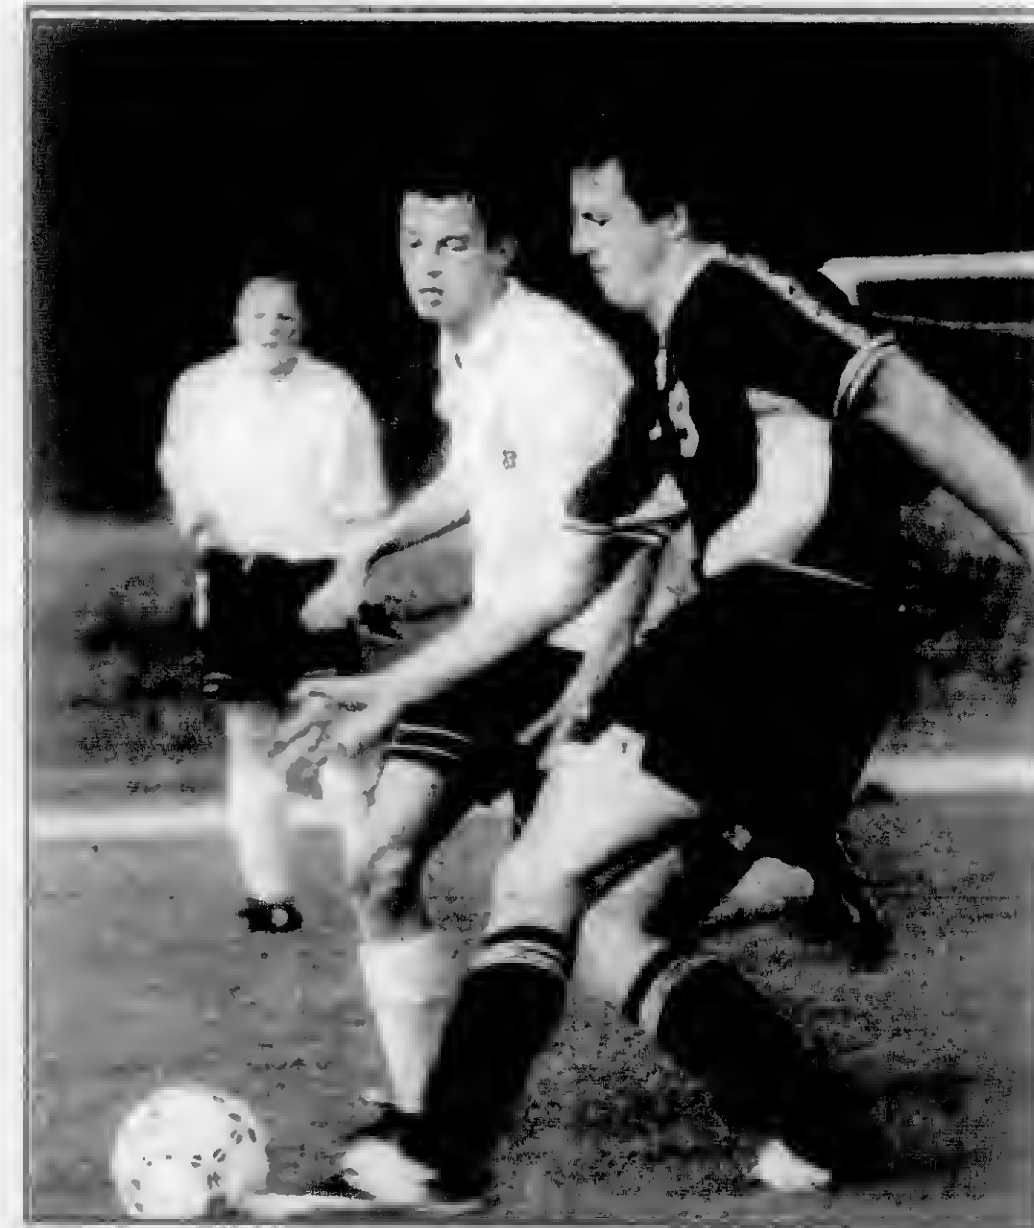

Burt Lake Christian, who beat the Rayders 2-1 last year, is a prime example. Despite only 70 students in the K-12 school, the school has had a varsity soccer program for 20 years.

Still, Charlevoix stands as good a chance as any to claim top spot, especially if last week's 3-0 muscling of McBain in the league opener is any indication.

Riding through the bear market

By Jamie MacMillan

As Lucent Technologies goes up, O.E.A. and Lansom and Cessions are plummeting. Meanwhile, Coke and Wal-Mart remain steady, pillars of value.

That quick synopsis tells the tale of the recent stock market trends which last week had more twists, turns, ups and downs than Cedar Point's Gemini roller coaster.

Monday, the floor of the stock market fell through, plunging over 500 points with news headlines screaming that the year's gains have already been devoured. Tuesday, the market rebounded like Dennis Rodman only to stagnate Wednesday, still well below the lofty perch from which it did a free-fall at the start of the week.

It's a way of life, the up and down trends of the market.

Despite that, the members of the Charlevoix Women's Investment Group, whose stock volatility was described above, remain not only positive about the market's health, but are defiant in their nonchalance toward last week's craziness.

Had any panic to sell overcome the group, president Terry Rowe said that "Money would have been lost when it rebounded the next day."

Rowe said their main goal is long-term gain, and the ideal stock is one which has the potential to double within three to five years.

"We're not traders, so as long as it's a good company we'll stick with it," added Marjory Dinwiddie, a club member.

Saying goodbye to summer

In keeping with tradition, a group of locals are shown here walking across Memorial Bridge at 12:05 p.m. Monday, Labor Day, unofficially reclaiming the town for themselves. The group is led by Lori Brown (center), who puts walkers through a series of warm-up exercises before making the long walk across the short bridge. (More photos on page 9)

Charlevoix welcomes six new teachers

Carol Madison

By Jamie MacMillan

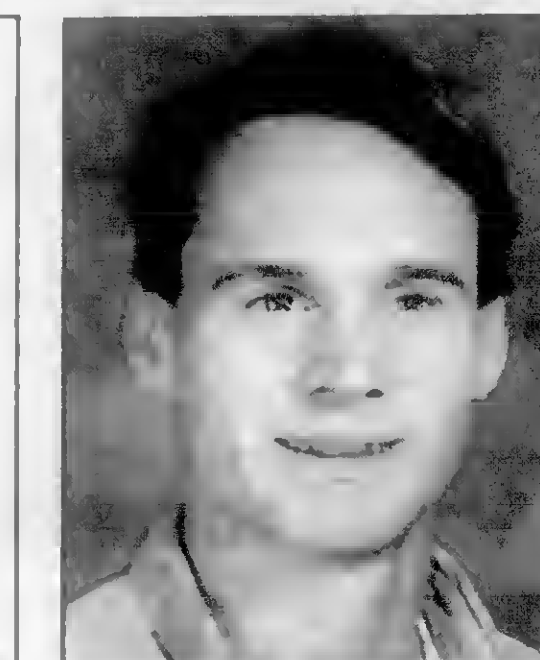

The beginning of a new school year this week also signaled the dawn of Charlevoix teaching careers for six new faculty members. Hired over the summer, four new teachers will be full time faculty members while two will be serving in a part-time capacity. Three of the new faces will be at the elementary school, teaching in the kindergarten, fourth and fifth grades.

Carol Madison, a 1978 graduate of Western Michigan University, will be teaching fourth grade students. Madison, along with her husband, Herm, have been residents of Charlevoix for 22 years. The couple has three daughters; Kate, Elizabeth and Rebecca, who attend school in the Charlevoix district.

Her teaching experience includes three years in the special education field at Pellston schools, director/teacher at the Boyne City members of 15-member group of women who meet once a month to pore over stock information and update their current holdings.

Dinwiddie was part of the original venture 10 years ago and said it all began because of an interest in the subject and the theory that a group would be more successful than just one person.

"We invited everyone we could think of," she recalled. "We started with quite a mob, but it thinned out fast after people realized the work involved."

Despite the reading, researching and endless market tracking, the group has never had much of a problem filling its 15 seats. The driving force behind most of the involvement was a desire to not just know more about the market, but to be able to understand the decisions they make.

"I wanted to better understand it for myself versus having an agent telling me," Rowe said. "It makes me feel more comfortable. I don't just want to buy Intel, I want to know why I should."

The group runs like any mega-corporation trying to make a buck. They hold regular meetings and break off into committees to analyze certain stocks and trends. Each group member is in charge of one of the group's stocks and duties include tracking its value, keeping tabs on company news and reporting back each month to her fellow investors.

According to Pam Pennington, who joined the group shortly after it was formed, they have doubled their portfolio over the years. The biggest factors of success have been the dedication to education and remaining emotionally aloof to the purchased stocks.

"One of the hardest things to do is not fall in love with your stocks," she said.

As for understanding the market, she recalled it was a challenge for her because her nursing career has her working with smaller numbers and amounts measured in micro and nanograms. With the market, however, one is forced to deal with figures in the millions of dollars.

Intimidating, but easy to overcome, group members said.

Despite not being able to read a Wall Street Journal, Pennington joined the group in hopes of taking more charge of her own financial future. She read everything she could on the subject and, after a year with the group, began to feel comfortable with the whole process.

For market starters, Pennington said a must-read tool is the Value Line, a quarterly report on most companies which can be found in the stacks of the local Charlevoix Library.

The book provides a wealth of information on companies including historical earnings, cash flows, capital spending, profit margins, net worth and predictions on the timeliness and safety of purchasing its stock.

"It's very objective and just has the facts," Pennington said. "It helps give you validation with what you might do."

Reading investment magazines and business sections of newspapers are another way of improving your knowledge, Pennington said.

Rowe pointed out that getting involved with stock ownership of a company is as easy as a phone call. She suggested just calling a company you're interested in and they'll send to you information on themselves, including different methods to invest and programs that will reinvest your earned dividends.

Forming a club like the women's group also helps.

"I really need the push that the group gives me," Dinwiddie said.

Dianne Foster, one of the newer members of the group, noted the group's success may come from the diversity of the women involved, both in age and profession. Over 40 years separate the oldest and youngest member of this group that includes shop owners, realtors, nurses, teachers and retirees.

"It's really diverse, everyone comes from different experiences which adds to it," said Foster, co-owner of Bridge Street Book Shop.

Nursery Center and working in the Boyne City Middle School gifted/talented program. Last year, she taught kindergarten and developmental kindergarten for Petoskey schools.

She is currently working toward a Masters degree in early childhood education through Grand Valley State University.

She stayed at home to raise her three daughters, but was hardly inactive. She began her own small business, specializing in basket-weaving and taught classes about the craft. An active member of the community, Madison served on the playground committee and currently is on the board of directors for the local 4-H soccer league.

She also served as coordinator of the summer special education program for Char-Em at Camp Daggett from 1980-1993.

Murphy, a three-year-old golden retriever, completes the Madison family.

Helen Donahue, another mother of three daughters, joins Madison on the elementary school faculty and will teach fifth grade.

She graduated Magna Cum Laude from Central Michigan University in 1996 with a degree in social studies and minors in reading and physical education.

While living in Charlevoix for the past 25 years, Donahue taught ballet, gymnastics and aerobics in a variety of community-driven programs. In her spare time, she can be found traveling with her husband, spending time with her dog and four cats, dancing, jogging and listening to music.

Kristi Graham

"I'm looking forward to learning and hearing about the special interests of my students and providing an atmosphere of sharing," she said.

Julie Bernhardt, a 1996 graduate of Central Michigan University, was hired as a part-time kindergarten teacher.

At CMU, Bernhardt earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in childhood development while minoring in history.

She taught preschool at Onaway schools and also taught an at-risk class there for three- and four-year-olds. She also substituted at Charlevoix schools in Pauline McDermott and Diane Priess' classrooms. Last February, she was hired as a long-term substitute at Charlevoix, taking over Priess' kindergarten duties while she was away on medical leave.

"I have always had wonderful experiences at Charlevoix Elementary School, and I look forward to being back here, working with the Charlevoix teaching staff again."

Julie Bernhardt

she said.

At the middle school, two new faces will roam the hallways.

Scott Diment takes over as industrial arts instructor.

Diment has spent the last 10 years teaching at Caledonia Middle School, near Grand Rapids, where he helped develop and implement a technology education program.

An Oscoda native, Diment earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in industrial technology from Central Michigan in 1987 and later earned a Masters degree in 1995 from Western Michigan in vocational education.

He and his wife, Amy, recently welcomed a new addition to their family with the birth of their second child, Jensen. The four-month-old has an older brother, Dugan, who is three years old.

Diment is an active outdoorsman who lists mountain bike racing, skiing and snowboarding as his hobbies.

"My wife and two little boys are excited to finally be able to move up north," he said.

The new art teacher at the middle school is Caroline Smith.

Smith, a Lake Zurich, Ill. native, attended school at Illinois State University where she earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in art education and a minor in art history in 1991. Five years ago she moved to northern Michigan and married local resident Roger Smith. The couple now resides in Marion Township.

For the last five years, she taught art at East Jordan schools in both the district's middle and high schools.

"I believe that the arts play an important role in the development of young people," she said.

At the high school, Kristi Graham joins the faculty as a part-time language arts teacher.

She graduated Sum Cum Laude from Albion University in 1995 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English. At Albion, she was on the yearbook staff and made the Dean's List 10 times. She also won the John Wayne Stringer Memorial Scholarship for excellence in creative writing.

She earned her secondary teaching certificate from Calvin College in 1997.

She was a faculty member at Otsego Christian from 1996-97 where she team-taught in grades 5-8 and advised the yearbook production staff. She also substituted in the Holland Christian district as well as in the Char-Em ISD.

In the summer of 1995, she was an editorial intern at Traverse, Northern Michigan's Magazine. Her duties included researching, writing and editing three, 24-page special editions of the publication. She remains a free-lance contributor for the magazine.

OPINIONS

Looking back at the events of a really great summer

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

Wow! What a summer! This will have to go down in the annals as one of the best summers we've ever had. Then, as if on cue, the weather turned into autumn on the last evening of Labor Day weekend.

With the summer officially over, this seemed like a good time to review a few of the things that have been happening around here.

The first high school football home game of the season was played last Friday night, under balmy skies and with a nearly full moon rising over Kipke Field. Charlevoix lost, but it was nice to be back in the bleachers enjoying a fall tradition. I must admit, I go to football games mostly for the socializing and the halftime show, but it's nice to have those guys out there providing sporting entertainment for the rest of the people in attendance.

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau hosted an end-of-the-season cruise on the Emerald Isle Saturday night, with the Up North Big Band providing entertainment. The boat was packed to capacity, no doubt because the 18-piece band is unquestionably one of the best new tourist attractions we have to offer in Charlevoix. They were absolutely terrific.

In keeping with a local tradition, a fun-loving bunch of people walked across Memorial Bridge at noon Monday. The walk culminates another successful summer in town.

and also gives locals an opportunity to reclaim the town.

However, I could do without the chanting of "Fudgies Go Home, Fudgies Go Home!" during this event. Say what you want about fudgies, but it seems inhospitable (not to mention embarrassing) to have adults walking down the street telling them to go home. We need our tourists far more than they need us. If they are treated poorly, they can just ease on down the road to another tourist destination. As my mother used to say, it's one thing to think it, but it's altogether different — and unacceptable — to say it.

Somebody put me in charge of crosswalks — please! I've figured out a way to solve a whole lot of traffic problems on Bridge Street. Simply eliminate the crosswalk going across Bridge Street on the north side of the Clinton Street intersection. This is the nasty culprit for many of our traffic delays. The bridge goes down, the cars backed up on Clinton Street are revving their engines and ready to turn left onto Bridge Street, but they can't. Someone is crossing Bridge Street at that intersection. If we asked nicely, (maybe with cutesy little signs), I'm sure no one would mind crossing to the south side of Clinton Street before crossing Bridge Street. Then all the backed-up traffic on Clinton Street could ease right on through the intersection and make their left turns.

Calling all roofers — Several of the roofs in town are apparently following the stock market's lead and plunging downward. The roofs on the Depot Museum, Harsha House Museum and the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy are in dire need of repair. Anyone have any ideas for a collective roof-raising party?

Signs of autumn — skunks coming into town, looking to set up their winter residences in attached garages, spiders making mad dashes to get inside my house whenever the door opens and kids already tracking in dry leaves.

The kids are back in school. The kids are back in school. The kids are back in school.

I don't know how other parents feel about this, but I totally disagree with the concept of starting school AFTER Labor Day weekend. The last week of August is a complete waste. Summer vacations are over, summer camp is done for the season, and kids are fidgety, ready to return to the hallowed halls of academia. Of course they would never admit that, but it's written all over their behavior.

They loiter around the house, regardless of the weather, and have no interest in the same summer activities that thrilled them in June.

They start laying out their clothes for the first day of school.

They write "Pencils, pens and notebooks," on the grocery list.

They are actually amused by "The Simpsons" reruns they've seen seven times.

I think school should start during that last week of August even if the teachers don't return then. Let the kids go back and get in the school groove before they have to start learning things.

Guest commentary

(This guest commentary was written by Steve Hansen, president of Charlevoix Friends of the Pool)

August marks the first full year of operation for our Charlevoix Community Pool. I hope you will be interested in this report of our activities and aspirations.

What we have is a pool on a scale commensurate with the size of Charlevoix, but possessing the features of a first class facility, such as the open, bright feeling brought by the windows and color scheme, the attractive tile work, the ramp access, the shallow instructional area, the large hot tub, the automated chemical water treatment system and the increasingly beautiful landscaped grounds.

We also have a staff of 25 part-time lifeguards and swimming instructors, a part-time office assistant and a custodian, all led by full-time pool director Al Gooch. We have a corps of 60 volunteers who help with repairs and tend to the front desk in the evenings and Saturdays. The volunteer corps has contributed about 1,200 hours of service in the first year of operations, a contribution the pool could not have done without. The overall pool organization is directed by a board of 17 Charlevoix area citizens with diverse ages and backgrounds.

We also have the valuable support and encouragement of the Charlevoix community, as individuals and as businesses. Several banks have offered a line of ongoing credit.

In August, we had a strong dinner and auction fund-raising event and collected sufficient gifts to pay off the final $39,000 construction loan.

Since we operate a community facility, charging affordable fees without tax levies, we rely on voluntary contributions to supplement fees in the operating budget. From March 21 to July 21, 1998, revenues were $77,675. We received 26 percent of that revenue from grants and 16 percent from donations. Another 23 percent of revenue was generated from pool rentals, 10 percent from selling passes, 15 percent from drop-in fees, 7 percent from swim school funding and 3 percent from miscellaneous sources.

Expenses were $78,600 for the same time period. Payroll and fringe benefits accounted for nearly 50 percent of expenses.

An audited financial statement is available by request at the pool office.

In the first year, the pool made good strides fulfilling our mission of bringing an aquatic program of safety, therapy-rehabilitation, fitness and recreation to our community. Through the generosity of Glen's Markets, we were able to give a series of water safety lessons to Charlevoix elementary school students. Both Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital use the pool for their patients. We have mild and moderate exercise programs. We offer lap swimming, age-indexed recreational swimming, swimming lessons and pool rentals. The attendance at the

High winds whipped Red Fox Regatta across the lake

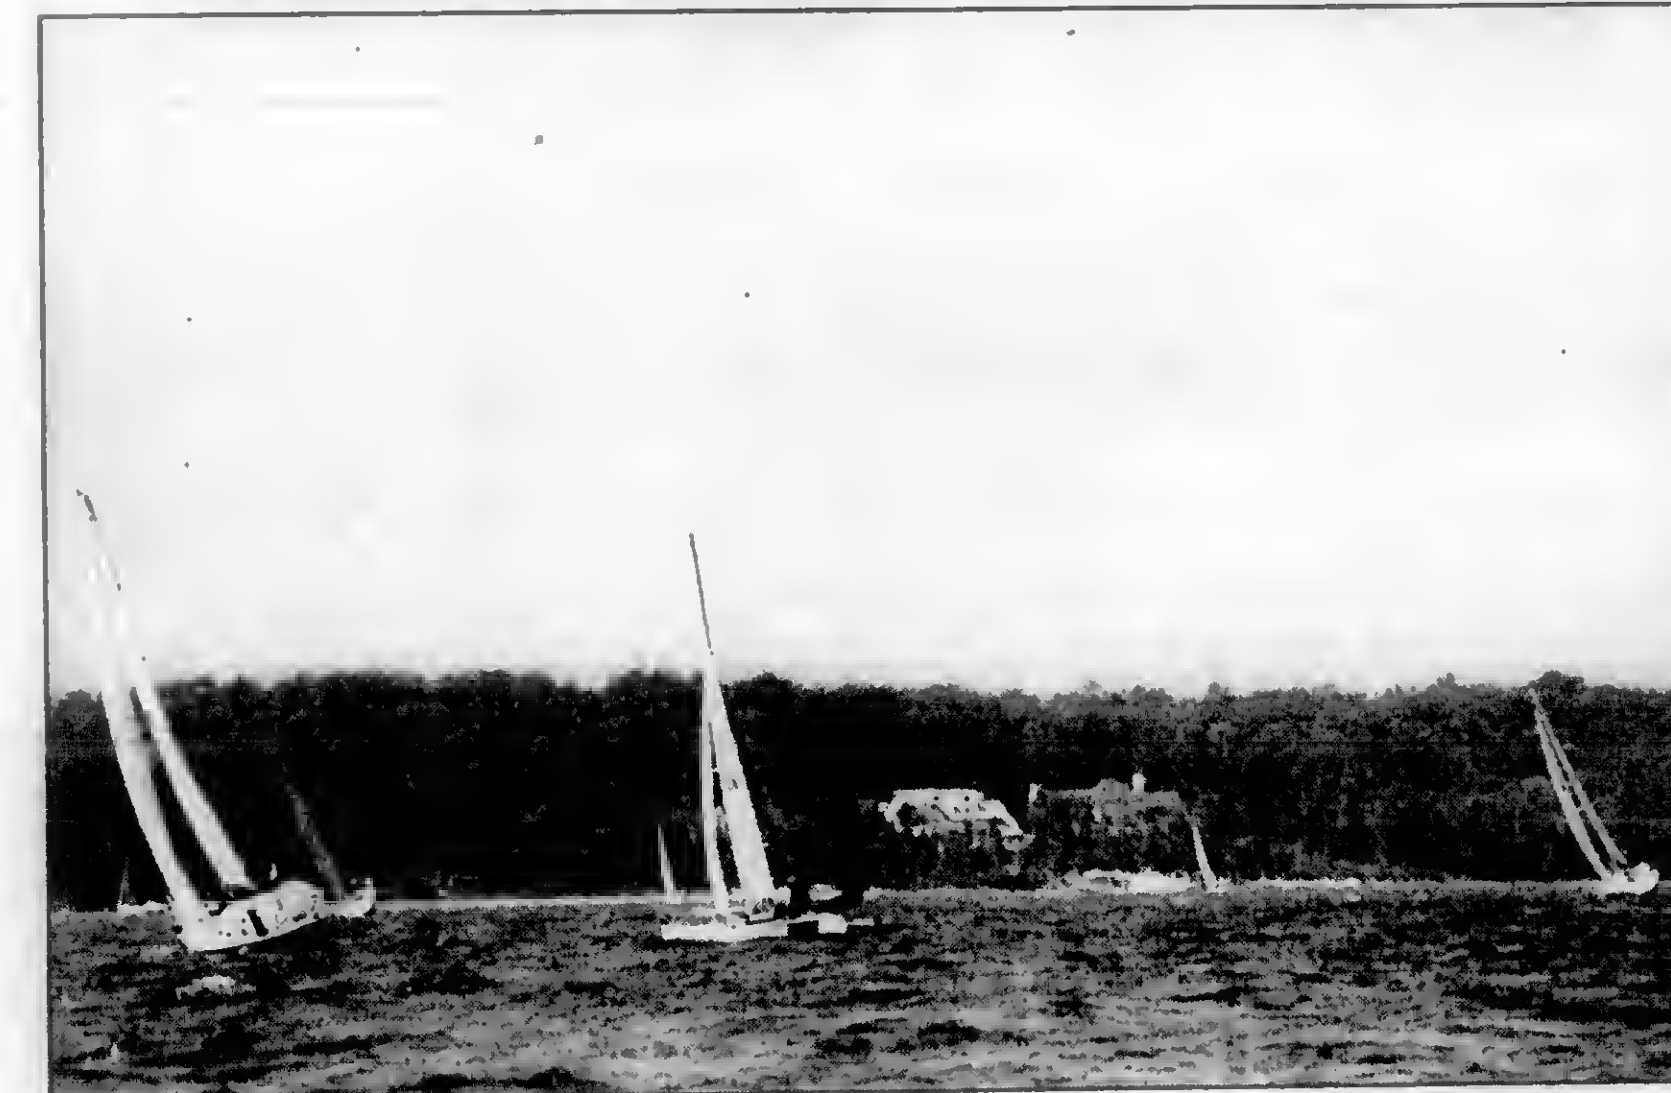

Clockwise, from upper left: All types of sailboats are allowed to enter the Red Fox Regatta, even fast-moving catamarans such as this one, which was up on one hull with the strong winds.

The winds Sunday for the return trip from Boyne City to Charlevoix weren't quite as brisk as they were on Saturday, but still required all crew members to sit on the high side of the boat.

Sailboats were scattered like a broken string of pearls along Lake Charlevoix during the return leg of the Red Fox Regatta.

pool has steadily increased and is now averaging about 2,900 visits per month.

We don't want to give the impression that our program provides all things to everyone. We solicit new ideas and have more programs we plan to introduce.

We look forward to securing the future of water safety lessons for school children. We think a structured recreational program for middle school children would be an asset to the community. We want more specialty programming for the elderly. We need to enlarge the parking lot and blacktop the hicycle path to the pool. We hope to improve the ductwork in the mechanical room and build a multi-purpose room addition.

Very importantly, we want to increase the size of our endowment fund. The income from the endowment fund will provide money for repairs as they become necessary and will supplement the income from fees paid by swimmers.

We continue to be ambitious for our project. As Yogi Berra might say, the Charlevoix Community Pool has no limit to its depth! The board thanks everyone who has used the pool or otherwise supported it. We extend an invitation to those who haven't yet visited the pool — come swim, play and exercise in our 83-degree water. It's good for all of us.

New teaching techniques will be utilized at elementary school

By Jamie MacMillan

If the next Albert Einstein is a student roaming the halls of Charlevoix schools, then school officials hope a change in teaching styles will help bring that scientist out into the open.

Using a federally funded grant, Charlevoix elementary school teachers spent five days this summer working to improve their inquiry-based teaching skills.

Inquiry-based teaching is a style geared to make students more analytical and help them hone their critical thinking skills.

"Rather than filling their minds with just facts," elementary school principal Richard Swenor said, "we want them to learn how to think and use those facts as a scientist would."

Close to $40,000 in grant money came to the local district through the Federal Eisenhower Program, a fund to spur professional development of the country's math and science teachers.

Western Michigan University originally received the grant, which was directed to SEE-North, a regional math and science center located in Petoskey.

SEE-North director Dr. Mary Whitmore led the five-day forum.

Charlevoix, along with Benton Harbor and Muskegon schools, was the only state district to benefit from the federal program this year.

Whitmore said the heart of inquiry-based teaching is to engage the students into taking a more active role in the classroom and asking more 'why' questions in the classroom.

For example, the subject of one day might be the laws of gravity. After the class tackles the basics of the lesson plan, the teacher then asks the students what else they want to find out about gravity. From those inquiries, experiments will be done to help solve those questions.

Instead of lecturing the class, the teacher acts more like an orchestrator, guiding students through their inquiries, Whitmore said.

She also noted that this teaching style works well with the younger students because of their curious minds. In elementary schools, teachers teach a variety of subjects that can use these techniques.

Teachers who took part in the workshop admitted that most of what was highlighted is already being done in the classrooms.

"We do a lot of hands-on activities," fifth grade teacher John Haan said. "What this stresses is that the activities aren't the end-all, but a means to get the student to understand his own world better. We want to make kids better thinkers."

One immediate benefit to this style is that it matches certain points of the state's Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) tests, which emphasize more thinking over fact regurgitation, Whitmore said.

Three year figures for Charlevoix's fifth graders taking the science portion of the MEAP show the district is increasing the number of students in the proficient range. In 1996, only 19 percent of Charlevoix fifth graders scored in the proficient range. While that number has increased into the 43rd percentile the last two years, more than half of the fifth graders didn't qualify with proficient scores.

FAMILY

The Charlevoix County Chapter of Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel (MAR-SP) awarded their first annual scholarship to Justin Cleary (left) of Boyne Falls. Betty Walker, president of the Charlevoix County chapter of MARSP presented him with the award (right). The scholarship is awarded yearly to a graduating senior of one of Charlevoix County's public high schools who will be attending a certified trade or vocational school. Justin will attend ITT Technical Institute in Grand Rapids this fall. Justin maintained a 3.58 grade point average throughout his years at Boyne Falls High School. He plans to enter the electronics field after furthering his education.

Double dipping

Mary Lavery, 92, (left) of Charlevoix, enjoys some ice cream with her visiting niece, Michelle Macko of Raleigh, N.C. Macko conveniently timed her visit to Charlevoix while hurricane Bonnie was pummeling the coastal areas of North Carolina, sending abundant amounts of rain inland to Raleigh.

Wheelchairs and scooters available for seniors in need

In 1998, the Senior Wheels Program is making power wheelchairs and electric scooters available to seniors (age 65 & up) who need assistance with mobility. In 1997 they helped over 1,500 people.

There are usually no costs for those who qualify. Additionally, there are no deposits required for the items.

The equipment is delivered to the person's home and instruction in operation and care of the electric wheelchair or scooter is given by the program manager.

To schedule a "mobility needs" visit in your home, or for more information, call toll free 1-888-225-1623.

(This program is also available to those that are permanently physically challenged of any age.)

Nursery school has immediate openings

Kid's Corner nursery school in Charlevoix has five immediate openings for the 1998-99 school year. There is one opening in the 3-year-old program and four openings in the 4-year-old program. Please contact Stephanie Brown as soon as possible at 582-9568.

New open swim

Eastport Baptist Church hosts Amy Roth in concert

The Eastport Baptist Church will present Amy Roth in concert at 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13. Roth is a "new" artist whose ministry in music was established and proven long before the record industry discovered her. Roth is not new to this area however, since she has family in the Torch Lake area. Everyone in the area is invited to join this very special time of worship and praise. A Love Offering will be taken for Roth's ministry. For more information, call 599-2122.

Bethany Lutheran celebrates 50 years

Bethany Lutheran Church of Charlevoix will celebrate its 50th anniversary Sunday, Sept. 13. Pastor Michael Teuscher will lead the congregation and friends in a special worship service at 2:30 p.m., followed by a luncheon reception. Several former pastors will be on hand for the happy occasion.

For more information regarding this joyous occasion, call the church office at 547-9588.

St. Mary's welcomes new adult members

St. Mary's Catholic Church will begin the Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults (RCIA) process at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 803 State St. (parish home located across the street from the school playground).

The RCIA is a process for welcoming adult newcomers into the Roman Catholic Church. The first step in the RCIA process is an inquiry period where interested persons may come and ask questions about any aspect of the church, the faith, or their own faith journey. Also during this period, the newcomers will hear the Good News and reflect on the place of God in their lives.

Any person interested in learning more about the Catholic Faith is invited to come. If you are interested in the RCIA process, please contact the Office of Pastoral and Youth Ministry for St. Mary's Parish at 547-6438.

Faith Lutheran Church changes worship time

Faith Lutheran Church, East Jordan, will be changing its time of worship to 10:45 a.m. beginning Sunday, Sept. 6.

Sunday School and Adult Bible Study will begin at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 13.

For more information call Pastor Jeff Londgren at 547-7992.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

The start of the new school year brings back memories for me. Back in the "old fashioned days" at public schools, physical education classes were a yearly requirement for every young man or young woman seeking to complete their 13 year indoctrination course to this thing we know as life. Some gloried in the challenges presented by flag football, volleyball and track. Their standings in the high school social strata were secured. For others, each day of "dressing out" was a torturous nightmare because you knew there would be no exhilarating victory, no triumph of any kind in that hour of "hurry up and sweat." You did your deep knee bends, strained to make the minimum number of push-ups, and prayed the chronological gods would be merciful by ending the hour as soon as possible.

If there was a comfort in it at all, it was knowing that there were several who would never measure up. We would never be athletes in the true sense of the word. Whether it was out of a strange sense of humor or out of the desire to give us a taste of what we had missed, our coach decided to have a special competition for those of us you might call "the also rans."

As much of a string bean as I was in those days, my friend John was even leaner. Where I was still sporting a '50s flat top, his longer blonde hair blew every which way in the wind. We were to race against each other in a 50-yard dash.

Envision a gaggle of 14- and 15-year-old boys on both sides of the track. For perhaps both of us, it was the first time we had ever heard anyone cheering our names. My heart was pounding so hard I thought it would burst. The sheepish grin John usually wore was long gone. We both were concentrating on marshaling all our strength for the challenge ahead.

Coach called us to our marks. "Get set, go!" he yelled.

You could not have seen two more evenly matched boys. Ten yards down, we were stride for stride. Twenty yards down, our thundering steps were dead even. The whole class knew this was a real race. They were not just cheering. They were yelling. And yet, I couldn't hear them. Every ounce of my being was focused on that white line ahead.

Forty yards and we were still head to head. It was now or never. I still can't explain where it came from but I felt this unbelievable surge of energy race through me. Its push sent me just a hair ahead of John. Ahead enough to win! I never knew it could feel so good. If I never had it happen again, this would have been enough!

And yet, there was John. It wasn't hard to figure out what he was feeling. I hadn't forgotten how quickly the cheers faded as we moved on to other things. But I couldn't leave the track just yet. I went over to John and grabbed his hand. "Thanks Bud." That sheepish grin came right back. "How about a rematch?"

Looking back on his life, the apostle Paul wrote, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Now there is in store for me the crown of righteousness..." We are all running in the race of life. The real question is, do we want to win for the right reasons or do we want to win for the things that really matter? Victories gotten at the expense of others are not always as important as victories won when we care about others. That's why I reached out to John and that is why I am reaching out to you.

Watershed council recaps its successful summer

It was a fabulous summer for the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. In addition to ongoing water quality monitoring and protection programs, the watershed council's summer events were as bright as summer itself. The events attracted the largest number of participants yet and proved that water resource education can be fun.

Always popular, the aquatic field trips filled quickly and were expanded to meet demand. The events were designed to teach paddling and rescue skills and offer hands-on information about northern Michigan's water resources.

The programs began with basic kayaking on Crooked Lake. Participants were able to use and improve their skills on subsequent trips in the series. Canoeists joined the outings for trips on the Jordan River and a portion of the Chain of Lakes (Lake Bellaire, Grass River and Clam Lake). The last trip in the series was for sea kayaks only and took place on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, traveling from the Ironport Ferry to East Jordan.

The annual meeting provided all the news of the watershed council's activities and accomplishments for the last year. Highlights of the meeting included a mini-history of Charlevoix, given by historian Bill Price.

Lake Expo enjoyed its 15th year of entertaining and informing adults and children about their water resources. This year's celebration featured the maritime flavored music of Song of the Lakes, as well as some old favorite activities such as fish printing, slime TV, water resource displays and naturalist-led tours of Little Traverse Bay aboard the Pointer.

New this year was the watershed council Duck Race, which offered the unforgettable sight of hundreds of yellow duckies tumbling through the Bear River rapids.

Homeowners continue to express a need to learn how to save their shorelines. Many of them were able to see how to do it at the watershed council's shoreline erosion control project on Lake Louise. This site showcases hi-technical erosion control — the latest environmentally sound and cost-effective shoreline erosion control method. Doug Fuller, watershed council program director and technical services expert, was on hand to answer questions and offer suggestions for shoreline erosion control on various types of shorelines.

The Antrim Chain Watershed Festival and Chain of Lakes Watershed Tour attracted many people who were interested in the spectacular collection of lakes and rivers.

Protecting northern Michigan's precious waters is serious husiness. But, as these events proved, it can also be fun. There are more fun events scheduled for the fall. Call the watershed council at 347-1181 for more information.

Applefest is next community event

Weekend activities will begin Oct. 9

Charlevoix's 19th Annual Applefest provides an excellent opportunity for visitors to sample and buy apples, crafts and fall produce from area orchards and farmers.

This year's Applefest will be Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 9-11.

The Applefest, started in 1980, was originally started to bring attention to the agricultural community in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties. Residents and visitors alike often ask what is grown locally and how to find area orchards and farm markets. As a result, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce decided that at least once a year, they would bring the harvest to the people.

That decision led to the Applefest, scheduled every year on the second weekend in October.

East Park, in downtown Charlevoix, is lined with farm market booths selling over 30 different types of apples including the hard-to-find antique varieties. The every-popular eating apples will be plentiful. Also available will be McIntosh, Spartan, Cortland and Jonathan apples, all excellent for baking.

For perfect stuffed baked apples, take home some Red Rome Apples. The crunchy Northern Spy is ideally suited for strudel, pie or

The winner is in stitches

Jeannine Wallace (right) was the lucky winner of a hand-stitched quilt which was raffled off by the Charlevoix Historical Society. Cynthia Postmus, chairman of the quilt raffle, presented the quilt to Wallace last week. The quilt depicts landmark scenes of Charlevoix, including Wallace's own Earl Young home. The quilt was donated to the historical society by the Charlevoix Country Quilters, whose members include Lois Lewis, Phyllis Block, Jessie Cunningham, Betty Currey, Reatha Trentham, Alice Sharrow, Frances Jolliffe, Barbara Plagge, Darleen Dhaseleer, Portia Crawford, Gerry Brady, Pauline Rus-

cobbler. Other fall harvest items available will be pumpkins, squash, apple butter, jam, honey and cider.

Service clubs and other local organizations also man booths along the park to sell apple delicacies.

Of special interest this year is the Applefest Craft Show, comprised of outstanding crafts people. This is a high quality show featuring unique items and special holiday gifts.

On Saturday there will be a petting farm with a wide variety of farm animals. Pony rides will also be offered for children on Friday and Saturday.

Free horse-drawn carriage rides will be offered for the whole family Friday evening and from 1 p.m. until dark Saturday. The rides will be provided by Cedar Valley Farms and will leave from Park Avenue in downtown Charlevoix.

Applefest is a great way to enjoy northern Michigan's fall colors and bountiful harvest.

Charlevoix Rayders drop football season opener

By Jamie MacMillan

The score was tied at halftime, but the St. Ignace Chiefs exploded for 22 points in the first five minutes, 34 seconds of the second half. The charge included an 88-yard return for a score off the opening kickoff in the second half to ease by Charlevoix, 37-30, in the season football opener for both schools.

While the Chiefs revved up the scoreboard in the second half, the Rayders ran a mere eight plays on offense, resulting in nine total yards, a lost fumble, an interception and a 27-yard punt.

The Chiefs easily converted those turnovers into scores on touchdown scampers of 12 and 64 yards for a 30-8 lead midway through the third quarter.

"That was a big momentum changer," Rayder coach Todd Klinger said of the second half's opening kickoff. "I thought we had outplayed them in the first half, but that return turned the whole game around."

Suddenly down by three scores, the Rayders clawed back on the hot throwing of junior quarterback Adam Wood, who was making his first career start on the varsity level.

His 29-yard scoring strike to Matt McClellan cut the deficit to 30-14 in the first minute of the fourth quarter.

Despite the Chiefs responding with a quick 66-yard score of their own, Wood led the Rayders on two late touchdown drives, slicing the margin to 37-30 with just under three minutes remaining in the contest.

He hit tight end Tom Cunningham, going across the middle for a 19-yard score and later connected with Colin Carr on a screen pass for a 28-yard score.

The latter touchdown was set up by a blocked punt by Carr.

Lady Rayders put on a full court press

But still lose to Benzie Central

By Jamie MacMillan

Despite an active press, the Lady Rayder basketball team missed out on its first victory of the season last week as they were edged by a tough Benzie Central squad, 41-37.

The Huskies slipped ahead early in the game and were able to maintain a six point cushion throughout the game despite a swarming, full court press from Charlevoix which forced 18 steals.

St. Ignace recovered the Rayder's on-side kick attempt and later converted a third-and-eight, allowing them to run out the clock and escape with the win.

In his debut game, Wood completed 19 of 26 passes for 240 yards. He threw four touchdowns and two interceptions. Wood's top target was flanker Jeremy Rafacz, who caught 10 balls for 119 yards and one touchdown. Carr led the rushing attack, going for 130 yards on 29 carries.

On defense, Brian Ward and Wally Wujcik led in tackles with 14 and 12 respectively.

The Chiefs' third quarter eruption came after the clubs battled to a 8-8 tie in the first half. After a scoreless first quarter, the Chiefs got on the board first, traveling 78 yards on nine plays capped by a 12-yard touchdown run.

The Rayders responded on their next drive, scoring on Wood's 9-yard pass to Rafacz. The touchdown was set up by fullback Ben Coen's 42-yard run, giving Charlevoix a first-and-goal situation.

Charlevoix had chances to score more points during the half, but three different drives into Chiefs' territory were halted by a fourth down sack and a pair of lost fumbles. Another promising drive was stunted when McClellan's 26-yard reception on fourth-and-six was nullified by a holding penalty.

Had those chances been turned into goals, then Charlevoix may have withstood the second half fireworks. As it stands, though, the Rayders start the season again at 0-1 with a tough road contest against Benzie Central looming this Friday.

Both teams enter the match 0-1, as the Huskies fell to Traverse City-St. Francis, 22-16, in its opener. Kickoff is 7:30 p.m.

Unfortunately, the Rayders were unable to convert those steals into fast break points as they missed a slew of lay-ups.

"We have a shooting percentage problem, or we would have won the game," coach Tim Volovsek said. "Our press was great and the girls worked hard."

Kristy Shindorf scored eight points and Leslie Hoffman added seven for Charlevoix. Jamie Gowell grabbed 13 rebounds and was the leading thief, swiping six steals.

The Rayders, 0-3, are idle until this week's conference opener at Traverse City-St. Francis Thursday, Sept. 10. A junior varsity game will tip off the evening at 6 p.m.

Rayder soccer team undefeated in conference play

The Rayder soccer team snared its third conference win in as many games after an 8-1 pounding of Pine River at Kipke Field last Thursday afternoon.

The game was scoreless during the first 20 minutes until midfielder Sean Stockman lobbed a rainbow pass 30 yards downfield to a charging Todd Schapperkottter, who had snuck behind the Pine River defense. Alone on the goalie, Schapperkottter fired a shot between the keeper's legs for a score.

Punt, pass and kick competition is open to area boys and girls

Area kids will have an opportunity to test their athletic ability in the official Punt, Pass and Kick competition, sponsored by the NFL and Gatorade.

Boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 15 may enter the contest, which will take place at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 12 at Charlevoix High School's Kipke Field.

Anyone entering the competition will punt, pass and kick a football for a combined score. There is no charge to enter. There will be awards and prizes, and some winners may move on to the regional level of competition.

Anyone entering the contest should bring their birth certificate. For more information, call Brad Waldron at 547-7333.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Middle school hosting parent orientation night

The Charlevoix Middle School will be hosting a Parent Night from 6:30 p.m. to 9:15 p.m. Monday, Sept. 14.

The evening will include parent orientation and the school's annual report.

Parent Night is an opportunity for the parents and guardians of middle school students to meet the teachers and learn about their student's middle school daily schedule.

After the welcome and introductions in the school cafeteria by middle school principal Dennis Van-Guider, parents will spend time going to each of their student's classrooms.

Parents are to bring a copy of their student's daily schedule, since this is what they will follow during the evening.

Coffee, punch and cookies will be offered throughout the evening.

Boating safety classes offered

Do you want to learn the secrets of safe and enjoyable boating? If so, then mark your chart and set a heading for the fall Boating Skills and Safety course offered by the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla in Charlevoix.

The class will meet at 7 p.m. (1900 hours or six bells) Wednesdays from Sept. 30 to Nov. 11 at the Acacia moorings (Beaver Island Ferry Dock area) in downtown Charlevoix.

The cost is $25 for the course, which includes materials.

The classes will last about two hours each Wednesday. Anyone who has taken a class in the past and wishes to refresh their knowledge is welcome at no cost. Why be a landlubber when you can easily get a start into the wonderful world of boating?

To reserve a "crew spot" in the class or for further information, call Murray Kilgour at 547-0983.

Volunteers needed to help clean beaches

The Eighth Annual Michigan Coastal Cleanup will take place from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19 in coordination with the Center for Marine Conservation's annual International Coastal Cleanup. Coordinated in Michigan by the Lake Michigan Federation, this one-day global event is designed to increase public awareness about the hazards of marine debris and to collect data that will help determine what types of litter are polluting Michigan's waterways.

"This year we are increasing our efforts to include cleanups on creeks, streams and rivers," said Liz England, state coordinator. "With a grant from Michigan's Department of Environmental Quality, we are offering assistance to groups interested in tributary cleanups along with the annual shoreline and underwater clean-up events."

At the end of the cleanup every volunteer will receive a coupon for a free Brita water filtration pitcher as a thank-you for their participation.

Cigarette butts remain the top item found at every cleanup site. Thousands are found each year. Various plastic items round out the top five and are not only unsightly, but can also prove to be a danger to wildlife. Metal bottle caps, broken glass and wire were some of the other hazardous items found.

The success of the 1998 Cleanup depends entirely on volunteer support. For local information contact Sally at Inland Seas Education Association at 271-3077. For more information on statewide activities, contact Liz England at (616) 722-5116 or toll free at 888-886-8958 or visit our web site at www.lakemichigan.org/beach.html

Preschool screening given by Char-Em ISD

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will be holding a three-year-old Developmental Screening clinic for all Charlevoix County children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 2000. The purpose of this clinic is to provide parents with information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three-year-old children, and to have your child informally screened to identify any potential learning difficulties which may arise during the school years. This is a free service with appointments made on a first come, first served basis.

nity Reformed Church, on the corner of U.S. 31 and Meech Street in Charlevoix. Families living in the Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Jordan, Charlevoix, Central Lake and Ellsworth school districts are eligible for the clinic.

For more information, or to make an appointment, call Pat Gauthier at 547-9947 at the Char-Em ISD. Your child's birth date must be between 12/1/94 and 12/1/95.

If you have a disability which requires special accommodation, please notify the Char-Em ISD in advance at 547-9947.

SCRAPBOOK

Before TV, kids found their own ways to entertain themselves

By Marilyn Boss

Years ago, when we were young, we were blessed with having to create our own fun. We didn't have TV, and sitting by the radio was an exciting thing for the whole family. As we listened to programs like Captain Midnight, the Lux Radio Theater, Henry Aldridge, Amos and Andy, and many other entertaining programs, we had to imagine the scenes in our minds. Of course, we children were very quiet, especially when our folks were trying to hear every word over the ever-frequent static.

When it was time for play, we were outside, summer and winter. The kids in the valley would get together on summer evenings and play Stone Roller and Kick the Can. We would end up with about 12 kids running around the neighborhood trying to find the ones who were hiding. Talk about getting exercise.

My dad made me a wonderful scooter out of a couple of orange crates given to me by Mr. Ernest Kibbe, our neighborhood grocer. He took a pair of my old roller skates (made entirely of steel, wheels and all), and fastened them to the bottom of the crate; presto — I had a sturdy scooter! In the winter, he fashioned a downhill ski into a sit-down skiing toy with a seat on it. I went down Dodge's hill on Grant Street, which was the local sliding hill. It worked very well and was much used. The only other sliding equipment we had were wooden sleds with steel runners that dug into the snow. They were steered by wooden handles that moved right and left, located on the front of the sled. I can remember staying out to play until I had accumulated big knots of ice on my all-wool snowsuit. We really kept warm in the wool outfits we had.

We also had a sliding hill behind the Charlevoix Hotel on Antrim Street, located on the other side of the alley which ran behind it. The hill was covered with grass which formed lumps about a foot across. We would slide down on sleds in the winter, and it was quite a ride. One summer day we decided to try it with cardboard, and found that without the cushion of snow it was very, very bumpy.

I will never forget the day my dad came in the door with a piece of rope in his hand, about one-quarter inch in diameter. He showed it to each of us, and said it was nylon, a new material, and could pull more than any other rope we had ever seen. He put it on the fireplace mantle, where we could admire something so strong, yet so small.

I tell my grandchildren the story of a rope which was that size, but wouldn't hold much. Every kid

made of clothesline rope. Being made of cotton, it wasn't too strong, especially after hanging there in the sun and rain most of the summer. One day, their grandpa Dale, about 9 years old at the time, ran across the street to swing on the neighbor kid's rope swing. He was going higher and higher, having the time of his life, when the old rope broke. He went down flat on this back and knocked the wind out of his lungs. When he finally got his breath back, he jumped up and ran straight back to his house, crying, "I'm killed! I'm killed! I know I'm killed!" We have laughed over that one every time we tell it, for I am sure most kids had an experience similar to it.

We used to play Cowboys and Indians on the hill behind my house on Hurlbut Street. There are still some trails there today, where "Hop-along Cassidy" and his cohorts cavorted along the ridge. One day we got carried away, engrossed in our imaginations, and we picked some of my Aunt Marguerite Ikens' tomatoes from her garden near our house, and had quite a tomato fight. Needless to say, I was in trouble again with my big imagination. I usually was blamed for the incidents because I was the oldest of the motley crew, but there are some grown kids still living in Charlevoix who know they were in on lots of the shenanigans that went on back then. It was a fun time, with never a dull moment. With homemade toys and fertile imaginations, we kept our neighborhoods lively, creating our own fun.

How To Kill A BUSINESS ... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

School frowns on use of muscle supplements

By Jamie MacMillan

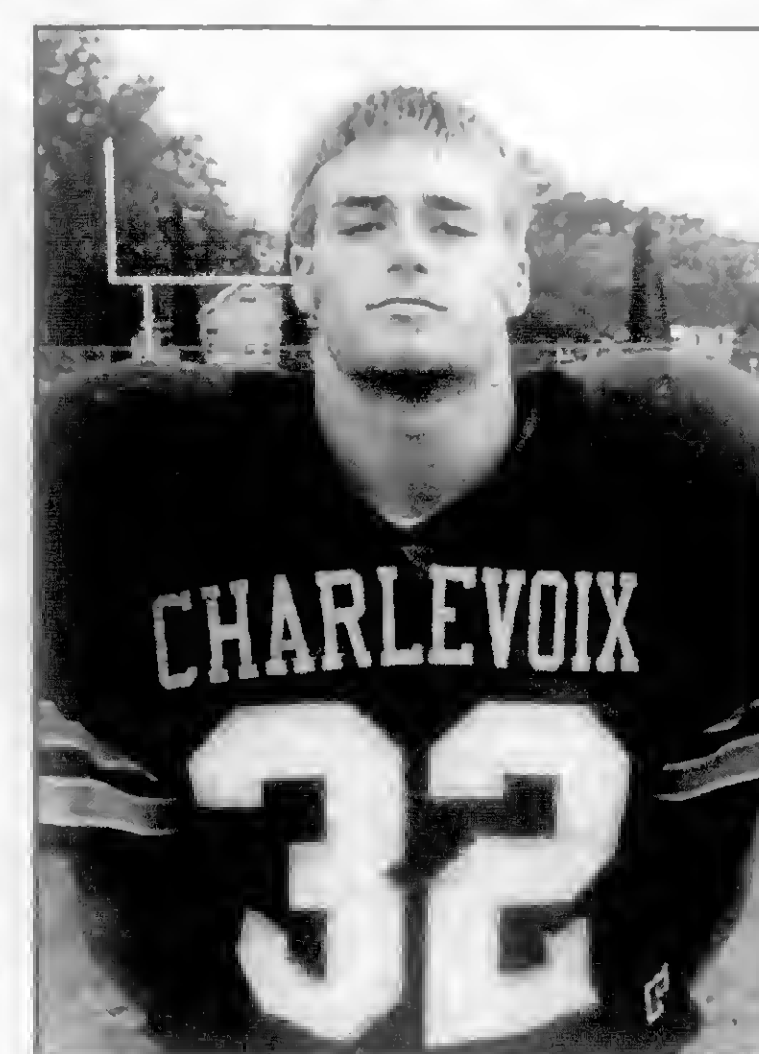

Despite their desire to ban muscle supplements from school property, school officials have stopped short of placing those substances on its zero tolerance list.

Instead, the board issued a statement during its Monday night session that basically states the district doesn't support or condone the use of any muscle-enhancing supplements, ranging from simple protein powders to androstenedione, used by baseball great Mark McGwire.

"This is more a statement of our philosophy, not a policy," said board president Allen Telgenhof. "When we learn more about supplements in the future, there may be a policy prohibiting them."

The original draft of the policy stated that the board did not condone or support the use of supplements on school grounds, but was later amended to say they don't condone the use of supplements at all.

Haske brought the issue to the attention of the board during a special meeting the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 1. He became aware last spring that some students were using supplements prior to weight lifting workouts in the high school's advanced body kinetics

According to high school senior Colin Carr, a large group of student-athletes — including over half of the 21-member varsity football team — use muscle supplement products.

"It gives your workout more potency and more effectiveness," the 1998 football co-captain said.

Most use creatine, but hetaGen, phosphagen and combinations (stacks) of powders are also widely used, Carr said.

"It makes you want to lift or go out and run," said Carr, who has been taking creatine for over two years. "Some people take it just as an energy booster."

Carr introduced his teammates to the supplements after noticing his own workouts included more repetitions with higher weights. His energy levels doubled, he wasn't as sore the next day as he usually would be and added 10 pounds to his frame Creatine is not banned anywhere and is widely used in professional athletic fields, garnering heaps of media attention last January when the Denver Broncos won the Super Bowl. The core of the team throughout the Super Bowl week appeared with Experimental Applied Science (EAS) insignias on their clothes. EAS produces 14 different supplements including phosphagen, a creatine-like supplement, which many of the Broncos use.

Haske said the lack of information regarding long term effects of certain muscle supplements caught his attention.

"There's no long term research saying it does no damage," he said. "That's what scares me the most."

After conversations with school lawyers, Haske determined the best avenue was not to create a policy, but issue a blanket statement that prohibits use of supplements on school grounds and that overall says the school administration doesn't condone the use of the supplements.

Haske said this gives teachers something to lean on should they see supplements being used.

"It has no real teeth," Haske admitted. "It does give staff the ability

City considers options for better cable service

By Laurie Lounsbury

A public hearing at last week's city council meeting allowed residents to express their displeasure for TCI Cablevision. The public hearing — which was not closed but was recessed until a later date — was held because the city's franchise agreement with TCI Cablevision is up for renewal in 18 months.

The general sentiment of the people who attended the meeting was that they'd rather see the city find an alternative cable service.

"TCI charges us premium prices," said resident Sam Haherman. "It wouldn't be bad if we had a premium cable service, but we have a bare bones cable service. They're a monopolist and they act like a monopolist."

Resident Jill Picha, who lives part of the year downstate in the small town of Montague, north of Muskegon, said the comparison of TCI's service to service she gets in Montague is dramatically different.

"From Cable Michigan Inc., I get

65 channels, including (four premium movie channels) for $25.75 a month," Picha said. "From TCI, I get 29 channels for $29 a month. Something is obviously wrong here."

In addition to the voiced complaints at the council meeting, several people wrote letters to the city, asking them to seek alternatives to TCI Cablevision.

Eric Kammermann, harbor master at Northwest Marine on Ferry Avenue, wrote the council about his concerns with TCI's service. The marina provides cable hookups for yacht slip owners.

"Every spring it is a constant battle to get them (TCI) to hook our owners up," Kammermann said. "I have personally placed 14 phone calls to the local supervisor and head technician, only to have none of my phone calls returned."

"In light of TCI's continued lack of performance and high costs, perhaps the city should consider getting into the cable business," Kammermann concluded his letter.

Although Mayor Josh Barnes expressed reluctance to have the city become a cable provider, he said it wasn't out of the question.

"Sixty small cities (in the United States) have switched to doing their own cable in the last year," Barnes said.

According to Barnes, the optimum solution is to work with TCI to get rates reduced and get better programming.

"I'm hoping we can work this out with them," Barnes said. "The advantage to working with TCI or an alternate provider is that the solution will be immediate or fast. If the city does it (becomes a cable provider), I'm going to guess it will take at least two years."

If the city does decide to go into the cable business, they are at least one step ahead of the game since they already provide service to all the homes and businesses in Charlevoix and the surrounding area. Cable billing could be incorporated with billing for city electric, sewer and water, which is already in place.

In the interest of free enterprise, however, Barnes opposes it.

"I don't think we really want another city-owned utility," he said. "We'd be creating another bureaucracy competing with private enterprise."

The city formed a committee to look into all possible options for cable service. The agreement with TCI is currently nonexclusive, which means the city can enter into an agreement with another cable provider or develop its own cable service without violating the contract.

The committee, headed by councilman Bernie DeVries, has been in touch with other communities such as Boyne City and East Jordan to see if there is interest in combining forces for better cable service.

"They basically want Charlevoix to take the lead and see what's available," DeVries said. "I personally would rather see private enterprise do it if some provider can come in and compete with TCI."

Some muscle supplements are widely used and encouraged by coaches

The attraction to muscle supplements lies in its ability to help sustain longer workouts and build bigger muscles.

Protein powders, like creatine, are the most popular and can be bought at most health clubs for around $40 for a 1,200 gram bottle. They are powders are commonly mixed with milk or water for protein drinks. Varsity football player Colin Carr, for example, mixes his with grape juice.

Muscles feed on water, and the powders increase water contents in the body.

"A little more water and the muscles become a little bigger," said Robert Moats, owner of Bentley's, a health and fitness club in Petoskey.

Creatine and its protein powder brethren are not only legal, but are produced naturally in the body. An average human contains 100 grams of creatine stored mostly in muscle tissues.

According to a study in the third edition of Sports Supplement Review, taking 20 grams of creatine a day in divided doses for one week increased muscle concentration by 25 percent. For comparison purposes, a pound of beef contains only two grams of creatine. So to get large amounts of the substance into the body, athletes turn to supplements.

The Review went on to say that three out of four gold medal winners in the 1996 Atlanta Olympics used creatine and 90 percent of NCAA programs endorse the use of creatine for their athletes.

Carr can support that notion after spending time at an invitation-only summer football camp at Central Michigan University.

During a lecture portion of the camp, half of the 100 upcoming seniors admitted using creatine. Coaches went on to encourage the use of the substance, Carr said.

Substances such as 19-norandrostene and androstenedione have different effects. Androstenedione, or andro, has become culturally more popular with the revelation that Mark McGwire, the new single season home run champ, uses it to beef up his daily workouts.

Those products are testosterone producers, and use of those supplements is supposed to increase testosterone, energy and blood levels for a few hours, which will help an athlete sustain longer and more productive workouts.

They are a step below steroids because of its interim affect on the body. The National Football League, NCAA and the International Olympic Committee have banned these substances.

According to Carr, student-athletes at Charlevoix do not take andro or any other testosterone-enhancing products.

They are capsules ingested like aspirin and cost between $30-$40 for a sheet of 50 tablets, said Moats.

"From the little gain you can get, I think it's a waste of money," Moats said. "You might get a little edge, but then you're asking your body to digest something it is not supposed to."

Moats did note that protein powders can be a good nutritional supplement, like vitamins, for those who do not receive enough protein in their daily diet. It is common, he said, for doctors to recommend protein powders to cancer patients who have trouble eating food because of chemotherapy.

For the most part, muscle supplements are a gimmick and every year someone will develop something that is supposed to be better, Moats said.

That is what scares the Charlevoix athletic director, who said these powders could serve as a gateway to steroid use.

"What if they use creatine and it has no effect," he said. "They'll take the next thing which gets them closer and closer to steroids."

Muscle supplements not allowed POLICY

ty to say, "Please take that out of here." It should be enough."

Adding the legal, over-the-counter supplements to the zero tolerance list is illogical, Haske said.

The current zero tolerance list includes drugs such as marijuana and cocaine, alcohol and all tobacco products. Any student-athlete caught using substances on this list is suspended for the remainder of the season. If caught out of season, then the student-athlete is suspended for the first 20 percent of games on the schedule.

The policy began in December of 1997 prior to the beginning of the winter sports season. Haske said 11 athletes have been nabbed, seven of whom are recent cases during the current fall sports season.

Fishing at Medusa Challenger boat slip is banned

By Laurie Lounsbury

For as long as there has been a boat slip at Medusa Cement Plant, there have been people fishing along the edge of the slip. It's an autumn tradition, to fish near the cement plant when salmon are running into Medusa Creek.

But that autumn tradition just came to an end.

Management of Southdown, Inc., the company that bought Medusa in July, is prohibiting fishing along the cement embankment.

"It was certainly a nice gesture, to let people fish there, but if something happened, like someone falling in the slip, where would we stand?" said Ron Plocki, Human Resources Safety Manager for the company.

Plocki said the decision to prohibit fishing came from safety recommendations made by three different departments within the company — Southdown's safety department, their legal council and their security consultants. Even before Southdown, Inc., acquired the cement plant, Medusa employees were questioning the safety of allowing fishing from the pier.

"This was in the works before Southdown came in," said Plocki, who's been an employee at the plant since 1996.

The cement embankment along the cavernous boat slip sits 20 feet above the water. There is a ladder at one end of the slip and the other end is open to Lake Michigan. Plocki estimated that people have been fishing from that location for about 20 years.

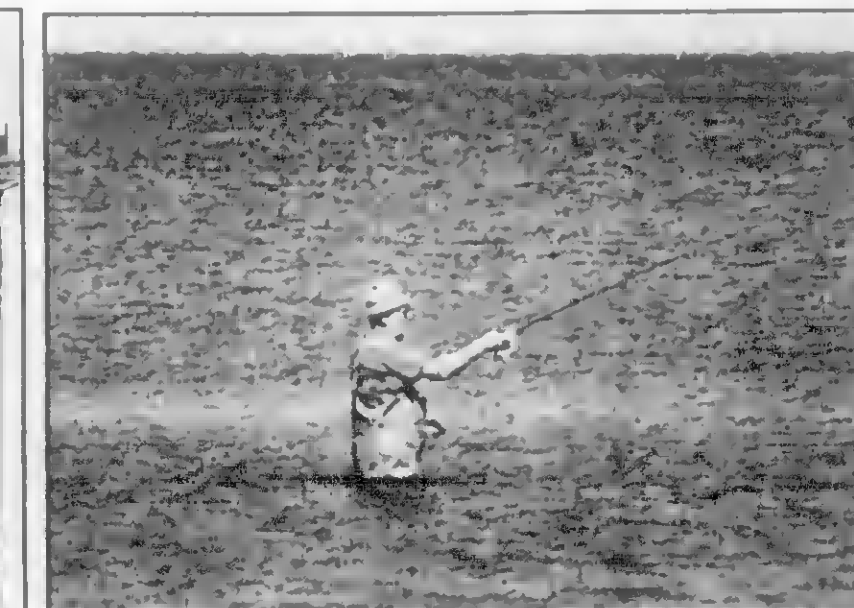

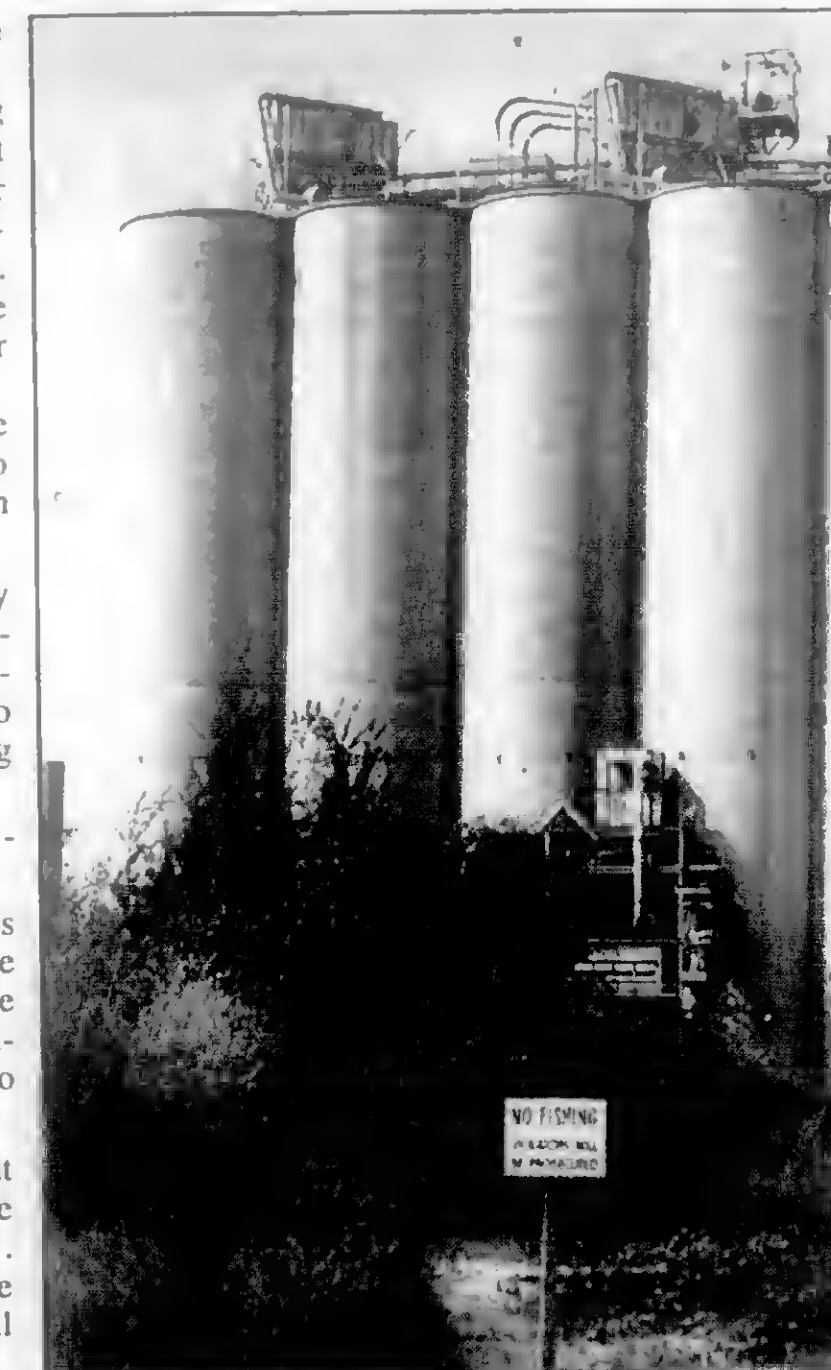

Scott Brown of Gaylord is one person who makes the trip to Charlevoix every autumn to fish at Medusa Creek.

"I've been going there for many years," Brown said. "For handicapped people or the older fellows, it was a nice place to go fishing. They can't hike along rivers to fish."

Brown isn't the only disgruntled angler.

"We've had several phone calls about this," Plocki said. "Some people understand, and some think we should wait until an incident occurs. But we don't want to wait until someone gets hurt."

Fishing will still be allowed at Medusa Creek near the turnaround and in Lake Michigan. But a fence running along the boat slip up to the coal pile will bar anglers from the pier.

Left: The path leading from Medusa Creek to the boat slip is already marked with a sign prohibiting anglers. Soon, a fence will be erected to block the path to the cement pier.

Edith is going "plum" crazy over her bountiful fruit tree

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

It's now the middle of September and my plum tree is heavy with fruit. The tree has thrived remarkably well this summer due to our unusually warm weather. As you probably know, the European variety of plum tree was introduced by the Pilgrims, and only bear fruit every other year. Last year I had a reprieve from canning my favorite plum conserve recipe, but with this year's bumper crop, I'm going plumb crazy!

I've placed a ladder under the tree, and am begging all my neighbors to help themselves to these delicious sweet Italian plums. Even so, I'll end up with more plums than I can handle. In spite of the surplus, I always give heartfelt thanks to the former owners of my property for planting this little fruit tree — way back in the '50s — for me to enjoy. Several years ago the tree was in sad shape and it was suggested that I cut it down. Instead we trimmed off a few dead branches and it has revived like a cranky kid after a nap.

Whenever I serve my special plum conserve with cold chicken salad or roasted fowl, people comment enthusiastically, or better yet, ask for the recipe. The spicy fruit is especially appreciated during the long, cold winter and makes a welcome hostess gift during the holidays.

PLUM CONSERVE
This recipe may be done in several steps, or over a two-day period.

6 pounds blue plums
3 oranges
5 pounds sugar
.2 lemons
1 pound English walnuts or pecans

The biggest part of the job in making plum conserve is removing the stones, but this can be done while watching television, or visiting with your neighbor.

With a sharp knife, cut the plum in half and remove the stone. You do need to wear rubber gloves or your fingers will be stained blue.

In a large bowl, cover plums with juice of oranges and lemons. Let stand for two hours or overnight.

Cut the peel of the oranges and lemons into thin strips. Add sugar. Boil the plums, orange and lemon strips in sugar for several hours until the mixture is thick.

Then remove from stove and gently stir in nuts.

Pour warm conserve into sterilized jars. (I sterilize my jars in the dishwasher). Cover with lids, screw on rims, then let cool. Label each jar PLUM CONSERVE and include the date. Bon Appetit!

Charlevoix picked as one of top 100 great towns in USA

Charlevoix, Mich. is acclaimed as one of the 100 top vacation towns in the country in a new book, The Great Towns of America, by David Vokac. Written with both travelers and urban escapists in mind, it is packed with detailed information about fun-filled getaway communities.

One hundred locales from coast to coast like Bar Harbor, Maine and Carmel, Calif. are identified where the comforts and artistry of civilization blend easily with nearby natural grandeur.

Vokac asserts that "Charlevoix the Beautiful" easily lives up to its billing, where "For more than a century, natural attractions and civic pride have made Charlevoix an increasingly appealing travel destination." Charlevoix is one of four Michigan towns to make the elite list, which also includes Petoskey, Traverse City and Holland.

David Vokac, a former urban planner turned full-time travel writer, is the author of six earlier guidebooks. He devoted two years and 60,000 miles criss-crossing the nation in a determined effort to select the 100 best towns from among 217 semi-finalist communities. His rigorous field work in every great town resulted in a comprehensive guidebook full of concise, accurate descriptions of the prime attractions, restaurants, and lodgings in each selected town. In addition, Vokac's unique weather profiles rate the weather in each locale from a "0" to a "10" for each month. A special concluding chapter provides livability tables, comparing Charlevoix to the other great towns and America's largest cities.

All of Michigan's "Great" towns feature relatively high educational achievements among adults, low crime rates and low housing costs.

The Great Towns of America, subtitled A Guide to the 100 Best Getaways for a Vacation or a Lifetime, will be in bookstores in September. The 576-page quality paperback is available from West Press, P.O. Box 99717, San Diego, CA 92169 for $18.95 postpaid.

Sheriff will check empty homes

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is once again reminding residents of Charlevoix County who will be absent from their homes for any period of time that the sheriff's office has a program to check on homes in their owner's absence.

In order to participate in this program, the homeowner must contact the sheriff's office in person and request the security check form or call the sheriff's office at 547-4461 and ask to have a form sent to them. If a resident has applied for this program in the past, the request must be resubmitted each year.

It should be noted, this program does not take the place of private security programs — it just adds to the coverage and works along with private security organizations.

Clinical Audiologist Robin L. Reynolds, M.A. Joins Dr. Michael Koskus

Robin L. Reynolds, M.A. has joined Audiologist Dr. Michael W. Koskus, providing full, personalized diagnostic audiological care and hearing aid sales and service throughout Northern Michigan.

Ms. Reynolds brings 13 years experience as a clinical audiologist to the practice. Prior to joining Dr. Koskus she served as Clinical Audiologist for Burns Clinic Medical Center for 9 years. While at Burns she was instrumental in the establishment of their hearing aid dispensing program and Industrial Hearing Conservation Program. She also helped achieve Professional Services (PSB) Accreditation for the department. Prior to her position at Burns Clinic she was a consultant audiologist in Grand Rapids, and before that she was a clinical audiologist in Traverse City.

The audiologist graduated with honors from Central Michigan University where she earned a science degree with a major in Communication Disorders and a minor in Psychology. She then obtained a Master of Arts Degree in Audiology.

Ms. Reynolds is more than ready to tackle the demands of Dr. Koskus' private practice. In fact, it was the qualities unique to private practice which drew her away from larger audiology establishments such as the Burns Clinic Medical Center.

"Most of all," the audiologist says, "I'm looking forward to providing better personalized service and attention to all of our patients. One of the reasons I joined the firm is its reputation for full, personalized service with easy access and quick response to patient needs."

Ms. Reynolds has received her Certificate of Clinical Competency from the American Speech and Hearing Association. She has a Michigan Hearing Aid Dealer's dispensing license and holds Limited Practitioner status with Northern Michigan Hospital. The audiologist is a member of both the Michigan and American Academies of Audiology.

She works primarily out of the clinic's headquarters at 820 Arlington, Petoskey (next to Lockwood McDonald) but on occasion will join Dr. Koskus at the satellite offices in Newberry, St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie and Gaylord.

Engagement

Lenore Margaret Erber and Jeffrey Mark Morgridge

Thomas and Susan Erber of Charlevoix are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Lenore Margaret Erber, to Jeffrey Mark Morgridge of Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1985. She attended Michigan State University and received her degree in landscape architecture in 1990. Currently, she is working for Ward-Young Architecture and Planning in Tahoe, Calif.

Her fiancé is the son of Robert and Mary Ellen Morgridge of Charlevoix. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1982. He attended Michigan State University and earned a degree in advertising in 1988. He is also a recent graduate of Wayne State University, where he received a master's degree in science. The groom-elect is currently living in Tahoe, where he works as a physician assistant for Reno Emergency Physicians, St. Mary's Hospital, in Reno, Nev.

The couple is planning a June, 1999 wedding in Charlevoix.

Former resident honored by American veterans

Winston (Mac) McGinnis of Melbourne was awarded the prestigious "AMVET OF THE YEAR" award at the National Convention of AMVETS in Greensboro, N. C. McGinnis is the son of Orval and Arthie McGinnis of Charlevoix. His sisters, Lois Way and Velma Powell still reside in Charlevoix.

In March 1999, he will receive the SILVER HELMET at a banquet in Vienna, Virginia. The AMVET OF THE YEAR award was given to McGinnis for the many hours and years of volunteer work for all veterans and their families since his retirement from the U.S. Air Force in 1966. After an injury in Guam while serving in the Air Force that resulted in a spinal cord injury, McGinnis was retired with 20 years of service. Since that time he has worked with other veterans and volunteered in four different Veterans Hospitals.

The SILVER HELMET AWARD is a unique silver replica of the helmets worn by GIs in World War II and has, over the past 40 years, acquired a well-deserved reputation as the most prestigious of all the awards given by veterans organizations.

Dawn Campbell performs with Blue Fusion for scholarship benefit concert

Dawn Campbell and her band Blue Fusion will perform a special benefit concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19 at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

The concert is a celebration of North Central Michigan College's 40th anniversary, and concert proceeds will go toward scholarships for NCMC students.

Campbell has a style that blends the blues, funk and rock. She has been called a cross between Janis Joplin and Joe Cocker. Her second CD, Shattered, was released in February of 1998, and includes 10 original songs co-written by band member Ron Getz.

Getz is Blue Fusion's lead guitarist. He has worked with Bradford Marsalis, Jon Scofield and Marvin "Smitty" Smith from the Jay Leno Show. Getz' CD, Ego State, received a three-and-one-half star review in Billboard Magazine.

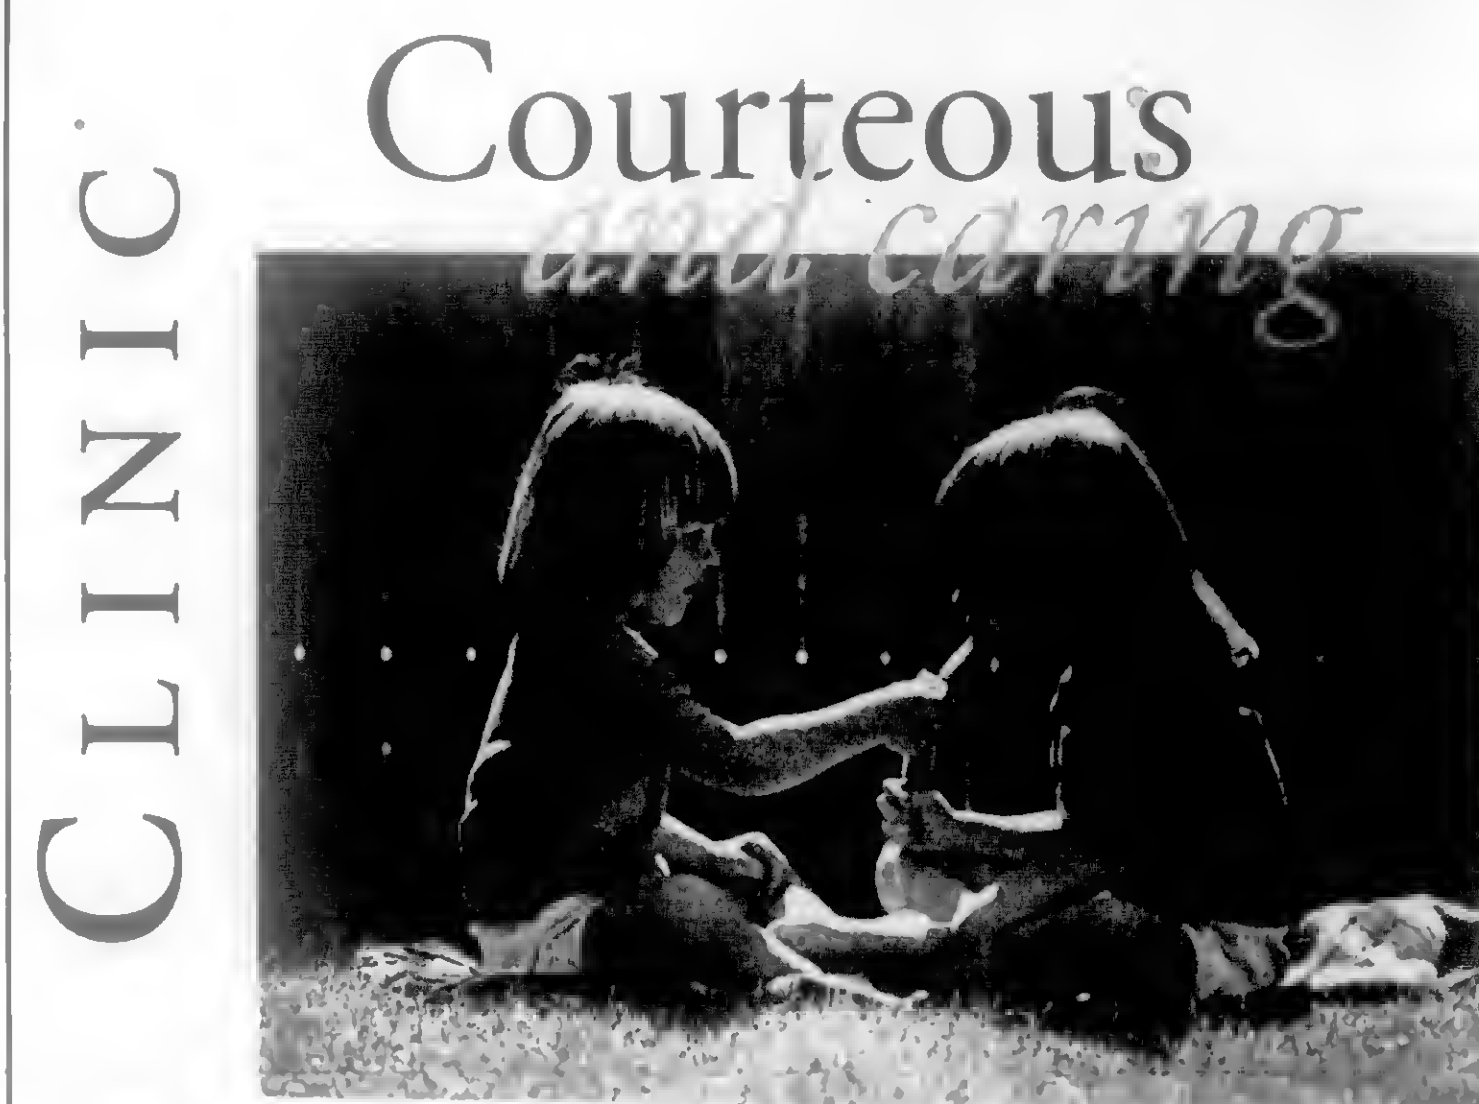

Other members of Blue Fusion include Jason Kott on bass and Don Julin on mandolin.

Dawn Campbell and Blue Fusion have performed at the Montreux Festival, Newport Blues and Jazz Festival, Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival, Howling Wolf in Aspen, Blue Note and Visionaries in New York City, Crickets and Jonathan Swifts in Boston, Pebble Beach Resort, and the City Park Grill in Petoskey.

Tickets are $10 in advance and are available in Petoskey at the Grain Train, Record World, McLean and Eakin Booksellers and the McCune Arts Center; in Harbor Springs at Between the Covers-Bookstore; and at the NCMC business office.

A post-concert reception will be at the McCune Arts Center to celebrate North Central's 40th anniversary.

Wedding

Heather A. Livingston and Edward Diaz, both of Arcadia, Fla., were married April 18 in Venice, Fla.

The bride is the daughter of Bruce and Mary Livingston of Venice, Fla., formerly of Charlevoix.

The groom is the son of Eduardo and Luz Diaz of Miramar, Fla.

The Epiphany Cathedral in Venice, Fla., was decorated with Easter flowers, lilies, tulips, azaleas and daffodils for the wedding. The double ring ceremony was performed by Father Richard Mueller and witnessed by 160 guests.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white, off-the-shoulder gown of soft Italian crepe with a pleated bodice and short tunnel sleeves, a natural waist with a full skirt flowing into a cathedral train. Her headpiece had a floral wreath and fingertip veil scattered with pearls. She carried a bouquet of cascading gardenias, roses and ivy.

The maid of honor was Katie Dexter of Seattle, Wash. Bridesmaids were Danette Kujat of Harbor Springs and Karen Castelli of Arcadia, Fla. They wore bamboo-colored empire waist dresses with seed pearls on the bodice and carried bouquets of yellow Gerber daisies, yellow roses and ivy.

Best man was Dan Harshburger of Arcadia, Fla. Groomsman was Nick Castelli of Arcadia, Fla. and ushers were Jay Livingston and Juan Carlos Diaz of Florida.

A reception was held at the Boca Royale Country Club in Engle-

Historic church embarks on $1 million restoration campaign

Charlevoix's First Congregational United Church of Christ celebrated a special day last Sunday, Sept. 13. The day was the kickoff and dedication of Faith Moving Forward, a campaign for an expansion and renovation of the historic church.

The church, originally dedicated on Jan. 18, 1885, has been evaluated for its critical needs. Members are embarking on a campaign to raise $1,050,000 for expansion and renovation. Plans include expanding the Fellowship Hall to the west, enlarging the chancel (choir and altar area) to accommodate events such as large concert choirs and youth musicals, increasing seating in the sanctuary, adding storage space and barrier-free access from the parking area.

Plans also include updating heating and air exchange systems, plumbing and electrical service and fire protection.

The kitchen, Christian education classrooms, music and equipment storage rooms will also be renovated.

Since its inception in 1885, the church has undergone several remodelings and additions to accommodate the needs of its growing membership.

According to church history, the bell was hung in the belfry in 1886. In 1904, four wings were added for two Sunday School rooms, a bride's preparation room and a small State Street entry. The sanctuary was remodeled in 1958. From 1968-1970, the Fellowship Hall, the Park Avenue entry, new kitchen and lower level Christian Education rooms were added.

The most recent improvements were completed in 1995, when the church exterior was repainted in colors chosen to restore the original appearance of the building, which is now a state historic site. A new roof was installed at that time.

The church serves the community by housing the Community Food Pantry and providing a venue for community meetings and musical events. These events are cheerfully fitted into the busy schedule of an active congregation.

Brahms Alto Rhapsody to be performed at First Congregational Church

The Brahms Alto Rhapsody will be presented at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4.

The rhapsody is a romantic piece by Brahms, written when he was suffering from a lost love. Brahms used part of the German poet Goethe's somber poems about solitude for the text of Alto Rhapsody.

The first two verses, sung by the alto, speak of the sorrow of solitude and the utter despair of a lonely man.

In the third verse, when the men's chorus joins the alto, hope replaces gloom and, at the end, hope gives way to radiance, proclaiming the victory of the human spirit over the anguished heart.

Jayne Sleder

Traverse City's Jayne Sleder will sing operatic arias at the concert from her extensive repertoire.

The Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Fran Tollas, will sing additional songs and both the Men's Glee Club and Sleder will finish the program with an arrangement of spirituals.

Accompaniment for the program will be provided by Elizabeth Humphrey, well-known pianist and organist at the Congregational Church.

The program is being sponsored by the Charlevoix Opera Guild. A free will offering will be taken to defray the expenses of the concert. A reception will follow the performance. For more information, call Fran Tollas at 547-9479.

Eastport Baptist reschedules Amy Roth concert

The Eastport Baptist Church will present Amy Roth in concert at 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 27. The concert, originally planned for Sept. 13, was rescheduled.

Roth is a "new" artist whose ministry in music was established and proven long before the record industry discovered her. Roth is not new to this area however, since she has family in the Torch Lake area. Everyone in the area is invited to join this very special time of worship and praise. A Love Offering will be taken for Roth's ministry. For more information, call 599-2122.

Scouts consider new Firefighter Explorer Post

The Boy Scouts and Charlevoix Fire Department are having an organizational meeting regarding the establishment of a Firefighter Explorer Post at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23 at the Charlevoix Fire Department.

This will be a coed group for children 14 years and older who are interested in training and assisting at fire and rescue scenes.

(The kids will not be allowed to enter actual emergency zones.) The goal is to provide real experience in an exciting and interesting career field.

Anyone who is 14 or older who would like to participate in a new and exciting experience should plan on attending the meeting. For more information, call 1-800-210-2233.

Charlevoix State Bank names next bank president

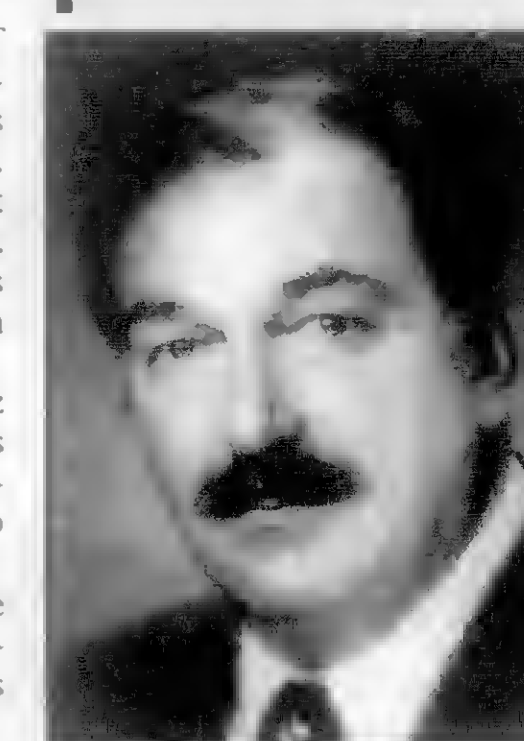

Richard Hodgson, Chairman of Charlevoix State Bank, recently announced that John E. Kurtz has been chosen to succeed Louis J. Hollow as president of the bank pending Hollow's retirement Dec. 31, 1998. Hollow has served as bank president since its formation in August, 1994.

"I'm really happy about it," Kurtz said of the appointment. "With this decision, the board has shown confidence in me and I look forward to doing the job."

Kurtz joined Charlevoix State Bank in September of 1997 as executive vice president after 27 years in banking.

"This is a great place to work," Kurtz said. "I've always felt there are two reasons to work — one is to earn money and one is to have fun. There are a lot of super people at Charlevoix State Bank, and I sincerely enjoy working with them."

Kurtz is well known and highly regarded by the people of Charlevoix as well as within banking circles. Kurtz has been a resident of Charlevoix since he first joined the former First State Bank of Charlevoix as vice president in 1981.

"He's a good man," Hodgson said. "We're lucky to have him. We had a lot of awfully good people who expressed an interest in the position, but we decided to stick with John. It's part of being a local, home-town bank. We wanted the next president to be John, who's been a part of this community for nearly 20 years."

Kurtz is a member of various organizations in the area. He currently serves as a member of the City of Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and is a member of the City of Charlevoix Compensation Authority. He also serves as a trustee of the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation and is a member of the Charlevoix Lions Club. Over the years, he has served as president of Big Brothers, Big Sisters, director of United Fund of Charlevoix, director of Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix, treasurer of the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix and treasurer of the Charlevoix Housing Commission.

Kurtz's activities also include many enjoyable years of sailing and skiing.

Kurtz and his wife, Elaine, live in Charlevoix. They have two children; Luther Kurtz, who recently completed his studies at Michigan State University, and Amy Kurtz, who attends Charlevoix High School. The Kurtz family continues to be active in community activities.

CLASSES

Arts Center on Thursdays.
Mary Elizabeth Chaney brings back Highland Dance classes for beginners and for continuing students from 4:45 to 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays. The beginning class lasts 5 weeks.

Marie Therese Volovsek is offering a four-week intermediate Ballroom Dance class from 6:30 to 8:30 Mondays beginning Sept. 28. This popular class fills up fast and class size is limited, so please call early.

Marie also will present a Swing Dance workshop from 2 to 5 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 17. Learn the basics of the very popular swing dances. Teens and adults are welcome, but please call early.

Michael Sullivan will get you to move to African, Cuban and Haitian rhythms in the Dance and Drum Oasis from 4 to 6 p.m. Sundays. This free movement class is for all ages and abilities and will be accompanied by hand drummers Michael Sullivan, Norman Baumhardt, Jim Clark and Matt Webster.

Music Class:
John Van Patten is offering a variety of classes for adults and children. The Crooked Tree Arts Council Youth Symphony is tuning up for a new season; classes will be 5 to 6 p.m. Mondays and the session will end with an appearance at the Holiday Open House concert on Dec. 4. Also for kids who have had some stringed instrument experience, John is offering a Beginning Strings class from 4 to 5 p.m. Mondays. Participants will learn to play strings in a group setting. Adults are invited to take Music Appreciation I to learn the fundamentals of music including sight reading and writing four-part voicing from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Tuesdays. Music Appreciation II is offered from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Wednesdays, and offers adults a chance to learn the lost art of counterpoint and chord building. Music Appreciation I or equivalent is a prerequisite to enroll in Music Appreciation II. Also for adults, John offers the Art of Listening, parts 1 and 2. This brown bag luncheon session is served up from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. Wednesdays. Part 1 will help participants identify the different symphonic instruments, while Part 2 focuses on classical music in movies and soundtracks. Parts 1 and 2 are each four-week sessions.

p.m., while the advanced class is from 1 to 2 p.m., both on Sundays, beginning Sept. 20. Space is limited in these classes, so call now to enroll. You may bring your own drum or use one of Sullivan's hand-crafted drums. Michael also offers private hand drum lessons.
Registration for classes and lessons has begun, so please call for more information and to register. Payment is required at the time of registration. Scholarships for students through high school age are available; applications are available at the McCune Arts Center, 461 East Mitchell St., Petoskey, 347-4337.

Why settle for increased checking fees, when you can get the kind of value that comes with Free Homeowner's Checking from Standard Federal Bank? We offer value-added extras that make your account worth even more. Like,

• no monthly service charge
• no minimum balance requirement
• no per-check fees, no matter how many checks you write.

But that's not all. We'll throw in 30 minutes of free, long-distance calls to use any way you like.

And we'll include even more value-added incentives:

- a book filled with valuable Standard Federal coupons
- 50 free checks
- check buy-back of up to $10 for unused checks from another bank.

You don't need to have your mortgage with Standard Federal to qualify. And if you don't own a home, we'll show you ways to avoid paying a monthly service charge on your Regular Checking Account, as well. So get more value out of your checking. Come to the Standard Federal Banking Center near you, or call us at 1-800/643-9600.

Rayder football team plays well, but drops another game

Despite another 100-yard performance from their star tailback and another 200-yard passing performance from their new quarterback, the Charlevoix Rayders lost 38-20 to the Benzie Central Huskies.

The Huskies opened the scoring with a 13-yard touchdown, but the Rayders came back when quarterback Adam Wood hit Matt McClellan for a 65-yard score.

Benzie scored the game's next 16 points before a 4-yard run from Colin Carr cut the deficit to 24-14 just before the half. On the kickoff after Carr's score, the Rayders recovered a fumble and returned it for a touchdown. The score, though, was called back because an inadvertent referee's whistle blew the play dead.

The teams swapped third quarter scores with Charlevoix's points coming on a 4-yard touchdown throw from Wood to McClellan.

The Huskies' final score came in the fourth quarter when they returned an interception for a touchdown.

Statistically, the Rayders had a good game despite the loss. Carr rushed for 114 yards on 17 carries. Wood completed 15 of 24 passes for 221 yards. McClellan grabbed eight of those passes for 149 yards and Jeremy Rafacz snagged four catches for 45 yards.

On defense, Brian Ward, Wally Wujcik and Shay Hutchison each had eight tackles and Carl Goff, McClellan and Carr each had fumble recoveries.

Charlevoix, 0-2, begins league play this week with a county grudge match against East Jordan. Kickoff at Kipke Field is at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 18. Last year, East Jordan topped the Rayders 22-0. The Red Devils enter the game with a 2-0 record.

Charlevoix Classic is more than a romp in the mud

By Jamie MacMillan

Amid wooded trails, steep hills and, of course, the mud, the boys from East Jordan and the girls from Traverse City Central took top honors at the sixth annual Charlevoix Classic Cross Country Invitational.

The cross country race in Rayder coach Ken Plude's back yard has become a must for running teams and fans throughout northern Michigan. This year's event attracted 21 teams, 450 runners and over 1,000 spectators.

"It was fun and very enjoyable," Plude said after the race.

The attraction this meet holds over others in the area is the race course. While most races are run over flat lands and golf course fairways, this event runs through the woods, up and down hills and forces runners to navigate both natural and man-made obstacles such as tree trunk hurdles and large mud pits.

"You know you've run cross country after this race," Plude said of the three-mile course.

All told, four variations of the course exist and Plude rotates each year how the course is laid out so that no runner will see the same course over their four-year high school running career.

This year, runners began on a straightaway before descending into the woods, over a five-foot high tree trunk and, soon after, crossing a mud pit. Out of the mud, runners must climb a steep hill

We're not sure, but we think the athlete performing a swan dive into the mud pit is Charlevoix's Matt Campbell. By the time he emerged from the mud, he was unrecognizable. Crowds lined the cross country course by the mud pit, where many runners dazzled the crowd with interesting styles of entry. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan) which begins a steady climb to the course's highest point. Runners then weaved through trails back toward the mud pit before the final uphill leg through the woods and up the same straightaway that began the race.

According to Plude, the race is difficult because of the elements it throws at you.

"Once you get wet and have to climb those hills it always becomes nasty," he said. "It spends everything you got."

For some, getting wet and muddy is not difficult — it's the reason they run the race.

"There is something glorious about being covered in mud and trying to run this course," said Elk Rapids senior Betsy Dekker.

Without a doubt, no team exhibited more fun while trying to weave through the obstacles than the squads from Elk Rapids. The girls' team synchronized their two entrances into the mud pits with cannonballs and "Nestea Plunges," while the boys executed a variety of forward flips, back flips and superman dives.

"Every meet you work hard, so you need a fun one like this," Dekker said.

Known on this day not as the Elks, but as the Mud Puppies, the runners from Elk Rapids said they have a policy to become as muddy as possible during this meet and have perfected, they say, how to do that.

"You have to get completely submerged in the pit so you can get your hair wet," junior Corinne Fossick said. "The key is not so much the mud pit, but the log rolls down the dirt hills."

Not everything was fun and games, and coach Plude was pleased with the results from Charlevoix, notably the boys' team which placed fifth overall behind East Jordan, Petoskey, Cadillac and Rogers City.

Leading the way for the boys was Josh Popenhagen, who finished seventh and medaled in the sophomore-freshmen race, finishing with a time of 19 minutes, 14 seconds.

The Charlevoix girls placed eighth, with Tricia Hodge and Liza Gorkiewicz leading the way crossing the finish line in 11th and 16th place respectively.

"The kids ran well and hard," Plude said.

"There are a lot of barriers on the course and they handled them real well."

Soccer dominates league

The Rayder soccer team continued to showcase its offensive burst last week with 5-0 and 3-1 road wins over Harbor Springs and Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian respectively.

The wins up the Rayders' record to 6-2 and the win over Burt Lake kept the squad perfect, 4-0, in Northern Michigan Soccer League play.

In their eight games this year, the Rayders have outscored their opponents 31-10, including a 16-1 advantage during its current three-game winning streak. Against the Rams, Sean Stockman and Jon Boss each scored twice and Todd Schapperkötter added one. Stockman also added two assists. Boss and Zach Dennis each had one assist.

In the Burt Lake contest, Boss connected with a goal on an assist from Stockman to break open a tie game with less than three minutes remaining in the first half. Stockman scored two second half goals to help keep the Eagles nested.

Charlevoix next plays today, Wednesday, at Suttons Bay and Friday, Sept. 18 at Roscommon. Both games begin at 5 p.m.

Golf team improving in standings

With wins last week against Mancelona and East Jordan in a tri-meet at the Belvedere Golf Course, the Charlevoix golf team improved its record to 5-3; 2-1 in conference play.

The Rayders topped Mancelona in an 18-hole match 344-375 and bested East Jordan in the nine-hole conference match 169-191.

Keith Grunch was the 18-hole medalist, shooting a 79 followed by Jon Sell, 84, and Craig Siwarga, 88. Also for the Rayders were Dennis Avery, 90, Chris Smith, 93, and Steve Pirie, 96.

The top shooter for Mancelona was Travis Williams, who scored an 88. In the match with the Red Devils, East Jordan's Bryan Banfield was medalist with a 38. Charlevoix, however, had the next three best scores with Grunch, 39, Sell, 43, and Siwarga, 44. Rounding out the Rayders' card were Avery, 46, Smith, 49, and Pirie, 51.

The 1998 season is off to a solid, if not spectacular start for the Charlevoix golf team. Prior to last week, the club split league matches with Elk Rapids and Kalkaska. They topped Kalkaska 174-198, but were nipped by the Elks, 190-183.

The club also has had steady performances in the three invitations they have entered. They placed fifth in the 12-team Russ Harvey, 11th in the 20-team Gladiator Invitational and eighth in the 18-team Bulldog Invitational.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Business After Hours hosted at Grey Gables

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is hosting a Business After Hours from 5-7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 17 at the Grey Gables Inn on Belvedere Avenue. The event is sponsored by the Grey Gables Inn and the Inn at Grey Gables.

The chamber of commerce invites the public to join them to celebrate the fall season after a long, busy summer.

Admission is $3.

Elementary School invites parents to special night and BBQ

The Charlevoix Elementary School will be hosting Parents' Night Thursday, Sept. 17.

Parents may visit classrooms at the following times: Learning Centers from 5:30-6 p.m., kindergarten, first and second grades from 6-6:55 p.m., Carey Dv. kindergarten at 6:30 p.m., third, fourth and fifth grades from 7:30-8 p.m. and special classes from 8-8:30 p.m.

K-5 news and happenings will be presented from 7-7:25 p.m. and will cover topics such as student choices, responsible thinking process and an overview of the school's annual report.

In conjunction with Parents' Night, the P.T.O. will be hosting a family barbecue from 5-7 p.m. at the school. Brats, hot dogs, baked beans, chips, vegetables, brownies and beverages will be served. The cost for the barbecue is $3 for adults, $2 for students or $10 for a family. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the school office. Pre-purchased ticket holders are eligible for a door prize.

Supervision on the playground will be provided for older children while parents are attending sessions.

Superintendent welcomed with open house

The Charlevoix Public Schools will be hosting an open house from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 21 at the high school cafeteria. The purpose of the open house is to give the community an opportunity to welcome the new school superintendent, John Sturock, to the Charlevoix School District. The public is invited to attend.

Trail committee to meet in Charlevoix

The Charlevoix Trail Committee, which is working toward establishing a non motorized, multi-purpose trail from Charlevoix to Bayshore and other trails in Charlevoix County, will be hosting a meeting at Charlevoix City Hall at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24.

For more information, call Jerry Corley at 547-1945 or the Top Of Michigan Trails Council at 348-8280.

Friends of Jordan host river cleanup

The Friends of the Jordan (FOJ) will host their annual fall cleanup of the banks of the Jordan River and throughout the watershed at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19.

The cleanup will take place along the banks of the river, in the river (canoeists are needed), along the roads in the Jordan Valley and throughout the watershed. Swiss Hideaway will once again provide canoes for the cleanup. Anyone interested in lending a helping hand to keep the Jordan clean should meet at Graves Crossing Road off M-66 at 10 a.m. Saturday. You need not be a member of FOJ to participate. Refreshments will be provided by FOJ. A barbecue will follow.

This Friends of the Jordan Cleanup is being held in conjunction with the Lake Michigan Federation's statewide "Beach Sweep" and the Center for Marine Conservation's International Coastal Cleanup Day. Trash bags are being provided by the Lake Michigan Federation.

For more information, contact John Hummer of FOJ at 533-5063.

Dems expecting Fieger to draw big dinner crowd

Northern Michigan Democrats will gather in Gaylord at 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19 for their fourth annual dinner at the Holiday Inn. Attendance is expected to top 400, with Geoffrey Fieger's attendance as featured speaker playing no small role in attracting the crowd.

Also in attendance will be Jennifer Granholm, Mary Lou Parks and Mark Brewer, Chair of the Michigan Democratic Party. Congressman Bart Stupak will serve as the Master of Ceremonies for the evening. Additionally, candidates for the State House of Representatives and State Senate from throughout the north will be in attendance.

Social hour starts at 5 p.m. with dinner following at 6 p.m. Tickets are $25 a piece, a limited number are currently available. Please call Kay Chase at 547-5147, Fern Bellmore at (517) 734-0267, Mary El-dridge at (616) 627-5028, or the Gaylord Holiday Inn for tickets.

For more information call the Northern Michigan County Democratic Parties at 547-5147.

Bloodmobile coming to Charlevoix

American Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in town for the Charlevoix Community Blood Drive from 1 to 6:45 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24 at the American Legion Hall on East Garfield Street. Please call 347-5984 to make an appointment, or just drop in.

SCRAPBOOK

Don't like the bridge traffic? It's been worse in the past

By Geoffrey Reynolds

With the retreat of summer boaters, the traffic flows a bit freer as the bridge is down a little more than it is up these days. Though it is difficult to appreciate the summer traffic delays, one can attempt to acknowledge Charlevoix's long history of bridges that allowed passage both north to south and east to west.

In 1869 Charlevoix's first bridge was placed over Pine River in order to allow pedestrians dry passage. It consisted of a four foot-wide deck about two feet above the water. It was constructed by driving small piles by hand with stringers and planking to provide a stable surface. A few planks were left loose for removal and passage of small vessel traffic. Horse and oxen drawn wagons were expected to wade the two foot deep and fifty foot-wide river.

The second structure to span Pine River was a highway pile bridge about 16 feet above the water, with a draw lift section to allow small vessels through. Constructed in 1873 by early pioneer and businessman Amos Fox, its lift was operated by a rope running to a winch located on the south bank of the river and manned by volunteers. Total cost of the project was $400 and included the first commercial dredging of the river from two to 12 feet in depth. This project ushered in the bustling maritime trade Charlevoix would enjoy well into the early 20th century.

Top: Cars lined up in both directions to get across the bridge. Above: A temporary bridge was constructed over the channel while Memorial Bridge was being built in the late 1940s.

Recent column triggered memories of past grocery services

By Ron Winchester

Marilyn Boss's scrapbook article about local merchant's delivery practices sparked many memories about the service expected by customers during an earlier era. Indeed, as small children we were occasionally allowed to ride a short distance in the delivery truck driven by Marilyn's husband, Dale, to enjoy a drink of chocolate milk.

As a teen in the early 1970s I delivered groceries for Neff's grocery store, located downtown where Kilwin's and North Seas Gallery is now located. The store was originally owned by Gordon and Bob Neff, who bought the business from Milton Block in 1952. Due to poor health, Gordon retired in 1972, and Bob continued to operate the store until 1975.

Every day we took phone orders, filled the "pans," and made our delivery trips in the summer. Bob Neff worked at Block's Grocery about 30 years earlier and used to tell stories, (in tall fashion, as only Bob could tell them), about the hundreds of deliveries that were made each day in the heyday of grocery delivery.

While Bob used to drive a panel truck, I was assigned to the store's 1956 Pontiac sedan for deliveries. With the rear seat removed, that space opened up to the trunk area, creating more usable space than a mini van. It had brakes that might or might not work, depending on which hill I was negotiating, and had a nasty habit of backfiring after coasting down either of the Bridge Street hills.

Edward's IGA also delivered groceries. They traditionally delivered to the Chicago Club families and Neff's to the Belvedere Club. Occasionally we would cross each other's "lines," as there existed a friendly sort of competition between the two stores. For many older people who were homebound, a visit from the delivery boy could constitute the day's most important event. Several of my older customers would have milk and fresh baked goods awaiting my arrival. A short conversation was mandatory, as this might have been the only visitor they received all day. My job also included stocking their refrigerators and pantries, letting the Bridge number three, built in 1878, was made of iron and painted a brilliant vermilion (red) color. Two or more people opened and closed the bridge by hand with use of a large wooden "key."

The fourth bridge, made of steel, was constructed in 1901 and cost $20,000. It was also swung open by a large wooden bar attached to gears under the bridge with two or more people working about eight minutes to complete the swing. Coal-fired steam powered this bridge. Eventually electricity was installed in a house near the center of the bridge, cutting the time to less than three minutes. This also allowed a bridge keeper to live on the bridge and provide 24 hour service to vessels. One tender, Mr. Johnson, spent over 30 years working overhead, sometimes sleeping and taking his meals from his post.

The fifth, and only temporary bridge, was used during the construction of Memorial Bridge. Its approaches were located on the far end of Pine River near the Beaver Island dock and the Charlevoix Lumber Company. It was a swing bridge and helped ease the traffic congestion during the construction phase of Memorial Bridge.

The present day and sixth bridge to span Pine River is the bascule Memorial Bridge. Construction was started in May of 1947 and was dedicated July 30, 1949 by State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler to the Charlevoix area's 21 World War II veterans who gave their lives in the service of their country. The concrete and steel construction cost approximately $1 million and spans one 111 feet overall. It opens to 90 feet of free passage space when opened, and 17 feet of clearance when closed. As it approaches 50 years of service, so does the memory of the honorable men who never returned home to cross it.

If you would like to learn more about the history of Charlevoix's bridges, call the Harsha House Museum at 547-0373 to make an appointment.

Rerouting plans for Marion Center continue

By Laurie Lounshury

City council voted to take the next step toward rerouting Marion Center Road, but not without discussing more options to ease the traffic flow.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) sent a letter to the City of Charlevoix, which essentially said the city needs to "indicate its willingness to undertake the engineering design for the required local road reconfigurations."

The council gave city manager Mike Wiesner the nod to negotiate an engineering contract, with the understanding that engineering plans must come back to city council for final approval. While councilman Gabe Campbell is prepared to move ahead with Marion Center rerouting plans, he questioned the wisdom of closing and abandoning the southern section of Stover Road where it meets M-66.

"We might be better off to leave Stover Road open for M-66 traffic," Campbell said, indicating that Stover Road south of M-66 could be left open for Marion Center

Endless summer

It seemed like summer was never going to end last week, when temperatures stayed well into the high 70s throughout the weekend. This week temperatures did drop, bringing more typical autumn weather. Enjoying the weather last Friday were (from left) Amanda Hawkins and Katie Wyskochil, who went swimming in Lake Michigan. The lake temperature was reportedly still 71 degrees. northbound cars that are turning right onto M-66. "If we jump in and give that land away, we may end up wanting to buy it back."

If the city abandons the southern portion of Stover Road, half of the road will become the property of private landowners on the west side of the road. Since the city is the landowner on the east side, it would own the other half of the road.

Councilmen Campbell, Butch Russell and Bob Timms indicated that leaving at least a portion of Stover Road open for right turn traffic onto M-66 would be desirable.

The snag is that MDOT wants to see Stover Road abandoned as part of the overall traffic plan.

"In order for this project to move forward and not jeopardize MDOT's financial participation in the project, it will be necessary to completely close the south leg of the Stover Road intersection, with no partial right-turn access, either in or out, in order to justify the total safety benefit of the proposed im-

County commissioners are over budget

By Jamie MacMillan

While most other departments are humming along at their budgeted pace, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has already exceeded its 1998 budget by 11 percent, with four months remaining in the fiscal year.

In 1998, the county as a whole is being operated with a $6.8 million budget. Two-thirds of the way through the year, the county has collected over $6.3 million in revenue, 93 percent of the projected incoming cash. Meanwhile, the county has spent $4,446,362, but still has 35 percent of the funds unspent, with about 33 percent of the year

The board members had a 1998 budget of $90,000, but tallies at the end of August show that the board has already spent $100,160 — 11 percent beyond what they were expected to spend for the whole year.

Last year at this time, the board had spent only $67,675.

County Clerk Jane Brannon explained that the biggest factor in the higher expenses is contracted services paid out to county lawyers as they continue to hack out working contracts with the sheriff's department.

The county and the sheriff's department are still negotiating contracts which were expected to begin

July 1, 1996 and run through June 30, 1999, Brannon said.

According to the budget, the county has spent $53,589 on contracted services, but the original budgeted expense for the line item was just $25,000.

Brannon noted that $10,000 from that line item goes to David Griffith and Associates, the firm that does accounting for the Friend of the Court and Prosecuting Attorney's offices. They also do monthly reports for the county clerk's office.

Board members have rung up $14,925 in expenses, mostly as reimbursements from attending various committee meetings.

Shirley Roloff and Carl Price have been the most active, charging the county $2,800 each. Joan Blanchard has recorded $2,750, Victor Patrick, $2,325, James Behling, $2,225, and Phil Johnson, $2,050.

The total figure is down from the $17,175 turned in last year at this time. The figures noted above run through the first pay period of this month, dated Sept. 5, 1998. It does not include the $200 per month per diem that commissioners also receive.

Every commissioner except Patrick also receives full health benefits from the county for themselves and their spouses. The cost is $4,513 per year per commissioner.

provement," stated Risa Rasch, manager of the Traverse City office for MDOT.

Council directed city attorney Jim Young to look into the feasibility of closing the southern leg of Stover Road instead of abandoning it. If the road is closed, the city may retain rights to the road, but if abandoned, the city loses half of the road to adjacent landowners on the west side.

In other business, representatives from the accounting firm of Rehmann Robson reviewed the city audit for the 1997-98 fiscal year.

COUNTY

For Joan Blanchard, whose husband is deceased, the cost of health benefits is $2,172 per year.

In other county business, the board approved an agreement with state transit authorities to receive $50,000 in grant money to construct a new 30 by 50 square-foot bus garage at the county transit building

They noted that the city contributed $137,000 to the fund balance, paid down $150,000 of debt and earned $193,000 in interest income.

Auditor Mike Konicki made comments and recommendations after the presentation.

"The year 2000 compliant issue is your biggest priority," Konicki said. "You need to look at software and hardware systems and make sure you don't have a crash on Dec. 31, 1999. There's a vast array of systems out there that have computer-related components."

Konicki said that street lights, alarms and traffic lights all could be affected by a year 2000 bug.

in Boyne City.

The cost will be shared by federal and state funding, with the federal money accounting for 80 percent of the cost and the state picking up the remaining 20 percent. The garage is needed to house two buses used for the six-county regional transit system that began last spring. The building will be on the northwest corner of the transit's land, separate from the current facility.

Golfing for the kids

This was the 20th year for the Annual Supie Classic golf tournament, which is hosted every year on the Monday preceding Labor Day. With 96 players playing in the scramble format at the Belvedere Golf Club, the tournament raised between $7,000 and $8,000 for Charlevoix's Junior Golf Program. Organizers were (from left) Bill Supernaw, Tom Bickert, Sam Supernaw and Dean Davenport. The winning team of four shot 12 under par for a score of 60. They were: Dennis O'Leary, John Hutchison, B.S. Roberts and John Guanci. There was a three-way tie for second place, with the following teams: Mike Jackson, Joe Battle, Pete Pace and Moe Baccoci; Mark Wilson, Doug Tracy, Jim Kanary and Parris Halverson; and Jack Dempsey, Kurt Shermer, Tom Papiernik and Tim Wieland.

Armed robber stole $3,000 from local cook

The City of Charlevoix Police Department is investigating an armed robbery that occurred about midnight Saturday, Sept. 19.

The victim was Antonio Perez

Lopez, 26, a cook at Harbor Cafe. He told officer Pete Shrift that he was taking the garbage out of the restaurant and into the alley behind the restaurant when he was approached by a thin white man about six feet tall, with shoulder length, blonde/brown hair and a brown goatee. The man allegedly wielded a six-inch hutter knife and stole $3,000 from Lopez, then fled the scene. Lopez suffered a superficial laceration in his abdominal area during the robbery.

Police had a difficult time taking a statement from Lopez because he spoke very little English.

Airport runway construction nears completion

By Jamie MacMillan

Airport officials expect planes to land and take off from an extended runway no later than next week.

The city is in the process of extending the runway at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport by 250 feet and, weather permitting, work could be done by Wednesday, Sept. 23, according to airport manager Lorraine Luepnitz. Should rain become a detriment to workers, the work should be finished and the runway ready for action next week, she said.

The runway is being extended 250 feet to the west toward the Medusa Cement quarry. The extension will increase the runway's length from 4,300 feet to 4,550 feet. The new portion of the runway will also have an extra 50- by 100-foot bulge to provide turnaround space for aircraft.

An additional 250 feet toward the east is also being paved, but will not be used as actual runway space, Luepnitz said.

Runway lights at the east end will not be moved back with the extension and the extra space will only serve as an emergency runoff for aborted takeoffs and challenging landings.

"We can have some significant weather factors up here and it's nice to have that extra insurance," the airport manager said.

The project began on Sept. 8 with Manthei Development serving as general contractors and H and D providing the paving services.

The cost of the project is $228,000, Luepnitz said, but 90 percent is being covered by a Michigan Department of Transportation grant. Grant stipulations require a 10 percent local match, so the cost to the city is expected to be $22,800.

Work is also being done on a 400-foot taxiway heading south from the west end of the runway. The taxiway leads to a security gate at the entrance of a private hangar being built by Chicago businessman David Guanci.

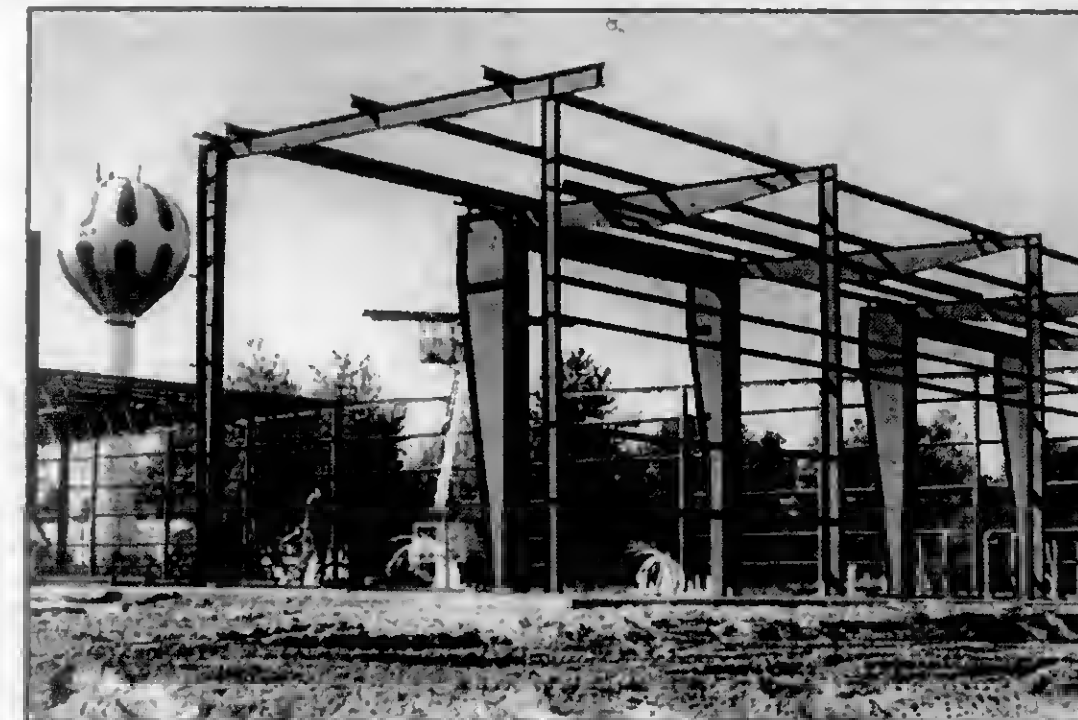

Guanci is developing privately owned land to include a 12,000 square foot hangar that can store six small jets, a warehouse for boat and motor home storage, and office and conference room space.

He and the city worked out an Left: With a plane coming in for a landing, workers from Manthei Development put the finishing touches on 500 feet of new runway at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. On both the west and east ends, 250 feet of runway is being added. The east end, shown here, will not be used as actual runway space, but will serve as emergency space should any takeoffs need to be aborted.

Still, the grant and the local match will only account for $150,000 of a project that is estimated to cost between $300,000-$400,000.

"We're still working to develop the funding," Luepnitz said.

While no official blueprints have yet to be drawn, a new terminal is expected to double the size of the current terminal to 3,000 square feet and will include handicap access, passenger and pilot lounges and a baggage check-in area.

The city flirted with the idea of renovating the current terminal, Luepnitz said, but after talks with aviation professionals, determined the best route would be to build a new terminal.

Luepnitz also noted that the city would like to improve the parking conditions at the airport as well as create a new entrance to the facility off of U.S. 31. She said grant applications have been filed for such projects, but as of press time had not heard back from state officials.

agreement in July that provides Guanci exclusive access to the airport for an annual fee of $2,000 for the next five years. After five years, Guanci will pay the city $4,000 annually. Before receiving any access to the city airport, the businessman had to turn over a $2 million insurance bond to the city.

The runway extensions are only a small part of a larger plan to improve the quality of the city's airport.

Luepnitz explained that a new terminal will be built and it is hoped such a project could begin next spring. The city has already received an MDOT grant for $75,000 for the project. Unlike the runway grant, this grant requires a 100 per-

Sturock has a nice smile, but can he sing like Sinatra?

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

I recently met our new school superintendent, John Sturock, and all I know about him for sure is that he has a nice smile.

He knows even less about me.

What he doesn't know, since I didn't have an opportunity to talk to him for any length of time, is that I have a list of lofty expectations for him.

If he can meet even a few of these expectations I'll be happy.

— First, I'd like him to have a hit of former president Reagan's charm and charisma. Say what you want about old Ronnie, he did have a way of bringing everyone in the country together in a lovefest of national pride. We could use a person who can imbue in us a sense of school pride. If Sturock is lacking this quality, perhaps he could pay a visit to Connie Ford's performing arts class. I'm pretty sure there was quite a bit of acting involved with Reagan's presidential performance.

— A touch of Jimmy Carter's ability to build habitats would be helpful since the school board seems to think we need a new school habitat. I hope the new superintendent possesses Carter's ability to build habitats on a shoestring. And if he rolls up his sleeves and swings a hammer like former president Carter, I'll be there with a camera to capture the moment.

— Since the job of superintendent requires having your finger on the pulse of this community, I hope Sturock follows in the footsteps — or bicycle tire tracks — of the late Courier editor Boh Clock. Boh could always be found riding his hike around town and stopping to visit with folks on the street. He was also known to tip a few at the local taverns, where he'd really find out what was on people's minds.

— Would it be too much to ask that our new superintendent be just a teeny weeny hit like Sybil? No, I don't want him to wear snowmobile suits around town in July. But it would be wonderful if he was forthright and called a spade a spade like Sybil did. I'm tired of educational jargon mumbo-jumbo. It's a foreign language and Berlitz doesn't offer home study courses in it, so the rest of us civilians can't understand it.

— Our new superintendent could keep his emotional balance in this obstreperous community if he had the late Tom Merta's sense of humor. No matter what ticklish situation Merta found himself in, he could always find the humor in it. If anyone in a leadership position in this town loses his or her sense of humor, they'll be eaten alive.

— Does Sturock have any Huskie hood in him? Strong leadership skills are a must for the Charlevoix school superintendent. Getting this community in line on an issue is like trying to form a dog sled team with all lead dogs. Most of us like to have our noses out in front where the view is best. We need a strong lead dog who's not afraid to put a little bite in his bark.

— Alan Greenspan's financial skills (and clout) would be a dandy attribute for our new superintendent. The school district is spending more than they're taking in, which is a dangerous course of action.

— I'm not a huge fan of Governor Engler, but I do appreciate his efforts to improve our public schools and provide choices for parents of school children. I'd like to see Sturock follow Engler's lead and support school choice in this town. If that's asking too much, then I hope he'll consider sharing high school sports with the charter school. I don't think it would cut into the regular public school's budget, and it would go a long way toward strengthening community cooperation. An added benefit might even be stronger sports teams.

— Can the new superintendent sing like Frank Sinatra? I'm sure it would boost attendance at high school events if Sturock could lead us in the Star Spangled Banner crooning like Old Blue Eyes. (OK, maybe I'm asking too much there, but it never hurts to try.)

If you're reading this, Mr. Sturock, you're probably asking yourself about now, "What have I gotten myself into?"

Take heart.

We expect a lot of our leaders in this town because we care a lot about our schools and our community. We are involved, so we are opinionated. We are concerned, so we are outspoken. We are cold nine months out of the year (coincidentally, the same nine months that school is in session), so we warn ourselves over heated debates.

We are a lively, active bunch of people with an opinion-to-population ratio of 1-to-1.

But we are also, for the most part, reasonable people who want the best for our kids.

That's all I have to say, except — Welcome to Charlevoix.

Newly formed energy cooperative selects new officers

The Board of Directors of the new Great Lakes Energy Cooperative recently selected officers for the Board and the Cooperative.

Customer-owners of three electric cooperatives in Michigan approved merger votes earlier this summer to create the new Great Lakes co-op, which will begin operating Jan. 1. The three cooperatives are Top O' Michigan Electric Cooperative based in Boyne City, the current Great Lakes Energy Cooperative headquartered in Newaygo and Western Michigan Electric Cooperative of Scottville.

Don Marsh of Sears, was named chairman. Marsh has served on the board of the former O & A Electric Cooperative and Great Lakes Energy since 1977.

Howard Carson of Boyne City was named first vice chairman. Carson has served on the board of Top O' Michigan Electric Company for 25 years.

Phillip Eikenberry of Scottville was named second vice chairman. Eikenberry has served on the board of Western Michigan Electric Cooperative for 15 years.

Dale Farrier of Mancelona was named secretary. Farrier has served on Top O' Michigan's board since 1990.

Burton Scott of Evart was named treasurer. Scott has served on the former O & A Electric and Great Lakes Energy board for 31 years.

The board also named officers of the cooperative.

Ed Doss was named president and chief executive officer. Prior to joining Top O' Michigan Electric as president and chief executive officer two years ago, Doss worked 31 years for Consumers Energy Company in various natural gas and electric positions.

Boh Hance was named executive vice president and chief operating officer. Hance has worked for Great Lakes Energy for 24 years, including the last 10 years as president and chief operating officer and general manager.

Steve Boeckman was named senior vice president and chief financial officer.

Residents appreciate shop owners' sidewalk cleaning efforts

Editor:

We want to thank the owners of North Seas Gallery & Antiques for washing the sidewalk in front of their store and Kilwin's on an almost daily basis. Mettlers keeps their sidewalk washed also... and they don't even serve food.

Wouldn't it be nice if all the businesses that had tables and/or chairs outside for their clients to eat would also keep their sidewalks clean. The sticky, greasy sidewalks in front of these establishments belies Charlevoix's motto.

Credit union employee says he let down its members

Dear Editor and Members of the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union:
This is a letter of apology. I would like to apologize for letting the membership that has supported me down. I have worked for the credit union for seven years and have put my heart and soul in the job. I have tried my best with good results; the credit union's loan portfolio has quadrupled, the membership has grown, and the assets have just about doubled. I have tried to maintain a good rapport with the membership and the communities the credit union serves. I have always tried to keep the members first and keep the friendly home town atmosphere a number one priority.

The greatest reward I have after seven years of hard work for the members of the credit union, is the people that I have helped along the way. I will always carry that with me, no matter what my next endeavor may be.

However, my best was not good enough for the board of directors that represent the membership. The reason? I have yet to find out. I guess the old saying that the qualified person for the job has to live at least 50 miles away holds true. The new CEO for the credit union is from Grand Rapids. I will continue to serve the membership to the best of my ability and I will support the new CEO as long as his philosophies are beneficial to the membership of the credit union until I find a new job or career. I know I would

Golf event raised awareness of AIDS services

Editor:

Dunmaglas Golf Course held an Adopt-A-Charity Golf Outing to raise funds for our local HIV/AIDS Network & Direct Service. Golfers played through rain and sun to show their support, making sure the importance of HIV/AIDS awareness and service is known and is out there for our community.

Congratulations to the Walker & Co. team, shooting a 65 in our Four Person Scramble. To our groups that followed with a playoff, congratulations to The Odd Couple & One 65, Meachum & My Gang 75, Smigelski & Some Others 81, Evans & Everyone 89, Brian & Bunch 89. Dunmaglas, thank you for your participation in such an important charity in our community.

In addition, thank you to all the hole sponsors for their contributions: Bay Street Orthopedics, The Memory of Jason Wainio, Timothy's Pub of Gaylord, Schaffer Real Estate of Harbor Springs, James Moser of Surgical Specialties, Dr. Richard Hagelberg, James E.

Reader wants more JV football coverage

To Laurie, editor:

Well, I just got home from a great game! This team was awesome!! They ran hard, hit hard and scored six touchdowns, plus conversion points. They had a great strategy, and even pulled off a safety to stop the progression of the other team!! Oh, by the way, they are 3-0 so far this season!! They work well together and have great team spirit!! Who are they, you say? Well the Charlevoix Red Rayder Junior Varsity Football Team, of Course!! You haven't read about them? Well, they're not too well publicized. I can see where in last week's paper, there was only enough room on the page for a few columns of press about the varsity team and barely a FULL PAGE left over for advertising for winter Courier sales!! The Mud Run had over 1/2 a page, and every other team had its own blurb. What gives with no coverage or pictures of our hard-working underclassmen team?? These are the upcoming varsity players, and they are stompin' so far this year!!! Why not a little more press for a little town team in a little town paper that has more than a little advertising space leftover? I hope that this brings home a big point!!! Give this team the recognition that they deserve, winning or losing, they are always working hard — and always worth some press space in their own hometown paper.

Signed,
Susan Louiselle
Representing more than a few parents of the Charlevoix High School JV Football team

(Editor's note: Also not covered in last week's sports pages were 11 other Charlevoix school teams and four recreational sporting events. Alas, so many sports, and so little time and space in the paper)

Visitors thank Ike Boss for help

Dear Editor:

While traveling through your city last month, we were involved in an auto accident... fortunately, no one was seriously hurt. Our van had to be towed to Traverse City as we were unable to drive it.

Your recreation director, Ike Boss, was so kind to drive us home to Lake Ann, just outside Traverse City, in his own van, on his own time!

We are so grateful to him for doing so, and we would publicly like to thank this wonderful gentleman! How lucky Charlevoix is to have him as an employee and as a resident.

Thanks again, Ike!!
Sincerely,
Dorothy and Andy Bacha
Mike and Beverly Bacha
P.S. A sincere Thank You to all the people in Charlevoix who were so nice to us after the accident.

Navy man visits Spain

Navy Petty Officer First Class Charles R. Struthers, son of Howard G. and Mona L. Struthers of Charlevoix, Mich., recently visited Spain while on a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Seas and Arabian Gulf aboard the guided missile frigate USS Kauffman, home ported in Norfolk, Va.

Struthers' ship became the first U.S. Navy warship in 17 years to visit the Spanish port of Calpe. During the historic port visit, crew members from Struthers' ship hosted daily tours, which attracted more than 500 visitors daily.

Struthers' ship is a combatant ship designed to protect amphibious expeditionary forces, underway replenishment groups and merchant convoys from undersea attack. In addition to torpedoes, the frigates carry helicopters that have sonar and torpedo capabilities, expanding the ship's reach.

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau is offering a fall color tour aboard the Emerald Isle, at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 26 for their guests as well as the general public.

The two hour cruise will depart from the Charlevoix city dock and venture down the north arm of Lake Charlevoix and into Lake Michigan, weather permitting.

The featured entertainment includes folk guitarists Dean Parker and Lon Kowalske. They will perform their renditions of songs by well-known artists such as America, Gordon Lightfoot and John Denver.

Tickets for the general public are on sale now at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce for $12 per person. Children ages five and under are free, but must have a boarding pass.

Registered guests at member lodges of the Convention and Visitors Bureau may buy their tickets through their lodging facility at a discounted price.

Complimentary chili will be served and refreshments will be available during the cruise for purchase.

Join the bureau for a different perspective of the fall colors and experience the new, spacious Emerald Isle ferry.

For more information, call the downtown coordinator Dorian MacGillivray at 237-9031 or the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101.

Obituaries

Margaret "Sherry" Black

Margaret "Sherry" Black, 68, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, Sept. 9, 1998 at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Funeral services were Sunday, Sept. 13 at the Norwood United Methodist Church in Norwood, where the Rev. Eugene Baughman officiated. Burial took place at Norwood Cemetery.

Sherry was born June 14, 1930 in Wyandotte, Mich., the daughter of Charles and Ina (Beck) Boschma. She graduated from Grosse Ile High School and went on to attend Eastern Michigan University, where she received a bachelor's degree in social work and a teacher's certificate. She earned her masters degree in education from Central Michigan University.

She taught at Grosse Ile High School and for the Huron School District in adult education.

On Sept. 29, 1949, Sherry married Robert E. Black. They made their home in Grosse Ile until moving to Charlevoix in the early 1980s.

Sherry founded the Charlevoix Senior Center and served as its director until 1995. She was a member of the Norwood United Methodist Church and served as church board secretary.

She enjoyed boating and crafts, and especially her grandchildren.

Sherry is survived by her husband, Robert E., of Charlevoix; four sons, Robert E. III and his wife, Barbara, of Salt Lake City, Utah, Charles D. and his wife, Mary, of Charlevoix, James L. and his wife, Nora, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mark B. and his wife, Dawn, of Corydon, Ind.; five grandchildren, Joshua, Tyler, Lihby, Melanic and Samuel; three brothers, Charles Boschma of Texas, James Boschma of Ohio and Ted Boschma of Wisconsin.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Norwood United Methodist Church. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Donald James Willis

Donald James Willis, 48, of Beaver Island, died Sept. 16, 1998 at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

The funeral service was Friday, Sept. 18 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Chaplain David Behling officiated and burial was in the Barnard Cemetery.

Donald was born March 1, 1950 in Charlevoix, the son of James and Dorothy J. (Klooster) Willis. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1968.

He served in the U.S. Army in Germany during the Vietnam War.

Donald was a pipefitter by trade, and worked in the western Upper Peninsula for several years before moving to Beaver Island in 1980.

He was a member of Local 506 Escanaba Plumbers and Pipefitters Union, the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post in Charlevoix and the American Legion on Beaver Island.

Survivors include his daughter, Ashley Willis, of Metamora, Mich.; his parents, James and Dorothy Willis of Beaver Island; sister, Ann Willis of Charlevoix; and loving friends, Kay Belfy of Beaver Island and Tete Drost of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Beaver Island EMS or to the Beaver Island Historical Society. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Crop Walk will help meet local hunger needs

One step at a time, for six miles, Charlevoix CROP Walkers will raise money to help meet local hunger needs.

At 8:45 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 26, local walkers will meet at the high school gym. They will don orange safety vests, register to walk, listen to brief opening remarks, safety walking reminders and a prayer. Then they will follow route markers from May Street to Stover Road to M-66. Their hike will end at the Ironton Congregational Church on Washington Street.

At the Ironton Church, they will meet CROP Walkers from East Jordan and Boyne City and be treated to a snack of hot dogs, soft drinks or coffee, prepared this year by Charlevoix Kiwanis Club members.

"We walk because they walk," is the CROP Walk motto, referring to people in developing countries who walk daily for clean water and to work in the fields. In keeping with the motto, only necessary wheels, such as wagons to pull children, strollers and wheelchairs are permitted.

If you would like to walk or sponsor a walker, contact your local pastor or call Kay Smith at 547-2920.

First Baptist Church hosts Round-Up Sunday

The community is invited to attend Round-Up Sunday, Sept. 27 at the First Baptist Church of Boyne City. Special music will be provided by the singing Thren family. Prizes will be awarded for the best dressed cowboy/cowgirl for both young and old.

All children attending the 10 a.m. Sunday School will receive a free cowboy hat.

Bethany Lutheran starts fall worship schedule

Bethany Lutheran Church began the new fall worship schedule Sunday, Sept. 20.

Sunday School and Bible Study classes now convene at 9:15 a.m. and worship is at 10:30 a.m. There will be a midweek Bible Study group meeting at 10:30 a.m. and the study will be on Psalms. This class is being led by Pastor Teuscher.

The congregation celebrated 50 years of Grace through Christ, Sunday, Sept. 13 with a special worship program of praise and thanksgiving. Several former pastors took part in the service including Rev. Kenneth Bernthal of Christ, Boyne City; Rev. Walter Kreger of Hope, Bellaire; and Rev. James Plackner of Christ Our Savior, Winfield, Ill. A luncheon reception was served in a large tent on the church lawn. The congregation and friends enjoyed fellowship with the charter members who were able to attend.

Unique sound is recorded by Beaver Island resident

By Laurie Lounsbury

Beaver Island has always had an ample number of Irish musicians and singers.

Now they can boast of a singer and musician who follows the beat of a different drum — a djembe drum — on his new music release.

Beaver Island's Mike Moore, son of Joseph and Phyllis Moore, recently released a CD called Innocent Desire, a collection of 10 original songs by Moore.

The Central Michigan University senior said he wanted to make the CD so he could move to the next level of musical performance.

"I've been performing a lot, and I wanted to get to the next step, which is making a living playing music," he said.

Moore's sound is difficult to categorize, but could be considered acoustic rock or modern folk music.

"I don't like to call it alternative music, because that boxes you in," Moore said.

Moore has a clear, pleasing voice and demonstrates a great talent for harmony on the CD when he sings with himself. He laid separate tracks down so he could perform the harmony by himself.

Growing up on Beaver Island,

Moore was influenced by his father, who was a classical violinist.

"There was always music in our house," Moore said.

His more contemporary influences include U2, Richie Havens,

"I don't like to call it alternative music, because that boxes you in."

— Singer and composer Mike Moore, defining his unique style of music.

Nirvana, Jeff Buckley and World Music.

On his CD, Moore sings, plays the acoustic and electric guitar, bass, harmonica, slide guitar and percussion instruments. He was accompanied by Ross Henderson, who played lead guitar solos, and Aaron Long, who played the djembe drum, a South African instrument.

"This project is nontraditional."

Moore said. "It has ethnic percussion instead of a drum set, and I also placed emphasis on the feel of the song as opposed to the technical merits. After all, the stories and emotions of a song are more important than a traditional sound, to me."

Although playing music is Moore's goal, he is working toward a general studies degree at CMU.

"It takes the magic out of music if I study it too much," he said.

Since the age of 12, Moore took piano lessons and taught himself to play the guitar at 15. He spent two years studying music theory, music history and literature, sight reading, chamber singing and took private vocal lessons at Northern Michigan Community College.

Moore's performing experience includes being the lead vocalist for Incofnato!, and Primal Weave; acoustic solo performances and classical recitals; and lead vocalist for various local rock, country, blues and heavy metal bands. He is currently performing with hired musicians to promote his CD.

Moore's CD can be purchased by sending $15, plus $2 for shipping, to: Mike Moore, P.O. Box 241, Empire, MI 49630.

Beaver Island resident Mike Moore is seen here in his CD cover photo. Innocent Desire, a collection of 10 songs by Moore, is available by writing to Moore.

Habitat For Humanity acquires new Charlevoix County home site

Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity, Inc., serving both Charlevoix and Emmet counties, has purchased a building site on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. Standard Federal Bank, John and Glenda Ferguson, Judy and Terry Edger of Frisbey and Associates, Bill Dietrich of Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors and Northern Michigan Title Company of Charlevoix provided support toward the purchase.

Standard Federal Bank has provided long time support to Habitat's projects statewide with a $100,000 grant in 1997 and has also assisted Habitat for Humanity affiliates obtain more than $1 million in funding through the Federal Home Loan Bank Affordable Housing program.

"It has been a privilege for Standard Federal Bank to help Habitat for Humanity in the communities where we do business," said Larry Boog, branch manager of the Charlevoix office.

"This will make a wonderful homesite for one of our partner families," said Habitat board president Beverly Ironside. "The project will also be a good opportunity for churches, organizations and individuals in the Charlevoix area to join us in a Habitat building project."

Most of the labor costs are contributed by volunteers and contractors who are willing to donate some of their time to the building of this home. The cost of building materials is estimated at $40,000. The group needs to raise enough funds for rough framing, roofing, windows, doors and siding before construction can begin. All contributions are tax deductible.

Applications for partner families are now being accepted for the Charlevoix home.

You are eligible to apply if you meet the following conditions:

— Your current housing is inadequate, too small for family size, in poor structural condition, or too expensive for your income.

— You have a stable income and can afford a modest monthly mortgage payment.

— You can provide 250 hours of sweat equity per adult family member.

— You are willing to join Habitat in the spirit of partnership and fellowship.

Priority is given to families with one or more children living at home. Habitat is an equal opportunity organization. Age, sex, race, color, religion, national origin, handicaps, marital and family status are not considered in the selection process. For more than two decades, Habitat for Humanity has committed itself to making the American dream of home ownership a reality for those who might not otherwise be able to afford it.

For more information, call John Porter, executive director of Habitat at 348-6926 or Beverly Ironside, board president, at 547-4411.

You may also call them for an application, to volunteer your time or if you can contribute financially to this project.

Girls' Varsity and JV teams defeat Lady Lancers

By Jamie MacMillan

During a week filled with local rivalry, the Lady Rayders earned their first win of the season with a 65-61 drubbing of Ellsworth.

The week also brought a crushing loss to Boyne City as the Rayders played without their hest player, Jamie Gowell, who sat out with an injury.

The split set Charlevoix's record at 1-5, 0-2 in Lake Michigan play.

Without Gowell, whose status remains in doubt after a knee injury sustained in practice, the Rayders were unable to build off their impressive performance against Ellsworth.

They fell behind 23-10 and never really punctured Boyne's lead en route to an 80-47 loss. Christine Sweeney led the squad with 11 points and Juli Swenor was the top rebounder with nine.

"We looked shocked to be playing without Jamie," coach Tim Volovsek said. "It took until the half to feel comfortable, but by then things were pretty rough."

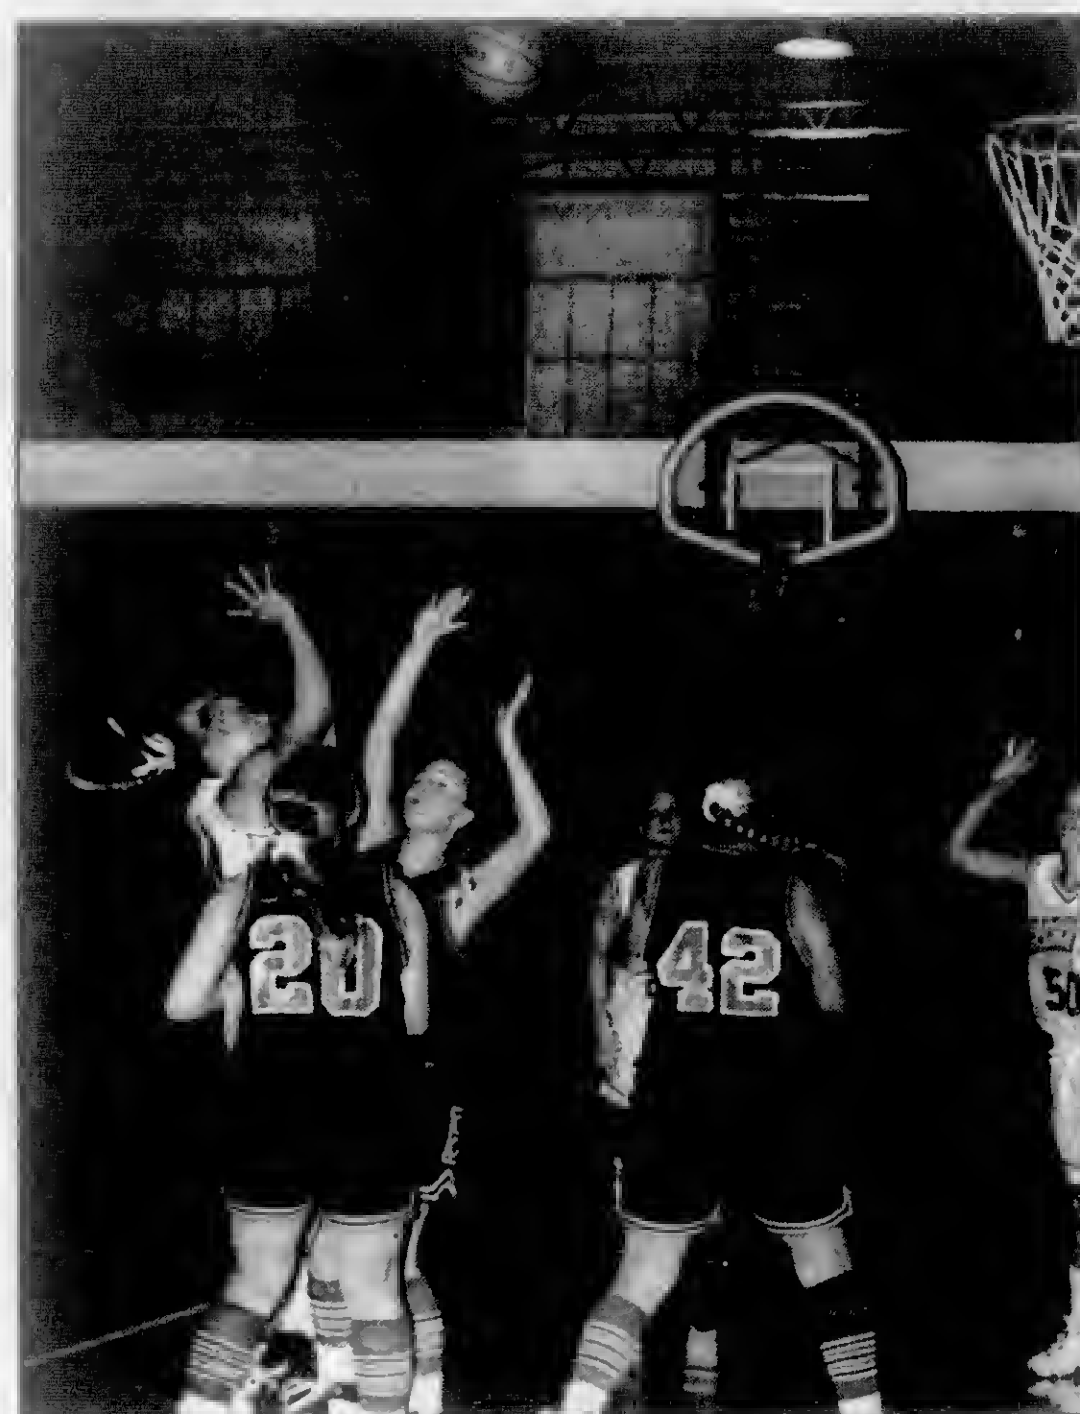

At full strength against Ellsworth, though, a young team rallied around its star and showed off its potential.

The Rayders had lost three in a row to their Antrim county neighbors and a fourth loss looked a good bet as the Lady Lancers charged out to an early 16-4 lead behind four 3-point baskets by Angie Boss.

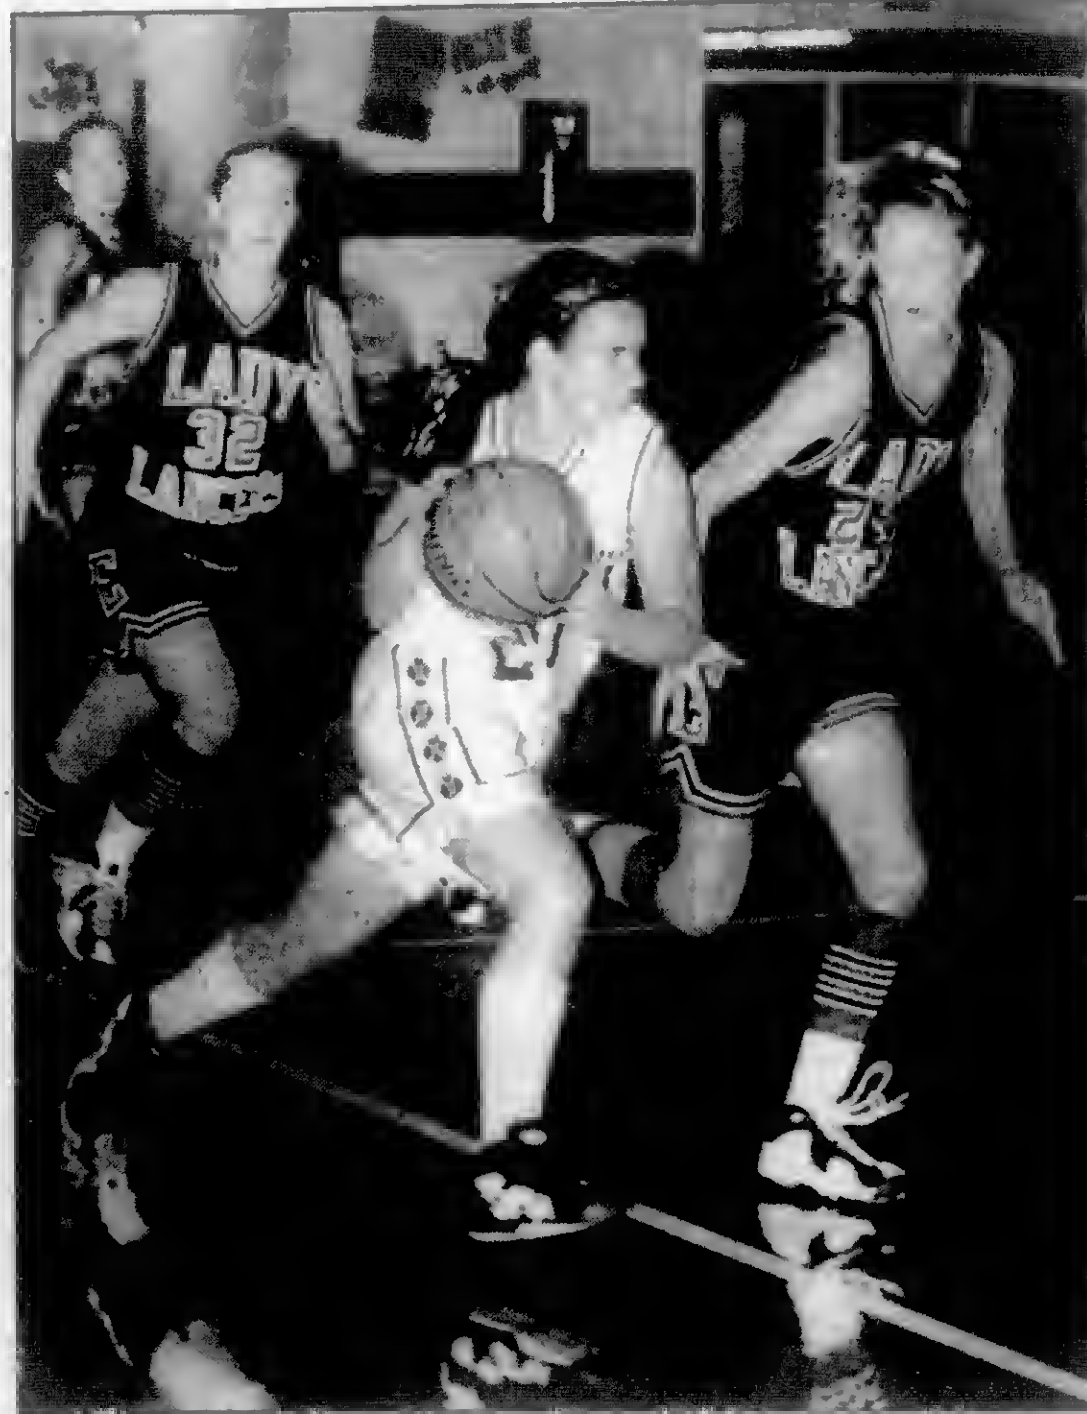

The Rayders clawed back using, in Volovsek's words, a "tenacious press" which forced 23 steals during the contest.

By the intermission, the Lady Lancers' lead had been sliced to 1 point, 28-27. The Rayders' good play continued as the squad took the lead by 4 in the third quarter and increased it to 12 early in the fourth.

Ellsworth ended the game on a strong run, but only got as close as

"We weren't going to let them run away with it," Volovsek said of the game's turnaround. "The girls decided it was time to step it up and play better."

Gowell led the club with 31 points, 12 rebounds, 4 blocks and 4 steals. Volovsek also lauded the play of Swenor, who in addition to snaring 10 rebounds, sparked the comeback with numerous "hustle plays."

"It was absolutely sweet," Volovsek said of the win.

Now the challenge for the varsity team is playing without Gowell. The Rayders will look for new answers in conference games this week against Elk Rapids and Kalkaska.

The junior varsity team also split their games during rivalry week. They bested Ellsworth 41-24. Danielle Vogelheim scored 8 points and Kathryn Ricks and Abby Schapperkotter poured in 6 apiece.

Despite Vogelheim's 15 points and 7 steals, they fell to Boyne City 48-39. The club's record is an even 3-3.

Both the varsity and JV teams will be at Kalkaska Thursday, Sept. 24. The junior varsity game tips off the action at 6 p.m.

Golf team aims for conference title

By Jamie MacMillan

With no player shooting worse than a 42, the Charlevoix golf team edged Traverse City-St. Francis by one stroke last week to keep alive its hopes for the Lake Michigan Conference regular season crown.

Led by Keith Grunch's 39, the Rayders bested the Glads 164-165. Suttons Bay also competed in the non-league portion of the match and finished with a 168 despite Sean Kelly earning top medalist honors with a 36.

The Rayders' scorecard was rounded out by Craig Siwarga, who shot a 41 and a quartet of golfers. Jon Sell, Steve Pirie, Dennis Avery and Chris Smith, who each shot a 42.

The win keeps Charlevoix lodged in a three-way tie with Kalkaska and Elk Rapids for second place in the league. All three schools have one loss and are chasing Harbor Springs, whose 4-0 record paces the league. The Glads, a preseason favorite, have now dropped two matches.

The Rayders get a chance to knock down Harbor Springs as the clubs square off at the Belvedere today, Wednesday, at 4:30 p.m.

"The team is starting to jell and shoot the scores they're capable of," coach Jim Glynn said. "This match is paramount to our regular season hopes."

Glynn said the emergence of Avery, a freshman, has given the team an unexpected spark as has the play of junior varsity golfers Andrew Moats, Tyler Lieberman and Jennifer Rowe. That trio has been making strong bids to join the six-member varsity squad and, as a result, has raised the team's overall play.

In other action last week, the Rayders topped Petoskey, 176-180, but were defeated by Alanson, 164-176, in non-league play. Last week's matches set the team's record at 8-4, 2-1 in league play.

Grunch and Avery both fired nine hole rounds of 43 to pace the team. Sell and Pirie both shot 45. Siwarga, 46, and Smith, 49.

The club also golfed at the Petoskey Invitational last Friday afternoon and placed seventh in the 11-team Division III-IV field. The team fired a 369 led by Grunch's 87. Smith shot an 89, Siwarga, 95, Sell, 98, and Avery, 104.

After the duel with the Rams, the Rayders will play in the Gaylord Invitational at 9 a.m. Friday, Sept. 25 at the Treetops Traditional course.

Last chance to play in golf scramble

The third annual Last Chance Golf Scramble will start at 1 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11 at Dunmaglas Golf Course. Registration will begin at noon.

There is a limit of 30 teams for the four person scramble format. Students under 18 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Cost is $45 per player. After the event, hot chili and hors d'oeuvres will be served. All proceeds will go to the Boyne City foundation for a sports complex. For more information, call Becky or Joel at 547-4653 or Bob Bobowski at 582-2408.

Hole in one shot at city municipal course

Doug Smith, 21, of Flint, shot a hole in one on the third hole of the Charlevoix Municipal Course.

The event was witnessed by Parris Halverson of Charlevoix.

Rayders rack up monster score against East Jordan

By Jamie MacMillan

With their highest point total in seven years, the Charlevoix Rayders trounced East Jordan 52-35 in the Lake Michigan Conference opener for both squads.

The offensive explosion upped the Rayders' record to 1-2, 1-0 in league play and dropped East Jordan's mark to 2-1, 0-1.

Scoring touchdowns on eight of their 11 possessions, the Rayders racked up the most points since tallying 54 in the second game of the 1991 season.

Like last Friday, the victim of that 1991 drubbing was county rival East Jordan.

Unlike the 1991 contest which was a one-sided 54-0 whitewash, the Red Devils appeared ready to match Charlevoix score for score throughout the game.

East Jordan got on the board first on a 22-yard scamper by Nate Swan, but Charlevoix followed with 18 unanswered points. Colin Carr scored twice during that span on a 27-yard run and a 28-yard catch and run after a screen pass. Matt McClellan added the third score on a 20-yard catch from quarterback Adam Wood.

The Red Devils sliced the margin to 18-14, scoring in the final seconds of the first quarter.

The teams swapped a pair of scores in the second half for a 32-27 Rayder halftime advantage. Carr earned the Rayder points with scoring runs of 5 and 8 yards.

Charlevoix added to their margin by taking their opening possession of the second half into pay dirt

Offensive linemen don't get many shots at carrying the football, but Brian Ward made the best of his chance, returning a botched East Jordan kickoff for 10 yards to give the Rayders good field position late in the first half. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan) capped by Carr's 37-yard scoring run.

After forcing East Jordan to punt after three plays, Charlevoix got the ball back and Carr found the end zone for the sixth time, scoring on another screen pass, this one from 38 yards away.

Jeremy Rafacz added the final touches with a 3-yard scoring plunge in the fourth quarter. The Red Devils added a last score of their own in the closing minute of the game for the final 52-33 score.

"I figured going in that we would move the ball, but I didn't expect to score 52," Rayder coach Todd Klinger said. "I figured the halftime score would have been the final score."

The final numbers of this scoring spree were gaudy.

The teams combined for 878 total yards of offense, with Charlevoix accounting for 539 yards. Carr scampered for 335 total yards, 269 on the ground and 66 through the air. Wood completed 11 of 20 passes for 212 yards. McClellan caught four passes for 84 yards.

Averaging 34 points a contest, it's natural to wonder if the 1998 gridiron squad has the mettle to hattle for the conference title and slide into the post season.

The last time the Rayders looked this good on offense was the era between 1989-92. With four winning seasons, Charlevoix compiled a 26-11 record during that span which ended with a postseason berth, the only one in school history, after the '92 campaign.

"Anytime you win your first conference game, it's reason for excitement," Klinger said. "With what we have, I think we can play with anybody in our conference."

The defense needs shoring up in order for the Rayders to be a major factor in the conference. The unit is allowing 36 points a game, but stifled East Jordan in the second half after moving the defensive ends out toward the perimeter and getting better interior line play.

Even if this year isn't the breakthrough year, it's safe to say that the corner has been turned on a new, more prosperous era of Rayder football.

Not to be overshadowed by the explosive varsity offense is a junior varsity team that clobered East Jordan 38-10 last Thursday to run its unblemished record up to 3-0. Ryan Rafacz and Ryan Leitner each scored on 65-yard runs. Rafacz added three more scores on a 30-yard run, a 30-yard pass from quarterback Jeremiah Teuscher and a 40-yard fumble recovery return.

Next up for both squads are dates with the Harbor Springs Rams. The JVs travel to Harbor for a 6 p.m. kickoff Thursday, Sept. 24. The varsity game will be at 7:30 p.m. at Kipke Field Friday, Sept. 25.

Golfer Steve Braun got better as the day went on

Playing 100 holes of golf in one day did take just about as long as he expected. But Steve Braun, golf pro at the Belvedere Golf Club, was surprised that he got an unexpected second wind while on his last 27 holes, shooting only five over par. This, coupled with early rounds of 76, 79, 79 and 80, made the 5-plus rounds even more impressive.

His efforts were part of the PGA of America's annual fund-raiser to promote and fund programs for Junior Golf.

Starting at 6:35 a.m., Braun finished playing 100 holes at 5:30 p.m. He expressed his gratitude to cart drivers and helpers Tom Bickert, Dean Davenport, Curt Washburn, Gene Hunt and Bill Kury, and to the many supporters who pledged financial support for his golf-playing project.

Braun has been a teaching pro in Charlevoix for seven years; four have been at Dunmaglas Golf Course and the last three have been at the Belvedere Club. Prior to his stay in Charlevoix, he was a pro in the Flint area and was associated with that community's Junior Golf Program, which won the Golf Digest award as National Community Program of the year. He is also one of the area pros who has volunteered his time to teach in the highly successful Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program.

When all pledges are collected, Braun's 100-hole golf project will generate about $4,000. Fifty percent will be earmarked for the local Junior Golf Program, 35 percent will stay in the PGA Foundation, and 15 percent will go to the Michigan PGA Junior Golf Program.

Money raised for the local program will help purchase more loaner clubs and a trailer to store clubs and equipment, which can be transported from course to course. There were 170 youngsters in this past summer's program.

Animal control officer studies equine abuse

Julie Whitley, Charlevoix County Animal Control Officer, successfully completed the Equine Investigations Academy cosponsored by Code 3 Associates and the University of Missouri's Law Enforcement Training Institute (LETI), held in Durango, Colorado from Aug. 31-Sept. 5.

Animal cruelty investigators, veterinarians, law enforcement officers and those in related fields received training on recognizing horse abuse, equine care and handling, nutrition, and investigative techniques at Code 3 Associates/LETI course.

The faculty of this intensive academy has been training officers throughout the country for over 15 years. This six-day course consists of lectures and hands-on training on the care and handling of horses as well as the problems unique to the equine victim in animal abuse cases.

Students learn how to thoroughly evaluate a horse's metabolic condition, inspect stables and horse properties, document all findings, work with veterinarians, interview witnesses, interrogate suspects, and when warranted, put the entire case together for prosecution.

Code 3 Associates and the University of Missouri's Law Enforcement Training Institute is the only equine academy that is P.O.S.T. (Peace Officer Standards and Training) certified and students earn continuing education credits through the University of Missouri. The Academy is held twice yearly, once in Virginia in June and in Colorado in early September.

For more information on the 1999 Academy, including scholarship opportunities, contact Code 3 Associates at P.O. Box 1128, Erie, CO 80516 or call the University of Missouri, LETI at 1-800-825-6505.

Shoring up the river bank

Thanks to a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, soil erosion and river bank stabilization work was completed at the South Arm Preserve of the St. Clair-Six Mile Lake Natural Area. Effrain Rosalez and his team of Soil and Water Conservation District volunteers transformed the muddy, eroding river bank of the preserve into a stable, attractive tie-up area for kayaks, canoes and other small craft. Other erosion and stabilization work was done on the Red Pine Trail of the Clinton and Mildred Davis Preserve, a recent 25-acre addition to the natural area. The 200-acre natural area is located in South Arm Township and is a cooperative effort of area land conservancies and the natural area stewardship committee.

Before (above) and after: These pictures show what the river bank at the South Arm Preserve looked like before and after erosion and stabilization work was completed.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Charter school band hosts car wash

The Northwest Academy charter school band will be having a car wash from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24 to help defray the cost of new school band uniforms. The car wash will be at the school, 115 W. Hurlbut St. in Charlevoix.

On Friday, Sept. 25, the school band will attend a jazz workshop at the school under the direction of Bruce Kroken. Kroken is a former Charlevoix resident and graduate of Charlevoix High School. He has received top honors with his jazz program at Manzano High School in Albuquerque, N.M.

First aid classes offered at hospital

CPR and general First Aid classes will be offered at Charlevoix Area Hospital throughout the month of October.

From 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6, an Adult Heartsaver CPR class will be offered. The following week, from 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13, will be a Pediatric and Infant CPR class. The following week from 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 20 will be a First Aid Class.

All classes are $10 each, and are open to the general public. Classes are held at Charlevoix Area Hospital in the large classroom on the lower level. To register for the classes, call Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-4024.

Meet The Candidate night scheduled at high school

Voters will have the opportunity to question political candidates on the issues at a Meet The Candidate Forum at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 28 at Charlevoix Public High School in the study hall room.

The forum will be made up of the following four candidates: State Senator Walter North, (R) and his challenger Kay Chase, (D), and the two political candidates running for State House of Representatives in the 106th District being vacated by Bev Bodem: Andy Neumann, (D) and Phil Ludlow, (R).

The forum is being sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, and the Charlevoix Education Association.

Questions to the candidates will focus on health care issues, business and education. There will be time for questions from the audience. Refreshments will be served afterwards. The public is welcome to attend.

For more information call Mike MacMillan at 547-8604.

East Jordan Rotary sponsors spaghetti dinner

The East Jordan Rotary Club will hold a Spaghetti Dinner from 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 20, at the East Jordan Snowmobile Club. The Snowmobile Club is about two miles south of town on Old 66 (Mt. Bliss Road). The menu will be spaghetti, garlic bread, salad, coffee or milk and a dessert.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12 years of age. The proceeds from the dinner will help fund Rotary Club's community projects.

East Jordan Rotarians are selling tickets in advance, and tickets can also be purchased at the door. For more information call Bob Tam-bellini at 536-2440.

Group targets underage drinking

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is sponsoring the Northwest Michigan Coalition to Reduce Underage Drinking. Through a needs assessment process, the coalition has identified that it is easy for minors in our communities to access alcohol. The coalition is sponsoring a "Spotlight Program Training," which promotes a cooperative effort between retailers and law enforcement to combat underage alcohol purchases.

The free training will be from 1 to 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 25, in Charlevoix at the Community Reformed Church. Field grant coordinators for the OSHP Spotlight Program, Bob Stanberry and Scott Ellis, will present an overview of the program. Grant applications will be available to provide financial support of the program if instituted in our communities.

If you are interested in attending the training, please contact Mary Ann Cox of NWMCHA at 547-7603 for more information.

Youth auditions start for Beauty and the Beast

Crooked Tree Arts Council Youth Theater Company will have auditions for Beauty and the Beast, a musical to be directed by Becca Buchalter. Auditions are open to northern Michigan youth in fourth grade and up. The production calls mostly for middle- and high school-age cast members.

Auditions for the cast of Beauty and the Beast will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3; from 4 to 8:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 5, and from 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6 at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

Those auditioning should bring a photograph of themselves.

Orchestra auditions for woodwinds and strings for the production will be from 6 to 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 2, also at the McCune Arts Center.

Play practice begins Monday, Oct. 12 and performance dates for Beauty and the Beast are Dec. 16-20, 1998.

To sign up for auditions, call 347-4337 or stop by the McCune Arts Center at the corner of Mitchell and Division streets in downtown Petoskey.

SCRAPBOOK

Ray Kipke had a green, young team in 1928

The following stories were compiled by Cynthia Postmus from old issues of the Charlevoix Courier. We have not made any changes to the original stories.

The Charlevoix Public Library assisted Postmus with this project. (From the Charlevoix Courier, Wednesday, Sept. 12, 1928)

FOOTBALL LADS START TRAINING*COACH RAY KIPKE HAS FAIR LOT TO PICK TEAM FROM

Opening Game. One Week From Coming Saturday With Onaway Eleven at Charlevoix

Thirteen candidates responded to Coach Ray Kipke's first call for football men and they were outfitted and began practice Monday after school at the south side field.

Several men late in reporting at school are expected to be in the lineup and others are expected to report who were not out the first night.

An early-season inspection of the group of hopefuls would lead any critic to the opinion that Coach Kipke has no ordinary job ahead of him this fall. While there are five men back from last year's squad, only one is backfield material.

Dick Marshall, who held down the pivot position last year, is the one and only ball-toter. Several other boys of last season's team, Roy Kelderhouse who played guard, Charles Bleha and Joe Stutzman, tackles, and Maxwell Novak, end, have had football experience, as have also Livingston and Bill Foster, who played a short time in several games, but the remainder of the group are green and must be taught the game.

That Charlevoix will have no championship team is quite evident unless the group of green youngsters absorb football rudiments more readily than one would look for. If Coach Kipke puts a winning team in the field, it will not be because he had an over-supply of material. One thing is certain, the boys are hard at work and if determination and effort will do the trick, they will give any team a battle. What they lack in poundage will be made up in speed and it is not always the big team that wins. The coach has a bag-full of new plays he is teaching the squad and, in spite of rain Monday and Tuesday afternoons, the boys have been hard at work.

School officials this year have taken a very sensible course in arranging the football schedule. They have not taken on any games with the larger schools — schools

CARNEGIE LIBRARY SITE CHOSEN

At Meeting of Subscribers Tuesday Afternoon.

CORNER STATE AND CLINTON STREETS

Five Different Sites Were Presented for Consideration.

Site Chosen Had a Majority Over All Work of Construction Will Commence Immediately.

The meeting held Tuesday afternoon by the subscribers of the Carnegie library fund was well attended, seventy-five being present. Dr. G. W. Crouter was chairman of the meeting, Robert W. Kane secretary. Major E. H. Green, chairman of the committee on site presented his report.

Five different sites being under consideration, viz.: The Carpenter site, corner State and Clinton streets; Miller site on Clinton street; Morgan on State street; Mason, corner Belvedere avenue and Bridge street, and Geiken and Hurd lot on Park avenue.

Remarks were made on the several sites offered by Mrs. J. P. Wilson, son, George H. Van Pelt, S. S. Hailey, W. E. Hampton, Mrs. Sears, Dr. Crouter, Rev. H. A. Putman, F. J. Meech, W. H. Miller, Major Green and a letter was read from E. C. Waller.

On motion of Mr. Nicholls, the secretary called the roll of those present to express their preference, the Carpenter site leading.

Moved by F. J. Meech that the committee be instructed to purchase the Carpenter site, which resulted in the following vote - Yes 575; no 523. 418 votes were changed from no to yes, yes 993; no 105.

The price of the site chosen is $2000 and is one very convenient to the city. The committee will immediately get busy and a building and library worthy of Charlevoix-the-beautiful will soon be erected.

How To Kill A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

From petunia-lined streets...

England, then Israel or China are next stops for Charlevoix graduate "From petunia-lined streets..." is a series of stories that looks at young men and women from Charlevoix who have left the area. How did Charlevoix — as a community and a school district — prepare them for the world beyond our petunia-lined streets?

By Laurie Lounsbury

Gita Butcher is physically not much bigger than a petite collection of molecules, but she packs the energy of a freshly split atom.

Butcher, a 1996 Charlevoix High School graduate, is about to unleash her energy in Lancaster, England, where she'll be studying for a semester. After that, she'll be headed to either Israel or China.

Clearly, the world is Butcher's oyster and she has a hearty appetite.

When Butcher was a senior with a 3.7 grade point average at Charlevoix High School, she knew she wouldn't be satisfied going to a state university.

"I wanted to go east, to branch out from the Midwest," she said. "I've noticed that when kids from here (Charlevoix) go to a state school, they end up hanging out with each other at college. I wanted to meet new people."

At Marymount, Butcher initially intended to major in social services.

Gita Butcher

Gita headed east to Marymount College in Tarrytown, N.Y.

"I liked that it was close to New York City and is an all women's school," Butcher said. "I read that women at all female schools are more likely to go on to graduate school. That was important to me."

At Marymount, Butcher initially intended to major in social services.

But a global community course her freshman year piqued her interest in international studies.

"There were upperclassmen in the course who were majoring in international studies and I was blown away with the experiences they had already acquired," Butcher said.

Within the framework of her major,

Butcher is now leaning toward a career as an international journalist or a position in immigration.

"I think it would be fun to hop from place to place and report on what's happening," Butcher said.

A career in immigration would probably mean studying international law and immigrants' rights.

Butcher garnered first-hand experience in both journalism and immigration last semester when she took a combined course in Latino literature and the oral history of North Tarrytown, an area heavily populated with immigrants. She hit the streets and interviewed immigrants from Ecuador, Cuba, Puerto Rico and Peru.

"It's amazing how many illegals there are," Butcher said. "If you go to the waterfront in the morning, they're there, lined up and waiting to get picked for a day's work."

With her classmates, Butcher compiled an oral history of the Latino immigrants in North Tarrytown, a group that had largely been overlooked. The finished product caught the attention of the New York Times newspaper, which ran a story on the project.

"Doing that hands-on project brought so much more to me and to the learning process," Butcher said.

Butcher's next stop is Lancaster, England where she will travel with Marymount's Study Abroad program. She will intensely focus on her creative writing and speaking skills at Lancaster University.

While Butcher was at Charlevoix High School, she was already working on speaking skills by be-

Candidates generally agree on several issues

By Laurie Lounsbury

Opinions on issues weren't wildly varied at a candidate forum hosted Monday night, where state senate candidates Kay Chase, D-Charlevoix, and incumbent state senator Walter North, R-St. Ignace, fielded questions along with 106th District State House of Representatives candidates Andy Neumann, D-Alpena and Phil Ludlow, R-Alpena.

The forum was sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Charlevoix Education Association.

All four candidates were in total agreement on one issue — none would support gubernatorial candidate Geoffrey Fieger.

"I'm supporting no one for governor," Neumann said.

"I just want you to look at me on the ticket, not anyone else," Chase said. "I'm the one who will be representing you."

It was the only sticky question for the Democratic candidates, who otherwise seemed to agree on issues.

Chamber of commerce president Jacqueline Merta opened the forum by asking how candidates would work to improve the current educational system so that students have the high technology skills needed to compete in the workplace.

All candidates stressed the importance of school-to-work programs, with the Republican candidates emphasizing the need for schools to communicate with local businesses.

"Schools have to be flexible, he partners with businesses, and businesses have to tell their needs to the school," North said.

Chase and Neumann said a core curriculum is important so that all kids have the same educational foundation.

"We need school-to-work programs, and I don't mean getting out of school to go to McDonald's," Chase said. "Students need exposure to hospital and industry jobs."

All candidates agreed that if the state is going to mandate school programs, then the state should fund them.

Ludlow also said there was too much disparity on funding of certain programs.

"In Alpena, a regular elementary student gets a foundation grant of $2,300, and a special needs student gets $13,000 per year," he said.

North said the state had a responsibility to provide adequate funding for mandated programs.

"The key word there is adequate," North said. "The state should either provide funding or talk with local districts to determine what is adequate."

Charlevoix grad considers career in international journalism

GITA

ing a part of Connie Ford's performing arts and debate teams. It wasn't until she arrived at Marymount that she learned how valuable her Charlevoix training had been.

"So much of what I know came from high school debate," Butcher said. "It changed my whole way of thinking. It taught me to take small details and connect them to a bigger picture. In debate, we talked about laws, legislative actions and proposals. So much of it stuck with me, it really helped in college. I think all performing arts students should do debate, because it will help so much later in life."

One of Butcher's college teachers asked her if she'd taken speech lessons, based on her ability to speak in front of a class. Her drama teacher at Marymount assumed Butcher had attended a private performing arts school because of her acting skills.

Now Butcher is ready to hone the skills she will need for a future career. After spending a semester in England, she is leaning toward a visit to Israel, where she has the opportunity to work with Russian immigrants. The work/study program is available through the Partnership for Learning Services, which has a cooperative agreement with Marymount.

If she goes to Israel, she will be expected to perform 40 hours of community service every week, helping Russian immigrants adjust to their new home. On top of that, she'll take 15-18 credit hours at a local university.

"It would be a good opportunity to explore international journalism," Butcher said.

The only kink in Butcher's streamlined plans is that she was also accepted by the School for International Training to study in Kunming, China for a semester. Twenty-five students in the United States were accepted into the foreign study program. If Butcher chooses to follow the Silk Road, she will attend a college in China, study the Mandarin language and live with a host family while she works on a thesis paper.

With her interests ranging from Asian studies to Russian history, the choice will be a hard one for Butcher to make. One choice Butcher swiftly dismissed was returning to Marymount's classrooms after one semester abroad.

"I still can get more out of a classroom, but I can't get any more excitement from it. I need to do something more," Butcher said.

It would scare some people from a small town like Charlevoix to take on the world, but Butcher said growing up in Charlevoix gave her the self-confidence to move on.

"Because Charlevoix is so small, I was able to learn who I am and what I'm about," she said. "It's like walking around in clothes that fit. I'm comfortable with who I am."

"Everyone here in Charlevoix has an opinion and they're quite strong and quite vocal. To know yourself, you have to have an opinion."

When playground squabbles arise, kids now work it out

By Jamie MacMillan

While recess time breaks up the monotony of the school day, it also is a breeding ground for adolescent squabbles and arguments.

It happens all the time. Somebody hordes the game hall for himself, won't relinquish the swing to the next in line or simply refuses to stop teasing his classmates.

Remember how those flare-ups used to be resolved?

Pushing and shoving would lead to a fight, which in turn would lead everybody to the principal's office and a mandated stay after school.

"I like working with the littler kids to help them solve problems."

— Fifth grade student Patrick Hand, talking about his efforts to be a conflict manager.

Times change, and at Charlevoix Elementary School, so too is the way those sticky situations are being resolved.

A conflict management program began at the school in the spring of 1995 to teach fifth graders the art of conflict compromise.

While only a handful signed up for the program at the start, about 30 students are currently enrolled and over 60 have been trained since the program began, according to Celia Partida, co-director of the program.

Once trained, the students' role is to be on hand when playground conflicts arise. They intervene, cool down the antagonists and offer friendly guidance toward a solution. "I like working with the littler kids to help them solve problems," said local fifth grade student Patrick Hand.

Students became involved because it sounded fun. They had other friends who were doing it and, in some cases, had problems of their own solved by their student predecessors.

"We're communicating with other kids that we might not know," fifth-grader Caitlin Cole said of both the attraction and challenge of working as a school yard conflict manager.

The actual work is done by a group of fifth grade students who, later in the year, turn their sights to training a group of fourth graders to fill their role next year.

"We want to empower them to solve their own problems," said Gayle Gennett, elementary school counselor.

Elementary school principal Richard Swenor said their work has made the atmosphere at his school more "kid friendly."

and tell proud tales of their accomplishments.

"It's neat because you can tell how genuine and glad they are that they got a problem solved."

Keys to success, the students say, are staying cool, not taking sides and not lecturing or pointing fingers. Beyond the skills needed to solve a conflict, the managers said that their overall behavior throughout the day is just as important.

They are role models and must act that way to be effective, student Shannon Dibble said.

"If we get in trouble, that sets a bad example," the fifth-grader said. "Everybody's reaction would be 'Oh my gosh, a conflict manager did that.'"

While their role was designed to work the playgrounds, the students have developed the confidence to mediate conflicts at the bus stop, in the classroom, and, in some cases, at home.

"It gets so entrenched in them that it's automatic to just step in and solve the problem," Gennett said.

Plunging into swim competition

Charlevoix Community Pool director Al Gooch (standing at left) met with a number of parents and children who are interested in forming a competitive swim team. An age group swim team will be formed for kids ages 8-18, and if there is enough interest, a masters team may be formed for swimmers age 19 and older. Gooch has tentatively set Oct. 12 as the starting date for the swim team practices. Anyone interested in joining Charlevoix's first swim team may call the pool for more information at 547-0892.

George Gershwin didn't get the recognition he deserved

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

But he'll be honored locally at an arts council dinner dance

S'wonderful, S'marvelous! We are celebrating the centennial of George Gershwin, the American composer of both pop and concert music this month.

The present generation may not be aware that as a young man he composed "Rhapsody in Blue" in three weeks, a composition that was introduced by the popular Paul Whiteman Orchestra in the '20s. Gershwin is credited with writing the first true American opera, "Porgy and Bess." He and his brother Ira later wrote songs in Hollywood which were performed on the screen by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. His brief flirtation with Hollywood brought us some of his most famous songs, including "Someone to Watch Over Me," "I Got Rhythm," and "Our Love is

It has long been the fashion for critics to patronize his music and last week both the Sunday Chicago Tribune and the New York Times again lamented the fact that his work is so under-appreciated this day!

I remember vividly that this was also true way back in 1936! Let me share with you the remarkable incident I witnessed first hand, which clearly shows how truly under-appreciated his talents were even then.

As a student at UCLA, I worked on the college paper, The Bruin, and was asked to cover a pep rally in the main auditorium. While hanging around backstage, I noticed a little man who seemed preoccupied. Suddenly he was called on stage to a solid round of applause. He almost humped into me and I was so embarrassed to have stood in his way. The man was Ira Gershwin, George's brother. At that time, the boys were in Hollywood making a movie. It seems the Gershwins offered to donate a song to the university. We were asked to learn the new words which had been rewritten for us and to sing them at future football games. The name of the song was "Strike Up the Band" from the Broadway musical. The new words went something like this, "Let the drums roll out; let the trumpets roar; let the whole world shout; Hurrah, UCLA!"

Several thousand students learned the stirring words that evening to this — what was to be "our" song. Therefore, it was with great surprise and disappointment that I read the flack in The Bruin the following day written by the radical student editor. He contended that Gershwin was just trying to promote himself at our expense, and that the university ought to reject the offer! It was a nasty article offended the Gershwins and made headlines in the LA Times. The tune never became a Bruin fighting song!

Yes, George was under-appreciated then as well as now. Still, his followers today are legion. Those who love to dance will be pleased to learn that Crooked Tree Arts Council is putting on a George Gershwin Gala Dinner Dance in his honor Saturday, Oct. 24 at Boyne Highlands. Larry Wojcik said his orchestra can play enough Gershwin music to last the whole evening! A delicious meal is planned by the chef, including wine and hors d'oeuvres, for $50 a person. You may make your reservations by calling the McCune Arts Center, 347-4337.

This is not a fund-raising event. Instead, it is an invitation for new members to join Crooked Tree Arts Council and help us celebrate the life of a man who has enriched our lives with his glorious music.

Observer shocked by varsity basketball coach's yelling

Editor:

I attended the girls' varsity basketball game when Charlevoix played St. Francis in Traverse City on Sept. 10. With a niece on the Charlevoix team, I was anxious to lend my support.

What I didn't expect to witness was the barrage of verbal abuse constantly showered on the Charlevoix girls by their coach from the beginning of the game to the end. To say I was shocked would be an understatement.

I watched to see how the girls were reacting to the coach's angry criticism. When a player heard her name shouted in the midst of a play, the embarrassed player turned to look at the coach and he came flustered, losing her concentration on what was going on during the game. So what began as one infraction or missed opportunity was compounded by the distraction from the sidelines. Rather than offer them encouragement, it was as though his angry, harsh words were like arrows cutting through and deflating their spirit.

Having had four children of our own playing a variety of sports and witnessing the actions of many coaches over the years, I have never witnessed this style of coaching. Even with coaches, there is a difference between constructive criticism at the proper time handled with love, and mean-spirited words shouted in anger in the public arena for all to hear. One might wonder what motivates a person to behave in such a manner.

Do coaches not come under someone's authority to prevent such psychological damage to children? Must parents stand idly by and watch their children's spirit be broken if they want to compete in sports activities?

Sincerely,
Bonnie Newhouse
Traverse City

Editor's note: Charlevoix girls' varsity basketball coach Tim Volovsek responded to Ms. Newhouse's letter with the following statement:

"I wish the author (of that letter) would have come to me directly to discuss her perceptions.

"Some people don't really listen to what I'm saying. They might be sitting four feet away from me when I'm talking to a player four yards away, so I have to raise my voice. They hear that tone without listening to the words actually being said. Every word that I say is instructional — I've never cut somebody down or verbally abused a player, the way the author has implied."

Citizen points out Ken Starr's connections

Editor:

With the recent "lynching" of President Clinton, I couldn't help wondering where Ken Starr came from.

Did you know Ken Starr worked for a major law firm which has among its clients the tobacco industry?

Now, given President Clinton's attacks on this industry... what do you think Ken Starr and the Republicans' true motives are? If you think it's for truth, justice and the American way... I've got some "non-addictive" cigarettes I'd like to sell you.

Resident urges Democrats to come out of the closet

Editor:

It amazes me to see the number of Democrats who are hiding out in the north country! It amazes me further to realize that most of these Democrats are, or were, hardworking wage earners who have no idea what the Democratic Party has done for them, and what they can do for politics.

Can you imagine what life would be like in the north without unemployment compensation, without social security, without minimum wage, without federal housing for the elderly, Medicare and Medicaid and the earned income tax credit? These are all safety net pieces of legislation passed by the Democratic Party to give wage earners a more secure standard of living; without them we would have more welfare and hungry families than can be imagined.

Having said all this, I've got to wonder why current wage earners and retired wage earners are not more active in the political process. Selecting candidates for office is a crucial part of the election process. Voter turnout in the last primary was sad.

Why not come out of the closet and exercise your right and duty and just maybe we will have a government to be proud of.

Sincerely,
Paul Richards
Charlevoix

Reformed Party offers another political choice

Editor:

The national debt stands at five and a half trillion dollars. This year you and I will pay more than $240 billion on the national debt in interest alone. That's money that won't go to our children's schools, but rather to banks, insurance companies, and other wealthy individuals and institutions as pure profit taken from the taxpayer. Because of the federal debt, when it comes time to support our local schools voters are not so inclined.

Not surprisingly, the same group of special interests that is benefiting from the national debt is also spending hundreds of millions of dollars every year to control our election process. In this year's state election alone the Democratic and Republican parties will spend more than $30 million. The money that could repair school roofs, eliminate portable classrooms, or restore fine arts programs will instead go to fund candidate's slam ads.

The other two major parties never admit when they're wrong. They certainly don't admit their parties'

Golf benefit was big success

Editor:

This is a short note of appreciation to the many participants and generous donors who helped make the eighth annual Vacation Properties Network Golf Benefit an overwhelming success. Thanks to the efforts of everyone at Charlevoix Country Club, the host course for the event. Playing conditions were superb and all 96 golfers had a great time while generating over $2,000 for this year's nonprofit beneficiary, BASES Teen Center. This type of success is not possible without many donations of both time and prizes by many individuals and businesses. Our sincere gratitude to all who participated!

FAMILY

Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Jason Garvon

Shannon Rene Rowell and Jason Michael Garvon, both of Ishpeming, were married in a June 27 afternoon wedding at the Zion Lutheran Church in Petoskey.

The bride is the daughter of Greg and Cindy Rowell of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Michael and Belinda Garvon of Traverse City.

Pastor Illene Mattson performed the marriage ceremony in front of a rose-decorated altar, with 160 guests witnessing the event.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, Greg Rowell. She wore an Italian satin, off-the-shoulder gown of ivory. Her veil was ivory with rosebuds trimming her headpiece. She carried a bouquet of 24 ivory and pale pink rosebuds.

The organist at the ceremony was Elizabeth VonNolting. Maid of honor was Heidi Duebler, and the bridesmaids were Julie Rowbotham, Stephanie Smith and Trina Holm. They wore navy blue, floor length gowns and each carried a single ivory, long-stemmed rose.

Flower girl was Megan Buckley, who wore a navy blue dress and carried a basket of rose petals.

Best man was Nathaniel Gray, and groomsmen were Tom Matonic, Scott Buckley and Eric Rowell.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents at the Arboretum in Harbor Springs. The wedding cake was made by the groom's sister.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner picnic at Ferry Beach in Charlevoix the evening before the wedding.

The couple took a wedding trip to Grand Cayman Island, and are making their home in Ishpeming, where the bride works for the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife in Marquette. The groom is attending graduate school at Northern Michigan University, where he is studying biology.

United Way kicks off new fall campaign

"Over $186,000 was raised last year for local agencies," said Char-Em United Way's Executive Director, Juli Fryczynski. "It's the most ever raised in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. This year we're very optimistic we can exceed our goal of $190,000."

Char-Em United Way is already off to a great start, raising over $22,000 so far from their residential mailing done in late summer.

The 1998/99 United Way Honorary Campaign Chairman is Richard Selders, Manager of Human Resources at Allied Signal of Boyne City. Selders has always been a great contributor and supporter of local United Ways.

"Char-Em United Way provides a way for me to help and insure my contributions stay within and work in my community," said Selders. "It would be very difficult for all of the agencies to solicit funds from Allied, but the United Way concept provides for a one-time solicitation and, in turn, provides financial assistance to a variety of agencies that serve our local communities. Payroll deduction works best at Allied, and provides an easy, convenient way for all of our employees to participate."

This year's campaign runs from Sept. 25 through Nov. 1. Various football teams are participating in a kickoff at a home game. Mini-foothalls will be thrown into the crowd by local agencies who receive funds from Char-Em United Way.

For more information, questions, or to provide your employees with a convenience payroll deduction program, contact Char-Em United Way at 347-0115 or the campaign coordinator, Mark Potter at 347-4635.

Community foundation now accepting grant applications

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is again ready to make grants in support of worthy projects in the area. Nonprofit groups, schools, and local municipialities in need of funds are invited to submit their grant requests.

During the next few months, the community foundation and its Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) will review grant proposals to help fund health initiatives, community development projects, education, the arts and cultural events, environmental efforts and human service programs. The youth board, which is made up of representatives from high schools throughout Charlevoix County, will award grants to programs that serve children and teens. Grant requests should be submitted no later than Nov. 2, 1998. Application forms are available see GRANTS, page 20

Student honored by National Merit Scholarship Program

Charlevoix High School principal Gary Grundman announced that high school senior Jeremiah Borths has been named a Commended Student in the 1999 National Merit Scholarship Program. A letter of commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation will be presented to Borths by Grundman.

Throughout the nation, 34,500 commended students are being honored for their exceptional academic promise. Although they will not continue in the competition for Merit Scholarship awards next spring, commended students placed among the top 5 percent of more than one million students who entered the 1999 Merit Program by taking the 1997 preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship qualifying test.

"Recognition of academically talented students and the schools that played a key role in their development is essential to the pursuit of educational excellence in our nation," a Merit Program spokesperson said.

Summer resort youth co-authors book

Erica Nedelman, a summer resident of Charlevoix, has co-authored a chapter in the recently released edition of "Girls Know Best 2: Advice for Girls from Girls on Just About Everything!" an advice and activity book written by girls ages 7 through 15 for girls of the same ages.

The chapter written by Erica and two of her classmates describes how to have fun writing various forms of poetry, and was one of 20 chapters selected for publication from over 3,000 entries solicited in a nationwide invitation. Several book signings will be held in October, 1998. Erica is a sixth grader at Warner Middle School in Farmington Hills. The book will be in bookstores in October and is available directly from Beyond Words

Publishing, Inc., 20827 N.W. Cornell Rd., Suite 500, Hillsboro, Oregon 97124

Obituaries

George W. "Bill" Lusk

George W. "Bill" Lusk, 73, of Charlevoix, died Monday, Sept. 21, 1998, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Mr. Lusk was born Dec. 21, 1924, in Charlevoix, the son of George and Reta (Osterbaan) Lusk. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1942, then joined the U.S. Marine Corps. He received the Purple Heart twice, was recommended for the Silver Star and received a letter of commendation from a fleet admiral.

He married Shirley Ann Bradley March 1, 1947 in Charlevoix. They lived in Charlevoix ever since, wintering in Florida since his retirement in 1986.

He worked for Freedman Art Craft Corp. (now Harbor Industries) for 38 years. He was a member of the Charlevoix Fire Department for 40 years. He was also a member of the Charlevoix Historical Society and served on the board of directors for many years. He was one of the original group who founded and built Mt. McSaubia Ski Area. He was asked by the city to set up the first lifeguard program in Charlevoix in 1946 and was lifeguard at Lake Michigan Beach that summer.

He was one of the first to get the city to build new tennis courts. He loved sports, especially outdoor and water sports, and officiated sporting events for many years.

His greatest love was his family and he spent much time with them outdoors.

He was a member of the Community Church of God. Survivors are his wife, Shirley, of Charlevoix; daughter, Georgia Lusk of Neenah, Wis.; four grandchildren, Dereck, Kyle and Jordan of Lakeville, Minn. and Kirstin Burns of Neenah, Wis.

Mr. Lusk was preceded in death by a sister, Marjorie, and a son, Alan, in October of 1997.

Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton officiated at the funeral service, which was Thursday, Sept. 24 at the Community Church of God.

Memorials may be made to the Community Church of God or the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home.

Quilter to speak at two area churches

"Lasting Impressions Ministry" by Jackie Trute will be featured at the next meeting of the Charlevoix United Methodist Women at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 5. Trute will also be giving a quilt show and lecture at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6 at the First Congregational Church at 101 Park Ave.

Jackie Trute is an artist who works with fabrics. Her quilts have been featured on many TV programs, including "Quilting with Kaye Wood," and "Michigan Magazine." These pictorial quilts have also appeared in many international magazines. Grand Rapids Magazine labeled Jackie a "Fabric Detective."

Using her talents for God's glory, Jackie presents

United Methodist Church will host a pancake breakfast

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church is hosting an all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast from 8-10:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 10. The breakfast includes pancakes, sausage, potatoes, juice, fruit cup and never-programs that teach Christian values. During each program you will see 27 personally designed pictorial quilts to illustrate the topic. These programs are fashioned to encourage Christian growth and direct people to Jesus Christ. A free lighthouse pattern that teaches an easy applique method is offered to all.

In one year Jackie spoke to over 12,000 people in 70 churches. She is a very popular speaker and this is her ninth year tithing her talents, using these unique pictorial quilts. All women of the community are invited to attend the program at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, 104 State St., or at the Congregational Church, 101 Park Ave.

Bring five friends and get a free breakfast. The cost is $4.50 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12. The church is located at 104 W. State St., Charlevoix.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

I did not see the news Saturday night but as far as I am concerned, there was a tornado that hit Gaylord that day around 3 p.m. I know because I was there. We were in a pole barn classroom building at the Alpine Regional Educational Center for a class in my doctoral program. We had been listening to the thunder rumbling in the distance for quite a little while. One of my friends from Petoskey even made the comment that we don't hear thunder like that along the lakeshore. Suddenly the wind really started kicking up. The trees were not just blowing in the wind. They were bending. The rain came down not just in buckets but sheets. The sheets turned into a liquid curtain. A car that was less than three feet outside a window disappeared from sight in the deluge. When the power went off, 10 grown ups decided it was time. We moved into a bathroom.

The next few minutes were more than a little disquieting. We were afraid to look out the window and yet we couldn't help but look out the window. As quick as it came, it passed. When we came out, you could hear sirens all around. Trees had been snapped like match sticks. A house across the street from the school had lost its windows and roof.

What was a bit humbling to us was the discovery that the classroom right next door to ours had its ceiling collapse. Like I said, I didn't see the news, but I'd say it was a tornado. Then, for some reason, one of the folks I was with looked at me and said, "You must have more power than you realize." They were referring to me being a minister. But I'll be the first to tell you that had nothing to do with it. God has all the power and we were blessed to be in a pole barn that had a pretty solid foundation.

That little whirlwind adventure made me think of a Biblical tornado that Elijah the prophet faced. You can read the account first hand in 1 Kings 19. You'll find that Elijah felt like he was in a peck of trouble and he ran to hide in a cave. The trouble had so depressed him that he acted like he was the only faithful soul God had left in the entire world. God called him out of the cave and asked him what he was doing there. When Elijah complained about his plight, God caused first an earthquake, then a tornado and then a fire storm to happen in front of him. As frightening as all those moments might have seemed, even Elijah knew that God wasn't in them. It was in the still, small voice that followed those storms that Elijah found God.

You and I can get into some moments in life where it does seem like the roof is getting blown off or the ground is being jerked out from under us. God does not leave us nor forsake us in those times. If anything, he's waiting for you to ride out the storm so you'll listen more to him than you will to what's going on around you. Don't react to what happens in life. Act. Act in faith that you are God's child and that the Father is totally committed to seeing you safely through.

Weekend weather sure seemed like a hurricane by-product

It certainly had all the makings of a tornado or the remnants of a hurricane, but meteorologists at the National Weather Service station in Gaylord said Saturday's storm was a classic thunder storm.

"It's what we call straight-line winds, where the updraft is so strong that it holds a lot of moisture up in the clouds until it all comes rushing down and gives rise to these quick bursts of wind," said Scott Rozawski of the national Weather Service station.

However, several people in Gaylord and other areas reported funnel cloud sightings.

In Ellsworth, trees were ripped up by their roots and others were sheared in a straight line.

According to city police chief Dennis Halverson, storm damage was minimal in the city of Charlevoix.

"We had some water issues, but that was about it," Halverson said.

The water issues were flooded roads in a few spots in town, most notably Petoskey Avenue just north of the bridge and Bridge Street near Carpenter Street.

"When we get that much rain in that short amount of time, the catch basins can't handle it," said street supervisor John Martin. Within one-half hour after the rain stopped, the excess water drained.

A total of 1.31 inches of rain fell in Charlevoix Saturday.

The heavy rainfall did minimal damage to Charlevoix.

"The storm apparently traveled just south of Barnard Road," Halverson said. "It was a narrow band that didn't really affect us too badly."

In the city of Charlevoix, a few isolated blocks lost power for a short period of time.

"We experienced hardly any damage in the city," said city electric supervisor Ed Whitley.

"We were really lucky. Other than a couple of isolated blocks where lightning hit, we were fine."

In the Ironton area and in Norwood Township, downed trees brought down power lines and some areas were still without power on Sunday.

Top O' Michigan reported that at the peak of the storm, 10,000 customers in northern Michigan were without power.

Above: These trees were toppled in a straight line in Ellsworth when the storm hit.

Left: In Charlevoix, traffic on Bridge Street and Petoskey Avenue had to be rerouted due to flooding on certain portions of the roads. Areas most affected were Petoskey Avenue in front of MacDougall House Bed and Breakfast and Bridge Street in front of the Shell station. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury and Kim Taylor)

New counselor joins hospice

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay is pleased to announce the appointment of Katherine Jo Thomas as family counselor.

Thomas will work with hospice patients and their families as a counselor and will also work with hospice family counselor Bob Vance to present various grief and healing seminars and programs in the community throughout the year.

"I wanted to work more closely with the patients and their families in a real and spiritual way. I knew that hospice would give me that chance. Whatever I did, I knew I would have an impact on someone's life; I'd be doing something that mattered," Thomas said.

Before coming to hospice, Thomas was manager of Northern Michigan Hospital's social work department.

A former overseas school teacher and family support center director for the Air Force, Thomas holds a masters degree in social work from Wayne State University in Detroit.

"I truly feel honored to be with people during this stage of their lives," Thomas said. "It's difficult and sometimes there's much sadness. I encourage my patients to feel the feelings that are there. My job is to be an encourager and a support person. I want to help people realize that just because someone is no longer here physically, they live on in spirit. That's what hospice is about — caring for people, body, mind and spirit."

Architect opens Charlevoix firm

John Dziurman Architects Ltd., of Rochester, announces the opening of their northern Michigan office in downtown Charlevoix. The office is located at 116 Michigan Ave., Charlevoix. The telephone number is 547-9160.

Current northern Michigan assignments include the Leelanau County Courthouse; the Kalkaska County Sports Complex; the City of Petoskey Little League Baseball Complex; the mainland offices for the Mackinac Island State Park Commission; and the Student and Community Resource Center at North Central Michigan College.

John Dziurman Architects Ltd. was founded in March 1996 by John Dziurman, AIA. Dziurman entered private practice in 1974 and within 10 years his firm (John Dziurman Associates, Inc.) became one of the top 20 firms in southeast Michigan. In 1989, he merged his practice with an engineering firm, and under this leadership, this firm became one of the fastest growing architectural/engineering firms in the State of Michigan. In 1996, he reopened his own practice again after it became apparent to him that, in order to remain viable in the future, architectural firms needed to respond to sweeping technological changes in society, and be staffed with highly skilled professionals trained in both architecture and computer science - blending technology with creativity. John Dziurman Architects Ltd. was founded with these principals in mind, and it is their mission to provide our clients with prompt, innovative and cost-effective professional service.

Defense was the key to victory against Harbor Springs

On the first Friday of autumn, football fans gathered at Charlevoix's Kipke Field for a battle between the home town Rayders and their conference rivals from Harbor Springs.

Fans expected a shoot out, but were reminded that football is not a game of touchdowns and gaudy score board numbers. Instead, it is an old fashioned game highlighted by aggressive defenders, bone-jarring tackles and game-saving defensive stands with the object not being to score, but to prevent the other team from scoring.

The home team adapted to that philosophy last Friday, as time and time again they halted Harbor Springs' invasions into Charlevoix territory, the final time being at the 1-yard line as time expired to preserve a gritty 14-10 Lake Michigan Conference victory.

The goal line stand sent the contingent from Harbor Springs home in a depressing cavalcade of cars winding around Little Traverse Bay. Meanwhile, a party raged back at Kipke Field just outside the victorious team's locker room.

As the team listened to coach Todd Klinger's post-game radio interview on AM 1270, mothers hugged, girlfriends kissed and fathers back-slapped the winning players. When Klinger saluted his defense, a roar came from the locker room, a war cry, of sorts, from an overlooked unit that has allowed

Soccer team increases conference lead

The Charlevoix soccer team upped its conference record to 5-1 with last week's 3-1 win over Forest Area.

Goals from Todd Schaperkotter, Ryan Vogelheim and Jon Boss provided the offense while the play of goalie Chris Tilley kept all but one Forest Area attempt from scoring.

The Rayders' overall record stands at 8-4 after topping Leland, 3-1, earlier last week. Sean Stockman was the hero of that game, tallying a three-goal hat trick.

Charlevoix next plays at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6 against Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian. The game will be at Kipke Field.

A new concept: Golf and cross country running as a combined sport?

By Jamie MacMillan

The Charlevoix golf and cross country teams geared up for their seasons' stretch drives with home matches last week not only on the same day, but also on the same course.

Both call the Belvedere Country Club home, and last Wednesday the course's fairways were the scene of a wild afternoon of golf and running, not to mention its fair share of dodging, as the runners battled Elk Rapids and the linksters squared off against teams from Harbor Springs, East Jordan and Petoskey.

"It was kind of scary," cross country coach Ken Plude said. "We had kids running and concentrating at a high level, trying not to get hit by a golf ball."

It actually is pretty common for these two squads to cross paths. While the golf team plays its matches on the back nine holes, the cross country runners will be practicing along the front nine.

For most teams, though, this was the first time both had matches running concurrently. The running course directed runners onto major stretches of six of the golf course's final nine holes. Running was confined to the rough of the golf course, but frequently runners were forced to cut across fairways which stopped more than its share of golf shots.

Rayder golfer Keith Grunch admitted the surroundings were a bit "annoying," especially when his putts on the 18th green kept being interrupted by the shouts of running coaches' instructions. For the most part, he said, the day was more memorable than anything else.

"There were a lot of people there who usually wouldn't be watching our matches," he said. "It was nice having them out there."

Charlevoix athletic director Keith Haske said that the double scheduling was unintended, and once realized, steps were made to switch one of two events to the front nine of the Belvedere Course. Construction of a new irrigation system prevented that solution, he said.

"Hopefully it won't happen again — it wasn't healthy for either of those two sports," Haske said. "When you offer a lot of things, events are bound to run into each other."

The craziness helped punctuate a fairly successful afternoon for all Charlevoix clubs involved.

Behind Jeff Popenhagen's first place run, the boys' cross country team won their meet. The girls did not win despite a 1-2 finish from Tricia Hodge and Liza Gorkiewicz.

Other Charlevoix results were as follows: boys, Luke Whitley, third; Nick Grosberg, fifth; Tom Kennedy, sixth; Jon Tebeau, seventh; Nick Martineck, ninth; and Jared Hodge, 14th.

For the girls it was Heather Probert, fifth; Shauna Barrett, 12th; Jessica Corey, 16th; Laurel English, 17th; and Stephanie Dickinson, 19th.

The golfers shot a 180, good enough for second place on the day. Harbor Springs won the meet with a 175 while Petoskey and East Jordan, both with 186, brought up the rear.

Grunch led the Rayders, shooting a round of 41. Steve Pirie fired a 45 and Craig Siwarga, Jon Sell and Dennis Avery each shot 47.

While the loss to the Rams drops the Rayders out of contention for the regular season crown, the club looks solid going into next week's conference and regional finals. Last Friday at the Gaylord Invitational, the club fired a 352, good enough for fourth place. McBain won the day with a 336 followed by Hillman, 350, and Alanson, 351.

Their season concludes next week with the conference finals at Boyne Mountain Tuesday, Oct. 6 and the regional finals at the Indian River Country Club Friday, Oct. 9. Both events tee off at 9 a.m.

Lady Rayders drop two more basketball games

The Charlevoix girls' basketball team was a little slow coming out of the gates last week en route to dropping contests against Elk Rapids, 65-48, and Kalkaska, 61-41.

The Rayders fell behind the Elks 19-12 after one quarter and 38-21 at the half. Despite playing the Elks to a 27-27 tie during the second half, they never threatened to take the lead. Christine Sweeney and Megan Vogel paced the Rayders with 10 points apiece.

A 22-0 first quarter run put the club behind the eight ball in their match-up with Kalkaska. Despite playing an even second half, the Rayders were doomed by a 34-14 halftime deficit.

Vogel led the club with 14 points and eight rebounds. Leslie Hoffman added eight points.

"We were doing OK in the second half, it's just the games are starting out so rough," coach Tim Volovsek said. "Our goal this week is to play solid defense from the get go."

Charlevoix played Benzie Central last night, but results were incomplete at press time. The club is idle until next Tuesday's home contest with East Jordan.

just 18 points in the last six quarters of play after allowing 102 points in the season's first 10 periods.

After spending the first three weeks taking a backseat to a potent offense, this win was earned by a bend-but-don't-break defense which forced three turnovers and allowed just one touchdown.

With both offenses contained and coaches playing a field position chess game, plays critical to the outcome included two tipped passes, a two-point conversion and a tackle behind the line of scrimmage.

"I was hoping at some point this season our defense would step up and win a game," Klinger said. "They played on guts — keeping them out of the end zone had nothing to do with any play a coach could have called."

Harbor Springs could have put the game away during the first two quarters. They took a 10-0 lead into the locker room at half time.

"It was fantastic to win in that magnitude," Klinger said. "The emotion it takes is just unexplainable — you're teetering on the edge of winning or losing. This will be a big lift for the rest of the season."

As it stands, the Rayders have now rebounded from a bad start to even its season record at 2-2, 2-0 in conference play. The team will be tested this week in a match-up with the potent Gladiators of Traverse City-St. Francis. The Glads enter the game with a 4-0 record and a No. 3 ranking in the state's A.P. class C poll.

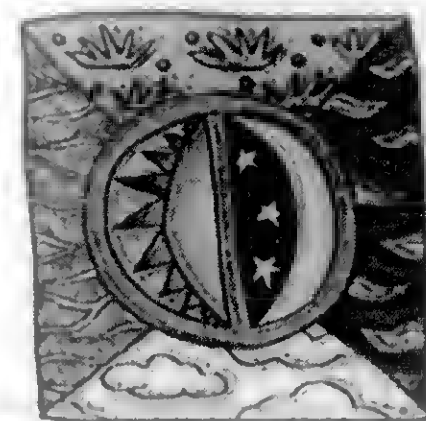

Kick off will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 2 at Thrilby Field in Traverse City.

Meeting for city recreation leagues is next week

The Charlevoix Recreation Department will be hosting a meeting for adult volleyball and basketball players at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 7 in the council chambers of city hall.

All interested teams and individuals are invited to attend. The team fee of $60 must be turned in by Friday, Oct. 30.

IN MEMORIAM 071

The family of Don Willis would like to thank everyone for cards, flowers, prayers, also Dr. Rust, all the nurses, including Lorraine Warner (niece & cousin), and Rev. David Behling for being there in our time of sorrow.

Yesterday is gone.
Tomorrow may be near.
But only live today,
For today is here.

Don't let yesterday's sadness linger,
Through today and the next,
Don't let your worries of tomorrow
Find today's wonders hexed.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Ambassadors host Business Breakfast

The Ambassadors of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce invite the public to the Business Breakfast at 7:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 2 at Grey Gables Inn. Featured speaker will be Bill Woodrow, Operations Manager of Michigan Works - Charlevoix/Emmet County. Cost of the Breakfast "Special" is $5.

Historical society "cruises" down memory lane

Lynn DeGrow, president of the Beaver Island Boat Company, will be captaining the Charlevoix Historical Society on a cruise of another type when he speaks to the group about the history of the Beaver Island ferry service.

The new, enormously popular Emerald Isle is now well established on the 32-mile route from Charlevoix to St. James, Beaver Island. In light of that, DeGrow will lead listeners on a historical cruise with stories of the Emerald Isle's predecessors.

After the presentation, anyone with their own story to tell about the boats, storms, passengers, cargo, events, or other interesting anecdotes will be welcome to speak.

The event is at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6 at the Charlevoix Depot. Cider and doughnuts will be served and the public is welcome to attend.

Hospital Guild selling new books

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild will be having their annual new book sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 15 and 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 16 near the main lobby of the hospital.

Proceeds from the book sale benefit the hospital. The sale will offer a wide variety of new books in time for Christmas, including children's books, novels, fiction and nonfiction.

Anyone wishing to do a little early Christmas shopping is welcome to come to the sale.

Coast Guard to conduct a duck hunting safety demonstration

Coast Guard Station Charlevoix will be conducting a duck hunting safety demonstration at 10 a.m. Friday, Oct. 2 at the Coast Guard Station.

The demonstration will show how easily a duck hunting boat can capsize and how hypothermia can cause death. A Coast Guard rescue boat, along with other local rescue resources, will demonstrate the procedures in saving someone's life if they fall into the frigid waters of northern Michigan. After the demonstration, a speaker will talk about safety equipment that is required on boats, and will discuss cold water survival.

For more information, call Petty Officer Eric Koch or Petty Officer Scott Adler at 547-2565.

Trail ride will benefit Exceptional Riders program

The Flywheelers will host a trail ride to benefit the Exceptional Riders program on Sunday, Oct. 11, at the Flywheelers grounds on US 131, Boyne Falls. Trails open at 9 a.m. and close at 5 p.m.

Food will be served and prizes awarded. Entry fee is a donation or get a sponsor sheet and fill it up. All proceeds will go to the program for equipment, education and expenses.

This nonprofit organization's goal is to help improve the quality of life for adults and children with disabilities. Please call Barh Lane at 347-3300 for more information.

Prostate screening offered at hospital

It is estimated that 184,000 cases of prostate cancer will be diagnosed in the United States this year and that 39,000 men will die, according to a May 19, 1998 New York Times article. When detected early, however, survival rates for prostate cancer are high. In recent studies, men who underwent screenings had a death rate from prostate cancer less than one-third of men who were not screened. A simple blood test called a Prostate Screening Analysis (PSA) can detect prostate cancer in its early stages, even before physical symptoms occur.

Low-cost screenings and a live broadcast lecture about the newest treatments will be at Charlevoix Area Hospital Thursday, Oct. 15. Men of all ages should register between 5-5:30 p.m. in the lower level of Charlevoix Area Hospital for PSA blood tests to be taken for the low rate of $10 each. At 6:30 p.m. a live broadcast lecture via the RE-MEC Telehealth Network will include topics BPH, Prostate Cancer and Viagra. At 8 p.m., private prostate examinations will be given by physicians on staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

PSA blood tests will be processed on-site at the Charlevoix Area Hospital laboratory and results will be available following the broadcast lecture.

Seating is limited. Anyone wishing to participate must register by Monday, Oct. 5 by calling Connie Roland at 547-8570.

Garden club to learn about water gardening

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will be meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6, in the cafeteria at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The program will be about water gardening. Our speaker is Jim Wibby of Traverse City, who is an avid water gardener. He has great ideas and information for anyone who has ever wanted to build a pond.

The group welcomes new members so if you are interested, feel free to attend the meeting.

Taking Center Stage

Dining in style

This summer, eight Charlevoix couples enjoyed cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and a gourmet dinner hosted at the spectacular Loeb Farm home of Dick and Gina Lepman. The group purchased the event at the 1997 St. Mary's Northern Lights Celebration Auction and Dinner Dance. Attending the dinner were (from left) Kathy and Mike Hilligan, Michelle and Doug Buday, Jim Jeakle, Janet and Bunker Troppman, Kris and Jay Balasz, Linda and Bucky Bradley, Anne and Harry Golski, Rebecca Jeakle and Adele Sell. ### Seniors attend annual meeting

The Charlevoix Senior Center members attended their annual meeting Sept. 23. Clem Olach, chairman, introduced the new director, Mrs. Alcion Wright, who explained some of the goals of the center. She also discussed plans for the future to increase social activities.

The center has no millage for operational funding, and exists on contributions from the city, townships and individuals, plus fund-raisers. The two most prominent fund-raisers, which are open to the public, are the monthly chicken, roast pork or Swiss steak dinners on the second Wednesday of each month, and the roast beef dinners on the fourth Tuesdays of each month.

The center wishes to express its gratitude for all of the assistance received from the community and volunteers.

The center is staffed by several paid employees, plus volunteers who perform all of the other duties. Due to lack of funds, the center has been without a director for the past three years. They recently received a grant for a part-time director.

The week-day lunches and meals on wheels for those who are home-bound and the fund-raising dinners have all been very successful and welcomed by the community. Plans are now being made to host more social activities.

New activities will include, but are not limited to, tours, potluck dinners, exercise classes, swimming classes, computer classes and possibly conversational Spanish classes.

through the community foundation office, and foundation representatives are happy to provide advice and assistance to organizations interested in applying for funds.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a charitable organization that was started six years ago by a group of local citizens. Like its 53 counterparts throughout Michigan, the foundation serves as a grass roots philanthropy — gathering donations from individuals, families and local organizations and managing them in a permanent endowment. Investment income is used to support programs that meet local needs, while the endowment continues to grow and generate charitable dollars for many years.

Thanks to the generosity of local donors and matching grants from the Frey and Kellogg foundations, the community foundation's assets have grown to more than $5.7 million, and its Youth Fund now has more than $1 million designated for the exclusive benefit of young people. The community foundation has already distributed more than $950,000 in grants and scholarships.

More information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, grant applications, and help for grant seekers is available by calling the foundation office, 536-2440, or writing P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Ethnic intimidation trial finds defendant not guilty

By Jamie MacMillan

A Charlevoix County jury affirmed last week that racial slurs stemming from a family dispute do not constitute ethnic intimidation.

Larry Drost was found not guilty of an ethnic intimidation charge minutes before noon last Friday, Oct. 2 by a jury of seven women and five men.

The Charlevoix resident was charged with ethnic intimidation after a tumultuous summer of 1997. The matter was between himself and his neighbor Dennis Dominic, a Native American.

Drost and Dominic are next door neighbors living, respectively at 510 and 508 W. Hurlbut St. The pair are uncle-in-law and nephew with Drost's father, Cecil "Teet" Drost Jr., and Dominic's wife, Bonnie, being siblings.

Hostility between the pair began after the death of Drost's grandfather, Cecil Drost Sr., in 1993 and the subsequent division of the family's estate.

Drost Sr. put the family trust in Bonnie Dominic's name and the remainder of the family said they felt she was withholding their inheritance from them while flaunting the fact that their father loved her the best, according to testimony from various family members.

Relations between Dominic and Drost reached a violent peak on the night of Thursday, July 24, 1997 when Drost lit a series of firecrackers toward the Dominic's home. The final blast came directly under the home's master bedroom shortly after all the lights in the house had been turned off for the night.

In September of that same year, the pair came to blows in a driveway brawl. According to testimony at the trial, Dominic hit Drost, then Drost punched him back, causing damage to Dominic's eye. With Dominic hunched over with the injury, Drost called him a "stinking Indian" and asked, "Why don't you come back for more, ***** wagon burner."

Courier brings home eight Newspaper of the Year awards

The Charlevoix Courier earned eight awards in the 1998 Newspaper of the Year contest, sponsored by the Michigan Press Association. Following is the list of awards and judges' comments.

Design — second place. Judges' comments: "Nice clean use of tab format. Solid design and best photo play in category."

Enterprise Feature Story, third place with the story, "Weird weather," written by Laurie Lounsbury and Jamie MacMillan.

Judges' comments: "Genuinely amusing weather feature. Great allusion. Nice touch to compare UP weather with Arizona."

Editorial Writing, second place, Laurie Lounsbury.

Local Columns, third place, Laurie Lounsbury.

Judges' comments: "Well-researched, insightful columns about local issues. Presents her point well without forcing her opinion on you. Pool column was especially well done."

Sports Writing, second place, Laurie Lounsbury, with the story, "Junior Olympics elude two Charlevoix skiers."

Judges' comments: "Well-written, loved the lead."

Sports Writing, third place, Jamie MacMillan, with the story, "Rayder runners host muddy cross-country meet."

Judges comments: "Interesting story — great descriptions."

Sports Feature story, second place, Jamie MacMillan, with the story, "Overcoming all odds."

Judges' comments: "Well-written story. By interviewing her coach and family, (MacMillan) allowed readers to get to know the person as a sister, athlete and girl to be admired."

The Courier also earned Honorable Mention in the General Excellence category.

Lounsbury also earned first place as a column writer at the Petoskey News-Review during her time of employment at the daily paper.

Charlevoix land group hosts end of season work bee

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy will have a "Batten Down the Hatches" and "Perennial Planting" work bee at the historic Ingalls Campbell-DeWitt home at 108 Park Ave. from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10.

Windows and doors will be secured against winter storms, the porch apron will be repaired, and inside repair and renovation will begin. (The new roof will go on mid October!) An old-fashioned lilac will be planted for beauty and good fortune. Stop by to lend a hand, to donate a book to our Nature Library, or just to meet and share ideas with other conservation-minded folks. The coffee pot will be on and the conservancy will have doughnuts and cider for all guests. Don't forget to bring a sprig of myrtle for the rock garden if you have some.

Charlevoix County Land Conservancy Wish List:

Computer/fax, solid desks, office supplies, solid wooden bookcase for Nature Library, nature books, solid kitchen table and chairs, tool box and tools... all types, three solid floor lamps, early 1900s ceiling fixtures and wicker porch furniture. (So we're dreamers!)

Your donation to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy for saving the Ingalls Campbell-DeWitt Home helps in two ways:

1) It is applied to our rent (it gives us an office, humble as it be).
2) It upgrades the beauty and character of the community.

The structure needs plumbing, heating, windows, insulation and a new roof.

Volunteers are needed for the following:

— Networking and advisory committee members
— Lawn mowers (We are desperate!)

— Ingalls Campbell-DeWitt House renovation committee members

— Field trip leaders
— Natural features inventory persons — Researcher/historians — Painters, carpenters, decorators

— Natural area stewards — Office help

— Web page set-up
— Computer whizzes

— Friends... all we can get!

The Ingalls-Campbell/DeWitt home at 108 Park Ave. needs some tender loving care before winter arrives.

Reibel might get M-66 property rezoned for boat storage

By Jamie MacMillan

The latest legal tug of war between a local businessman and a township is headed for an out-of-court settlement, representatives from both sides said.

The case of Arthur Reibel vs. Marion Township is approaching its one year birthday, but the parties are amid negotiations and expect a settlement within the next few weeks.

"The board hasn't accepted anything, so I don't want to announce something that may not exactly happen," Kevin Elsenheimer, lawyer for the township, said. "We are headed for a settlement."

The wrangling is over rezoning issues surrounding Reibel's 24 acres on the north side of M-66, across from his Castle Farm properties. Reibel filed suit against the township after repeated attempts to get the land rezoned from agricultural, A-1, to marine industrial, I-2, failed.

Reibel has stated his desire to build boat storage facilities and, in previous interviews with Charlevoix Courier, noted that he has sited 96 areas on the land for buildings.

Reibel's first request was denied by the township in January, 1997.

At that time he was splitting the property in two to include 400 feet of commercial, C-1 property on the northern side.

He went to the township again in August of 1997, dropping his request for the small commercial strip, but was still denied in a 2-1 vote. Township supervisor Jerry Dohm voted in favor of rezoning but board members Wilson "Bud" Boss and Mitchell Cunningham voted against it.

Township planners recommended denying the request because ample space in the township had already been provided for boat storage and because such a venture could be done on agricultural land through the use of pole barns.

Reibel filed suit in circuit court last October.

In addition to the suit filed against the township, Reibel sued both Boss and Cunningham, claiming civil rights violations in regard to their "no" votes.

Racial slurs were part of family feud

Drost was centered around the July incident when Drost threatened to burn the Dominic house down while he was setting off the firecrackers.

Despite a civil mediation ruling of $150,000 against the Dominics two years ago, the details of the family feud were replayed over and over again in court last week as the defense portrayed a defendant enraged over the family dispute and not racial issues.

"The family was consumed and still is consumed by this," defense attorney Allen Telgenhof said during closing arguments. "That's what was in his head that night."

As the defense paraded family and friends to the stand, it appeared that different people, from Cecil Drost Sr. to Bonnie Dominic to Dennis Dominic were on trial for the decisions made by the elder Drost when he drafted a financial will. It was clear, though, that much of the family blames Bonnie Dominic for their divisiveness and inadvertently for the incidents which brought them together last week in circuit court.

"She told us the money is all mine and there is nothing you can do about it," Connie Bradley, Bonnie's sister said. "It hurts a lot to be betrayed by a sibling."

The meat of the defense argument was that Drost did not have a history of racism and he used poor tactics as he and his neighbor continued their hard feelings.

Prosecuting attorney Mary Beth Kur, though, presented the jury a witness who testified otherwise.

Fred Wabinimkee, a Native American, testified that while he worked as a painter with Drost, who was a carpenter at the Park Avenue condominiums in 1995, Drost told him the "*****" Indians "were catching all the fish and repeatedly greeted him with the question, 'How many fish did you catch today?'"

Kur told the jury that the case provided a good lesson about human nature.

"People have sides that they don't always show to people whom they love," she said during closing arguments. "But they always will show them to the people they hate."

She labeled the "crucifixion of Bonnie Dominic" as "classic victim-blaming."

"It's an illogical, unlikely smoke-screen to divert attention away from the facts," she said.

Kur's final arguments centered around the fact that if the family blamed Bonnie Dominic, who is white, why did Drost target Dennis with the threats and racial slurs.

"He wanted to scare the living hell out of these people that night and he had an extra card to do it with," she said referring to Dominic's race.

After eight hours of deliberation spread out over two days, the jury disagreed. They discussed the case until around 7:30 Thursday evening before reconvening Friday morning to review the testimony of Dennis Dominic.

Telgenhof said afterward that when Dominic testified about Drost's open hostility toward his family, and that he thought it was over estate issues, it could have swayed the jury to their verdict.

"This is a good law," he said. "But this case minimized that law."

George Lasater was driven by DNA to become sheriff

By Laurie Lounsbury

It's in the genes.

It's also in the crisply pressed, khaki uniform slacks worn by Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater.

What the former Sheriff Philo Sumner didn't know when he lost his bid for reelection 22 years ago to a young challenger named Lasater was that the cards were stacked against him.

Lasater was apparently DNA-driven to become sheriff of Charlevoix County, although he didn't know it at the time.

Only recently did Lasater discover that being a county sheriff is a proud family tradition that dates back to 1850.

The discovery was a fluke on Lasater's part.

"I grew up in the south, in Arkansas, and I've always had a keen interest in the Civil War," Lasater said. "I wanted to compile a book on Lasaters who served in the Civil War, and while I was in the process of researching it, I kept coming across Lasaters who were sheriffs."

In fact, he came across 10 Lasaters who served as sheriffs, and a few more who were Texas Rangers.

A closer inspection of George Lasater lends credence to his genetic predisposition of being a lawman. It probably takes at least a century of breeding to develop the visible starch in Lasater's spine. His laconic nature is reminiscent of stoically silent lawmen in the days of the wild west. And his bristly mustache is part Keystone cop, part cowboy.

The discovery of his sheriff bloodline fits into Lasater's life like a well-oiled Winchester fits into his office decor.

Stepping into Lasater's office is like time-traveling to the office of one of his southwest ancestors.

The only clue that you're still in the 20th century is a touch-tone telephone discreetly tucked to one side of Lasater's well-worn, rolltop desk.

Above the desk is a gun rack displaying 1873 Winchester rifles.

"The guns that won the west," Lasater said of the old weapons.

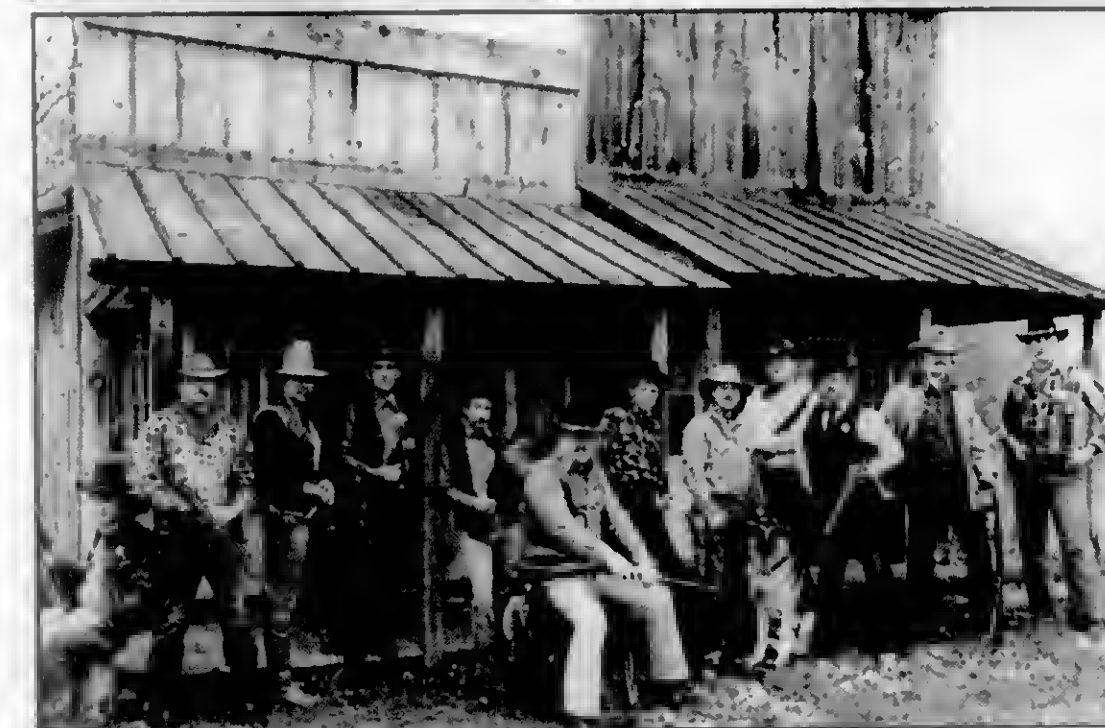

Next to them is an old stagecoach shotgun with side-by-side barrels.

On the walls are old pictures of lawmen and an enormous collection of old sheriff's hats. The floor is cluttered with cases of old sheriff's badges, collectible kids' badges that used to be found in the bottom of cereal boxes, and worn, leather-bound books with titles such as "The Spanish War," "The Civil War," "The Women of the West." On a table is a reproduction of an old Civil War cannon.

It could easily be the office of Sheriff Marion L. Lasater, who served in Young County, Texas from 1890 to 1892.

That sheriff became legendary with his involvement in the famous Marlow brothers case, which was made into a movie, "Sons of Katie Elder," starring John Wayne.

While the movie may have bent history a bit for the sake of drama, George Lasater believes he knows the real story from his research.

According to Lasater, the Marlow brothers were arrested in a county neighboring Marion Lasater's county for stealing horses. Vigilantes were determined to kill the Marlow brothers before they had a fair trial, so the sheriff decided to transport the Marlow brothers to Marion Lasater's county jail, where they would be safer.

On their way, the sheriff and the alleged horse thieves were ambushed. The sheriff was killed and the Marlow brothers fled to their mother's home, where they holed up against the trigger-happy vigilantes. Sheriff Marion Lasater cajoled his way into the farmhouse and talked the Marlow brothers into surrendering to him. The brothers were later found not guilty of horse-thieving.

"How could they have been guilty?" George Lasater said with a sly smile. "John Wayne played the part of the oldest Marlow brother. He always plays the good guys."

The Marlow brothers incident is ironically similar to a recent incident in Charlevoix County that earned George Lasater the Distinguished Service Medal from the Michigan Sheriff's Association.

The present-day Lasater was called to the scene of a domestic violence incident on a cold March night nearly two years ago, where the victim reported she had been threatened with a weapon and escaped from her home with two children and some friends.

Still in the home was a 5-year-old boy, whom the suspect had threatened to harm.

After five hours in the bitter cold, with the sheriff and his deputies surrounding the home, Lasater talked the suspect into letting him into the house.

The suspect agreed to let him in, as long as he left his weapon outside.

"I went in very, very cautiously," Lasater said.

After talking with him for several hours, Lasater convinced the man to surrender to him.

"Afterward, he asked me, 'Can I do something?'" Lasater said. "'I told him it depended on what he wanted to do. He said, 'Can I give you a hug? I think you saved my life.'"

Lasater's family history of lawmen continues with his son, George Robert Lasater, who is a deputy sheriff in Charlevoix County. Apparently young George is taking after the Lasater side of the family.

"All the lawmen were on my father's side of the family," Sheriff Lasater said. "On my mother's side, there were no lawmen. A couple of bandits, but no lawmen at all."

"I'm glad my genes took after the other side."

The genetic signs were always there

OPINIONS

Is intimidation the issue? Or is quiet bigotry the problem?

What a mess.
What a painful embarrassment to the family.
And what, exactly, does it mean to be ethnically intimidated?
That was the crux of the issue in the trial that pitted a Native American man against a white man.
Dennis Dominic is an attractive, powerfully built Native American. Larry Drost is a slender, youthful-looking white man who also happens to be Dominic's nephew.
Not only was Dominic married to Drost's aunt Bonnie, they were next door neighbors.
Dominic filed a civil suit against Drost for ethnic intimidation. Drost, apparently, was quite partial to leaning over the back yard fence and hurling expletives at Dominic such as "wagon burner" and "stinking Indian," blended seamlessly with some four-letter adjectives.

Clearly, these are ethnic slurs. Any idiot can see that.
Drost could probably be accused of being an uncouth person with the vocabulary of an adjective-challenged cowpoke.
But was he ethnically intimidating Dominic?
That was the question, and the jury decided that the answer was no.
The jury apparently decided ethnic slurs were motivated by a family feud over an inheritance.
I guess that means it's not against the law to yell repeatedly at your neighbor and use a wide assortment of incredibly foul, racially insulting language as long as you're related to the person you're insulting and there's money at stake.

I guess it also means it's OK to use ethnic slurs as long as you aren't "intimidating" or "harassing" the person.
If someone repeatedly called me uppity white Mayflower deck fluff I'd get pretty testy, even if the person was a little twerp and I didn't feel intimidated.
The jury wasn't given the option of finding Drost guilty of assault, which, in my opinion, was probably the case.
So where does that leave us on the ethnic issue?
After the trial, a friend of mine asked me if I thought discrimination against Native Americans was a big issue in Charlevoix.
I'm not sure I'm the right person to ask. I have friends who are Native Americans. I don't give it a moment's thought.
My husband has Algonquin Indian blood coursing through his veins.

I just don't think of Native American Charlevoix residents as being any different than I am, except they were born in Charlevoix and I wasn't.
And in Charlevoix, being born here is often viewed as an insider advantage, not a disadvantage.
I can point to the progress made in Charlevoix by recounting a tale I've heard of days gone by.
About 30 years ago, when teens wanted to drink illegally, they had a system for getting booze.
A group of white teens would pile in a car and someone would say, "Let's go get us an Indian."
With that, they would drive to John Town, which was a shabby collection of shacks near the Carpenter Street ball fields. The shacks were inhabited by poor Native Americans who were usually not sober.
Upon their arrival in John Town, the teens would flag down a Native American and lure him with the offer of Mad Dog 20-20 if he would buy booze for the kids.
Then they would load the Native American into their car and head for the closest liquor store, hand him a five dollar bill and tell him to buy a case of beer for them and a cheap bottle of wine or whiskey for himself.

John Town doesn't exist anymore.
Teens do not say "Let's go get us an Indian" when they're looking for a method of liquor procurement.
If discrimination exists in Charlevoix against Native Americans, it's a very quiet, insidious form of discrimination.
It's the kid who gets a 'C' on a test and the teacher doesn't really expect him to do any better than that.
It's the person who doesn't get prompt service when shopping in a swishy downtown store.
It's the elderly woman who doesn't get any help hefting a heavy load of groceries down the street.
It's little bitty things, the tiny little slights, that we not might be aware of, that hurt.
And it's probably a lot more dangerous than Larry Drost's blatant racial slurs.

Letters to the editor

Support needed for Charlevoix Opera Guild
Editor:
I wish to congratulate Fran Tollas for the wonderful musical afternoon she organized at the Congregational Church this past Sunday, with Jayne Sleder, the mezzo soprano, and the Charlevoix Area Men's Glee Club. This presentation was sponsored by the Charlevoix Opera Guild of which, rumors to the contrary, I am the founder and CEO.
Some of us are working with the Detroit Opera Company to put on an opera next summer, probably Madam Butterfly, and would appreciate any contributions to this not-for-profit Charlevoix Opera Guild, mailed to us at 101 Pine River Lane, c/o Pointes North Management Company, Charlevoix, MI 49720. We already have $1,893 in the kitty, but need more contributions.

Rotary Club thanks all who helped with annual golf outing.
Editor:
The continued generosity of our community never fails to amaze and fill us with a sense of gratitude.

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix hosted its annual golf tournament Sept. 24 at the Charlevoix City Golf Course and raised approximately $2,000 for local charitable efforts.
The success of our tournament and many others similar to it is largely dependent on the support of local business. For many, many years, without fail, area businesses have come through with hole sponsorships and prize donations to support our tournament. Donations have come from all sections of the community, including the industrial and commercial sectors, restaurants, retailers, recreation facilities and professionals. Without their support, tournaments such as ours would not occur.

While the number of businesses that contributed to our tournament is too lengthy to list, we would like to offer our deepest gratitude and thanks to those who supported us through their donations and participation.
Sincerely,
The Rotary Club of Charlevoix.
Red Cross blood drive was very successful
Editor:
I wish to thank the loyal and dedicated volunteers and donors who supported the Charlevoix Red Cross blood drive Sept. 24.

The banner was raised high across Bridge Street, but lost its battle with the wind a few days before the drive. Thank you to the city employees who rescued it. Look for new banners, possibly closer to the ground, in January, 1999.
Even though the banner was down, the bloodmobile was promoted by posters displayed in many businesses and city offices throughout Charlevoix. Thank you for your help!

The Red Cross had a very successful day in Charlevoix, collecting 104 units of blood for the sick and injured.
My sincere appreciation to Commander Charles Butcher and members of the American Legion for the use of their fine facility.
We had more fruit left over than usual. Maybe that's because we served ice cream along with a great variety of yummy cookies and candies (mostly chocolate!) home-baked by several volunteers. We were able to use the freezer at the American Legion to turn the day into an Ice Cream Social. Lots of fun!

Thanks to Oleson's Foods for providing the beverage, and a big thank you to the Lions Club members for their hard work to set up and take down the tables and chairs at the Legion Hall.
The community and area hospitals truly benefit from the combined efforts and cooperation of the citizens of Charlevoix.
The next community Red Cross Bloodmobile/Ice Cream Social in Charlevoix is Jan. 21, 1999, at the American Legion Hall. I urge all eligible donors to participate. First-time donors are very welcome! See you there!
Thank you and happy holidays,

Japanese visit Big Rock Point

A delegation of 17 Japanese business representatives recently visited the Big Rock Point Restoration Project to observe and learn about the plant's decommissioning process. Big Rock employees Tim Petrosky (standing, far left), Ken Powers (standing, third from right) and Bill Trubilowicz (standing, second from right) led the group in a tour of the site. Japan began its first nuclear power plant decommissioning this year when the Japan Atomic Power Company permanently shut down a commercial unit. (Photo courtesy of Big Rock Point)

Applefest doesn't need good weather to be fun — but it helps

Above: While tourists flock to Applefest for the craft show and the fruit, locals often like to gather in the park to enjoy the autumn weather and visit with people they know during the busy summer.

Right: An abundance of craft booths will provide excellent shopping for everyone attending this year's Applefest.

Charlevoix's 19th Annual Applefest provides an excellent opportunity for visitors to sample and buy apples, crafts and fall produce from area orchards and farmers.

This year's Applefest will be Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 9-11.

The Applefest, which began in 1980, was originally started to bring attention to the agricultural community in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties. Residents and visitors like often ask what's grown locally and how to find area orchards and farm markets. As a result, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce decided that at least once a year, they would bring the harvest to the people.

That decision led to the Applefest, scheduled every year on the second weekend in October.

East Park, in downtown Charlevoix, is lined with farm market booths selling over 30 different types of apples including the hard-to-find antique varieties. The ever-popular eating apples will be plentiful. Also available will be McIntosh, Spartan, Cortland and Jonathan apples, all excellent for baking.

For perfect stuffed baked apples, take home some Red Rome Apples. The crunchy Northern Spy is ideally suited for strudel, pie and cobbler. Other fall harvest items available will be pumpkins, squash, apple butter, jam, honey and cider.

Service clubs and other local organizations will be volunteering in booths along the park to sell apple delicacies.

Of special interest this year is the Applefest Craft Show, comprised of outstanding crafts people. This is a high quality show featuring unique items and special holiday gifts.

On Saturday there will be a petting farm with a wide variety of farm animals. Pony rides will also be offered for children on Friday and Saturday.

Free horse-drawn carriage rides will be offered for the whole family Friday evening and from 1 p.m. until dark Saturday. The rides will be provided by Cedar Valley Farms and will leave from Park Avenue in downtown Charlevoix.

Applefest is a great way to enjoy northern Michigan's fall colors and bountiful harvest. Call the chamber at 547-2101 for more information.

JV team thrills crowd with unprecedented win over Gladiators

By Jamie MacMillan

The varsity football squad couldn't score a win against Traverse City-St. Francis, but the junior varsity football did what has never been done before by a Charlevoix football team — they beat the Gladiators.

The young team from Charlevoix whipped the Gladiators last Thursday 38-26 behind the crazy legs of its halfback and aggressive defensive play that kept the Glads from scoring during the second half.

The win was the first of any kind against a football team from Traverse City-St. Francis.

Ryan Leitner rushed for 408 yards on 25 carries, including touchdown runs of 65, 73, 60 and 30 yards during the first half.

"He was on fire. We don't keep JV records, but his game has to be one," coach Brian Certa said.

Leitner's first half explosion helped the Rayders forge a 26-26 tie going into half time with the Gladiators. Despite his success, it was one of only three pass completions that the Rayders made which provided the difference in the game.

Faced with a fourth-and-goal from the 12-yard line in the third quarter, quarterback Jeremiah Tuescher rolled right and zinged a pass to end Patrick Gowell, who was running a slant route. Gowell hauled in the pass at the 2-yard line and cruised into the end zone for the go-ahead touchdown.

Leitner added a 5-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter for the icing on this historic cake.

For the game, the Rayders racked up 534 total yards, 482 of which were churned out by a dominant running attack.

"We decided at the half to play only with our hearts and that we were going to take the game," Certa said. "Our defense in the second half was great."

Solid linebacker play from Matt Horon, who had 22 tackles, Nick Schwein and Jerry Zeitler helped constrict the Glads and their big fullback. Certa also said defensive backs Gowell and Ryan Rafacz came through with big plays.

The win improves Charlevoix's unblemished record to 5-0. The squad will look to remain unbeaten with a road game this week at Kalkaska, Thursday, Oct. 8. Kick off is at 6:30 p.m.

Above: JV player Ryan Leitner (#21) rushed for 408 yards on 25 carries against Traverse City-St. Francis, a team the Rayders beat for the first time in memory.

Right: It was a challenge for high school photographer C.J. Winnell to take a picture that didn't have Leitner in it, since he spent a considerable amount of time carrying the ball for the JV Rayders. (Photos by C.J. Winnell)

Varsity Rayders drop game to Traverse City team

By Jamie MacMillan

Despite four touchdown scores of over 60 yards from senior Matt McClellan, the varsity Charlevoix Rayder team could not overcome the potent forces of Traverse City-St. Francis, dropping a 57-34 Lake Michigan Division contest to the unbeaten Gladiators.

The loss drops Charlevoix to 2-3, 2-1 in league play while it hoists the Glads' mark to 5-0, 3-0. With the win, the Glads should keep, if not improve upon, their No. 2 ranking in the state class C poll.

McClellan and quarterback Adam Wood connected on scoring strikes of 81, 63 and 60 yards and McClellan added a 65-yard scoring run in the third quarter to keep the Rayders in striking distance of an upset.

However, they just weren't up for the test on the defensive side of the football as the Glads found the end zone on eight of their 10 offensive drives.

One key moment came late in the second quarter with the Glads holding a 21-14 lead and facing a fourth-and-two at their own 43-yard line. With a stop, the Rayders would have been in excellent position to tie the game. Instead, Ben Carlson shot up the middle for a 57-yard score, giving the Glads a scoreboard cushion that never was really threatened.

Wood also tossed a second-half touchdown to Jeremy Carr from six yards out and Colin Carr rushed for 88 yards on 10 carries.

The results of Friday's game was predictable to many, as the Rayders have never beaten the Gladiators on the gridiron.

The Rayders will look to rebound back to the .500 mark against Kalkaska at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 9. The game is the final varsity contest at Kipke Field this season and is the homecoming game.

Punt, pass and kick division winners move on to next level of competition

Thirty-six young student-athletes turned out at Kipke Field on Saturday, Sept. 12 for the regional competition of the National Football League's Punt, Pass and Kick contest.

"It was an awesome morning," local director Brad Waldron said.

"We haven't done this in town in 15 years and we had a lot of fans hooting and hollering for the kids."

In the boys' 8 and 9-year-old division, Danny Waldron took first place followed by Nathan Tripplehorn and Chad Ellis.

In the boys' 10 and 11-year-old division, Joel Keehn was the winner followed by Eddie Waldron, Matt Novotny and J.P. Fiedorek.

In the boys' 12 and 13-year-old division, Brad Hiee took first place followed by Cody Crane and Michael Wojan.

Nick Potter won first place in the boys' 14 and 15-year-old division. Justine Karnicki won first place in the girls' 8 and 9-year-old division and Teresa Potter won the girls' 10 and 11-year-old division.

The division winners move to a second competition in Traverse City Saturday, Oct. 10. Winners in that field will attend the Detroit Lions-Chicago Bears football game on Sunday, Nov. 15 and will perform their skills at halftime in front of the Silverdome crowd.

The event was sponsored by the N.F.L. and Gatorade.

It's all in the family for Charlevoix's first lady golfer

By Jamie MacMillan

For Jennifer Rowe, being the first female on the Charlevoix golf team has little to do with a desire to break barriers. Instead, it is a matter of family tradition.

Her great-grandfather Rutheford was one of the founders of the Belvedere Golf Club and her Aunt Elaine later won four Ladies' Championships at the club.

Rowe herself learned the game riding shotgun in the golf cart during her father's rounds when she was 8 years old.

"She basically was my caddie," her father, Bob Rowe, recalled. "I explained the game's etiquette and vitals to her. It was wonderful to have her out with me."

By age 10 she was playing her own rounds, and despite a downpour which forced the stoppage of her first-ever round just a few holes into the course, her desire to enter the "family" sport didn't dampen.

"It's easier to know someone understands and is behind you and supporting you," the 14-year-old said.

Four years later, Rowe began her freshman year at Charlevoix High School and became the first girl in school history to make the golf team, landing a spot on the junior varsity team.

While noting the dynamics of her involvement with the team, her father said it's just a natural extension of her personality to try something this bold.

"She's the type who can handle these challenges," he said. "She is aggressive and determined."

Rowe, though, is making as much noise with her game this fall as she is with her gender.

Last week at Inland Lakes' Puppy Invitational, a tournament for local junior varsity teams at the Indian River Country Club, Rowe paced the Rayders with a 93. Not only was it a personal best for the young linkster, but it was good enough for third place in the 63-golfer field. Most golf matches are nine-hole competitions, and Rowe typically will card scores in the high 40s or low 50s. Her best efforts this year include four different scores of 48. Rowe is solid around the greens and has begun to establish herself with her 7-wood.

Charlevoix coach Jim Glynn is counting on Rowe's clubs for the varsity squad next year. He was quick to point out she nearly made the varsity cut this year.

Glynn raved about her swing, work ethic and love of the game.

"She ended on a real high note at the Puppy Invitational," he said. "I'm looking forward to next year when she will be in contention for a varsity spot. She's tenacious enough to do it."

Glynn said it has been a pleasure to have a girl on the squad and that he hopes it leads to more female involvement in the program. He also lauded the boys on the team for their acceptance of Rowe. Rowe's mother, Terry, agreed, saying her teammates have been "perfect gentlemen" as Rowe acclimated her-sport, she said.

She has been a junior golf student for three summers and earned scholarships to the Ferris State golf camp during the summers of 1996 and 1997.

This past summer, she became even more of a golf junkie, prepping herself for the challenge of making the high school cut. She was tutored in private lessons and was at the golf course every day either playing a round or working out the kinks in her swing at the driving range.

Her personal attraction to the sport rests with the competition.

"Sometimes it's one-on-one or you against a lot of people," she said. "Practicing to improve myself has been some of the toughest competition I've ever had. It's interesting to have those different types of games."

It doesn't bother Rowe to be a young woman on a young man's team. She is used to competing against boys from her days as a junior golf student. A large boost came when she realized that other girls at other schools played on the teams.

"I didn't know that at first," she said. "That maybe has made me less nervous."

She does hope to be a guiding light for other young girls entering the sport and admitted that she wants to crush any stereotype that women can't compete with men athletically.

"For me it's no big deal because I've been playing for a while," she said of stepping into male-dominated competition. "But it would be great if our team got bigger and more girls came out."

self to the competition.

Despite her talent and family influences, Rowe came close to not even trying out for the team. Rowe is a skillful basketball player, and her golf career almost got slam-dunked by strong pulls to play for the Rayder basketball program.

"I really am interested in all sorts of sports," she said.

Rayder golfers finish season in strong position for conference, state finals

The Rayder golf team concluded its regular season last week with a strong second place finish in the 11-team, division III-IV field of last Friday's Traverse City Invitational.

Playing at the Traverse City Country Club, the Rayders' team score of 344 bested everyone but Detroit Country Day, 337.

Keith Grunch led Charlevoix, carding a 79 which placed him on the All-Tournament team with 10 other golfers.

Charlevoix beat Traverse City-St. Francis, Harbor Springs, Elk Rapids and Fairview, all teams that Charlevoix will see sometime this week as the Rayders compete in the conference and regional finals.

The conference finals were yesterday at Boyne Mountain, but results were incomplete at press time. The regional finals are at 9:30 a.m.

Friday, Oct. 9 at the Indian River Country Club. The top three teams advance into the state finals. The Rayders qualified for the state finals last year after a second place finish at the regional.

The junior varsity golf team ended their season on a high note as well last week. At the Puppy Invitational, a junior varsity tournament at the Indian River Country Club, the Rayders placed second with a 388, behind only Rogers City, 381.

A trio of Rayders made the All-Tournament team including Dennis Avery, who led all golfers with an 89. Jennifer Rowe and Tyler Lieberman shot 93 and 95 respectively to join Avery on the team. Rounding out the Rayders' scoring was Andrew Moats, 99, and Allen Brooks, 101.

Runners finish second in 12-team invitational

Running against foes from larger schools, the Charlevoix boys' cross-country team finished second in the 12-team Gladwin Invitational last Saturday, Oct. 3.

Every team in the field was a class "B" school with the exception of Charlevoix.

Josh Popenhagen was the top individual finisher from Charlevoix, crossing the finish line in fifth place with a time of 17 minutes, 47 seconds. Jeff Popenhagen placed 11th in 18:02 to also earn a medal. The top 15 finishers won medals.

Rounding out the Charlevoix field was Luke Whitley, 18; Allen Keehn, 26; Gordie Selph, 27; Jon Tebeau, 39; and Tom Kennedy, 45.

"It was a huge meet for the boys," coach Ken Plude said. "In a field of all B schools, it's a good accomplishment and I'm pretty proud of that."

Plude's girls' team placed fifth in their field. Tricia Hodge was the club's lone medalist, placing 12th in 21:17. Other finishers were Liza Gorkiewicz, 27; Laura Schairbaum, 30; Emily Martinus, 35; Heather Probert, 36; Melissa Swen, 43; and Shauna Barrett, 52.

The junior varsity runners also competed and Charlevoix came home with five medals. In the JV race, only the top 10 earned medals. For Charlevoix: Zach Hopkins, second, Nick Grosberg, third, and Nick Martinechek, sixth, medaled in the boys' race while Melissa Westebrook, sixth, and Tiffany Fisher, eighth, medaled in the girls' race.

Rooftop reading

Above, right: Elementary school principal Dick Swenor spent Monday afternoon on the roof reading a variety books to the student body. Swenor promised the stunt if students read enough books this past summer to encircle the school with books' titles. In this case, the old Chinese proverb that says, "Be careful what you wish for — you might get it," was fortuitous for both the principal and the students.

Sheriff gets grant to buy road breath test units

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has been awarded a grant to provide the sheriff's office with five preliminary breath test units.

The $1,700 grant will enable each patrol car, along with the sheriff's marine division, to have a preliminary breath tester in every patrol car.

The grant was provided through the Michigan State Police Special Operations Division of the alcohol enforcement unit.

Sheriff George T. Lasater requested the grant in order to better serve the citizens of Charlevoix County by reducing the time that elapses between stopping a suspected driver and confirming the sobriety of the driver.

The addition of the breath test units will assist the officers in the detection of minors consuming alcoholic beverages.

The sheriff reminds everyone that the best tool for keeping drunk drivers off the road is citizens who observe motorists who may be intoxicated and reporting the observations to the local state, county and city officers by calling 911 as soon as possible.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Homecoming tailgate party open to public

Everyone is welcome to attend a tailgate party after the Homecoming Parade (about 6 p.m.) Friday, Oct. 9 at the Charlevoix High School behind the weight room.

The event, which costs $2 per person, will raise money for this year's high school prom in the spring. Don's IGA, Glen's Family Market and Oleson's Foods have donated food for the party, where hot dogs, chips and pop will be served.

Human services will host information summit

The Human Services Coordinating Body (HSCB) of Emmet and Charlevoix counties is sponsoring the "Fourth Annual Human Services Information Summit" at 8:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 9 at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. Twenty-five agencies are scheduled to participate in this event.

This program is being offered free of charge to help individuals, families and agency staff become more informed about the multitude of services offered by local nonprofit and governmental organizations in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Ongoing 20-minute presentations will describe program services, eligibility requirements and referral information to assist families in accessing services. A display area will also be available throughout the morning where individuals may obtain brochures and information. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. (and the coffee pot will be on). The first series of presentations starts at 9 a.m., and the morning's events will conclude by noon.

The mission of the HSCB of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties is to facilitate interagency cooperation, coordination and collaboration for the improvement of human services in the two-county area. Its membership includes many of the area's public and private, nonprofit service providers. The HSCB regularly meets on the fourth Wednesday of the month. Much of the HSCB's recent efforts have focused on the implementation of the local "Strong Families/Safe Children" initiative.

For more information about this free informational meeting call HealthAccess at 1-800-248-6777.

Sorority to meet in member's home

The Preceptor Beta Mu Sorority will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 12 at the home of Ann Hall, 11924 Boyne City Road (Indian Trails). Members unable to attend should contact Pat Dillworth at 547-6910.

Trail ride will benefit Exceptional Riders program

The Flywheelers will host a trail ride to benefit the Exceptional Riders program on Sunday, Oct. 11 at the Flywheelers grounds on US 131, Boyne Falls. Trails open at 9 a.m. and close at 5 p.m.

Food will be served and prizes awarded. Entry fee is a donation or get a sponsor sheet and fill it up. All proceeds will go to the program for equipment, education and expenses. This nonprofit organization's goal is to help improve the quality of life for adults and children with disabilities. Please call Barb Lane at 347-3300 for more information.

Garden club to meet at Depot

Charlevoix Area Garden Club will meet at the Charlevoix Depot at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13 for an exchange of garden tips and plants. This will all be enjoyed over a gourmet potluck luncheon made possible by our members best recipes. Please note the time change - 11:30 a.m. - and location - The Depot.

Hostess Chris Unbehaun has put this all together with the help of Co-hostesses Kate Left, Peg Johnson and Mona Bergeon.

The garden club is a member of the Federated Garden Club of Michigan, Inc. For more information call Joan Knecht at 547-5072.

Republican headquarters will open this weekend

Charlevoix County Republican Headquarters will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10.

The following candidates will be at the headquarters at 11 a.m.: Senator Walt North, State Representative Michelle McManus and Phil Ludlow, who is running for the State House of Representatives seat in the 106th District.

Stop by and pick up yard signs if you would like to support a candidate.

Democratic Party hosts grand opening for their headquarters

Charlevoix County Democratic Party announces the ribbon-cutting ceremony and grand opening of its campaign office at 1111 Water St. in East Jordan. The office will be open from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11. The office will be supplied with information and signs for the Democratic candidates running for state and local offices.

All information is available free of charge.

Invited officials for the grand opening are Congressman Bart Stupak, State Senate candidate Kay Ann Chase, Andy Neumann, candidate for State Representative for the 106th District, and Harold Chase, representing Senator Carl Levin.

SCRAPBOOK

By Marilyn Boss

Soon, it will be Halloween again. It was such a fun night, when I was young, going to all the neighbors' houses to trick-or-treat. One of the highlights of the evening was going to the home of Ted Foster, located on the corner of Park Avenue and Grant Street. He always had nickel candy bars for the kids, and he put them on the front porch, trusting everyone to be honest. His brother, Harry Foster, who lived at 310 Clinton St., also gave out nickel candy. That information went around very fast.

My dad told me the story of the kids who climbed up in the Congregational Church bell tower. It is located at the corner of State and Park streets. They tied a long rope to the bell, and threw it out through the louvers. Someone retrieved it and it ended up across the channel, from where the bell mysteriously rang. Being dark out, the rope was not seen, and the deed was accomplished.

Dale's Grandfather Chew, told the story of the farmer he knew who was sick and tired of having kids tip over his outhouse every Halloween. He and his boys decided to move the outhouse over about three feet. When the culprits came to tip it over, they ended up in the hole, which was pretty full. This story always brought laughter, as those listening imagined the plight of the boys.

When the Belvedere Hotel was torn down, some kids took a couple of old toilets from the premises and put them under the stop light in the middle of Bridge Street.

Dale and I went for two nights to the gab fest at Burger King to see if the fellows could remember any pranks in past years. Warren Allison and Mel Plumm recall that one year a barrel full of tar was placed in Clinton Street in front of the Erber parking lot. Some kids then set the tar on fire and tipped the barrel over, letting the contents spill out and slowly run across the street and over the hill into Round Lake, leaving a glowing flame to light up the night.

Oscar Stroud recalled coming to town with his dad the morning after Halloween and seeing a farm wagon perched on the peak of the roof of the Hopyard School. Some kids had taken it apart, and meticulously put it all back together. This building is still standing today on the Boyne City Road. It is located on the left side of the road, on the hill just past the Greensky Hill turnoff. It has been converted to a private home. Oscar thought the prank was done by kids from that school. He went to the school down the road known as the Undine School, near the C. H. Smith residence.

Mel Plumm said some kids put a big hay rake on the front porch of Robert Major, the band teacher. He lived at 319 Antrim St. Warren Allison remembers watching out his window as a group of kids rolled old tires into the street at the corner of Petoskey and Burns streets. As we sat around telling these stories for two nights, Bob Kelley and his son, Frank Zednick, and Ken Villermain enjoyed the stories with us.

Then there is the story of the kids who went up the fire escape on the old high school building. The escape door was conveniently left ajar, and they climbed up to the second story and went into the study hall, where they took all the books from the students' desks and piled them in a huge pile in the middle of the room. It was a mixed up mess, and the kids had a great time the next day exchanging books, pencils and the like, until they got their own. The superintendent, Oscar North, said "This will not happen again."

The guys at the coffee klatch remember two more times this occurred. The next time, several boys engaged the janitor in conversation while others went into the boiler room and unfastened the catches on the bottom side of the manhole covers where the coal was delivered. Then a gang of kids came at night, went down through the coal chute and put all the books in a high pile in the study hall. The superintendent then made the announcement that he had hired a guard. A group of boys stole the guard's keys and they unlocked the school and it was done again. The whole student body knew who did it, but no one ever squealed. Of course, with no one knowing who did these pranks, the aforementioned fellows are completely innocent, but offered to help me in gathering information on these stories. My thanks to them.

Missing persons

Walter Stinson submitted this photo of the Charlevoix third grade class of 1937. In his letter, he said the following: "I regret that I can't identify all of the students... My happy face can be found in the third row, far right. (Looks like I am ready to run to the lunch room.) Mrs. Gertrude Dick was the teacher's name and she must have had her hands full with 32 students. I served in the U.S. Air force from 1946 through 1949 and was stationed in Germany. One day I was hit in the rear end with a wet mop while located at the Wiesbaden Air force Base. I turned around and came face to face with Eugene Bridge, another student from Charlevoix. He had a big grin on his face. Eugene was the only person from home that I met while in the service. We were glad to see each other. If you can help to identify the students in this picture I will be forever in your debt." Can anyone help identify the remaining students in this picture? Call the Courier at 547-6558 if you have information.

Not cow tippers, but outhouse tippers

Right: Pranksters in the old days were fond of tipping over the outhouse that belonged to Dale Boss's grandfather. His grandfather got even by moving the outside three feet away from its usual spot, leaving the pranksters up a creek without a paddle. (Art work by Marilyn Boss)

Men overboard

United States Coast Guard Petty Officer Eric Koch (left) and Seaman Tony Miscoi took a dunking last week when they were part of a duck hunting safety seminar, conducted by the Coast Guard Station. The two men capsized a fishing boat on Lake Charlevoix, then demonstrated the correct steps to get rescued, which included shooting off flares and holding a flare to direct rescue boats to their position. In 1996, the Coast Guard Station Charlevoix had 94 calls for assistance, which increased to 114 calls in 1997. Of those calls, 23 were urgent distress calls. Personal Flotation Devices, flares, a sound-producing device and navigational lights top the list of equipment to take on board during duck-hunting season. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

The suits against the men have since been dropped by Reibel, despite evidence from a witness who had been told that both Boss and Cunningham voted against the measure only because the applicant had been Reibel.

Reibel would not comment on any matters relating to the lawsuits.

A settlement between the parties appeared ready to go this summer when the township agreed to allow the property to be zoned residential for a modular home project, Dohm was born to Misty and Patriek Michanowicz on Sept. 23.

Zachary Phillip Drenth, weighing 10 pounds, 15 ounces, was born to Phil and Laura Drenth of Ellsworth on Sept. 23.

A daughter, Sara Louise Stoughton, weighing 6 pounds, 2 ounces at birth, was born to Scott and Chaya (Moore) Stoughton on Sept. 20 at Lewisville Medical Center in Lewisville, Texas. Maternal grandparents are Ron and Linda Moore of Charlevoix. Paternal grandparents are Richard and Karen Stoughton of Orlando, Fla. maternal great-grandparents are George and Elaine Tompkins of Bonita Springs, Fla., and Donald and Phyllis Moore of Grand Rapids, Mich. Paternal great-grandparents are Henry and Minnie Nesy of Cape Coral, Fla. and Earl Stoughton of Canton, Ohio. Maternal great-great-grandmother is Violet Moore of Grand Rapids.

Ahigale Grace Wurm, weighing 8 pounds, 5 ounces, was born to John and Christine Wurm of East Jordan on Oct. 1.

The deal was tripped up, Dohm said, by the fact the Reibel would have had to pay for city sewer and water extensions to the property, which could cost as much as $1 million.

The supervisor originally favored the rezoning, but has since changed his mind. He said he questions Reibel's true desire to build boat storage buildings and is afraid of the potential use in a marine industrial zone, which allows for boat manufacturing.

The Marion Township Board next meets 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 20.

Applefest rivaled Venetian Festival for crowds and fun

By Laurie Lounsbury

For anyone trying to drive down Bridge Street last Saturday, it seemed like Venetian weekend, Memorial Day and the Fourth of July all rolled into one.

Traffic was backed up like it is on the busiest of summer days — except summer is long gone.

"It was Venetian in October — unbelievable," said police chief Dennis Halverson. "I've never seen that many people in town in October. There were probably 30,000 to 40,000 in town over the course of the three days of Applefest."

It was the spectacularly successful Applefest, not the bridge going up and down, that caused traffic to back up in both directions on Bridge Street and State Street.

For downtown merchants, the warm, sunny weekend couldn't have been better.

"We had a bursting weekend, bursting with good people and good weather," said Barney Way, owner of Trademark Clothiers. "Applefest is one of our best weekends, and this one was as busy as Venetian Saturday."

Not only did merchants find themselves hitting record sales, they said the experience was relaxed and pleasant all weekend.

"Everybody's in a good mood,

Charlevoix's East Park was a scene from a picture postcard last weekend, when thousands of visitors flocked to town for the 19th annual Applefest. Perfect temperatures and sunny skies were the frosting on the cake — or the caramel on the apple, so to speak. (More photos on page 24) being festive and enjoying themselves," said Jacqueline Mabec, owner of the Clothing Company.

"It's a really enjoyable time."

Way concurred, saying, "There are good people in town who are more relaxed than in the summer."

In keeping with a tradition Way and his wife, Chris, started three years ago when they bought Trademark Clothiers, the business owners served free doughnuts to people along the street.

"We gave away 600 doughnuts in two hours on Saturday," Way said. "People were hurning their fingers, picking up the doughnuts as fast as we could pull them out of the fryer."

For Mahee, the weekend brought record sales, topping all other festival weekends during the summer and rivaling her summer sidewalk sales.

"It was bigger than everything else for the year. And every year, it gets more incredible," Mabec said of Applefest.

Down the Street at the Villager Pub, owner Terry Left was serving as many meals as he would on a good summer day.

"It was an excellent weekend," Left said. "Better than Venetian weekend."

Richard Friske, owner of Friske's Orchards, couldn't find enough glowing adjectives to describe the weekend.

"Tremendous, wonderful, phenomenal, excellent," he said of this

High school attendance policy irks parents and students

By Jamie MacMillan

Growing dissatisfaction with one of the school's newer policies hurtled to the forefront of Monday night's board of education meeting.

Parents and students alike spoke out against an attendance policy that went into effect at the beginning of this school year.

As discussion about the policy threatened to dominate the meeting, serious discussion on the matter was put on the back burner as school officials quickly scheduled a meeting between themselves and other concerned parties to review the policy.

That public meeting will be next week at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21 in the high school study hall.

The policy in question allows students a series of absences, but allots to them points based on the type of absence involved. For example, if the absence is unexcused, then four points are added to a student's record. If the absence is excused, such as with a doctor's note, then only two points will be counted.

Once a student reaches 10 points, his letter grade in the class will automatically decrease by 10 percent. At 14 points, a student will flunk the class.

"There is unilateral concern that something needs to be done about this policy," said parent Jim Hater. "Parents can not excuse their own kids' absences."

Many in the audience said it was unfair that if a student missed five classes throughout the semester with legitimate absences such as illnesses, family vacations or college visitations, then the student's letter grade would automatically suffer.

Students can take points off their record by doing extra make-up work, but that avenue has students skeptical toward the policy.

"We're already making up the work we missed in the first place," said high school senior Heather Ferber.

It was also pointed out that students could only do the extra work after the grading period was over, meaning upperclassmen might have poorer grades on their transcript as they start applying for college.

Others said that the policy doesn't address the school's actual problem regarding those students who do have attendance problems. After a few missed classes, those students will lose incentive and stop showing up for classes altogether.

Attendance policy deemed unfair to some

"Instead, the policy drastically affects the other 95 percent of the school," parent Karen Ferber said.

Despite the specific problem of the points, parents were most concerned about the fact that the policy chips away at their parental authority to manage their children's time.

"If the school says going to Beaver Island is educational, then it's a field trip," Hater said. "But if we (as parents) deem it (a trip) educational and take our kids, it's two points against them."

Board president Allen Telgenhof said he appreciated the public's input on the matter.

"We have a tendency to draft these policies in a vacuum," he said. "We have no idea what it does on a practical level until we put it to the test."

With that out the way, the board cruised through the remainder of its agenda in less than 45 minutes.

In other action, the board hired Kathy Martinchek to teach one hour of high school Spanish for this year because of an overload in the school's Spanish I classes.

Martinchek is a retired teacher who has worked in the East Jordan School District and served as the gifted and talented coordinator for the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

The board also hired three new bus drivers. Two of the hirings replace one driver who retired and another who is out on medical leave. The third hire is for a job that had been a full time substitute position in the past.

The board also purchased a 1998 Safari Van for $20,183.47 from Fletch's GMC to replace an older Aerostar van the district sold last spring.

The next regularly scheduled board meeting is at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 9.

year's Applefest.

"We set a new record by a big piece. We ran out of caramel apples, pies, cider, even some types of apples," he added. "Applefest grows every year, in spite of the weather, but this year it certainly helped to have such fantastic weather."

Tim Wieland, beverage manager at Whitney's Oyster Bar, was dazed by the number of people and customers in town.

"By my estimate, I would guess there were at least 7,000 people in the downtown area Saturday," he said. Whitney's also enjoyed the brisk business that usually comes with a perfect summer day.

Alexander's Restaurant, which is about two miles away from the downtown crush of people, enjoyed tremendous business.

"We were very busy," owner Pam Woodward said. "Last year, Applefest was the busiest day of the year for us. It's one of our best weekends."

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce reported that all aspects of this year's Applefest were successful, from the more than 100 craft booths set up in the park, to the petting zoo, which was a big hit with youngsters, and to Tommy Tropic, who dazzled the crowds with his juggling and unicycling Saturday.

Roloff faces challenger for county commission seat

Cochran opposed to landfill expansion

By Jamie MacMillan

The local county commissioner race pits a political veteran against a newcomer to the scene.

Shirley Roloff, a Republican, looks to hold off challenger Scott Cochran, a Democrat, in the race for Charlevoix County's sixth district seat.

The sixth district represents the City of Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

Roloff served on the Charlevoix City Council for 12 years from 1978 to 1990, serving six years as the mayor pro tem.

In 1996, she earned a seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. On the board, she has served as liaison to the Family Independent Agency and the county planning commission. She also served as the county's delegate on the Northwest Michigan Human Services board.

Roloff ran for office in 1996 because she saw a lack of communication among board members and the rest of the county staff. Two years later, she lists among her accomplishments a more friendly and open board of county commissioners.

Shirley Roloff

summer months. "Setting aside money for that would be a wise move on our part," she said. Off the island, Roloff said a major focus of a second term in office would be house numbering for the 9-1-1 emergency system.

Similar civic feelings have spurred her opponent to run for office.

"It's a close-knit community, and I just want to give something back," the 28-year-old Cochran said of his decision to enter local politics.

Cochran grew up in Ann Arbor and graduated in 1996 from the University of Michigan with a bachelor of arts degree in education.

He teaches middle school English and social studies at the Northwest Academy and manages the Blue Corn Grill, a southwestern-style restaurant in the Harbor Springs area.

He is married to Charlevoix native Kirsten (Joy) Cochran and the couple is expecting their first child in a matter of weeks.

The environment is one of Cochran's concerns.

He called any expansion to the Cedar Ridge landfill a "mistake," but is just as concerned about the high rate of growth and development the area has seen in recent years.

"Everybody should be able to see Lake Michigan and have clean lakes and a clean water supply," he said.

Cochran noted that the county has a surplus of funds and that the time is right for a reduction in the county tax rate. "We have a year of surplus, yet we have the tax rate set as high as possible."

The candidate will fight to maintain local control of roads and feels that part of the surplus should go to two different county road projects: paving of Beaver Island roads and the widening of the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. He called driving down the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road "nerve wracking."

Cochran also wants to see cleaner roads during the winter months and will work to eliminate the county commissioners' health benefits. It is unfair, he said, for part time commissioners to earn health benefits while other part time county employees who clock 30 hours a week receive nothing.

"When all part time county employees get the same benefits, then it will be all right," he said.

Cochran said the county board needs to take a more active role in its leadership.

"We need to be more proactive and go forward with ideas rather than just doing things as they come across our desk," he said. "I have some pretty strong ideas about how things should be done, but I'm willing to work as a team to become part of a productive board."

More enrollments than expected improve school finances

By Jamie MacMillan

A higher than expected student enrollment has paved the way for the Charlevoix school district to hire at least one extra teacher.

The board of education approved the hiring of an additional second grade teacher at their meeting Monday night. They plan to have a new teacher hired by next semester.

Despite a fiscal year budget projected to be nearly $400,000 over budget, the board approved the posting of the position that will come with at least a $28,000 base salary.

More students and the subsequent extra revenue from the state has made the district's financial outlook less dire. The budget proposed for the 1998-99 fiscal year projected a K-12 student enrollment of 1,321. The Charlevoix school district receives a stipend from the state of $6,489 per student.

Official enrollment counts at the end of September, though, show

1,368 students. That figure is 47 students more than the budget projected, as well as 23 students more than last year's fall count of 1,345.

The extra students could see the district's revenue flow for this year increase by as much as $300,000.

Exact monetary figures remain unclear. The actual foundation see SCHOOL, page 14

OPINIONS

Cigars and unions were part of the Gilbert family history

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

(Reprinted from the magazine, Detroit Cigar Lifestyles)

"I'm not in the business to chop tobacco. I'm in the business to make a profit."

So said my father-in-law, Samuel T. Gilbert, when he was president of the D.W.G. Cigar Co. of Detroit. This was during the '40s and his allegiance always was to his stockholders.

Originally called the Diesel Wemmer Gilbert Co., it was the third largest cigar manufacturing company in the country. Among the popular brands were R.G. Dun, San Felice, El Verso, Bradstreet and Dubonnet. The firm imported about 80 percent of its tobacco from Sumatra, and owned nine factories in Michigan and Ohio, employing 9,000 workers. The headquarters were located on Milwaukee Ave. in Detroit.

Old-timers still remember the large billboards scattered all over Michigan, claiming that "R.G. Dun is Michigan's biggest seller, three to one."

Gilbert was born in Kalamazoo in 1876, where his father owned the La Lazora cigar company. Like many successful men of his generation, he did not attend college. In 1901, he married a lovely blue-eyed student at the Latin School in Chicago, and became the father of a son, Julius, born in 1902. Julius was my husband.

As a young man, Gilbert had been a champion bicycle racer, and was known as somewhat of a local sports hero. He credits this early experience to his subsequent success as a cigar salesman.

When the family company was threatened by a union takeover in 1907, he moved the entire Gilbert clan from Kalamazoo to Detroit. Looking back this was like jumping from the frying pan into the fire. His anti-union stance climaxed after he was appointed to the unpaid, honorary position of Commissioner of the Detroit Street Railway Commission (DSR) by Mayor Jeffries in 1940. As president he vowed that the $40 million street railway system be run as a financially sound business. In addition, he saw to it that there would be a smooth transition, when for the first time black bus drivers were encouraged to apply for jobs as drivers and were hired.

The Teamsters Union, then led by a young Jimmy Hoffa, was flexing its new-found, post-depression muscle. As everyone knows, Hoffa epitomized everything that was both loved and hated about the early days of the Teamsters. In September, 1941, the Detroit Free Press, selling then for three cents, announced, "Demands for a 10-cent salary increase and pay for the three days of the transportation strike for salaried employees were flatly refused by the DSR Commission on Tuesday..." Samuel T. Gilbert, president of the commission, definitely and finally refuses to pay wages during the strike.

One evening S.T. announced glumly that the strike had been settled.

"How did you manage that?" I asked.

His reply was brief. He motioned under the table.

This was not the first time Gilbert made the front pages. At the height of the depression, in 1932, he returned from a European business trip and was quoted after disembarking from the German liner, the Bremen.

"There is just one solution to bring prosperity back to this country, and that is to repeal the 18th Amendment (Prohibition). Europe looks with amusement on the spectacle of the United States sitting back and doing nothing to remedy business conditions, when, with repeal of the 18th Amendment, a sharp upturn would be taken and millions in beer and liquor taxes would come rolling into the national treasury."

Regarding the cigar business, Gilbert said, "The most important result of the depression is that 20-cent cigar smokers are now smoking nickel cigars."

As for smoking cigars himself, Gilbert, like Mark Twain, smoked in moderation, only one cigar at a time. He enjoyed his after-dinner cigar and I enjoyed the pleasant family after-dinner conversation around the table. I was used to this relaxing custom in my own family. When I wanted special permission from my father to do something, my mother taught me the value of timing; "Don't ask Daddy for anything until after he has finished his dinner and lights up his cigar," she cautioned.

Samuel T. Gilbert passed away suddenly in March, 1947, at the age of 71 on a train bound for Florida. His closest friends, Brace Beemer, the Lone Ranger, Detroit Mayor Ed Jeffries, and U.S. Senator Homer Ferguson all called at our home to pay their respects. The cigar company was sold soon afterward.

My father-in-law was a strong character of the old school. Once, when his demure wife, Sylvia, speculated about their date of departure to spend the summer in Charlevoix, she said, "I think..." until she was interrupted by S.T. who said, "I do all the thinking around here!" And, by George, he did.

Letters to the editor

Voter doesn't like North's position on driver's license requirements

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my deep disappointment with the impertinence of Senator Walter North. Mr. North violated his oath of office by voting for legislation that is illegal and unconstitutional (making it mandatory to present a social security number to obtain a driver's license) and when I took him to task on the issue he chose to ignore my request to answer the following two simple questions:

1) In light of the fact that having a social security number is voluntary, (documentary proof attached from Social Security Administration) where is your legal authority to make it mandatory to present a social security number in order to obtain a driver's license?

2) When did driving down the roads of our country become a privilege granted to us by Caesar instead of an inalienable right? I don't recall being asked to relinquish this right.

Senator North had previously written to me that he supported this legislation because the State of Michigan would stand to lose $900 million dollars in federal aid if Michigan didn't kowtow to blackmail from the federal government.

I realize that, compared to the shameless conduct of our President, this may seem like a relatively small matter but, I believe it personifies the same mind set that many politicians of both parties have subscribed to. Namely, that the rule of law is of secondary importance.

portance to political expediency. Our congressmen and senators in Washington disregarded their own law (Social Security Act and Privacy Act, 1974 which states that it shall be unlawful for any federal, state, or local government agency to deny to any individual any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because such individual refuses to disclose his or her social security number) by mandating this encroachment on our civil liberties and then our state senator, state representative, and Governor Engler lick the boots of Washington to get our tax dollars returned to us. And, we the people, who are supposed to be the masters in this Constitutional Republic are losing our liberties one nibble at a time.

it won't happen again. It was not ethnic intimidation as the jury realized.

I feel your editorial was again unfair as many of them are.

This is the first time in my life I have written a newspaper regarding an editorial. I hope it's my last.

Non-Courier reader wants kind-hearted editorials

Editor:
A warm, ready smile
A kind thoughtful deed
Or a hand outstretched in an hour of need
Can change our whole outlook and make the world bright
Where a minute before just nothing seemed right...

Miss Lounsbury, If you could keep this poem in mind when you write your opinion, Charlevoix would be a much closer and loving community and the Charlevoix Courier would have a much better reputation.

After hearing about your opinion, I felt that I needed to write. On behalf of my family, I would like to thank you for opening our wound and pouring in salt. I guess what's important is not whether you caused our family more pain but did it make a better story and sell more papers?

Your article was another reminder to me why I don't subscribe to or buy the Charlevoix Courier.

Editor wasn't correct about history of John Town

Dear Editor,
I would like to respond to a recent column written by Laurie Lounsbury regarding "John Town." She admitted the story was hearsay but as a staff writer I feel it was her obligation to research her information and get the facts right.

John Town was named after the John family who, in some cases, still live in the same homes today or in the same area.

As for calling our homes "shabby shacks," many of these homes in the area were inhabited during and after the depression and were no worse than other homes in the area and if looked at today would reflect the growth seen in the community as a whole.

She said the residents were "poor native Americans." Like other residents of Charlevoix, these "poor native Americans" held jobs at the local lumber yards, were fishermen, carpenters, painters, farmers, coal men, caddies, housemaids, yard workers, nurses, housewives, military men and artists. We even had our own baseball team.

At a time when society was struggling to develop the economy, not looking for pity or a hand-out but demand that you respect us as fellow Americans.

If this very racist story is all that Ms. Lounsbury can write in her editorials, then I feel the Courier needs to find another editor for this column.

Boy Scouts come to the aid of local widow

Dear Editor:

As a recent widow it's difficult sometimes to cope with matters unfamiliar to me — such as home maintenance.

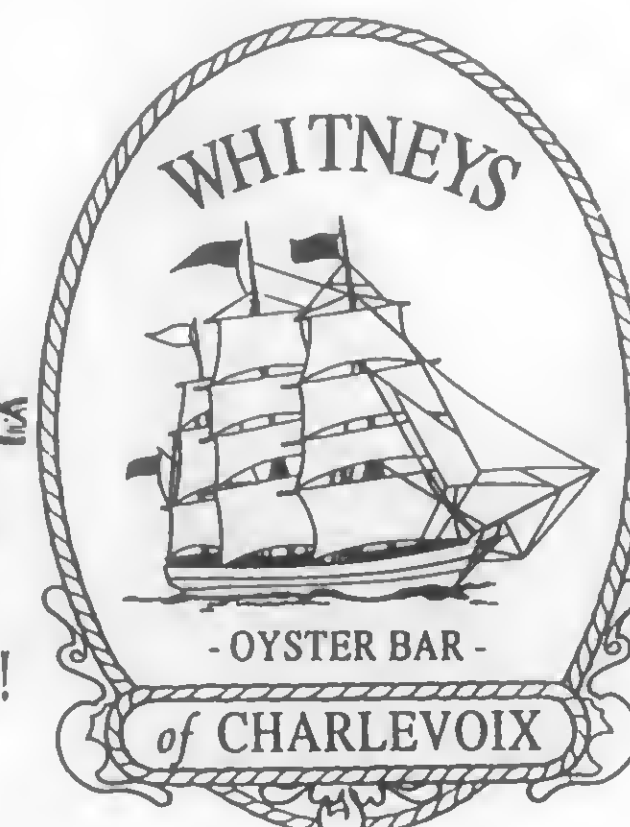

I had been trying to stain my garage for several weeks with limited success. The top boards were too high to reach from ground level and my fear of falling kept me off the ladder.

What to do?

My dilemma was solved Monday, Oct. 5 by the appearance of Tim May, his Boy Scout Troop and several fathers. Ladders in hand, they tackled the job with military precision and finished the task in no time.

Thank you, gentlemen, one and all, for a job well done. I am so pleased!

50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Orlowski

Lou and Rita Orlowski will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Oct. 23, 1998.

The festivities will commence at St. Mary's Church during the 5:30 p.m. mass Saturday, Oct. 24, when the couple will renew their vows, with Rev. Tom Neis presiding.

Friends, family and Charlevoix residents will gather together to join Lou and Rita at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix Sunday, Oct. 25 to share in a joyous reception.

The Golden Couple met during Lou's college days while attending the University of Detroit. Rita was a native Detroit resident and Lou was from Charlevoix.

They were married Oct. 23, 1948 at St. Scholastica Church in Detroit by the Rt. Rev. Leo Cornelli.

Lou and Rita lived in the Detroit area until 1978, then moved to Charlevoix to retire. They take pleasure in playing golf, taking trips, volunteering for various local organizations such as the Knights of Columbus, the Rainbow Shoppe and church programs. Their greatest enjoyment is spending time with their granddaughters and family.

Lou and Rita are looking forward to a trip to California and

Las Vegas in the near future. They have both been an asset to their church, community and friends in the Charlevoix area. They believe in living life to the fullest, with the trust and thanks to God for all they have.

Volunteers needed to read to kids

Joan Carson, coordinator of the Success To All Readers (STAR) reading program at the elementary school, is looking for volunteers to help first and second grade students who need extra help with their reading.

This is the fourth year for the STAR program at the elementary school. Volunteers, called reading Buddies, spend one to two hours a week working with youngsters. Men are especially welcome to work with boys, and Buddies are particularly needed in January and February, when many people leave town for a few months.

You will never regret the time spent with the children. They look forward to seeing their Buddies every week.

If you are interested but have some questions, call Joan Carson at 547-3219. She can provide a volunteer handbook and set up training sessions for volunteers. Students folders contain everything a volunteer will need to work with a child.

Alberta J. Clark

Alberta J. (Tibbits) Clark, 82, of Lansing, died Oct. 2, 1998. She grew up in Boyne City, lived most of her life in Lansing and retired from the State of Michigan after 37 years of employment. She served in the Women's Army Corps (WAC) during World War II. She was a member of the WAC Veteran's Assoc., Purchasing Mgmt. Assoc. of Central, Mich., AARP, Interracial Fellowship, Christian Women's Club and State Employees Retirees Assoc.

Alberta was preceded in death by her sister and brother, Edith and Don Tibbits, as well as by her husband, Harry C. Clark.

Surviving her are: a son, Dean D. Clark (Cheryl) of Lowell; three grandchildren, Erika, Kristen and Corey Clark; daughter-in-law, Bette Clark; sisters-in-law, Gene Tibbits and Geraldine Scripser; nephews, Max Tibbits, Marvin Scripser (Joyce), Douglas Scripser and Steve Lamb; nieces, Lola Guillen, Margo Scott, Yvonne Snee (Gordon), Faith Jarvis (John), Sandra Brown (Ken), and Sue Purvis.

Religious services were Oct. 6 at the Pennway Church of God in Lansing with interment at Evergreen Cemetery in Lansing.

Elizabeth "Betty" Krulik

Elizabeth "Betty" Krulik, 97, died Oct. 11, 1998 at Bortz Health Care of Petoskey.

A memorial service was Tuesday, Oct. 13 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Betty was born Oct. 15, 1900, the daughter of Samuel Gray and Carrie Drake Gray. She spent the early years of her life in Cincinnati, where she did child care work for private families.

Her work brought her to Charlevoix in the summer of 1927, where she met Jim Krulik. They were married that October and she remained in Charlevoix for the rest of her life. Jim preceded her in death in November of 1971.

Janet Krulik Runyan, the only child of Jim and Betty, lives in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan with her husband, Dave. Betty had numerous brothers and sisters, all of whom preceded her in death. She is survived by many nieces and nephews.

Betty was a member of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. She served as Sunday School superintendent and teacher, and was very active in some of the church circles. She was an avid bridge player in her early years in Charlevoix and always enjoyed gardening. She was proud of her gardens into her 80s. She always loved the lakes and beaches, the wildlife and woods.

Betty was especially well known for her gourmet cooking skills and all who enjoyed her dinners were never disappointed. Betty could tell many tales of early Charlevoix days.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy, the First Congregational Church or Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

They ran the Chicago Marathon on Sunday morning. Can you imagine anywhere from 10,000 to 12,000 people gathered together for the deliberate purpose of running 26 miles? That's like running from Charlevoix to Petoskey and then back to Big Rock. That's a long way and I can't even remotely see myself doing it. Although there is hope...

You see they have different classifications for runners. They have the medalists. They have the wheelchair division. They have juniors and then there is my group, "The Clydesdales." If you are a woman, you have to weigh 135 pounds or more to be in this category. If you are a man, the limit is 170. Clydesdales has got to be the most polite way I have ever heard of saying to someone that they are just a bit overweight.

But if that isn't enough to make you smile, this weight division has its own club and that club has a motto.

"The miracle isn't that I finish but that I had the courage to start." Now think about it, for an awful lot of good Biblical water can flow down that river.

Doesn't the Bible tell us all that "without faith, it is impossible to please Him?" Doesn't it say that "faith is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen?" How about that part where it says if you have enough faith, you can say to the mountains in your life, "rise up and move into the sea" and they will? A marathon may be a physical adventure but to believe is a spiritual adventure. And if more people would simply have the courage to start down the road of faith, the whole world would know that the age of miracles is far from over.

Toward the end of the gospel Luke, you'll find the tale of two men walking an emotional marathon. They had seen Jesus' ministry and listened to His teachings but somehow they couldn't go the next step and put those teachings into practice. In a running marathon, participants speak about running into "the wall," the point they wonder if they can go beyond.

The wall for these two fellows was Jesus' death. They couldn't believe anyone could conquer that. They were so obsessed by it that they did not even recognize Jesus when he drew along side and began to walk with them.

He listened as they rationalized their way through their struggles. He gently prodded them to think through the teachings of faith they had experienced and patiently stayed with them while helping the light to dawn in their hearts. So many of us are so quick to say we cannot believe or would have trouble believing. Yet if we would just let the Lord's Spirit walk along side of us for a little while, we might be amazed at just how much we do believe.

Jesus took the two men back through the scriptures a step at a

Friends of Jordan seek to permanently protect valley

The Friends of the Jordan River Watershed (FOJ) is hoping to gather member and public support for an act of legislation that could permanently protect the Jordan Valley Management Area from unwanted development. The organization will host its annual meeting to discuss the concept of "State Land Reserve" legislation at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 22 at the community meeting room of the Jordan Valley

District Library in East Jordan. "The State Land Reserve legislation seems to fit the Jordan Valley to a T," said John Richter, Friends president. "There is some teeth built into the act that the Jordan Valley Management Plan does not provide."

The State Land Reserve concept now stands as Act 114 of 1998, an amendment to Act 451 of 1994, the natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act. It was introduced by State Representative Bill Bobier and referred to the Committee on Forestry and Mineral Rights. Its effective date of legislation was June 9, 1998.

The act allows state-owned land to be "designated as reserved property upon which subsurface mineral or other interests shall not be developed or exploited, and shall be retained by the state for a period of 10 years, unless extended..."

The Jordan Valley meets the size and description requirements for the act, which says, "Property must be at least a 640-acre section of land or, if not a full section, at least 720 acres of contiguous property, which in composite is property that because of designated surface or subsurface features has significant environmental sensitivity."

The proposal to designate the Jordan Valley may be made through petition by a person, or by request of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) or a motion of the Natural Resources Commission. The request to place the issue on the resource commission's agenda must include a description of the land and a rationale for the land to be included in a State Land Reserve.

time. He had them remember the things of faith that they had seen. What about you? Whether it was at your mother's knee or in a Sunday School class, you probably know more about the Lord and the way faith works than you might realize. The fellows finally recognized Jesus and their lives really were changed forever. If you look within your heart, I think you'll find He's been there all the time for you. If you will recognize Him, the faith marathon you will embark on will change your life forever.

Accidents kept law officers busy over holiday weekend

Pamela Sue Beatty, 38, daughter of Marilyn and Dale Boss, was involved in a one car crash at about 11:45 p.m. Friday, Oct. 9. The accident could have been fatal if nearby residents hadn't heard the crash and rushed to her aid.

The Naples, Fla. woman was northbound on Mt. McSaubia Road when she ran off the road and struck a mailbox and then a tree head-on.

Nearby residents heard the crash and rushed to the scene near Carson Avenue. Upon impact, her 1998 Dodge Status caught fire and Beatty was pulled from the burning car by the neighbors in the area. The car was quickly engulfed in flames.

Beatty was transported by Charlevoix Ambulance responders and taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital, where she was treated for multiple injuries. The Charlevoix Township Fire Department extinguished the car fire, but the car was a complete loss.

The sheriff's department was assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix City Police Department.

The area residents who heard the crash and rushed to the scene can be credited for saving Beatty's life.

The sheriff's department also responded to a crash Sunday, Oct. 11 on Maple Street in East Jordan. Phillip Michael Overmyer of Wilson Road, East Jordan, hit a utility pole on South Maple Street. Overmyer was arrested for operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol and was treated for an injury to his right hand at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

At the scene of the accident, a sheriff's deputy was nearly struck by a pickup truck while he was directing traffic. The driver of the truck was also arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol.

In addition to being at least 640 acres, the area proposed must contain one or more of the following:

- Critical dune
- High risk area
- Regulated wetland
- Endangered species
- Wilderness or natural area
- Designated natural river
- Any other significant natural or environmental feature

As part of the process, the resources commission must reserve and consider public testimony, consider the need for a buffer zone to eliminate drainage of oil and gas, and issue a written recommendation to the Legislature.

The Legislature may offer a resolution to create a State Land Reserve after receiving a recommendation from the resource commission, and must consider the need for a buffer zone, then may adopt the resolution by a two-thirds vote. They shall attempt to acquire any inholdings within a State Land reserve, including mineral rights. An owner of an inholding must first offer to the DNR the right of first refusal prior to sale or lease of the land transfer is subject to State transfer tax.

State Representative Bill Bobier and employees of the DNR will be at the annual meeting of the Friends of the Jordan to explain and discuss the State Land Reserve concept and process. The public is invited to attend. For more information, call John Hummer, program director, at 533-5063.

Homecoming was a great weekend, regardless of game loss

The dance floor at the homecoming dance was a sea of humanity having fun.

We're not sure if these guys got too warm in the elementary school gym at the homecoming dance and needed to remove a few layers of clothing, or if they were making an unusual fashion statement.

Bomb threat closes Kmart shopping center last Friday

It's becoming a tiresome, reoccurring event in Charlevoix that, so far, has always turned out to be a false alarm.

Yet for sheriffs and police officers, every bomb threat must be taken seriously.

The most recent bomb threat occurred at Kmart in Charlevoix at 10:40 a.m. Friday, Oct. 9. The threat was called in directly to Kmart.

The sheriff's officers evacuated Kmart and adjoining businesses in the shopping area, including the Huntington Bank branch in the plaza. The parking lot to the plaza was blocked by emergency personnel and no vehicles were allowed to enter the lot.

A bomb sniffing dog from the Michigan State Police Post #71 was brought in to check the building.

After a search of the building by the bomb sniffing dog, sheriff's officers and several volunteers from the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, the building was classified as safe and employees and customers were allowed back in the building at 1:45 p.m. Friday.

At 5 p.m. the same day, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department arrested Sean Maurice Larkins, 26, at his residence in Charlevoix. Larkins was living with a Kmart employee.

Larkins was charged with making a false bomb threat and being a habitual offender, second offense.

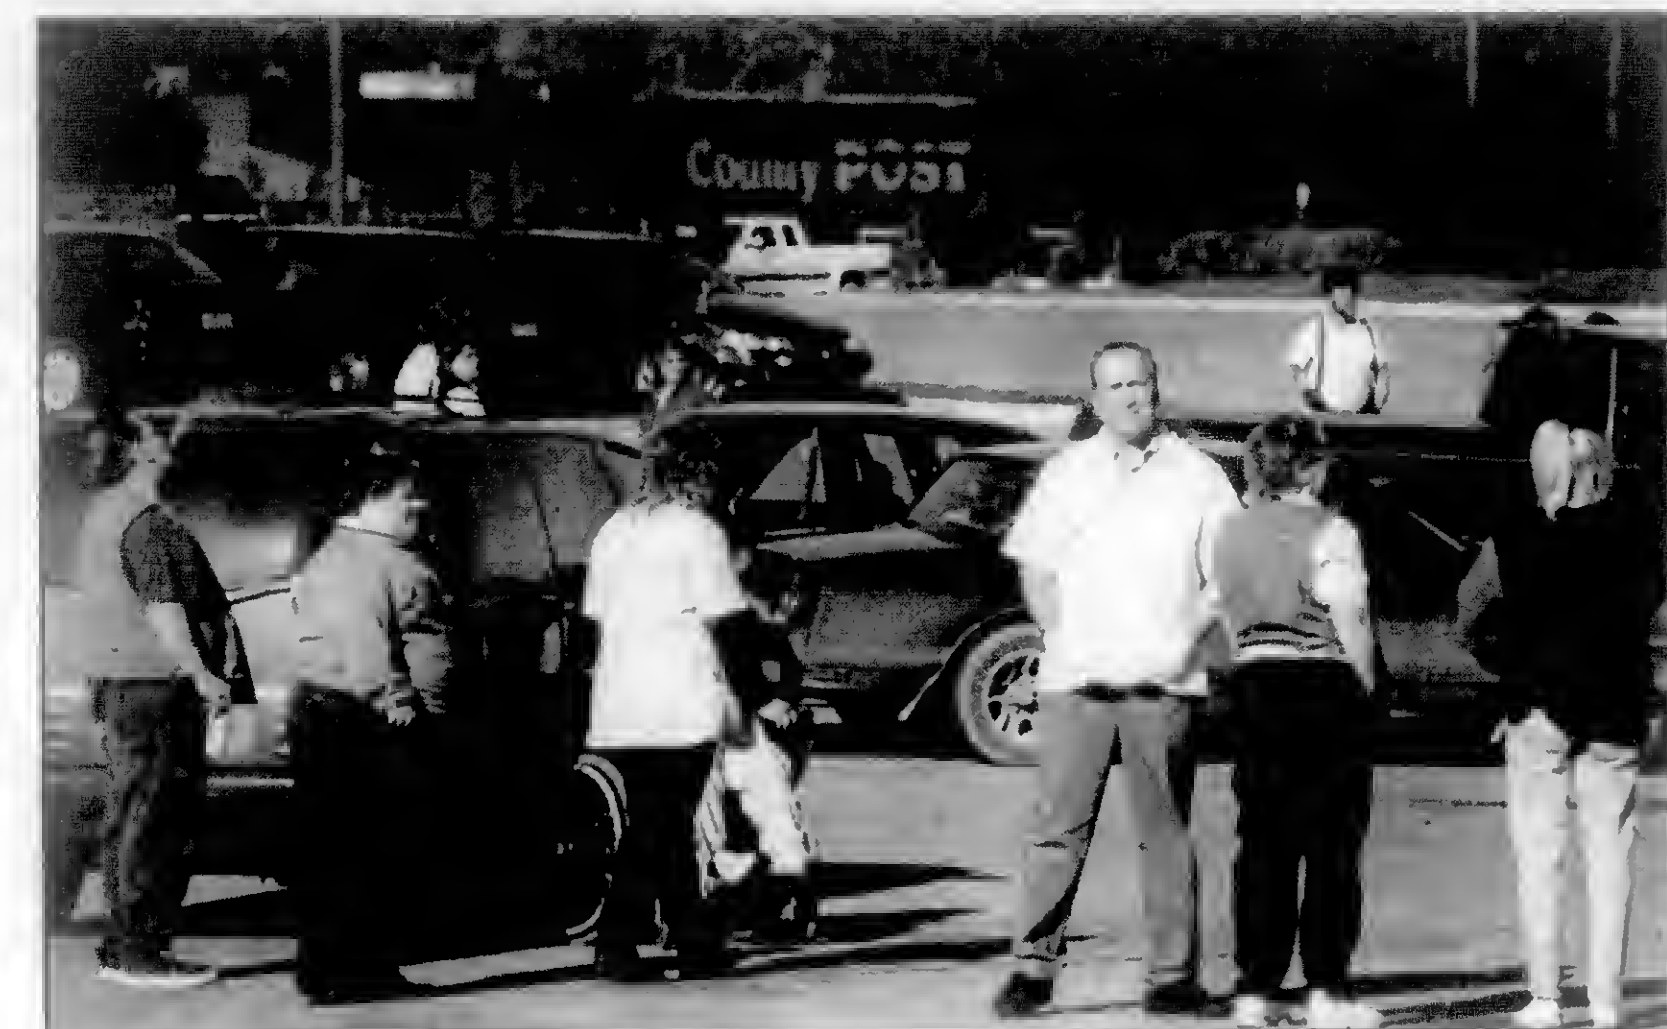

Larkins is currently lodged in the Charlevoix County jail with a bond set at $20,000.

Environmentalist to attend land conservation rally

Jo Anne Beemon, executive director of the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy, will be attending the National Land Trust Rally in Madison, Wis. The Land Trust Alliance granted the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy a trust rally scholarship of $500.

Beemon will be attending a special session on protecting working farms.

The five day event brings land conservancies together from across America to learn about the newest and most effective methods in conservation management and planning.

Waiting for the 'all clear' signal

package that the state gives to schools is a 40-60 percent blend based on student enrollment from the winter 1998 count and this fall's count. In February, the district had 1,337 students.

Another factor is students who use open enrollment laws to transfer into another district. The school district students transfer into will receive the smaller of the two foundation allowances between the new school and old school.

Carol Havens, a representative from the Charlevoix superintendent's office, noted that 64 students transferred into Charlevoix's K-12 using open enrollment laws, many of whom have come from schools with smaller per-student stipends than Charlevoix's $6,489 foundation grant.

Regardless, the additional students should alleviate some stress on this year's budget, which originally would have dwindled the school's fund balance by 17 percent, from $2.28 million to less than $1,887,000.

Hiring a new second grade teacher with some of the extra revenues is being done to reduce class sizes.

The current second grade has 92 students and four teachers. The board has long maintained its desire to keep K-2 class sizes at 20 students per teacher. The current levels have 23 students per teacher with at least two more second graders expected to enter the school in the coming weeks, according to elementary school principal Richard Swenor.

"The situation is that we would like to keep our younger grades at smaller class sizes," he said. "When it's up to 21 or 22 students, it's no big deal, but more and more we're getting closer to 24 students in each class."

While a new teacher will solve the class size problem, the addition of a fifth second grade section will create another problem. The current K-5 building doesn't have a spare classroom for an extra section.

Lacking extra rooms, the school will do what it did in 1996 when a first grade class met in an "open space." The school partitioned off, with portable four-foot tall walls, part of its resource center and adjacent hallways to form a makeshift classroom. In spite of the partitions, the area was still plagued with both student and teacher traffic. The same will be done with the new second grade class.

"We've been there before," Swenor said. "It's not ideal, but the trade-off of lower class sizes is better."

In 1996, the district purchased a portable classroom to accommodate the extra class.

A new teacher is expected to be hired during the board's next regular session at 7:00 p.m. Monday, Nov. 12 in the high school study hall.

An open letter to the community from Burns Clinic:

We care about you and want to answer your questions.

As you may have heard, Burns Clinic is changing its participation status with Blue Cross/ Blue Shield of Michigan insurance plans.

We regret that this change has caused concern for many of our patients.

It is an action we believe is absolutely necessary in order for Burns Clinic to provide patients with the same top-quality medical care people in our community have enjoyed since 1931.

About visits to your family practice physician

Nothing will change until January 2000 for family physician visits at our Burns Clinic branches in Bellaire, Gaylord, Rogers City, St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie or at Petoskey Family Medicine, Petoskey Urgent Care and Bay View Family Medicine in Petoskey.

And even after January 2000, you will be welcome as patients at our branch offices.

In the meantime, your Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage will work as it always has for visits to your family practice physician.

About Burns Clinic specialty care

You will see differences for all Burns Clinic specialty care, laboratory and X-ray services beginning January 1999. Internal medicine, obstetrics/gynecology and pediatrics are all considered specialties.

We do want to emphasize that you are still welcome as patients for specialty care no matter what your insurance coverage.

Burns Clinic will continue to file insurance claims for patients just as we do today.

However, payment will be expected at the time of service. Patients are welcome to use VISA, MasterCard, Discover, cash or check.

Special financial arrangements can be made for patients who are unable to pay at the time of service.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield will send any reimbursement directly to you. There may be a difference between what Blue Cross/ Blue Shield pays and the actual charges for the medical services.

In the case of an office visit, this is a minimal additional out-of-pocket cost. For other procedures, the amount may be larger.

Medicare benefits will not be affected by this change.

We made this decision reluctantly and only after cost reductions in our own operations, and after repeated discussions with Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan.

If we are to preserve the quality of health care in the northern Michigan area, we must continue to attract highly qualified doctors and keep them in the community.

Our goal is to continue the Burns Clinic mission to deliver excellent and cost-effective medical care.

Please don't hesitate to call if we can help you during this transition.

*We care about you and want to answer your questions.

Rayders lose homecoming game to Kalkaska team

By Jamie MacMillan
Charlevoix's hopes for a homecoming win were squeezed by Kalkaska, 20-8, last Friday night.

The Blazers marched on drives of 73 and 95 yards, book-ending the contest with superior precision to steal the contest away from the Rayders in front of a packed and vocal Kipke Field crowd.

Jesse Crick capped a 14-play, 95-yard drive with a 4-yard touchdown plunge to give the Blazers a 14-8 edge with less than two minutes remaining in the game. The drive eclipsed over eight minutes of the fourth quarter game clock.

"They (Kalkaska) are a very physical team and did a great job of blocking and moving us off the ball," Charlevoix coach Todd Klinger said of the game-winning drive. "I was thinking back to the Harbor Springs' game and hoping there would come a time when we would step up and make a play."

The Rayders were unable to answer Kalkaska's late tally as four straight passes from quarterback Adam Wood fell incomplete. Crick added an insurance score for Kalkaska on an 8-yard run in the game's waning seconds.

The Blazers' decisive drive mirrored their opening possession of the ball game which covered 73 yards on 13 plays. The drive took 6:34 of game time and was capped by Crick's 3-yard score with Tommy Goodwin adding the two-point conversion.

After that first possession, Charlevoix tinkered with its defensive strategy and pushed an eighth defensive player up to the line of scrimmage. The move, combined with an increase in intensity, helped Charlevoix contain the Blazers' counter-option attack.

Brian Ward led the defense with 12 tackles and physical run support was provided by defensive backs Mark Yager and Matt McClellan. Offensively, Charlevoix moved the ball, but was unable to score until the fourth quarter as a series of penalties and turnovers killed potential scoring drives.

"The differences in the game were the mental mistakes and the lack of concentration we showed with penalties and turnovers," Klinger said.

Two second quarter drives deep into Kalkaska territory were snuffed out by a lost fumble and an interception. The team's opening drive of the third quarter also appeared destined to score, but a holding penalty followed by a quarterback sack kept Charlevoix off the scoreboard.

Despite hard-nosed running from Colin Carr (32), both he and the Rayders were corralled last week in a 20-8 homecoming loss to the Kalkaska Blazers. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

Klinger said.

The Rayders' inability to score overshadowed the efforts of tailback Colin Carr, who rushed for 177 yards on 23 carries and accounted for over 75 percent of Charlevoix's 231 total yards.

With the loss, the Rayders dropped to 2-4 overall, 2-2 in league play while Kalkaska improved to 3-3, 3-1.

The game concluded the Rayders' 1998 home schedule.

Carr moved the ball 58 yards on 10 carries and finally got Charlevoix in the end zone on a 17-yard run.

The Rayders tied the score when Wood connected with Tom Cunningham on the two-point attempt after the touchdown.

When the ensuing kick off pinned Kalkaska at their own 5-yard line, the game suddenly was tilted toward the maroon and white.

"I thought we had momentum on our side, and if we didn't score to win the game at least we would go into overtime," Klinger said of the game's closing sequence. "But, we never did get that final stop."

A face mask penalty enabled the Blazers to convert a third-and-long and escape the shadow of their own goal posts. Later in the drive, Goodwin broke through the line for gains of 23 and 19 yards to set up Crick for the game-winning score.

With the loss, the Rayders dropped to 2-4 overall, 2-2 in league play while Kalkaska improved to 3-3, 3-1.

The game concluded the Rayders' 1998 home schedule.

Rayder golfers just miss the mark for trip to state finals

The Charlevoix golf team's bid for a return trip to the state finals came up nine strokes short during last week's Division IV regional finals at the Indian River Country Club.

Inland Lakes High School carded a 346 to win the regional title and, along with Mio-Au Sable and St. Ignace-LaSalle, advance into next weekend's state championships at Michigan State University.

The top three teams from Friday's 17-team field advanced into the finals.

Mio, St. Ignace and Fairview equaled each other in second place with 355 scores.

Charlevoix scored a 364 which placed them in a seventh place tie with league rival Harbor Springs.

Individually, Keith Grunch led the Rayders with a round of 85. Other Charlevoix scores included

Jon Sell, 91; Dennis Avery, 93; Chris Smith, 95; and Craig Siwarga, 98.

A freshman, Clay Poff of Mio, won the individual regional title shooting a 76 on the par-72 course.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders played in the final Lake Michigan Invitational and placed third, shooting a 347.

Traverse City-St. Francis won the meet with a 328 followed by Harbor Springs in second with a 345. Kalkaska, Boyne City, Elk Rapids and East Jordan were fourth through seventh respectively.

Grunch led the team, shooting an 80 and landing a spot on the all-conference team. Also for the Rayders was Smith, 88; Avery, 88; Siwarga, 91; Sell, 93; and Steve Pirie, 99.

Smith, Avery and Siwarga were named all-conference honorable mention.

Top left: Charlevoix junior Jon Sell pounds his tee shot on the 10th hole en route to a round of 91 at last week's regional finals. Sell's round was the second best of the team.

Top right: Craig Siwarga lifts a tee shot on the 12th hole at the Indian River Country Club. He didn't fare well on this day, carding a 98, but earlier in the week the sophomore earned a spot on the all-conference honorable mention team, shooting a 91 in the Lake Michigan Division Invitational. ## Cross country team earns seven medals

A mishmash of competitors joined the Charlevoix Cross Country Team in competition at last Saturday's Martin Invitational at the Belvedere Golf Club.

Due to a smaller than expected turnout, the Charlevoix boys moved up to the class A-B division while the girls' team remained in the class C-D division.

Regardless of who competed against whom, it was a nice day for the local long distance team as they hauled in a total of seven medals.

Tricia Hodge highlighted the day by winning the girls' race in a time of 21 minutes flat. Hodge battled Petoskey's Katie Tournan the entire race. The lead between the pair changed hands four times during the closing legs before Hodge slipped past the finish line four seconds ahead of her rival.

"It was a pretty fun race to watch," Rayder coach Ken Plude said.

Also winning medals in the girls' race for Charlevoix were Liza Gorkiewicz, fourth; Heather Probert, ninth; Emily Martinus, 13th; and Laura Schairbaum, 14th. Melissa Swem and Melissa Westenhook also competed, finishing 22nd and 24th respectively.

In the final team standings, Charlevoix came out on top ahead of Elk Rapids, East Jordan, Tri-Unity Christian and Traverse City-St. Francis.

The boys' finished in fourth place behind Traverse City Central, East Jordan and Petoskey. Josh and Jeff Popenhagen won medals placing 11th and 12th respectively. Also for Charlevoix were Luke Whitley, 22nd; Gordie Selph, 25th; Allen Keen, 28th; Tom Kennedy, 34th; Jon Tebeau, 39th; Nick Grosberg, 40th; Nick Martinehek, 43rd; and Elijah Pace, 45th.

Also of note for the Rayders was Tiffany Fisher who took top honors in the junior varsity girls' race.

The team's focus is on "higher things," according to Plude, as it readies itself for the conference and regional finals later this month.

The conference finals will be next Tuesday, Oct. 20 at Boyne Mountain.

Lady Rayders lose again

The struggles continued on the hardwood last week as the Charlevoix Lady Rayder basketball team dropped another pair of conference games to East Jordan, 71-38, and Harbor Springs, 62-47.

East Jordan broke open a close 12-9 contest with a 22-5 run to end the first half. Meghan Vogel and Kristy Shindorf paced Charlevoix with eight points apiece.

Against the Rams, Vogel led the team with 13 points and Leslie Hoffman added 12.

The losses drop the team's record to 1-10 overall, 0-6 in conference play.

The junior varsity squad also lost both games last week to East Jordan, 60-52, and Harbor Springs, 42-38. Jennifer McClellan led the team against East Jordan with 13 points followed by 10 points apiece from Kelly Dreyer and Abby Schaperkotter. In the Harbor Springs game, Danielle Vogelheim and Schaperkotter each scored eight points.

Soccer team aims for league title

Both conference and district championships are on the minds of the Rayder soccer players as their regular season gives way to the post season later this week.

After concluding their regular slate with a pair of road contests at Elk Rapids (4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13) and at Houghton Lake (6 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 14), the Rayders will battle for the first-ever Northern Michigan Soccer League title with the Roscommon Bucks.

The game will be at 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 17 at McBain Northern Michigan High School.

The contest will be a rematch of a September battle between the clubs, won by Roscommon, 2-1.

"They (Roscommon) are a good team and it'll be a tough game," Charlevoix coach Josh Block said. "The game can go either way and we're looking forward to it."

Charlevoix earned its spot in the title game by finishing atop the Northern Division standings with a 6-1 record. With one game left to play, Charlevoix is two games ahead of Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian, 4-3.

A 2-1 victory over Burt Lake last week clinched Charlevoix's position. Ryan Vogelheim and Jon Boss tallied the goals for Charlevoix. The Rayders also battled to a 1-1 tie with Harbor Springs last week.

Each team scored on second half penalty kicks with Vogelheim scoring for Charlevoix.

ATTENTION BUSINESSSES:

Make sure the "Yellow Page" bills you receive in the mail are for the real thing.

'Yellow Pages' bills: They look real, but you don't have to pay

By JANE DUNSHIEE
News-Review staff writer

You've heard it before and you'll hear it again. But just in case you've forgotten - here's a refresher. Read the fine print.

At least two internet companies specializing in business listings are sending out solicitations to businesses that look like invoices and bear official-looking logos similar to the yellow pages walking fingers. It's not a bill, and you don't have to pay.

These are not from the local phone book company. One company, Yellow Pages, Inc., has offices in Orange and San Juan Capistrano, Calif., as well as Atlanta, Ga., and Boston, Mass. The other is Yellow True Pages with offices in Indiana, California and other states as well.

And the solicitations, in amounts of $191 and $175, are not for space on a printed yellow phone book page, but for an internet listing which the service already provides for free. According to representatives from each company, the fee is to make the listing more visually appealing by changing the type color and size, and moving the business higher on the list of similar service or product suppliers.

Ed McDonald answered the phone at the San Juan Capistrano, Calif., offices of Yellow Pages, Inc. "A directory like this is only good if it's complete - so every company in the country is listed in it right now," McDonald said.

McDonald estimated there are 17.5 million companies listed in the directory, available by state and type. Upgrading is to make the company stand out among what could be hundreds in any given category.

He said the company has received complaints about the appearance of the solicitation, because it does look like a bill. McDonald said the letter

According to the Better Business Bureau, Colton, Calif. office, this company has a satisfactory business record since its start date March of 1995. As of June 26, no complaints about service, advertising or soliciting practices had been filed.

The other company, Yellow True Pages, was represented by Mike Pfeiffer, also speaking from a California office.

He said the two most common questions he hears are "Aren't all you yellow pages the same company?" and "Is this a bill?"

"Of course, we are quick to point out to them that neither of these is the case," Pfeiffer said.

Part of the confusion stems from the service mark at the top left corner of the solicitations. The logos vary in minor details. One has the fingers walking over a keyboard, the other over a globe. Each is very similar to the logo associated with the successful "Let your fingers do the walking," yellow pages advertising campaign from years ago.

"People don't realize that is a service mark and anyone can use it," he said.

The Better Business Bureau of northeast Indiana has received complaints about this company, which had a start date of April, 1996. Since September of 1996, seven complaints were filed. Five have been closed and assumed satisfied, two were closed as unanswered. According to the Better Business Bureau, how complaints are responded to is just as important as the number of complaints, and the volume of business should be taken into consideration.

Representatives from each web yellow pages company said their goals were not to dupe people, and have cheerfully refunded money sent to them by mistake.

Diabetics especially need to get flu shots

During this year's flu season, the Center for Disease Control is assisting local health professionals throughout the nation to emphasize the importance of the flu shot for people with diabetes. During flu epidemics, people with diabetes are three times more likely than people without diabetes to be hospitalized, and their death rates may increase between 5 and 15 percent. Nationally, 10,000 to 30,000 people with diabetes die annually with the flu or pneumonia. Yet only one out of every two Michigan citizens with diabetes were immunized for the flu during 1997.

People with diabetes and those they live with should receive the flu shot. People should contact their health care professional, the Health Department or TIPDON 1-800-847-3665 for more information about how to get the flu vaccination.

SCRAPBOOK

Death of community member stirs old memories of sledding hill

Submitted by Nick Hamilton of Traverse City

Winter is approaching and nostalgia often plays tricks because we just remember the good times. I recently was reminded of Dodge Hill. A strange connection reminded me of the great sledding hill in Charlevoix. The connection was the recent passing of Bill Lusk.

Anyone who grew up in the '30s remembers Dodge Hill. The city set this hill aside in the winter for all the kids in town. They watered it like a skating rink would be watered, making the hill as fast as possible. Glare ice. All the streets from Huribut Street to Antrim Street.

The bobsleds were homemade from old horse-drawn wagon cutters. One cutter bolted to the front of eight-foot planks and one bolted to the rear. Eight to 10 kids would fit on the sled, with the kid in front using ropes and/or his feet to steer. Three or four kids would start pushing the bobsled from 20 yards back on top and send the sled zooming down the icy surface. The destination was always Lake Michigan. Will it get that far? Four blocks from the bottom of Dodge Hill, then up another hill and down to the lake. (In case you wonder where Dodge Hill is, it is Grant Street from Huribut Street to Antrim Street.)

I got a new sled for Christmas and just had to try it on Dodge Hill, my first-time experience on that hill. It was 1937. I lived just three blocks away so it was a short walk. When I arrived, there was a mob of kids and some grown-ups using the bobsleds. Usually two or more bobsleds were present. I was naturally awe-struck with the excitement. But also there were the strange things some kids were using for the hill.

I remember the "sled" Bill Lusk had. Bill was older than me by five or six years. He had a piece of metal, probably from an old sign. It measured about two feet wide and four feet long. The front was curled up with rope attached to each side. Bill just stood on the screwy thing, holding the rope, and went flying down the hill and not always straight. It would spin him around and it had to be a challenge just to stay on the darned thing. Every time I thought of Bill Lusk in all these years, that event came to mind. But maybe it was also because of what else happened with Bill's invention. Janice Zietler was maybe 3 or 4 years old and a bunch of older kids, including Bill, sat her in his piece of tin and secured her to not fall out. Then they pushed her down the hill and did she go zooming. She was giggling and laughing and spinning all the way and cried when her older sister, Theresa, said "no" to a second trip.

Sleds and toboggans were out in force on a Sunday afternoon in December of 1970 at Grant Street sliding hill. Guards watching the Antrim Street crossing are Art Krulik, Mert Peter and Carl Mitchell.

Pianists open Crooked Tree Arts Council Annual Concert Series

Duo-pianists Claire Aebersold and Ralph Neiweem have performed exclusively as a duo-piano team for more than a decade. At 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11, they'll perform at the Ross Stokes Theater in the McCune Arts Center to open the Crooked Tree Arts Council Annual Concert Series with their award-winning sound.

The duo's concert tours range throughout North America and Europe, where they are frequent performers in Italy, appearing in such cities as Florence, Arezzo, Perugia, Gubbio, Cortona and Rome, in addition to several appearances on Italian television. In Italy they twice received the "II Borro" chamber music prize of the Duke of Aosta for their Schubert performances. Praised as "consummate practitioners of pianism" by the Washington Post, the team's tours in the USA have included over 100 appearances on community series throughout the Midwest, as well as performances throughout the eastern USA, a guest recital at the Knoxville World Fair, and several concerts in Santa Fe, New Mexico. They have been frequent featured artists on WFMT Radio in Chicago, where they performed an unprecedented series of 12 live radio broadcasts covering the gamut of 19th century duet repertoire, including a traversal of the complete four hand works of Franz Schubert. The pair was also the subject of the special program produced and aired by PBS-TV in Indianapolis.

Aebersold and Neiweem are also noted scholars, teachers and lecturers in their field. Recipients of the "Edpress" award for their 1987 article for Clavier, "Music's Amiable Art: the Piano Duo," they have given master classes and presentations on behalf of duo-pianism at more than 20 schools in the past five seasons. Also recording artists, they are preparing a series of CDs on the Centaur label.

Claire Aebersold is a graduate of the New England Conservatory, and Ralph Neiweem of the Julliard School. The two pianists met in Italy at an international music festival, were married in 1973, and make their home in Chicago, where they are members of the artist faculty of Chicago's Music Center of the North Shore. They are founders and directors of the Chicago Duo Piano Festival and Workshop, which debuted in 1989.

In addition to the Aebersold and Neiweem piano duo concert, the Crooked Tree Arts Council Concert Series continues with the Traverse Symphony Orchestra holiday concert Sunday, Dec. 13, Jeff Haas Trio and Friends Saturday, Jan. 9 and concludes with the Irish band Nomos on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. Series tickets are still available for the season. Please call the McCune Arts Center for further information.

Tickets are available for Sunday evening's concert at the McCune Arts Center, 461 East Mitchell St. in downtown Petoskey and at the door before the concert. Prices are $15 for adults and $8 for students through high school age. Call the McCune Arts Center at 347-4337 for more information.

It doesn't get any better than this

Clockwise, from upper left: When Applefest visitors finished their shopping Sunday, they were able to turn their attention to the Charlevoix Yacht Club races on Round Lake.

This beautiful array of pumpkins and gourds didn't last long, as shoppers quickly snapped up the produce to take home with them.

This wind chime, made of silverware, was one of the thousands of crafts available at Applefest this year. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

Public alarm system will no longer be heard from Big Rock

By Laurie Lounsbury

Consumer's Energy will save $230,000 when they stop operating their emergency broadcast system at Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant.

However, an accident in the spent fuel pool, even one year to two years after the plant shut down, could result in 15,300 slow cancer deaths, a radiation release covering up to a 50 mile radius, 140 square miles of condemned land and a clean-up operation costing $48 billion.

That was the determination made by Brookhaven National Laboratory in Upton, New York. The group submitted a report to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) in August of 1997, which studied the consequences of an accident in the spent fuel pool at a shut down plant.

"When compared to 15,300 deaths and $48 billion to clean up, that $230,000 for an alarm system is a relatively inexpensive insurance policy," said David Lochbaum, a nuclear engineer with the Union of Concerned Scientists.

The sirens and broadcast messages, which have become a routine part of life near Big Rock, have been heard at noon on the first Saturday of every month. The system is designed to warn the public of a radioactive release at Big Rock Point.

Big Rock Point employees, with the regulatory commission's approval, determined that the emergency system is no longer necessary.

Jan Strasma, a spokesperson for the regulatory commission, said that if all the water was drained out of the spent fuel pool at Big Rock Point, there wouldn't be enough heat generated by the decaying fuel to create a significant release of radioactivity.

"That's probably correct," Lochbaum said. "If a spent fuel pool is drained completely dry, you

Don Smith and Christa-Maria face off for the county commission seat

By Jamie MacMillan

The race for Charlevoix County's District No. 5 seat will pit a pair of local school teachers.

Don Smith, a Republican and history/economics teacher at Petoskey High School, will square off against Christa-Maria, a Democrat and math/conversational German teacher at Charlevoix's Northwest Academy, in next month's race for the fifth district seat of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

The fifth district includes Charlevoix, Marion, Norwood and Evcline townships.

Joan Blanchard currently holds the position, but was defeated by Smith in the Republican Party primary back in August by a vote of 300-263.

If elected, it will be a sequel of sorts for Smith, who served on the board for 14 years from 1982-1996, including a five-year stint as the board's chairman. Smith lost his seat to Blanchard in 1996.

Entering this year's November general election, Smith maintains a three-pronged platform: lower millage rates, elimination of commissioner

Smith said it would be slow going to reduce millage rates and should only happen once the county has paid for its jail expansion project. After that, the county should keep in its reserves the amount of one-half of the county's total operating expenses. Any money left over would be used to trim millage rates, he said.

He also would get rid of health benefits for the county commissioners. As part-time public servants, members of the six person board shouldn't receive health benefits at the tax payers' expense, he said.

In past years on the board, however, Smith supported benefits for both current commissioners and retired commissioners.

Smith suggested using that money in other ways, notably hiring a solid waste inspector to make sure that officials at Waste Management's Cedar Ridge landfill were adhering to rules and regulations laid out in the county's solid waste plan.

He is against the landfill's expansion and pointed out that expansion has become an issue because the landfill company has been import-

The Friends of the Pool have requested financial help from several townships and the county. They are also planning to visit the City of Charlevoix to ask for a contractual fee for operating the pool at a reasonable cost to residents.

get a chimney effect where hot air rises and draws cool air up, creating a convection flow to cool the spent fuel.

"A leak in the spent fuel pool would be worse. Some water would remain in the spent fuel pool and you wouldn't get that air flow. Then the heat could damage the metal cladding on the spent fuel and a significant dose of radiation would be released."

The Brookhaven study was based on the premise of a shut down plant with spent fuel in various stages of decay.

Big Rock Point would fall into the category of having cold fuel in the spent fuel pool.

Cold fuel is defined as fuel that has spent one to two years in the spent fuel pool. The fuel in the nuclear reactor was loaded into the spent fuel pool at the end of September, 1997, which means it has been cooling about three weeks longer than the minimum requirement to be considered cold fuel.

The Brookhaven study simulated the consequences of a fuel handling accident in the spent fuel pool. In their scenario, a single fuel assembly is dropped, resulting in damage to 100 percent of the rods in the assembly.

Put simply, the study said that the probability of an accident is far lower than the cost of being prepared for an accident.

That is disturbing to the Union of Concerned Scientists.

"I don't think it's alarmist to point out the consequences of an accident, regardless of probability," Lochbaum said. "I remember receiving a report in 1979 that said the probability of a serious accident at an operating nuclear power plant is one in 10,000 years. Three weeks later, we had Three Mile Island."

Lochbaum went on to say that Brookhaven is a laboratory that has no practical experience with nuclear power plants.

"Brookhaven is very good with math applications of fundamentals, but they don't have hands-on experience of what happens at plants," Lochbaum said.

He went on to cite an incident at Big Rock Point to support his statement.

"The plant operated for at least 14 years with a broken pipe in their backup safety system," Lochbaum said. "That's the sort of thing Brookhaven fails to take into consideration when they calculate the probability of an accident."

At Big Rock, the discovery of a broken pipe in the reactor safety backup system occurred in March of 1998. According to laboratory tests, the pipe was improperly covered with a coating designed to protect it from corroding. The pipe broke sometime between 1979 and 1984. Because it was in a location that was not easily accessible, it was not visually inspected while the plant was operating. It was only while workers were dismantling the plant that they discovered it.

Big Rock Point wasn't fined by the regulatory commission for the violation because it was discovered after the plant shut down and didn't pose a threat to people's safety, according to the NRC.

"The NRC's focus is always on operating plants, where there is the greatest risk of an accident," Lochbaum said. "We've had zero success in getting them to look at shut down plants."

Lochbaum noted that operating plants are required to pay nearly $3 million to the regulatory commission for oversight. Shut down plants, such as Big Rock Point, are no longer required to pay a fee to the NRC, and get little oversight in return for the lack of payment.

"Shut down plants aren't worth their time or attention, and I don't think that's fair to the public," Lochbaum said. "We call it NRC overlook, not oversight."

"The NRC's approach has been to prevent second accidents. They let the first one happen and then make sure it doesn't happen again. We don't want that type of tombstone regulation."

Big Rock Point's emergency broadcast alarms will sound at noon Saturday, Nov. 7 for the last time.

Coats for Kids drive starts

The Glen's stores in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan and the two Petoskey stores have agreed to participate as a drop off point for the Coats for Kids project. The Glen's stores will be putting out a Coats for Kids box as a way for the public to donate coats. A certified volunteer from the Charlevoix and Emmet County Family Independence Agency will be picking up the coats weekly and transporting the coats to the East Jordan Care and Share.

These coats (and other clothing items) will be given away at the East Jordan Care and Share from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Nov. 16, in the basement of the East Jordan Health Center, at 601 Bridge St. in East Jordan. All Charlevoix and Emmet county residents are welcome.

Any questions regarding Coats for Kids can be directed to Margaret Thompson or Linda Silver at 547-3726.

Pool supporters are seeking assistance from local government

By Jamie MacMillan

In an attempt to cover a shortfall of $20,000 in their budget, officials from the Charlevoix Community Pool have been making the rounds asking local governments to help with funding.

Despite having a positive cash flow of $1,645 during the four month period from March to June, pool officials still foresee a 1999 budget which will outspend incoming revenues by $20,000.

To help cover those costs, the pool's board of directors has proposed a plan which has Hayes Township, Charlevoix Township, Charlevoix County and the City of Charlevoix sharing the cost, based on their respective budgets.

"If we have a $20,000 shortfall each year, then we will have to raise our fees just to break even," board member Bruce MacArthur told the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week.

Pool officials were at the county meeting last week asking the county board for $7,200, about 36 percent of the pool's projected loss.

In return for the financial help, the pool's board offered a contract which would prevent the pool from raising any fees for residents in the areas that gave them help.

The contract doesn't prevent the pool from raising fees for out-of-town users, but MacArthur told the county board it was the intent to just keep one set of rates.

The pool charges between $2-$3 for single visits based on age and also offers various individual passes from $36-$165 based on age and the time length of the pass.

Hayes Township approved doling out $620 to the pool. Meanwhile, Charlevoix Township tabled a motion to give $1,480 until its board members have a chance to review the contract.

Pool officials will ask the City of Charlevoix for $10,600 later this month, MacArthur said.

While the county board took no action on the matter, they didn't appear ready to write the pool a check.

"We represent the whole county," commissioner James Behling, whose district covers southeast Charlevoix County, said. "I represent five townships on the other side that have no use for the pool."

Board chairman Phil Johnson said giving money to the pool could snowball, with other community organizations asking for equal due. He compared it to giving only one county department head a big raise and not the others.

"I don't know for sure if I could do that," he said. "Any local government can go with it, but this is not a county function."

MacArthur told the board his organization is different from others that might come calling because the pool already is built and has been in operation for over a year.

"You could be setting a good precedent," he said.

Commissioner Joan Blanchard said she could favor the action because residents in her district use the pool, but she questioned why other local townships like Norwood, Marion and Eveline were not included in the pool's proposal.

MacArthur said pool officials will not pursue the proposal unless every governmental body is on board.

"We're not sure if we'll get anywhere with this, but I felt obligated to try," he said.

The county board next meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 28.

OPINIONS

People should be able to die when they're ready to go

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

When I went to visit my Uncle Ruhl, he was sitting by himself in a special cafeteria of the nursing home. It was a lonely, isolated place with linoleum floors, removed from the carpeted dining area for other residents.

His wheelchair was pulled up to a formica-topped table, where he was finishing a meal of bland white mush.

I think it was tapioca or Cream of Wheat.

Under the fluorescent lights, he looked jaundiced as he labored to swallow his food.

Uncle Ruhl has a problem with his esophagus, so he can't swallow regular bite-sized pieces of food. Since he needs supervision while eating, he has to eat in the special little cafeteria.

That's the least of his problems. The man slumped in his wheelchair was not the Uncle Ruhl I remembered from my youth.

The Uncle Ruhl I remember was devilishly quick-witted, a hot-air popper of humor.

As kids, we clamored like a litter of puppies to be the object of Uncle Ruhl's affectionate jokes.

That Uncle Ruhl doesn't exist anymore.

He tried to die of a massive heart attack several years ago, but medical science wouldn't let him go.

After a long and arduous recovery period, Uncle Ruhl is now confined to a wheelchair in the medical unit of a retirement complex.

He has Alzheimer's disease.

He can't eat.

He can't walk.

His rollicking sense of humor died while the rest of him survived.

I went to visit Uncle Ruhl with my two children, who stood by awkwardly while I tried to make conversation with the tired old man. He desperately clutched my hand while we talked.

"I'd eat my foot but I can't swallow anything that big," he told me.

"Oh, I see you haven't lost your sense of humor," I replied. I wasn't sure what he meant by that comment, but it sounded like it was meant as a joke.

It wasn't.

"I'd eat my hand, I'd eat my foot, but I can't," he said again.

He gazed at me through watery eyes.

"I used to have a good life once. Now I have nothing. They won't let me go. I'm trapped."

I wasn't quite sure where the conversation was going, and I wasn't sure I wanted to know, but I plodded ahead.

"Uncle Ruhl, what are you saying? You don't like it here?"

"I can't eat my hand, I can't eat my foot. Animals can do that when they're trapped, but I can't."

With shocking clarity, I realized what Uncle Ruhl was telling me.

His life was so miserable that he would gnaw off one of his limbs to get out of the bear claw trap of his artificially extended life.

What are we doing to our parents and grandparents? Do our medical geniuses realize what a monster they've created?

If Uncle Ruhl had died quickly and quietly with that heart attack a few years back, he would have died with dignity, with grace, and with his happy memories intact.

People opposed to physician-assisted suicide claim that ending a life is God's decision or God's will.

Perhaps it was God's will for Uncle Ruhl to die with that heart attack.

But medical science imposed its will upon him and kept him alive so that he can suffer quietly in a nursing home wheelchair.

What sense does that make?

Proposal B is a physician-assisted suicide bill that will appear on the ballot in November. It allows physicians to give a lethal dose of medication to people who have been diagnosed as terminally ill with no more than six months to live, and are of a sound state of mind and not depressed.

OK, I'll go along with that.

But what about people like Uncle Ruhl? He's not terminally ill — he's terminally well.

If that heart attack didn't get him, what will? Medical science will be able to keep him alive indefinitely — a brittle collection of bones and soft tissue encased in nursing home-refrigerated skin. His mind is going — it will soon be gone, yet he will continue to live.

Is that really living?

It's happening more and more often.

An elderly person living independently finds themselves taking an ambulance ride to the hospital for one reason or another. Maybe they fell and broke a hip.

Maybe they had a nasty case of bronchitis.

Once they fall into the clutches of the medical system, they're doomed. They end up in some sort of medical facility where their lives are artificially extended indefinitely.

ly.

Are they happy? Find the answer to that for yourself. Take a visit to an old folks' home. Do you see anyone smiling?

I'm not blaming the people who work in nursing homes. They do their best to make the lives of old, deteriorating people as pleasant as possible.

They wheel them on walks, bring in school bands to entertain them, and have cheerful holiday parties for them.

The old people don't smile.

Bill Clinton himself could strip naked and streak through a nursing home singing "I'm too Sexy For My Oval Office" yet I doubt if even one old person would crack a smile.

Proposal B is a teeny, tiny step toward letting people die on their own terms, when they're ready to go, not when medical science finally releases them. It provides a dignified escape from terminal illness.

The next step is to find a solution for elderly people suffering with terminal wellness.

It is our generation's responsibility to figure out a solution to this problem. Otherwise, there will be an unprecedented number of baby boomers lingering in nursing homes, sucking up the bulk of the medical dollars available to the country.

I'm voting yes on Proposal B. It's not much, but it's a start.

They presented their perception of what they believed would prove that Larry's hate was based on what he was told about the family estate. I don't understand why the family is still upset. They were successful in what they set out to do. The jury was not able to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that what Larry did was racially motivated. Larry is a free man. The estate was settled one-and-one-half years ago. They had the opportunity to say everything they wanted to against Bonnie in a public forum and it got printed in the newspapers. She will be left to deal with her feelings about what people believe about her. She will still have the respect of those of us who know her for who she really is and understand her sincere motives while taking care of her parents. We believe that the truth will be known at some time in the future and everyone involved will have to deal with it.

Cecil and Ilene Drost were loved by many people in the community. They influenced a lot of people and their influence was not bought with money. They had influence because of their character and integrity, and willingness to give of themselves to people who mattered to them. Sometimes those people were the unnoticed and underprivileged in the community. It meant spending late hours in hospital rooms and jail cells. The Bible tells us that good character is not a product of good works but rather, good works are a product of good character. The fiercely competitive spirit in this town sometimes gives us the impression that money leads to more friends and more influence. This is a dangerous road to go down if what matters to you is to do God's will. Cecil and Ilene stood for something different than that.

Lastly, I would like to say that I am thankful that this town has a prosecutor who was willing to face this issue head-on. She did her best to bring out the truth and addressed the real issues when presenting her arguments to the jury. The definition of the law was difficult and there is very little precedent to go by. Also, the jury's instructions were long and complex and she was debated from every angle possible by the defense. I have a huge amount of admiration for her ability to do her job professionally and thoroughly.

I hope that the controversy in the newspaper will soon be over. I hope whatever makes it to the media in the future will be more positive and fair. Once again I thank the Charlevoix Courier for trying to print the truth from an objective standpoint. Grandparents of Larry Drost should have had a will

Editor:
Regarding your opinion last week — Once again you have used your newspaper to promot your personal agenda. Your newspaper has lost all its credibility in the eyes of many people. Once again you print a very biased article and skim over the most important facts that tell the real story. I don't think you really want the facts just the sensationalism. While you condemn Larry Drost for using slurs, you do the exact same thing by calling him a cowpoke. But I guess if used in the newspaper to make a better story, then that makes it all right to do.

Have you ever met Larry? If you had, you would know that he is a loving husband and father to four small children who does not deserve your attack on him. If you had attended his trial you might have learned something from it. You would have heard how this powerful man (Dennis) harassed Larry by telling him that "his Grandpa loved his children more and that's why he left them everything," while flaunting the things that he purchased with his grandparents' money, while he continued to tell Larry's dad, uncle and aunt that "everything belonged to them and there was nothing that they could do about it." Put yourself in Larry's position, how would you feel if someone had tricked you out of your inheritance, stole your family's good name and continued to hold on to your dad's own personal things left in the family home including things that belonged to your dead sister.

Do you really feel Larry called him a wagonburner because he does not like Native Americans? Any idiot can see that!!! If you would have attended the trial you would have also noticed that all the family (and extended family) support was on Larry's side.

So Mrs. Lounsbury if you want to do something good for Charlevoix, write an article on the importance of having a will and not putting your trust in one of your children to carry out your wishes. Cecil and Ilene Drost were wonderful loving parents who loved all four of their children equally. They thought that they had the perfect estate plan.

Please get the facts before you write an article and run a young father's name through the mud. Larry has been through enough already.

Reader says racial slurs are a Constitutional right

Letter to the editor:
I was raised in Charlevoix. This town is the closest thing to Garrison Keilor's Lake Wobegone I have ever seen, and I've been to towns large and small throughout the United States. Until recent years, and recent economic growth, this town has remained much the same in character and strength of character.

A point by point analysis of the editorial content of the piece printed 10/07/1998 (Is intimidation the issue? Or is quiet bigotry the problem?) would result in a lengthy diatribe that could not be contained within the bounds of the space provided for this letter. So I will cut to the chase of what everyone in town already knows... the opinion expressed by Laurie Lounsbury was, in and of itself, intimidating, bigoted, and far less than editorially responsible. I would certainly expect this kind of writing in The National Enquirer.

A few major points need to be made to support my accusation. I spend more time investigating the issue than Ms. Lounsbury. I talked to 5 local townspeople, including Cecil Drost Jr., read the front page article and the editorial in question. Ms. Lounsbury sat through a small portion of the closing arguments of a four-day trial by jury to draw her politically correct but factually vacuous conclusions. She then placed these conclusions in a public forum where they become a matter of public record.

Reader appreciates Courier editorial

Dear Editor:
First I would like to apologize for not being more prompt in commending you for the fine job on your editorial in the Oct. 7 issue of the Charlevoix Courier. I appreciate your objective point of view and the succinct manner in which you expressed it.

When I saw the responses by members of Larry Drost's "family," I was surprised that they continued to use the public forum of the newspaper to further berate Bonnie Dominic. Before this case went to court, the family of Larry Drost was very concerned about dragging his name through the mud and even one of the family members went so far as to write to the Petoskey News-Review to publicly state that this was a "family matter" and that somehow justified his behavior.

When I realized the criticism that you were taking for expressing your opinion which some of us happened to relate to, I was sorry that I had not responded to the article in a positive fashion so that you would know that you were not alone in your perception of the bigotry that appears to be taking place in Charlevoix.

I found it ironic that family members would insinuate that an objective view printed in the newspaper could have an effect on this community's ability to be or not be a close and loving group of people. Anyone who has been paying attention can see that the social demographics of this town have changed drastically over the last 25 years. I could go into great detail why I think that the animosity toward the Native Americans has reached an all time high, however the issue at hand is "how does that affect this case?" and "does the new ethnic intimidation law apply because of Larry's personal feelings and actions?"

One of my greatest concerns in this whole case is: what is the motivation of a whole group of people who go to court to support someone who has behaved in the manner that Larry Drost has? It is true that the jury found him not guilty of ethnic intimidation. For those in the courtroom, they heard what was said. For those who read it in the newspaper, they had to make what they believed to be an educated guess based on what was printed. What they didn't see was the parade of witnesses for the defense who appeared on a stage set for the dramatization of their gripes against Bonnie Dominic.

They presented their perception of what they believed would prove that Larry's hate was based on what he was told about the family estate. I don't understand why the family is still upset. They were successful in what they set out to do. The jury was not able to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that what Larry did was racially motivated. Larry is a free man. The estate was settled one-and-one-half years ago. They had the opportunity to say everything they wanted to against Bonnie in a public forum and it got printed in the newspapers. She will be left to deal with her feelings about what people believe about her. She will still have the respect of those of us who know her for who she really is and understand her sincere motives while taking care of her parents. We believe that the truth will be known at some time in the future and everyone involved will have to deal with it.

Cecil and Ilene Drost were loved by many people in the community. They influenced a lot of people and their influence was not bought with money. They had influence because of their character and integrity, and willingness to give of themselves to people who mattered to them. Sometimes those people were the unnoticed and underprivileged in the community. It meant spending late hours in hospital rooms and jail cells. The Bible tells us that good character is not a product of good works but rather, good works are a product of good character. The fiercely competitive spirit in this town sometimes gives us the impression that money leads to more friends and more influence. This is a dangerous road to go down if what matters to you is to do God's will. Cecil and Ilene stood for something different than that.

Lastly, I would like to say that I am thankful that this town has a prosecutor who was willing to face this issue head-on. She did her best to bring out the truth and addressed the real issues when presenting her arguments to the jury. The definition of the law was difficult and there is very little precedent to go by. Also, the jury's instructions were long and complex and she was debated from every angle possible by the defense. I have a huge amount of admiration for her ability to do her job professionally and thoroughly.

I hope that the controversy in the newspaper will soon be over. I hope whatever makes it to the media in the future will be more positive and fair. Once again I thank the Charlevoix Courier for trying to print the truth from an objective standpoint. I am sure you will continue to sell papers and need not feel threatened by a few people who don't like what you say.

Charlevoix adult education classes starting this week

The fall Charlevoix Community Education classes began the week of Oct. 19. On six consecutive Monday evenings, popular local artisan Glenda Conlan will teach Stained Glass and all skill levels are welcome. Also on Monday evenings, Judy Clock, expert seamstress with patient enthusiasm for helping others, will teach Basic Sewing for seven weeks, and all skill levels are welcome. On Tuesdays starting Oct. 27, John Doskoch, certified financial planner who has taught classes at the University of Alaska as well as many classes in Charlevoix, will teach a two week class entitled Mutual Funds for Long Term Goals. This is a wonderful chance to gain critical information in a risk-free, economical manner.

Wednesday evenings there will be an opportunity to learn Spanish from a native speaker when Jisell Lopez teaches Conversational Spanish, an introductory class for beginners but also useful to those who wish to refresh their Spanish skills.

Suzanne Dalton, a nationally known artist with a real knack for gardening, will present a delightful slide show of her spring bulb garden in bloom on Oct. 21. This class, Designing with Spring Bulbs, comes at just the time of year to give people incentive to get out and plant bulbs.

Scott Mays has successfully introduced many people to the Internet. On Nov. 4 and again on Dec. 9, he will again offer a three hour Introduction to the World Wide Web class.

Experienced instructor Evelyn Wujcik is teaching Beginning Band for Adults, with an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 22 in the Charlevoix High School study hall. This is for people who always wanted to play a band instrument or for those who played at one time and would like to play again.

Fridays are for dancing! Ballroom dancing, that is. Take your partner to the Charlevoix Middle School starting Nov. 13 and learn or relearn the waltz, fox trot, jitterbug and maybe the tango, polka or cha cha. On the fourth Friday, Dec. 11, everyone is invited to the Charlevoix Elementary School for a hall room dance. Instructor Marie Volovsek will provide a quick refresher class from 8:30-9 p.m. Then, from 9-11 p.m., you can dance, dance, dance. The cost for the dance is $5 for couples, $3 for singles.

Call Marlynn Hughes, director at 547-3161 or 536-2113 for more information regarding class times, to enroll, or if you are interested in teaching or taking a class not listed.

Dale and Jewel Martin recently paid a visit to their former home town of Charlevoix. While in town, they visited Sheriff George Lasater, who gave them deputy sheriff outfits. The couple called on friends in Charlevoix decked out in their new duds. (Photo courtesy of Rick Wertz)

Gershwin gala still has seats

It's not too late to get reservations for the George Gershwin Gala Dinner Dance sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

The dinner dance, which will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24 at the Boyne Highlands Convention Center, will feature a tribute to Gershwin performed by Larry Wojcik's Orchestra. Vocalist will be Julie Pierpont and Marie Volovsek will perform a dance exhibition.

The evening's menu includes "Of Thee I Sing" salad, "S'wonderful" chicken boursin with lingonberry or coulis/beef tenderloin, "Delishious" rice medley, "They Can't Take That Away From Me" acorn squash, "Love Walked In" dinner roll, Rhaps-berry Torte and beverages.

Tickets are $50 per person and include dinner, dancing and wine. Black tie is optional and valet parking is available.

To make a reservation, call 347-4337.

Obituaries

Donald Lee Farrell

Donald Lee Farrell, 55, of Downers Grove, Ill., and formerly of Charlevoix, died Monday, Oct. 12, 1998, at his home in Downers Grove.

The funeral service was Friday, Oct. 16 at the Bell-tower Reformed Church in Ellsworth. The Rev. Tom Welscott officiated, along with the Rev. James P. Hayden of Immaculate Conception Church in Traverse City. Burial was in Lakeview Cemetery, Torch Lake Township, Antrim County.

Donald was born March 14, 1943 in Charlevoix, the son of Donald G. and Lizzie (Brock) Farrell. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1961, then served with the U.S. Army in Vietnam.

He married the former Suzanne Simmons, and she survives.

Donald was a graduate of Humboldt Institute in Minneapolis, Minn., and worked for the Burlington Railroad in Chicago, Ill., and in St. Paul, Minn. Most recently, he worked as a rate analyst for Alliance Shipper out of Palos Park, Ill.

Donald made his home in Downers Grove since 1965.

Survivors include his wife, Suzanne, of Downers Grove; one son, Daniel Farrell and his wife, Sharon, of Mundelein, Ill.; one daughter, Renec Moreland and her husband, Greg, of Crystal Lane, Ill.; one grandson, Ryan Daniel Farrell; father, Donald G. Farrell, of Charlevoix; three sisters, Dolly Louiselle and her husband, Thomas, Sherrie Loucks and her husband, John, all of Charlevoix, and Patricia Sokolowski her friend, Raymond Renkewicz of East Jordan; and a stepbrother, Michael Bade of Holland, Mich.

Donald was preceded in death by his mother, Lizzie.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the American Heart Association. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Theresa "Tess" Bour

Theresa "Tess" Bour, 76, of Owosso, died Sunday, Oct. 18, 1998 at Memorial Healthcare Center in Owosso.

Funeral services were Oct. 21 at the First United Methodist church Chapel in Owosso.

Tess was born Oct. 23, 1921 in Flint, the daughter of Harold K. and Viola (Ayliff) Allen. On Feb. 5, 1944, she married Lester A. Bour in Flint.

She lived in Owosso since 1945, where she was a member of the First United Methodist Church, the Owosso City Club, and the Owosso Country Club where she enjoyed the Wednesday Bridge Club and loved golfing.

She enjoyed fishing and the beaches of Gulf Shores, Ala. She was an active member in the Gulf Shores Oyster Bay Bridge Club.

BEACONS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

His name is Fred Tuttle. He is 79 years old and he is a Republican nominee for the U.S. Senate in the state of Vermont. How he got there is an intriguing story. You see, Fred is the star of a PBS movie called "Man with a Plan." It's about a dairy farmer who needs money and decides to run for Congress in order to get it and he wins. Well, the folks who made Fred's film thought, what if he did it for real? So they convinced Fred to run for Senate.

His primary opponent was a fellow who moved to Vermont from Massachusetts specifically to run for the seat. You'd think a professional politician would have no trouble eating farmer Fred alive in a campaign. Well, the professional politician goofed when it came to tangling with Fred.

You see, the Johnny-come-lately had bought a farm for his residence. And not just any farm, but a dairy farm. In a public debate, Fred asked the outsider if he knew how many, shall we say, things there were on the business end of a Jersey cow and how many things were on the business end of a Holstein cow. The outsider said six and Fred said, "Why everybody knows that all cows only have four." The whole state heard that replayed over and over again and before you know it, 79-year-old Fred was the nominee for Senate.

Now Fred does not expect to be elected this fall. He's running against Patrick Leahy, a well-respected Senate veteran, but that's not really the point. If a 79-year-old man can do something like that, what's stopping us? What's stopping you from being all you can be in life and especially as God's child? Too many of us say we can't when everything about God's work in our lives should tell us we can. What seems impossible to us is surprisingly routine for the One who knows us best and loves us most.

Everything about our faith says there is hope. The Apostle Paul said that Christ came to lay the foundation of God's hope among the Jews to confirm all of the promises the Lord had made. And then that same hope would throw open the door to the Gentiles, to everyone who would be willing to believe, to you and me. The heritage of our faith is a rich one, one that has touched lives and changed hearts in some amazing ways. That's not just a pastoral cliché. If you are a believer, you should be able to confirm what God's hope has brought to your life in one form or another. The question is, will you? Somebody is waiting to hear what the Lord has done for you.

In the tail end of his letter to the Romans, Paul prayed, "May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace as you trust in Him, so that you may overflow with hope by the power of His Holy Spirit." You have every reason to look up and every reason to be encouraged. You have every reason to give thanks and every reason to believe. You are a child of the King and the Lord is at work in your heart. He will work even more if you remember that your main mission and ministry has always lain in sharing God's hope.

If they call on you, the items they will be looking for include toilet paper, shampoo, bar soap, dish soap, toothpaste, band-aids, diapers, diaper wipes, and diaper rash ointment. Thank you for helping our community youth programs.

Church concludes its fund-raising campaign

The First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, of Charlevoix is in the midst of the final week of its Faith Moving Forward campaign for renovation and expansion. Through October the congregation has been uplifted by the testimony of witnessing stewards of all ages. The sermons of resident pastors Phil Schairbaum and John Porter and consulting pastor Andrew White, representative of the UCC Development Services, have empowered members and friends to commit themselves to support the future of the 116-year-old church.

This week Andrew White is on hand to inspire, to guide and to train church leaders for Celebration Sunday, Oct. 25. Visiting stewards will be prepared to call on those not already contacted between 2 and 5 p.m. that afternoon. Then the entire church family is invited to gather at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 25 for a Thanksgiving Celebration.

Safe Harbor starts new youth group for all faiths

Safe Harbor Baptist Church has been chartered for the Awana Club International Interdenominational Program.

The Awana Club Program consists of game time, handbook and council time with the goal of reaching the boys and girls with the gospel of Christ and teaching them to serve Him.

Awana Club is community-oriented and you do not have to be a member at Safe Harbor Baptist Church to join. All children are welcome and encouraged to enjoy the fun and joy. Awana night is from 6:30 to 8 p.m. every Wednesday night at 06046 Old US 31 South.

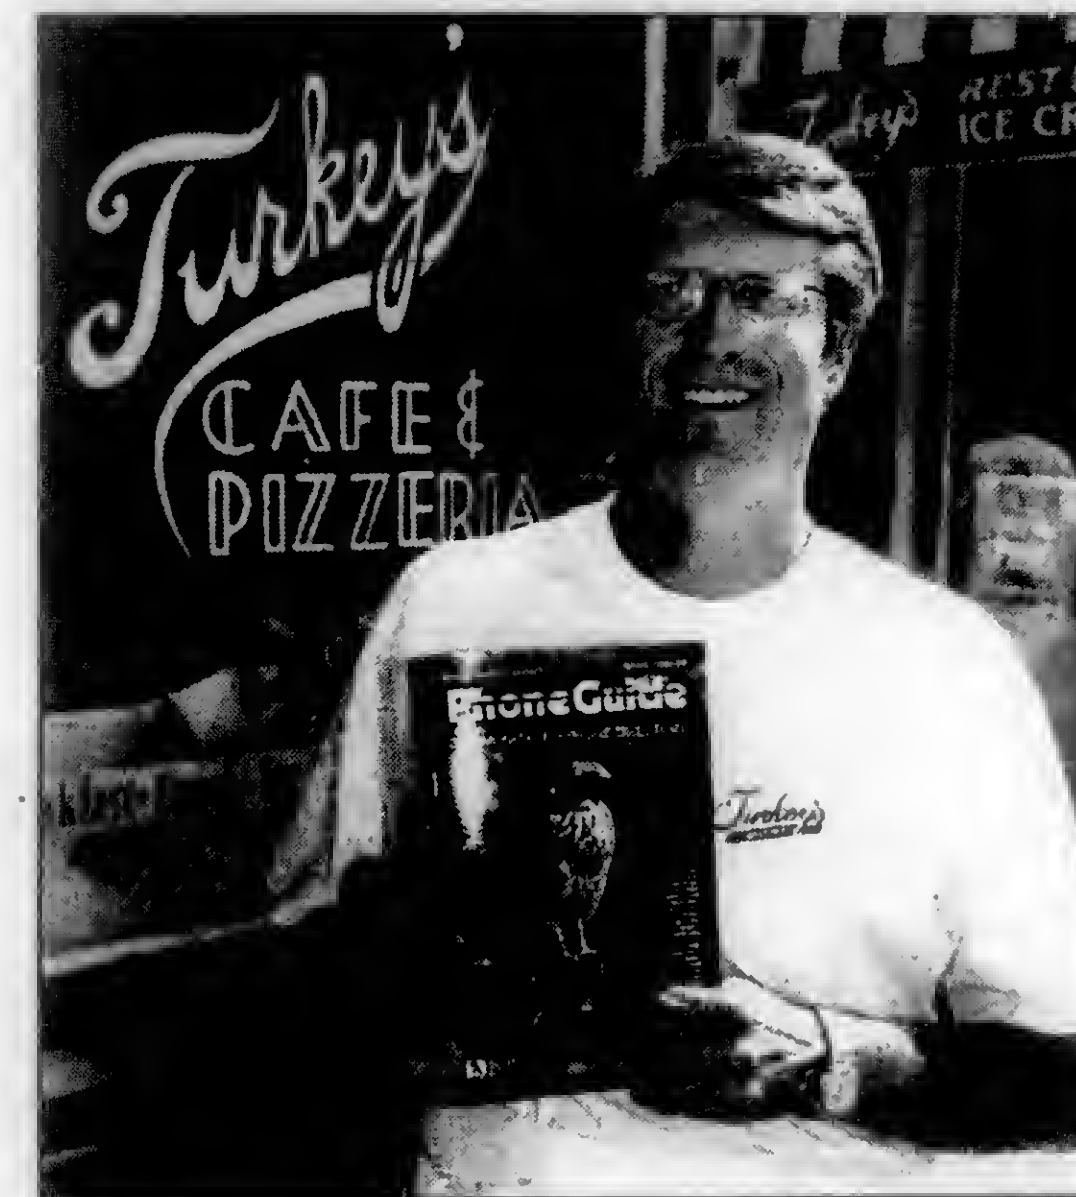

For more information call Eileen Bowman at 547-4414 or Tina Wiseman at 582-0413.

Christmas Bazaar in Boyne Falls

The Boyne Falls United Methodist Church will be hosting their annual Christmas Bazaar from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31. There will be arts and crafts, Christmas crafts, baked goods and a children's corner. A full chicken luncheon will be served. The cost is $3.50 for adults, $1.75 for children 6-12 years old, and children under 5 are free.

The Boyne Falls United Methodist Church is located on the corner of Center and Mill streets, two blocks east of U.S. 131.

Don't forget about Halloween dances

There will be a Teen Dance from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday, Oct. 30 and an Adult Dance from 9 p.m. to midnight Saturday, Oct. 31, at B.A.S.E.S. Teen Center, 208 W. Lincoln St. in Charlevoix. A deejay, "Big Daddy," will provide music. Cost is $3 for members and $5 for non-members. The cost for the adult dance is $5.

Sheriff: have a safe Halloween

The big day is almost here. The costumes are ready and the children of Charlevoix County are ready to haunt the street. The Michigan Sheriffs' Association and Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to take this opportunity to remind parents and children that fun can turn to tragedy if proper precautions are not used.

"It's really a matter of common sense," said Sheriff Lasater. "There are things you really need to watch for when allowing your kids to go trick or treating."

The Sheriff offers these tips to make your child's Halloween a safe and fun one:

- Young children should be escorted by an adult, and should go out before dark.

- Costumes should not be too restrictive; masks that cover the entire face and restrict vision should not be used.

- When designing or purchasing a costume, use reflective or light colored materials.

- Older children should still be supervised by an adult, but if that is not possible, a time limit should be set.

- Never let children go into a neighborhood that they and you are unfamiliar with.

- Encourage children not to eat their treats while trick-or-treating, wait until they bring them home so it can be inspected.

- Discard any unwrapped candy or anything that looks as if it may have been tampered with.

Tragedies occur that could have been avoided by simply following the rules of common sense.

"We hear of reports from around the state of children either finding foreign objects in their candy, or of kids being approached by strangers," said Lasater.

"We can make sure that these types of incidents don't happen in our community by using the precautionary methods outlined here.

Ms. Lounsbury makes quite an issue of the 'rightness' of using racial slurs. Ms. Lounsbury should become more acquainted with the freedoms of speech protected under the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. I, personally, will grant that it is rude to use racial slurs in any context, but it is, indeed, a Constitutional RIGHT. It is for this reason that Louis Farrakan can mouth his drivel and the Ku Klux Klan can gather on statehouse steps and infuriate the masses.

I take umbrage with bleeding heart liberals with no street smarts who think every case of blatantly human behavior becomes an issue for a special interest minority. Indians came to this land over the Bearing Strait a very long time ago. They routinely stole women from neighboring tribes to maintain a mixed gene pool. They eventually were overrun by other humans by sheer force of numbers. This kind of thing has happened throughout human history. In most cases, the native population becomes assimilated into the invading population. Only in recent history has there even been an attempt to try to reverse this process by setting up reservations (in the case of American Indians) or the re-establishment of a home land (Israel in 1948).

I had nothing to do with any of this. I heard a minister preach on racial reconciliation once. I loved the sound of his words: "Brother, we may have all come over on different boats, but we're all in the same boat now."

p.s. Ms. Lounsbury, my wife has Apache blood coursing through her veins, and she can kick your husband's butt back to Siberia where it came from!

Catholic Church shouldn't speak out on Proposal B

Editor:
On Sept. 2 my local paper carried a report that Gary Bauer, of the Family Research Council, in speaking at a Right-to-Life fundraiser, told constituents he would rather they give money to defeat Proposal B in Michigan than to give to his national organization. On Sept. 9 the same paper carried a report that a nationwide group, the Christian Medical and Dental Society, is organizing to try to defeat the Michigan proposal. On the 30th it was announced that Roman Catholic leaders in the state are intensifying efforts to defeat Proposal B by sending videotapes of Cardinal Maida denouncing it to parishes in the region. A blizzard of TV ads against the proposal began Sept. 14.

This disturbs me. I realize the Catholic church has doctrinal prohibitions against contraception, abortion, suicide and perhaps many other things. This is perfectly acceptable because we live in a country in which religious freedom is held in high esteem; members of the faith are free to respond to these prohibitions. BUT, these pronouncements and publicity efforts, such as the TV ads against the referendum, are not directed at Catholic parishioners! Cardinal Maida is not simply telling his parishioners they must refrain from suicide even when suffering through to an imminent death. He and all the religiously righteous are trying to defeat Proposition B so that all faiths are forced to live by the Roman Catholic doctrine.

They are not honoring the American doctrine of the separation of church and state. They are not honoring the LAW that tax exempt churches and charitable institutions are not to participate in political activities. And worst of all, they are not honoring our wonderful freedom of religion. In denying me, and all other citizens of Michigan of like faith, the right to assisted suicide they are imposing their religious beliefs on me and all the rest of us! That is religious persecution and it has no place in this country of ours!

We Americans are grandly tolerant of religion, as we should be, for the freedom to practice one's own religion is a precious founding principal of our nation. But there is neither honor nor virtue in tolerating the religious intolerance being laid on us by the Roman Catholic church on this issue. No matter how we feel about deathbed suicide for ourselves, we should be voting FOR proposal B as a vote FOR freedom of religion and as a vote FOR religious tolerance.

New cellular phone business comes to Charlevoix

By Jamie MacMillan

Continuing their rapid growth across northern Michigan, Cellular One, a leading company in the cellular phone industry, has opened a new store in the city of Charlevoix.

The company's newest satellite store opened its doors in the Captain's Corner Shopping Center Wednesday, Sept. 23 and will be celebrating their arrival with a public open house at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 22. Refreshments and lunch will be served.

A national company, Cellular One opened its northeast lower Michigan division in 1991 with a store in Traverse City and about 10 towers dotting the landscape, according to office administrator Karen June.

Five other stores have since been added, including one in Petoskey, and over 50 towers carry the company's signal, June said.

"We're kind of everywhere now in the 13 counties," June said. "We've had such a massive jump in customers that we want to blanket the area."

June said locating to Charlevoix has been a year in the works. The move to the city came about because of its good customer base in the area.

"Charlevoix is a growing community and we're a growing company," June said. "We never want to stagnate and this is definitely not a stagnant town."

In addition to cellular phones and corresponding services, the store also offers a line of pagers, paging services and data transmission equipment.

June said the cellular phone industry has blossomed because the phones are now more affordable to everyday people.

"It's not so much a luxury anymore to own a cell phone," she said. "It's more affordable and now everyone wants one."

The company has a local web site which can be accessed at www.cellonenwm.com. The site has been active for about six months and is an example of the company's community outreach programs, June said.

In addition to June, the Charlevoix store will be manned by Jill Cran-Silk, an outside sales agent, and Gail Rhine, an inside sales and customer service representative.

Rayder bus may be available for more community groups

By Jamie MacMillan

School officials are busy revising their policy about the use of the Rayder bus, which could expand the bus's usage to include more public, non-school groups.

The current policy has a set pecking order in terms of who can use the bus and when. Varsity sports get first dibs, followed by performing arts teams, the high school band and senior citizen groups.

If two school trips/games are scheduled on the same date, the team traveling the greatest distance will be given the Rayder bus.

Senior citizen groups are allowed access to the bus as long as the school is not already using the vehicle.

The issue came to the forefront this past summer when the garden club asked to use the bus. Despite having many members older than 65, the group doesn't consider themselves a senior citizen group.

The school allowed them to use the Rayder bus, but now school officials want to clear up their policy.

Superintendent John Sturock explained at last week's board of education meeting that the goal is to avoid situations where the transportation director Gordie Russell has to poll each requesting group about their age.

"If we're going to open up the bus to groups beyond just senior citizens, we need to clarify the policy," Sturock said. "If it comes up again, he (transportation director Gordie Russell) needs to know what direction to go."

State by-laws allow schools to lend out their buses to groups transporting senior citizens, disabled persons, or to any non-profit organization whose members need transportation to that group's activity or event.

The Rayder bus, though, is a unique situation. The school limits the use of the bus because it wants the bus's lifetime to cover 20-25 years and up to 250,000 miles. The bus has been used by Charlevoix

Schools for five years and currently has a little more than 73,000 miles on it, according to Russell.

Board member Larry Levegood noted the community fund-raising efforts that helped purchase the bus. He said the vehicle was never intended to be the exclusive vehicle of Charlevoix High School.

"We wanted it to be known as a community bus and not just the varsity sports teams' bus," he said.

The board next meets at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 9 in the high school study hall.

School enrollments are on the rise in Charlevoix County

Charlevoix schools see biggest increase

Student enrollment throughout the county's public schools have increased slightly over last year, with Charlevoix Public Schools seeing the biggest increase.

This year, 4,661 students are enrolled within the seven public school districts in the county, a steady climb from last year's September enrollment of 4,643.

In the K-12 Charlevoix school district, student population increased to 1,368 from 1,345. The 23-student jump was the largest increase among county schools.

The high school increased by 36 students, from 401 to 436 and the elementary school jumped with 14 extra students, from 588 to 602. The middle school, however, saw its enrollment decline from 329 to 301.

The district also added two students to its Beaver Island Light-house school from last year's enrollment.

Two charter schools in the county and Beaver Island schools had higher enrollments this September than last year.

Northwest Academy in Charlevoix has seen its student population grow from 76 to 85 students while Concord Academy of Boyne City has grown from 190 to 210 students. The growth at Concord can be attributed to the addition of an extra grade for this school year. Last year, the Boyne City charter school was only a K-10 facility, but this year the school expanded to include the 11th grade.

Beaver Island saw a modest increase to 94 students from 91 in 1997.

Despite a decrease of 14 students entering school this semester, Boyne City remains the school with the largest enrollment in the county, with 1,421 students.

| School        | September 1998 | September 1997 |
|---------------|----------------|----------------|
| Charlevoix    | 1,368          | 1,345          |

Businesses meet to discuss Burns Clinic insurance dispute

Amid growing concern about the impasse resulting from the recent dispute between Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan and Burns Clinic, eight Northern Michigan employers met to form a Coalition of Insured Healthcare Consumers.

Senior Managers representing Continental Structural Plastics, Charlevoix Manufacturing, Hoskins Manufacturing, Industrial Magnet-ics, LexaLite International, Petoskey Electric Motor, Southdown, Thomas D. Pointner P.C., and a majority of directors of the Northern Michigan Industrial Association met to discuss various options that are available to protect the interests of the more than 5,600 employees and family members represented by the companies attending. Members of the coalition discussed the need to invite any employer in the combined Blue Cross/Burns Clinic service area to join the organization. Any employer insured by Blue Cross/Blue Shield and utilizing the Burns Clinic Service, who is interested in joining the organization is invited to attend a closed meeting at the Charlevoix Country Club at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21 to discuss the objectives of the group.

Those employers interested in joining the coalition, but who are unable to attend, may contact the Human Resources Department at any of the following companies: Hoskins Manufacturing 547-3321, Industrial Magnetics 582-3100, LexaLite International 547-6584, or Southdown 547-9921.

Coalition members discussed plans to invite senior representatives from both Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Burns Clinic to address the membership in an open forum at a time and place to be determined. In addition, the group agreed to explore alternative options by contacting other insurers and other health care organizations about the possibility of bringing new services into the Northern Michigan area.

Man in hit and run accident arrested at Memorial Bridge

A hit and run driver was arrested by the sheriff's deputies at about 2:40 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11. The driver, Kazimierz W. Szmata, 71, was southbound on U.S. 31 when he crossed the centerline and sideswiped a pickup truck driven by William Foster of Charlevoix, who was northbound. Debris from the sideswipe struck a car driven by Todd Eib of Harrison Township.

Harrison and Eib turned around and followed Szmata, who was reportedly driving at a high rate of speed. Using a cellular phone, they called 9-1-1, which then notified the sheriff's department. Deputies located the suspect vehicle on U.S. 31 at Memorial Bridge in Charlevoix.

The driver was stopped and subsequently arrested for operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol, failure to stop at a traffic crash and failure to wear corrective glasses. Szmata was lodged in the county jail and posted bond the following morning.

Martial arts group brings home honors

Members of the local Kuk Sool Won martial arts club kicked and chopped their way to a variety of honors at this year's World Championship Tournament.

The event was in Houston, Texas Oct. 3-4 at the AstroArena, a sports complex adjacent to the AstroDome.

Events were divided into skill categories and competitors were grouped based on their belt levels.

In all, Charlevoixians took home 14 medals including three from Dan Soullier in the Brown-Black Belt division.

Soullier took first place in the self-defense skill, a third place in techniques and a fourth place in forms. His daughter, Jessica, earned a third place as well in the techniques division. Also in the Brown-Black Belt division, Chris Purdy won a second place in self-defense and a fourth place in the weapons skill competition.

In the Yellow Belt division, four local residents took home two medals apiece. Winning awards were Kelly Jones, second in sparring, fourth in forms; Ashley Jones, second in techniques, fourth in forms; Stephanie Dickinson, fourth in techniques, third in forms; and Zachary Simmons, third in techniques, fourth in forms.

Some club members also participated in Black Belt testing during that weekend. Richard Wojan advanced to second degree black belt while Dan Soullier, Chris Purdy and Jessica Soullier each advanced to first degree black belt.

JV football team may be headed for a school record

By Jamie MacMillan

Using a physical defense and scoring touchdowns on all four first half possessions, the Charlevoix Junior Varsity Football Team had no trouble keeping its record unblemished with an easy 43-6 decision over the Elk Rapids Elks.

The win brings the team's record to 7-0, with five of those wins coming against Lake Michigan Division opponents.

"It was a fun time, everyone got a chance to play," coach Hal Evans said of the contest.

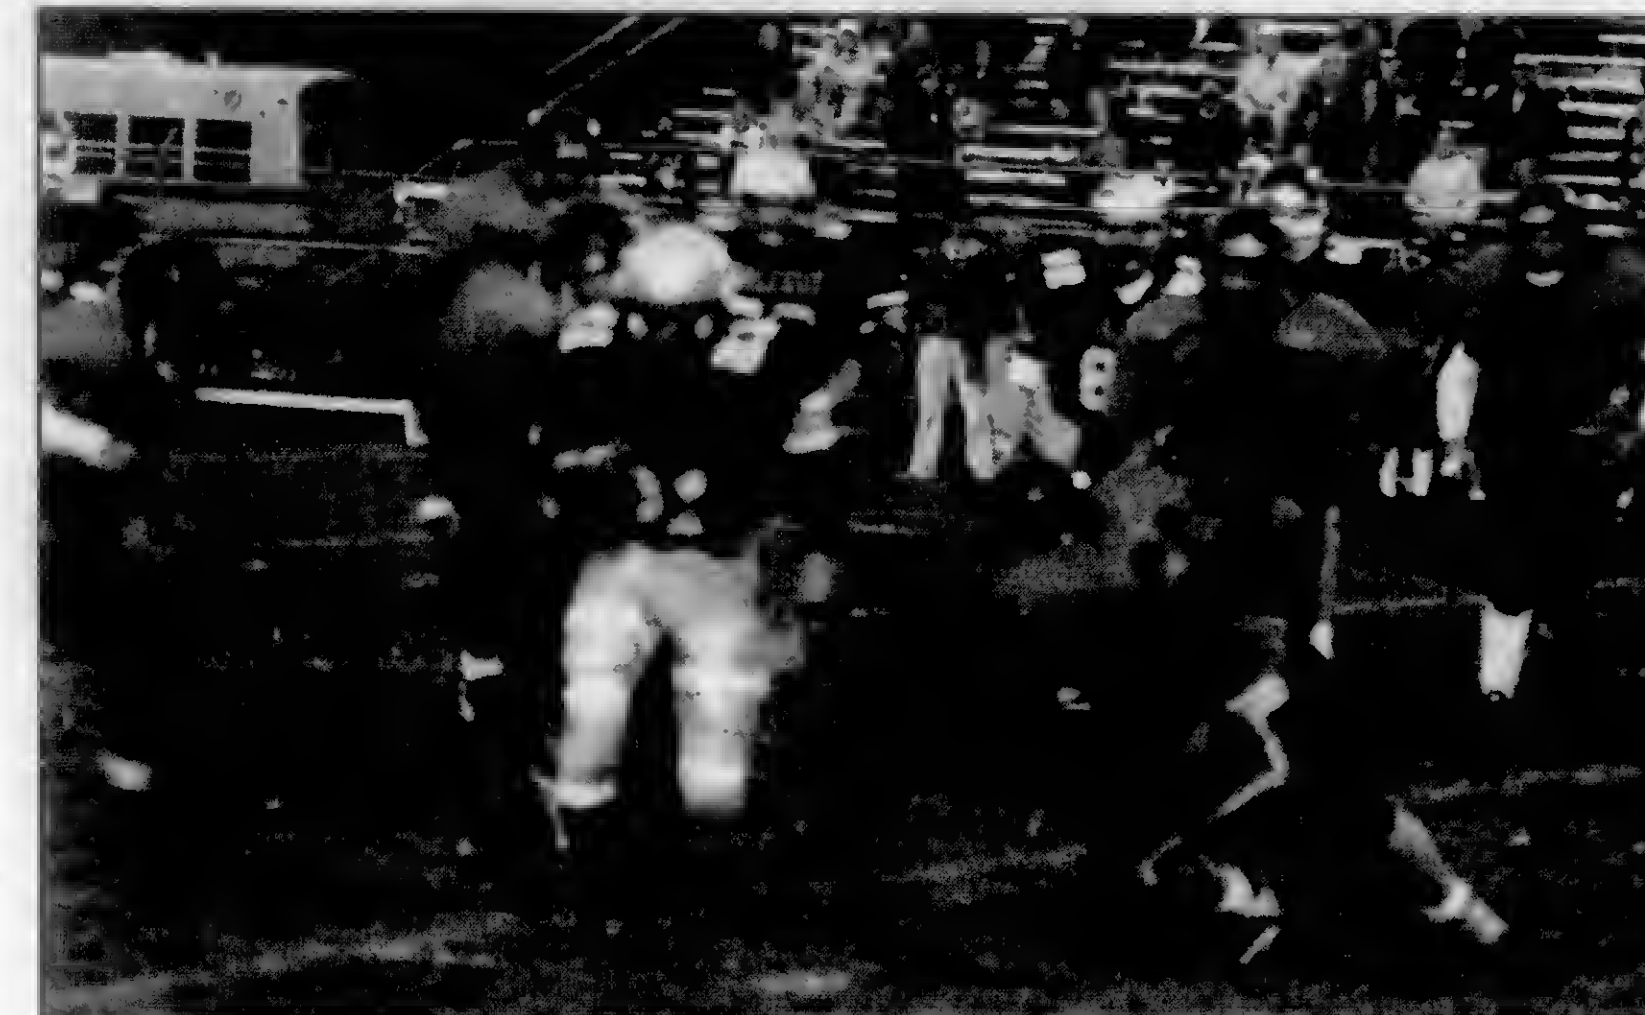

Football fans who think the local home season is over with the varsity club on the road for its final games are mistaken. The Rayder reserves, featuring a diverse offense, stingy defense and the team chemistry of Einstein have cruised to seven wins while outscoring opponents 215-92.

They will look for their own slice of history as they wrap up their season with two more Thursday evening contests at Kipke Field against Boyne City and Maple City-Glen Lake.

If they win both games, the club will complete an undefeated regular season. While it's unclear if that would be a school first, it will be a first during the 25-year stint that co-coaches Evans and Brian Certa have led the club.

"We need to be ready to play our final two games," Evans said. "Both are tough challenges."

Boyne's reserve squad will outnumber Charlevoix's by a 53-28 count and Maple City's reserves

Ryan Leitner (21), who has become the young squad's go-to guy, looks to sprint away from the trio of Elks surrounding him. Front page: Sophomore Ben VanGuilder (20) keeps driving to break free from an Elk Rapids defender. (Photos by Jamie MacMillan) have helped pipeline a varsity program which has played in two title games this decade. The game against the Ramblers is Thursday, Oct. 22 and the Maple City contest will close out the season Thursday, Oct. 29. Both games are at Kipke Field and will kick off at 6 p.m.

"We're having a great year, and win or lose we'll play hard and just enjoy ourselves," Evans said.

Talent aside, both coaches said the strength of this year's JV team is a togetherness and team chemistry that no one can coach.

"They like each other and they go out and fight for each other in every game," Evans said.

On offense, the team has scored more than 30 points in five of its games.

Leitner leads the team with 15 touchdowns and rushed for a total of 623 yards in back-to-back games against Traverse City and Kalkaska. He's rushed for more than 1,000 yards this year and Evans said he has become the "go-to guy."

When not in the hands of Leitner, the offense relies on a deep set of utility running backs including Ben VanGuilder, Kyle Louiselle, Chad Mackowiak, Matt Horon and Ryan Rafacz.

The quarterbacking chores have been split between Jeremiah

Teuscher and Patrick Gowell. Gowell also doubles as a wide receiver and caught the go-ahead score from Teuscher in the win over Traverse City.

Not that the offense has to score a bunch of points with a defensive unit allowing less than 14 points per game backing them up.

The defense shut out Harbor Springs and has allowed only 14 points over the last 10 quarters of play.

With most JV offense relying on running plays, the Rayder reserves play a 4-5 front. That style stacks the line against the run and allows for the linebacking unit to react and swoop to the ball.

Horon in the top linebacker and is captain of the defense. Landon Brown and Nick Schwein are also solid linebackers and are in on most tackles. Anthony Cesaro, Brian Cleary and Leitner are the down lineman and Jerry Zeitler and Bo Moore are the ends. Rob Boss and Matt Goff provide depth and size along the defensive front.

"The overall speed of this group is really good," Evans said. "We can put 11 on the field who all run fast to the ball."

As proof of the team's talent and depth, just consider the club's latest conquest of Elk Rapids. All 26 players that dressed for the game had at least one tackle.

"The whole atmosphere of Rayder pride has carried over to this JV squad," Evans said. "The future is looking good for us."

Another bomb scare empties Kmart

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department responded to a possible threat of a bomb at Kmart at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 15.

It was the second bomb threat at Kmart in one week.

This time, the threat came in the form of a note attached to a box that had been sent from the Kmart warehouse in Plymouth, Mich. Kmart employees were unloading a shipment when they found the box with the threatening note.

Kmart was evacuated and the bomb squad from Grayling was requested to investigate. Once the box was X-rayed and they determined it contained no bomb, Kmart was reopened.

The sheriff's office will be working with the Michigan State Police lab in Grayling and Kmart security to try to arrest the perpetrator.

The sheriff's office was assisted at the scene by Charlevoix township Fire Department and Charlevoix City EMS workers.

Weird animal accidents happen in county

Two unusual accidents occurred in Charlevoix County this week, involving animals and vehicles.

The first accident occurred Wednesday, Oct. 7 on Ferry Road between Advance and Boyne City.

Derby Hayden III of East Jordan was on his way to work when a black bear estimated to weigh between 150 and 200 pounds crossed the road in front of his 1995 Ford Taurus. He said the bear tumbled into the ditch after he hit it. He and his son, Christopher Hayden, looked for the bear in the nearby woods but were unable to locate it.

A large amount of mud and long black fur was stuck on the front of his car.

The second accident occurred at 6:20 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 14 on Deer Lake Road in Boyne Valley Township. Barbara J. Mazzella, 21, of East Jordan was cresting a hill on Deer Lake Road and came upon a horse in the road. The driver could not avoid hitting the horse.

Mazzella was taken to Northern Michigan Hospital by Boyne City Ambulance, where she was treated for multiple injuries. The horse is deceased.

Charlevoix Sheriff's deputies were assisted by the Charlevoix County Road Commission, Boyne Valley Fire and First Responders and the Boyne City Ambulance.

MARION TOWNSHIP:

This proposal will permit the Township to levy 1.5 mills for road construction and maintenance. The electors previously approved a similar millage in 1996 which expires in 1998.

1. Shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be imposed on taxable property in the Township of Marion, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, be increased by one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per thousand dollars ($1,000) -- (1.5 mills) -- of the taxable value on all through 2001 inclusive, for the purpose of providing funds for road construction and maintenance? If approved and levied in its entirety it is estimated that the 1.5 mills would raise an estimated $54,895 for the township when first levied in 1999.

The Polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a.m. and will remain open until 8 o'clock p.m. of said day of election

Humane society ready to start building construction

By Jamie MacMillan

The Charlevoix County Humane Society's relocation to Boyne City took a few steps closer to reality last week.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners awarded the construction bid to Petrie Construction, an East Jordan-based company, and entered into a work contract with them.

The estimated cost of the project is $371,642.44.

The county also considered bids from Jess Construction and Hallmark Construction, but both of those company's bids exceeded $410,000.

Work on the new 5,000 square foot facility is expected to begin by the end of this month and the contract between the county and Petrie stipulates that "substantial completion" of the project must be shown prior to Feb. 28, 1999.

The humane society currently runs out of a much smaller building in Charlevoix at 1004 Grant St., behind the county sheriff's building. A planned expansion of the county jail at that site has intensified the humane society's relocation efforts.

In Boyne City, the new building will face northeast at the corner of Brockway and Beardsley roads with the lone vehicle entrance off of Beardsley. The facility will include 23 outside dog runs along with inside accommodations.

To help the organization cover the costs of the project, the county board also approved last week a loan to the humane society in the amount of $150,000. According to an agreement between the county and the organization, the money will be paid back in $30,000 increments over the next five years.

Earlier in the year, the county donated $150,000 to the project. The remaining costs, in excess of $71,000, will be paid by the humane society.

In other action, the board approved awarding a work bid to Manthei Development for $28,995 to pave a new county parking lot between Clinton and Mason streets.

The lot will have 31 parking spaces and commissioner Carl Price reported that the lot should be complete by next fall, with the exception of the landscaping.

The board also approved splitting the county positions of Transit Director and Commission on Aging (COA) Director into two separate, full time positions.

Currently, Art Saworski handles both roles, but is retiring as COA director at the end of this year. The change will go into effect after Saworski's retirement.

A cost study provided by the COA board estimates spending $67,845 on a new full time director position. Included in the cost is salary and benefits for a secretary.

The board next meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 28.

Make sure the "Yellow Page" bills you receive in the mail are for the real thing.

'Yellow Pages' bills: They look real, but you don't have to pay

By JANE DUNSHEE
News-Review staff writer

You've heard it before and you'll hear it again. But just in case you've forgotten - here's a refresher. Read the fine print.

At least two internet companies specializing in business listings are sending out solicitations to businesses that look like invoices and bear official-looking logos similar to the yellow pages walking fingers. It's not a bill, and you don't have to pay.

These are not from the local phone book company. One company, Yellow Pages, Inc., has offices in Orange and San Juan Capistrano, Calif., as well as Atlanta, Ga., and Boston, Mass. The other is Yellow True Pages with offices in Indiana, California and other states as well.

And the solicitations, in amounts of $191 and $175, are not for space on a printed yellow phone book page, but for an internet listing which the service already provides for free. According to representatives from each company, the fee is to make the listing more visually appealing by changing the type color and size, and moving the business higher on the list of similar service or product suppliers.

Ed McDonald answered the phone at the San Juan Capistrano, Calif., offices of Yellow Pages, Inc. "A directory like this is only good if it's complete - so every company in the country is listed in it right now," McDonald said.

McDonald estimated there are 17.5 million companies listed in the directory, available by state and type. Upgrading is to make the company stand out among what could be hundreds in any given category.

He said the company has received complaints about the appearance of the solicitation, because it does look like a bill. McDonald said the letter

According to the Better Business Bureau, Colton, Calif. office, this company has a satisfactory business record since its start date March of 1995. As of June 26, no complaints about service, advertising or soliciting practices had been filed.

The other company, Yellow True Pages, was represented by Mike Pfeiffer, also speaking from a California office.

He said the two most common questions he hears are "Aren't all you yellow pages the same company?" and "Is this a bill?"

"Of course, we are quick to point out to them that neither of these is the case," Pfeiffer said.

Part of the confusion stems from the service mark at the top left corner of the solicitations. The logos vary in minor details. One has the fingers walking over a keyboard, the other over a globe. Each is very similar to the logo associated with the successful "Let your fingers do the walking," yellow pages advertising campaign from years ago.

"People don't realize that is a service mark and anyone can use it," he said.

The Better Business Bureau of northeast Indiana has received complaints about this company, which had a start date of April, 1996. Since September of 1996, seven complaints were filed. Five have been closed and assumed satisfied, two were closed as unanswered.

According to the Better Business Bureau, how complaints are responded to is just as important as the number of complaints, and the volume of business should be taken into consideration.

Representatives from each web yellow pages company said their goals were not to dupe people, and have cheerfully refunded money sent to them by mistake.

was designed that way to get approval from the post office.

Bellaire, Michigan 49615
(616) 533-6635
On September 2, 1998, Plaintiff filed a First Amended Complaint to Quiet Title naming Patrick Connelly, unknown heirs and devisees of Patrick Connelly, Mary Krolkewski, unknown heirs and devisees of Mary Krolkewski, Francis Connelly, unknown heirs and devisees of Francis Connelly, Cathaline Jeffers, unknown heirs and devisees of Cathaline Jeffers, James Connelly, unknown heirs and devisees of James Connelly, Julia Hunt, unknown heirs and devisees of Julia Hunt, and unknown heirs and devisees of Agnes Burkart as Defendants ("Defendants") in this action.
Upon consideration of Plaintiff's Verified Motion and Affidavit in support, attesting to the fact that Defendants in this action cannot be served with a Summons and Complaint because their present whereabouts are unknown, and that publication notice of this action in any newspaper of general circulation is most likely to give notice to Defendants, and it appearing to this Court that Plaintiff, after diligent inquiry, has been unable to ascertain Defendants' residences, either within or out of the State of Michigan, and it further appearing that service of the Summons and Complaint in his action cannot be made on the Defendants for the above-stated reasons, and that publication is the best means available to apprise Defendants of the pendency of this action,
IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants shall on or before the 18th day of December, 1998, serve their answers to Kevin A. Eisenheimer, Attorney for Plaintiff, whose address is Young, Graham & Eisenheimer, P.C., P.O. Box 398, Bellaire, Michigan 49615, or take such other action as may be permitted by law. Failure to comply with this Order may result in a judgment by default against the Defendants for their relief demanded in the Complaint filed in this Court.
IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order be published once each week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in Cook County, Illinois and in the Charlevoix Courier, Charlevoix, Michigan, which would most likely give notice to the Defendants.
IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the first publication of this Order be made within twenty-one (21) days from the entry of this Order; and that mailing a copy of this Order be dispensed with because Plaintiff cannot, with reasonable diligence, ascertain a place where the Defendants would probably receive matter transmitted by mail.

On September 2, 1998, Plaintiff filed a First Amended Complaint to Quiet Title naming Patrick Connelly, unknown heirs and devisees of Patrick Connelly, Mary Krolkewski, unknown heirs and devisees of Mary Krolkewski, Francis Connelly, unknown heirs and devisees of Francis Connelly, Cathaline Jeffers, unknown heirs and devisees of Cathaline Jeffers, James Connelly, unknown heirs and devisees of James Connelly, Julia Hunt, unknown heirs and devisees of Julia Hunt, and unknown heirs and devisees of Agnes Burkart as Defendants ("Defendants") in this action.
Upon consideration of Plaintiff's Verified Motion and Affidavit in support, attesting to the fact that Defendants in this action cannot be served with a Summons and Complaint because their present whereabouts are unknown, and that publication notice of this action in any newspaper of general circulation is most likely to give notice to Defendants, and it appearing to this Court that Plaintiff, after diligent inquiry, has been unable to ascertain Defendants' residences, either within or out of the State of Michigan, and it further appearing that service of the Summons and Complaint in his action cannot be made on the Defendants for the above-stated reasons, and that publication is the best means available to apprise Defendants of the pendency of this action,
IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants shall on or before the 18th day of December, 1998, serve their answers to Kevin A. Eisenheimer, Attorney for Plaintiff, whose address is Young, Graham & Eisenheimer, P.C., P.O. Box 398, Bellaire, Michigan 49615, or take such other action as may be permitted by law. Failure to comply with this Order may result in a judgment by default against the Defendants for their relief demanded in the Complaint filed in this Court.
IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order be published once each week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in Cook County, Illinois and in the Charlevoix Courier, Charlevoix, Michigan, which would most likely give notice to the Defendants.
IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the first publication of this Order be made within twenty-one (21) days from the entry of this Order; and that mailing a copy of this Order be dispensed with because Plaintiff cannot, with reasonable diligence, ascertain a place where the Defendants would probably receive matter transmitted by mail.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Ghost Ship is sailing back into Round Lake

The United States Coast Guard Cutter Acacia, located at the Charlevoix Bridge Park mooring facility, will be hosting their annual Halloween "Ghost Ship" from 6-10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31. This year's event will be partnered with the Charlevoix Food Pantry by requesting that all guests bring a non-perishable food item to serve as their pass to board the bone-chilling haunted ship.

The food pantry would especially appreciate canned fruits/vegetables, powdered juices, and paper products (napkins, towels, plates). Cash or check donations to the Charlevoix Food Pantry will also be accepted during the event.

This event is open to people of all ages and younger children should have an adult escort. Any businesses interested in helping Coast Guard volunteers sponsor this event by donating costume items, decorations, candy or other Halloween accessories are requested to contact Petty Officer Daniel Gambino at 547-4447 or 547-4448. Acacia will be away during the week of Oct. 19 but is scheduled to return to Charlevoix the afternoon of Monday, Oct. 26. Last year's event drew nearly 1,000 guests and "ghoulish reviews." This year's event is envisioned to be even grander!

Free pool passes given to teens attending Halloween dance

The Charlevoix Community Pool will be giving a free pool pass to anyone attending the dance at B.A.S.E.S. Teen Center. The teen dance (grades 6-12) is from 7 to 11 p.m. Oct. 30 at 208 W. Lincoln St., Charlevoix. Admission $5, members $3. Deejay for the event is "Big Daddy."

High School offers parent-teacher conferences

Parent-Teacher Conferences will be at the high school from 1 to 3 p.m. and 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 23.

The school is using an "Arena Parent-Teacher Conference" format. Parents do not need to call the high school for individual conference times.

Parents will arrive at the high school, pick up their students' report cards in the trophy case hallway and then enter the gym to see the teacher of their choice. The conferences will only last approximately five to seven minutes each. Coffee and refreshments will also be available in the gym. If you have any questions, call the high school office at 547-3222.

Plate night hosted at elementary school

Kid's Corner Nursery School will be hosting its annual "Make A Plate" night from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 23 at the Charlevoix Elementary School gym. Cost is $7 per plate. Bring a friend. Everyone is welcome.

Arts council will audition kids for choir

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is hosting auditions for children to be part of a Traverse Symphony Orchestra holiday concert Sunday, Dec. 13. The children's choir will be accompanied by the TSO and coloratura mezzo soprano Hilarie Klein. The performance is the second in the arts council's concert series.

Katharine Trumble will conduct the auditions and direct the choir. Kids in grades three through seven with unchanged voices are encouraged to audition. There is no charge to be a part of the choir. Auditions are set for 4-5:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 22 and from 9-11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 24 and will take place at the McCune Arts Center, 461 East Mitchell St. in Petoskey.

Please call the McCune Arts Center to schedule at time, 347-4337. The arts center is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

East Jordan Chamber of Commerce hosts Hard Hat Business After Hours

East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce is hosting Business After Hours "Hard Hat Hour" from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21 at Ansted's By The Lake, 115 Main St., East Jordan.

The event is proudly sponsored by Ernst Construction, LTD, Jordan Valley Accounting and WTCM Today's Country Music.

Cost is $3 for chamber members and $4 for non-chamber members.

No ties allowed - they will be cut at the door!

Jeans, hard hats, "construction attire" is desired!

Come celebrate our new main street.

Dems host fund-raiser for State Senate candidate

The Chase for Senate committee will be hosting a fund-raising event for Kay Chase from 5-7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24 at Northwest Academy, 115 Hurlbut, Charlevoix. The theme of the event is "Buy Kay a TV Ad."

Refreshments will be served and the public is welcome to attend.

Boyne City Lodge hosts special meeting

Boyne City Lodge No. 391 F. & A.M. will host a special communication meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday Oct. 22 at 212 N. Lake St. The entered apprentice degree will be conferred. All Masons are invited and welcome to attend.

SCRAPBOOK

The Ironton Ferry has a colorful history of captains

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

Brisk winds will soon be whistling through Pine River and down the lake to batter Lake Charlevoix cottages and the much-appreciated Ironton Ferry. Finishing up its 117th year next month, this short but vital link between the mainland and the peninsula has had many personalities as its master. One such character was Sam Alexander.

Born March 23, 1868 in Quincy, Ken., Samuel R. Alexander came to the area now known as Ironton at age 12 with his parents. As a young man he worked as a fireman for the bustling and smoking Pine Lake Iron Company, makers of pig iron bars bound for the Chicago manufacturing market. Eventually the area around the company became known as Ironton and the need for transportation across the narrow body of water became clear. In 1876, a small boat, captained by Robert Bedwin, began traveling between the peninsula and the mainland. The need for a larger ferry initiated the building of an 18- by 24-foot cable-guided scow to move oxen, horses and building materials for the iron company furnace. This task of operating the ferry was taken up by Arden Sheldon, who promptly appointed himself ferry man. He ran the ferry service with use of horsepower and man power until the county took over the service with a larger ferry in 1883. They appointed the newly licensed Henry Sheldon to operate it. The state officially approved the county's decision in May of 1885 and toll-free operation began in the spring of 1886.

In 1890, Samuel Alexander assumed the duties of operator from Robert Miller and continued using the small, single cylinder engine to make his way back and forth across the 600 or more feet of water between the mainland and the peninsula, night and day. He took advantage of the close of the maritime shipping season in January of 1894 to marry Harriet "Hattie" Williams. They would remain husband and wife in the little house near the ferry until her death in August of 1938.

Eventually, with motor cars becoming more popular for travel and leisure, the ferry became so busy that his son, Ross, joined him in 1924 and stayed on as his helper for 11 years. In 1926, a new ferry was purchased by Alexander and Sam Rose at Grand Haven and towed to its present location.

After many years at the helm, Alexander's inspiring endurance as ferry captain was noticed by a Lansing tourist, H. R. Marple. In July of 1936, Marple wrote to Robert Ripley, of "Believe It Or Not!" fame, and related Alexander's story and several photographs of the ferry and its humble pilot. Ripley thought it was good enough

Another item for Ripley's Believe It Or Not — Believe it or not, the Ironton Ferry was actually free at one point in time, as demonstrated in this sign, whose age is unknown. It now costs $2 to drive a car onto the ferry. (Photo courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society) to appear in his syndicated cartoon published in 40 countries daily. The cartoon about Alexander and his feat of traveling 15,000 miles while never being farther than 1,000 feet from home was printed on Dec. 5, 1936, according to Ripley's archives. A rendition of the cartoon can still be seen on the pilot house of the ferry today. Alexander continued serving as captain and traveled another 10,000 miles before retiring in 1941. He was replaced the following spring by Captain Pete Bennett and his assistant Bud Gill, ending over 50 years of service as the Ironton Ferry's master. Alexander remained in Ironton until a long illness ended his famous life in January of 1948. If you would like to learn more about the history of the Ironton Ferry and the people who operated its many transformations, call executive director Betsy Reynolds of the Harsha House Museum at 547-0373 to make an appointment.

Community pool updates course offerings

The Charlevoix Community Pool has updated their schedule and is offering the following courses:

Water Safety Instructor Course: An American Red Cross certified course for those interested in becoming swimming instructors will be offered from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday nights from Oct. 22 to Nov. 24. Students need to be 17 years of age and have an intermediate swimming ability. The fee is $145 for the course and required books. Several scholarship programs are available.

Aqua Exercise: Two additional sections of aqua exercise are being added from 10-11 a.m. Monday and Wednesday. The fee is $5 per time for non-pass holders and $3 for Charlevoix Community Pool pass holders. Individuals can purchase a six week pass for $50 or $30 respectively. This class is designed for parents who can't make the earlier class. Babysitting may be offered if there is sufficient interest.

Swimming Lessons: Registrations are being taken on a first

How To Kill A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.

Dems open headquarters

Charlevoix County Democrats opened their 1998 Campaign Headquarters in East Jordan Sunday afternoon at a 100-year-old local landmark on West Water Street.

Dozens of enthusiastic supporters greeted many of the area Democratic candidates, who distributed campaign materials and relaxed for a couple of hours in the old brick farm house.

Party Chair and State Senate candidate Kay Chase and 106th Representative District candidate Andy Neumann spoke to the crowd on the importance of the issues and of getting out the vote in November.

They said that the new headquarters would be a big boost to their efforts in Charlevoix County. Congressman Bart Stupak was unable to attend.

Also present was Charles Conrad and his wife, who donated the use of the property to the Democratic Party for the campaign. They said that they wanted the community to know that the party was alive and well. Conrad is also a Democratic candidate for the Fourth District County Commission seat.

The site for the new headquarters is set among beautiful old trees on 11 acres in the city.

Parents and school officials fix flawed attendance policy

By Jamie MacMillan

After six hours of meetings, parents, students and high school administrators agreed to a compromised attendance policy slated to go in effect at the start of this semester's second nine-week marking period, Monday, Nov. 9.

The issue, however, hasn't been completely dismissed since the parties also agreed to reconvene in January to compare both the old and new policy before determining what direction the district should go in the long run.

A meeting has been scheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 29 in the high school study hall to allow concerned parents and students a chance to review changes made to the policy.

The current policy, which went into effect at the start of this school year, came under intense fire during a public meeting last Wednesday night. Over 100 parents and students crammed into the high school study hall to voice their objections.

"It's so complicated," Susan Barnard said of the current policy. "Kids are scared and parents are afraid that their child's grade will go down if we take them out of school. We want you to trust us to be good parents."

The current policy was drafted by assistant principal Keith Haske with the support of the high school teachers last spring. The school board approved the policy in April.

School officials said that under the old policy, students could miss too many classes without any consequences. The older policy allowed up to 15 absences, excused or unexcused, per class before a student's grade was threatened. That policy began when students attended every class on their schedule every day. For the last few years, however, the school has operated on a "block schedule" which decreases the number of times a class meets in one week from five to three, but increases the time that classes meet from 50 to 85 minutes.

At the high school, absences are counted per class as opposed to per day.

In short, when the school switched to the block schedule, students suddenly were allowed to miss 15 of 54 classes instead of 15 out of 90 classes before suffering a possible decrease in grade.

"When the school went to the block schedule, they should have altered their attendance policy," Haske said.

The new policy created a system that allotted points to students based on the type of absence. For example, an unexcused absence equaled four points, an excused absence equaled two points and a tardy equaled one point.

If a student accumulated 10 points, then he/she would lose 10 percent of their grade in that class.

Charlevoix voters will decide if Smith makes a comeback

Election day is Tuesday, Nov. 3. Voters in Charlevoix County will be asked to cast their ballots on the following local races:

In the Charlevoix County Commissioners District No. 6, incumbent Shirley Roloff squares off against challenger Scott Cochran.

The county's sixth district includes the City of Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

Roloff is in her first term of office after defeating Richard Gillespie in the 1996 election.

A Republican, Roloff considers keeping a new county administrator off the county's payroll as the most noteworthy achievement during her first term.

If reelected, Roloff wants to help Beaver Island residents improve their roads as well as hire a deputy for the island during the summer months.

She also wants to improve the visibility of house numbers for the 9-1-1 emergency system.

Cochran, a Democrat, is a school teacher at Charlevoix's Northwest Academy, as well as manager of the Blue Corn Grill restaurant.

If elected, the environment would be a top priority for Cochran, especially the monitoring of the Cedar Ridge landfill.

The county should also use its surplus to decrease the millage rate for taxpayers, he said.

If elected, he will work to keep local control of roads, help Beaver Island residents improve their road conditions, work to widen the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road for safer passage and eliminate commissioner health care benefits.

In District No. 5, Don Smith will battle Christa-Maria for a county commission seat.

The county's fifth district includes Marion, Norwood and Eveline townships.

Smith, a Republican, was a 14-year veteran of the county board before losing a reelection bid to Joan Blanchard in 1996.

This past summer, Smith defeated Blanchard in the party's primary race.

If reelected to the board, Smith said he would work to decrease taxes, eliminate commissioner health benefits and work to get the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road a state designation similar to M-66, which connects Charlevoix and East Jordan.

He also said the county should

New policy won't penalize excused absences

At 12 points, it's a 20 percent loss of grade and at 14 points the student would fail the marking period.

Students would be allowed to buy back points by doing extra class work.

Haske said giving out points for all absences, including excused absences, mirrors the real world where employees are given only a certain amount of personal days before being docked in pay.

In the end, however, preparing students for real world situations took a back seat to parental rights.

"It's a subtle message that the parents were wrong," John Hutchinson said of doling out points to students even after their parents excused their absence. "It cuts us out of the decision-making process for what is best for our child."

At various times throughout the Wednesday night meeting, discussion threatened to collapse into a shouting match and many in the audience said they felt snubbed by the board of education's own lack of attendance at the meeting.

"I feel gypped. What are we accomplishing here?" high school senior Brooke Block said.

Election day is around the corner

spend money on a solid waste enforcement officer to ensure that the county's solid waste plan is followed.

Christa-Maria, a Democrat, has long been a local environmental advocate. If elected, she will help direct the county into the recycling business and suggested that Charlevoix join forces with Emmet County's already successful program.

Her biggest issue, though, is to improve local mental health care from both a service and availability standpoint. A particular focus for Christa-Maria is the quality of care provided to troubled youths.

In the City of Charlevoix, Alvin D. "Butch" Russell will be running unopposed for the job of mayor. Valerie Barnes is running for a first ward seat on city council, to fill the vacancy left by retiring councilman Don Meggison. Barnes is running unopposed.

In the second ward, Gabe Campbell is running unopposed, and in the third ward, Bernie DeVries is running unopposed.

Three proposals will be on the ballot. Proposal A asks voters if the word "handicapped" should be changed to "disabled" in the State Constitution.

Proposal B will let voters decide if it should be legal for a physician to give a lethal dose of medication to a person who is terminally ill and competent in order to commit suicide. The proposal would apply to Michigan residents and certain out-of-state relatives of Michigan residents.

Proposal C will authorize bonds for environmental and natural resources protection programs.

The proposal, if passed, would allow the State of Michigan to borrow up to $675 million to finance environmental and natural resources protection programs that would clean up and redevelop contaminated sites, protect and improve water quality, and clean up contaminated sediments in lakes, rivers and streams.

Unexcused absences will remain four points, unexcused tardies remain one point, grades will decrease once 10 points are reached and students can still buy back points with extra work.

"With the changes we made with the excused absences, I feel the guidelines and penalties in the rest of the policy are fine," student Jerry Borths said.

The board of education still needs to vote on the new policy before it officially goes into effect.

The board could meet as soon as Monday, Nov. 2 for the mandated first reading of any new policy as well as for public comment. The goal is to vote on the matter during the board's regular monthly session at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 9.

Until then, the school will continue to follow the current policy and any points on a student's record will remain.

"We don't have anybody whose grades are being adversely affected by the policy," Grundman said. "The board approved the policy so we're obligated to follow it until they vote to revise it."

A complaint from a resident living on Round Lake's north shore might result in major changes to the lake's mooring area.

No one at the Army Corps of Engineers is saying who called in the complaint. What the Corps is saying is that change will take place in the designated anchorage area on Round Lake.

Because of the complaint about the number of boats moored along the north shore, the Corps has taken charge of the Special Anchorage Area, where about 48 boats are moored every summer.

The complaint apparently came from a Round Lake resident who said the mooring area was too crowded and encroached on their dock space, making it difficult to get a boat in and out of the dock. The complaint was delivered to Corps because it has control over navigable waters.

Up until now, the anchorage area has been self-managed, with Bob Timms acting as the unofficial person in charge of mooring placements for at least the last 20 years.

The mooring area was designated a Special Anchorage Area sometime between 1951 and 1965. Neither the Coast Guard nor the Corps has determined what prompted the special designation. Sticking to the strict definition of an anchorage area, it means that transient boats may drop an anchor in the area, but when the boat leaves, the anchor goes with it. In a special anchorage area, boats are also not required to have a night mooring light.

Local residents and non-residents have been using the area as a seasonal mooring area for decades. They have technically been violating the terms of a Special Anchorage Area, but no one ever seemed to mind.

The practice has been to leave anchors in the bottom of the lake permanently, and simply remove the surface buoys in the winter.

This year, the Corps informed everyone with a mooring that they must remove not only the buoy, but the anchor and all related hardware by Nov. 1.

"It's bureaucracy at its finest," Timms said. He'll be the one re-

Round Lake's mooring area is destined for change

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, October 28, 1998 - PAGE 3

moving at least 32 of the anchors at the owners' request.

"I have the equipment to do it," Timms explained. "It's just busy-work. If they're going to continue to have a mooring area, this is so unnecessary. I can move them (the anchors) in the spring far more easily."

Timms has the support of Mayor Josh Barnes, who has been wrangling with the Corps to get them to leave things the way they are.

The mayor's pleas didn't move the Corps one bit.

"Our plan is to work something out to accommodate the moorings, but we want to firm up the actual mooring area and then put moorings in a grid system," said Mary Miller, project manager for the Corps. She was politely adamant about having all mooring anchors removed this fall.

According to very preliminary sketches of the mooring area, prepared by the Corps, it's likely that far fewer boats will be accommodated in the mooring area.

Until the Corps got involved with the mooring area, folks with boats pretty much served themselves. There is no charge to moor in the area, unless you rent a mooring from someone who got there first and they charge you for it.

Timms has adjusted anchor locations as needed to accommodate the are also riparian landowners along Round Lake.

"Riparian landowners have rights," Miller said. "Some of them, who don't have moorings, would like to have one."

One riparian landowner with a mooring is Charles Unbehan. He said he doesn't think the mooring area is overcrowded.

"Somebody obviously complained about getting (a boat) out of his dock, but it's not a problem," Unbehan said. "Anybody around here who's a boater will say this is sheer luxury. It's wide open here."

Although the mooring area situation was pleasing to everyone who had a mooring, it was an unofficial, insider system that left some people out of the loop. Transient boaters, who were legally entitled to drop anchor in the area, found it difficult to find room for their vessels.

The Corps has the power to turn the area back into what it's supposed to be — a designated anchorage area. At this point in time, that isn't what the Corps plans to do.

In December, Corps representatives plan to meet with the Coast Guard, city, state, and Department of Environmental Quality officials to work out a mooring agreement.

Until then, Timms will be hauling anchors out of the water as fast as he can.

"It's typical bureaucracy, so I'm not going to jump up and down and pull my hair out over it," he said. "Why do that? They've got control."

OPINIONS

If you try to confuse me with mud-slinging, you lose my vote

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

I don't like to endorse candidates in an election because I think voting is an intensely personal right and everyone should be left to vote however they choose. Voters get bombarded with plenty of advice throughout the course of a campaign — they don't need any advice from me.

I will go so far as to say why — and who — I'm supporting in the Nov. 3 election.

I decided at the beginning of this campaign that I would not vote for anyone who used negative campaign tactics.

To my surprise, gubernatorial candidate Geoffrey Fieger has taken the high road and not lambasted the incumbent Governor Engler. I don't care much for Fieger's goofy Howdy-Doody smile pasted on his face in all his TV spots, and he's too pro-union for my tastes, but he gets my vote for running a responsible campaign.

Engler and the Republicans, on the other hand, have taken Fieger's words out of context and run very negative commercials.

I guess that's the whole Republican theme this year, with the exception of Walt North.

Michelle McManus' committee has sent me so many press releases stating half-truths and out-of-context information about Bart Stupak that, if the releases were returned to their former lives as trees, we'd have enough trees to create the Hiawatha National Forest all over again. I've never seen so much word-twisting and truth-hending. You'd think they took lessons from a Democrat — Bill Clinton.

So Bart, you get my vote — Michelle, you don't.

Republican Phil Ludlow's committee is running a ridiculous, attention-getting advertisement bashing Andy Neumann.

With the visual display of a roaring, out-of-control fire in the background and Neumann's face superimposed on it, a voice tells us that voting for Neumann is terribly dangerous, like playing with fire.

This spot is also being used on the radio, with sound effects of sirens and fire trucks in the background.

The first time I heard the spot on the radio I was driving my car down a major thoroughfare. I initially thought the sound of sirens was outside my car, so I immediately braked and pulled over to the right. Since the sound was actually on the radio, I almost caused a car accident by needlessly braking and swerving right in heavy traffic. Thanks a lot, guys.

This commercial is made even more distasteful by the fact that Ludlow doesn't even have the guts to attach his name to it. The disclosure at the end, which is required by law, merely says, "Paid for by the Republican House Committee."

After hearing Ludlow and Neumann speak at a public forum, I was leaning toward casting my vote for Ludlow.

But I'm going to stick to my guns and only vote for candidates who don't use negative campaigning, so I guess I'll vote for Neumann.

Kay Chase and Walter North are both avoiding negative campaigns. For that matter, they both seem to be rather low-key about campaigning at all. I haven't seen or heard much promotional material from either one of them.

I applaud Kay for stepping up to the plate and running for the state senate. I also like Walter North. This one's a draw, so I can't say who I'm voting for.

The Republicans are, for the most part, dealing from a position of strength and don't need to resort to silly, stupid negative campaigning. They insult me with statements such as, "Andy Neumann agrees with Geoffrey Fieger 70 percent of the time."

So that makes him a bad guy? And what is it they agree and disagree about? Do they agree that crew neck sweaters are more stylish than V-necks? Do they agree that catalog shopping is more convenient than going to the mall? The suggestion is that if ANYONE agrees with ANYTHING Fieger says, that person is a lunatic. Shame on you Republicans.

I know that there will be no exit poll taken in Charlevoix. No one will ask me who I voted for and why I did it. No one will know that half my votes were cast as protest votes against negative campaigning. I imagine some people will criticize me for voting recklessly and irresponsibly, rejecting a potentially better qualified candidate for the candidate who ran a clean campaign.

I'm not too worried about that. Somehow, regardless of who's in office, the giant wheels of government keep turning in their usual fashion.

In the big picture, maybe my one protest vote won't matter much. Or maybe it will.

Letters to the editor

Charlevoix Area Hospital delivers great care

Dear Laurie,

This August, I was admitted to Charlevoix Area Hospital with a heart problem. After three days in the intensive care unit with multiple tests and examinations, I was released with suggested treatment. For my own peace of mind, I took all this information to Mayo Clinic for a second opinion.

They examined me and the records. Their consensus was that my problem was correctly diagnosed with the proper therapy. How fortunate we are to have such an excellent hospital in our own back yard.

As members of our community are admitted to Charlevoix Area Hospital, they should expect the same fine care that I received. To help insure this, I urge them to join the hospital's "Lighthouse Club." It is an investment which may come back to them many times.

For more information, people may contact Kathy Johnson at 547-8502. Thank you very much for allowing me to express my heartfelt feelings.

Sincerely,
Bill Klingbeil

Democrats embrace many viewpoints

Editor:

I am writing in response to the letter by Paul Richards which was published on Oct. 14. Will Rogers once said, "I don't belong to any organized party, I'm a Democrat."

Contrary to what Mr. Richards states regarding Congressman Stupak, the Democratic Party is tolerant of many views. The Democratic Party is the party of the people, there is no litmus test or required beliefs.

Democrats are both right-to-life and pro-choice, on either side of Proposal B and certainly many Democrats here in Northern Michigan belong to the NRA. This diversity of views is where we draw our strength. However, there is no room in the Democratic Party for bigotry and intolerance.

Democrats believe in equality and the opportunity for all citizens to participate in society. Bart Stupak is an effective and knowledgeable legislator. He fought to balance the federal budget and continues to fight to save Social Security and improve Medicare services.

Bart Stupak does not need to prove his membership in the Democratic Party. I am proud to call Bart Stupak my Congressman.

Kay Chase, Chair
Charlevoix County Democratic Party

New cars offer bells and whistles, but who needs 'em?

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Talk about mixed emotions! My new car is stylish, luxurious and comfortable. On the other hand it has more bells and whistles than I'll ever get used to. It's like piloting a Stealth Bomber and what I truly need is the help of a co-pilot.

Sure, the comfortable leather seats with lumbar back support are heaven. They adjust up and down, and tilt back and forth nicely. Less powerful air bags were offered to boot.

Then what is the problem? For starters, it's the key. You press a button and lights go on inside and the doors unlock. Great. You press another button to lock the doors, at which time a horn beeps. At first I thought this was a warning that I had done something wrong. Instead I was told that the beep was to reassure me that the doors were all locked. OK, so be it.

The first evening I drove home, I locked the door and a red light on my dashboard started flashing. What in the world does THIS mean? I opened the door, closed the door, pressed the key several times and no matter what I did the red light kept blinking. Shrugging my shoulders I went into the house and got ready for bed, still worried about the blinking red light. Would I have a dead battery in the morning? Better run the video again that explains the operation of the Dodge Intrepid. The video never showed the blinking light and I couldn't follow the complicated "safety feature" lingo. Again I went outside and opened and closed the door several times, and must have done something right because the red light stopped blinking. Hurray!

I must interrupt the story here to inform my readers that I received my driver's license in California at the age of 14. During WW II, I drove a canteen with a stick shift, slowly, down Woodward Ave. in a Detroit parade! Under the auspices of the Red Cross, I took a motor mechanics course in Highland Park and received a card certifying that I was a Motor Mechanic Instructor! That is also where I saw old Henry Ford with his sidekick, Harry Bennett, shortly before he died. But on with my story.

The next morning I drove up to Crown Motors and met with Jeff, who had already given me a personal driving demonstration. "Let's go over this again slowly," I suggested, which we did. Jeff explained that the blinking red light was a warning to anyone who even thinks about breaking into the car and it will not run down my battery!

I'm not going to bore you with the details of the on and off switches for the high and low beam driving lights, fog lights, tail lights, side marker lights, license plate light, instrument panel light, door ajar light, parking lights and other warning lights that are as bewildering as the sun and moon emblems they bear. Something opposite is supposed to happen when you turn the light switch on before you turn the ignition off. A chime will sound when the driver's door is opened. Thank goodness this has not happened to me yet!

It was comforting when I took my friend, Dorothy, for a ride in my new car.

"Look," I said, pointing overhead to a sign that said "E."

"Oh, that means you are empty," she said. "We better get some gas!"

"No, that means we are going east!" I assured her. As we turned northeast (NE) I added, "And for your benefit, this doesn't mean we are 'NOT Empty!'"

Do we really need all these bells and whistles? For me, it seems the last blessing since the self-starter, was the run signal. Can you guess what Henry Ford would think of a 218 page owner's manual?

Iodine deficiency is no treat

Members of the Charlevoix High School Key Club will be trick-or-treating for donations to eliminate iodine deficiency disorders in third world countries. Among the members who will go door-to-door on Halloween are (from left) Laurel English, club president, Laura Schairbaum, vice-president, Kelly Sullivan, Mari Brooks and Jennifer Liddicoat, secretary. Together with Kiwanis International, Key Clubs all over the world are helping to raise money to provide iodine-treated salt to countries in need. Another part of the project is to raise enough funds to build factories to put iodine in salt in other countries. "It only takes a little bit of salt each day to prevent IDD," said Jennifer Liddicoat. "For 5 cents per person per year, IDD can be eliminated by simply iodizing all the salt they eat." Key Club is a volunteer service club sponsored by the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. Key Club's main goal is exemplified by the motto, "Caring, Our Way of Life." Key Clubbers will be carrying orange UNICEF boxes during the community's Trick-or-Treat hours. All monetary donations will be greatly appreciated. ### Fiddling for a friend

Every year a living fiddler and a deceased fiddler are inducted into the Michigan Fiddlers Hall of Fame at Maurice, Mich.

The deceased fiddler this year was Russell Nelson from Lansing, an outstanding fiddler who won many competitions around the nation.

In honor of the deceased fiddler, his family chose a fiddler to play three favorite tunes of the deceased. Dudley Stevens was chosen by the Nelson family to play three tunes for their father.

Stevens met Nelson when he was 12 years old, and Nelson took him under his wing until his death nine years ago. Shown here, Stevens is playing Nelson's favorite fiddle, accompanied by his father, Bill Stevens.

St. Mary's hosts dinner dance-auction to benefit school

St. Mary's Elementary School in Charlevoix will be hosting their third annual Northern Lights Dinner Dance and Auction Saturday, Nov. 7 at the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Hall on Bells Bay Road.

The children in the elementary school contribute items created in their art classes to the auction. This year the children, under the direction of art teacher Lori Bolt, will be creating quilts, tablecloths, mugs, garden stones and mosaic birdhouses.

"You can't even get your own child's art work, the bidding gets so crazy," said Chris Balasz, a parent at St. Mary's School.

Bolt's extensive art background has enabled the students to tackle very complex projects.

Proceeds from the dinner dance and auction benefit St. Mary's School. Tickets are available by calling Janet Troppman at 547-5165.

Little gems

"For a generation or more, we adults have been giving children the impression that the only difference between us and them is one of height. And then we wonder why they call us by our first names."

"The idea that nearly all children of previous generations feared their parents is a myth. Believing this myth, this generation of parents has made darned sure their children don't fear them — or respect them, either."

Maurine G. Tilley

Maurine G. Tilley, 78, of Charlevoix, died Oct. 20, 1998, at Boulder Park Nursing Home in Charlevoix. A memorial mass was held at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix Friday, Oct. 23. Interment will take place at St. Patrick's Cemetery in Palms, Mich.

Mrs. Tilley was born June 14, 1920 in Michigan's thumb area, the daughter of Maurice and Clara (McCafferty) Walsh. She earned education degrees from Central Michigan University, and then entered the Detroit Police Academy in 1946, graduating to become one of Detroit's first woman police officers. She worked as a police officer until 1953. Maurine then taught science at Deckerville Elementary School, retiring in 1975.

She married William Tilley in 1946. Maurine and Bill enjoyed many years of retirement, which included boating trips in Florida and snowmobiling in Yellowstone National Park. Mr. Tilley passed away in 1982. Maurine moved to Charlevoix in 1991, and with her family, made trips to Alaska, Ireland and South America.

She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Palms and St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Tilley is survived by her sons, Mike and his wife, Sandy, of Charlevoix, and William Tilley of St. Clair Shores; grandsons, Chris, Kiel and Lucas; and a sister, Bernice Walsh of Charlevoix. The family is being served the the Winchester Funeral Home. Memorials may be made to St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Holiday workshop offered for coping

For those who have lost a loved one, handling the holidays is no small burden. The Charlevoix County Hospice and Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency are presenting a program at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 9 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital that they hope will give some suggestions on how to handle the holidays.

Rev. Milton Walls, hospice spiritual advisor, will talk of "The Grieving's Holiday Bill of Rights," and C.O.P.E. - a simple plan for handling some of the stresses associated with the holidays.

Available to participants will be a wonderful booklet, Handling The Holidays, which contains a Holiday Planner, among other things. This program is open to anyone who feels the need for help in getting through the holidays. The program will be at Charlevoix Area Hospital, in the lower level classroom. Following the program there will be a time for sharing and refreshments.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call the Charlevoix County Hospice office at 536-2842.

Methodist women hosting bake sale

The Charlevoix United Methodist Women are hosting their annual fall salad luncheon, bazaar and bake sale from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 30 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, 104 State St.

Cost is $5 for adults. As always, there will be a variety of salads, vegetables, meat dishes and pie for dessert. After lunch, browse through the bazaar tables and take home some baked goods for later.

OF BLESSINGS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

One of life's great parental adventures is currently unfolding around our house. Our 16-year-old son just got his driver's permit last week. It was quite an occasion for father and son to go to the Secretary of State's office, show his driver's education certificate, fill out the forms and go. The grin on his face was so wide when he had that precious piece of paper in his hand that it would have lit up all of Beaver Island.

The fun came when we walked back out of the office and I said those magic words for the first time. "Do you want to drive?" He was over on the left side and ready to climb behind the wheel so fast that I could feel the breeze as he whipped by. Jim Kanine, you're a good teacher. My son spent more time adjusting mirrors, checking gauges, and fastening his seat belt than any other adult (including me) I have ever seen.

I could tell he was a little nervous. He learned to drive behind the wheel of a Ford Escort and this was a Grand Caravan. That's quite a difference. He was careful, respectful of the van's power, and he managed not to get his Dad too upset on the drive home.

When my son was born, I was the first person to hold him in the delivery room. In the course of his life I have watched him go from a determined member of his first grade teacher's Mellon Patch Kids, to an inquisitive computer prodigy under Josh Block, and now become a high school sophomore. Some of the changes have been subtle. He passed me in height earlier this year. Some of the changes have been dramatic.

ic. One night he went to bed a boy soprano and the next morning he woke up with a man's voice. And there are more changes on the way.

If there weren't changes in our lives, it wouldn't be life. If we couldn't see progress through both the ups and downs of life it wouldn't be worthwhile. I would not want my son to stay my baby forever. I want to see him have his dreams, his own adventures and his own challenges. It is my hope that I will have done all I can to equip him to succeed in whatever he sets his sights on.

When you give your heart to God, you become his child. He has as much pride in you and love for you as you have for your own little ones. He does what He can to encourage you to reach out and conquer different milestones in your faith pilgrimage. He is excited when you decide to be baptized. It brings Him joy when you receive your first communion. His Spirit breathes a special sense of closeness into your life when you really get into the study of His Holy Word.

Just as I took pride in my son's initial voyages in driving, God takes pride in your travels in faith. He is always quick to respond when a son or daughter comes to Him in prayer. He has some amazing ways of guiding us through life's difficult moments. He even lets us make our own mistakes because He knows the lessons they teach us will make us wiser and find us trusting Him more. He wants to see you have your own dreams, adventures and challenges. He has always been prepared to equip you with whatever you really need to get the most out of each day you are blessed with. Just as we are proud of our own children, God - your heavenly Father - is proud of you.

rival 16 years ago. I first saw him in his truck, with his new wife and baby girl. They were the light of his life, but breaking into island life required great effort and sacrifice then, too much for some to bear. When winter began to set in, his wife returned to the more predictable and controllable ways of the mainland. Don had made commitments, and although it broke his heart, he stayed.

Over the years, Don worked as a plumber, a welder, and a well-driller. He installed all the pipes in Judy Lanier's home, welded the steel in Gary Comer's dock, and provided a number of new islanders with water, using an old spud rig. He became known as someone who did good work, who would only "do it the right way." He could not always collect for his work.

He pitched in wherever he could. Perhaps because of his business difficulties, personal problems began to hobble his plans. Yet he was always friendly, caring, and interesting; he never compromised his integrity.

Fifty people braved the high winds to journey to the cemetery south of Charlevoix, where he was buried with full military honors. More would have come, except the Emerald Isle, which had held over during the funeral to allow the Beaver Island crowds to attend, could only wait so long. His ex-wife was there, with his daughter, now a promising young woman, full of character. I had always hoped that demands would relax and fate would allow Donnie and me to do some of the many things we had planned. Standing there in the wind as the Honor Guard fired salute after salute, I realized that these bright possibilities were never to be. Looking around at the tear-stained faces, it was obvious that many others had also held out their hopes for a different outcome, all of which were cruelly canceled by his untimely death.

Republican supports Smietanka for attorney general

Editor:
I'm voting for John Smietanka, Republican candidate for Michigan Attorney General, because he isn't just talking about making neighborhoods safe - he's already done something about it.

As Berrien County Prosecutor and U.S. Attorney, he convicted thousands of drug dealers, child molesters and murderers. As Attorney General, he will continue the work he began nationwide with the Justice Department to bring businesses, labor, churches and schools together to make our communities safe. John Smietanka is a father who wants to guarantee that his daughter, like all children, can grow up in safe neighborhoods and attend safe schools.

Local man was speaker at international convention

Neil S. Cross was recently a guest speaker at the International Management Consultants Association Convention in Houston, Texas. The conference, held Oct. 16, included subjects such as risk management, hedge fund investments and monetization of restricted stock holdings.

Cross is president of N.S. Cross & Co., a privately held risk management firm. Prior to forming his own firm, Cross was vice president of Global Derivatives Hembrecht & Quist based in San Francisco. Cross has a career of 25 years in the risk management business, with his expertise in the law of securities. In 1987, he served on the Brady Commission in Washington to rewrite the market mechanism rules after the 1987 market crash.

In May of this year Neil, his wife, Julie, and their children Robin and Matthew returned to

Neil S. Cross

Charlevoix to live. He is the son of June and Jack Cross of John Cross Fisheries.

Consumer coalition works to resolve impasse at Burns Clinic

The newly formed Coalition of Insured Medical Consumers (CIMC) held their second organizational meeting yesterday in Charlevoix. Senior managers of 30 area employers representing over 15,000 employees and family members discussed the goals and the plans for the organization.

Northern Michigan employers expressed frustration and anger regarding the actions and impasse between Burns Clinic and Blue Cross/Blue Shield. The group determined the interest of the medical consumer and premium payer needs to be represented with one strong mind and one strong voice. The coalition agreed the primary goal of the organization was achieving a settlement of the situation between the clinic and the insurer while satisfying the demands of the membership.

In an effort to achieve the primary goal of resolution, CIMC will organize a round table discussion at a meeting of the membership and will invite senior executives from Burns Clinic, Physician, Northern Michigan Hospital, Burns Clinic Physicians, Independent Physicians, and Blue Cross/Blue Shield to address the forum. It is anticipated that each person will have the opportunity to address the membership, and then be available to answer questions. The time and place of the meeting has yet to be determined. While the primary goal of CIMC is to facilitate settlement, the group will review and possibly implement secondary goals. Specifically, the group will contact employers in other communities covered by the service area, and invite those organizations to join the coalition.

In addition, contingency plans will be put into place to contact other national insurance providers and other clinical organizations to invite those organizations into the area to service members of the coalition.

CIMC was formed last week by eight area companies in reaction to the situation between Burns Clinic and Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

Wayne Boss receives National Leadership Award

Congressman John Linder announced that Wayne Boss of Charlevoix was selected to receive the National Leadership Award presented by the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Boss received the award for serving as co-chairman of the Committee's Business Advisory Council, which was founded by House Speaker Newt Gingrich. The advisory council was instrumental in shaping the Republican's Balanced Budget Plan.

"We are grateful for all of Mr. Boss' support of Republican ideals, particularly for his commitment to tax reform and spending cuts," said Congressman Linder, who heads the Congressional Committee.

HAVE A SAFE HALLOWEEN

LET'S ALL BE AWARE OF CHILDREN ON HALLOWEEN NIGHT! WE WANT THEM TO BE SAFE AND HAPPY AND HAVE A GREAT HALLOWEEN!

- Try to Trick or Treat when it is still light outside.
- Children should wear their masks on top of their heads when walking, and pull them over their faces when they reach the door.
- Carry a flashlight so you can see, and be seen easily.
- Pick up ladders, play things and other objects from the yard so children won't trip.
- Give your children a meal or snack before they go out, and emphasize that no treats should be eaten before they get home.
- Discard commercially-produced candy if the wrapper is loose or the seal has been broken.

- Trick or Treat during specified hours only.
- Trick or Treaters should always go in groups, and younger children should be accompanied by an adult.
- Children become careless from excitement and may run into the road.

Commissioners are planning for more parking lots

By Jamie MacMillan

With a new parking lot already under construction, county officials are amid negotiations to purchase more property with the intent to turn the land into another parking lot.

These properties at 207 and 205 Antrim are right next door to the Charlevoix county building, and county officials are eyeing the parcels for a future extension of the building's parking lot.

Thieves enter homes through unlocked doors

The Charlevoix City Police Department is investigating two breaking and entering incidents that occurred on the north side of town.

The incidents happened sometime between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 22 in homes on Elm Street and West Dixon Avenue.

A 1998 silver Jeep Cherokee with sheepskin seat covers was stolen from one residence. The vehicle has a Michigan license plate numbered GVD444.

The perpetrators apparently entered the two occupied homes through unlocked doors. They stole purses from both homes. Keys to the stolen vehicle were in a purse taken from the Elm Street home.

Police Chief Dennis Halverson said there may have been similar incidents in Charlevoix Township. The chief would like to remind everyone to lock their homes.

During its last session, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners authorized its renovation committee to offer up to $115,000 to purchase additional property.

Committee chairman Carl Price said the county is eyeing the parcel at 207 Antrim St. The residence is two doors down from the county clerk's office, and Price said the county has also inquired about the next door property on 205 Antrim St. That property, Price said, is currently not for sale.

"We're just kind of feeling it out," he said. "We'll just go after the one right now, and purchase others as we can."

The county is currently blacktopping land between Mason and Clinton streets for a 31-space parking lot. The county is spending almost $29,000 on the job and it is expected to be completed, except for landscaping, by the middle of November. Manthei Development is doing the work.

The current lot behind the county building has over 80 parking spaces.

"We're not sure that the new lot will even fulfill our present parking needs," committee member Vic Patrick said. "We're just looking at the future and the need for more courthouse parking down the line."

Price said no time line has been set on the project and that any additional parking along Antrim Street is at least four to five years down the road. Should the county succeed in buying the two Antrim Street houses, he said, the county might rent out the homes or use them as office space for county employees until additional parking is warranted.

If a new parking lot is built along Antrim Street, Price said the county doesn't want to keep both lots. He said "something might be worked out to transfer ownership of the lot currently being built to the local school district or to the city."

"We want all our parking to be in one area, instead of across the street," Price said.

The board next meets tonight, Wednesday, at 7 p.m. in the commissioner's room in the county building.

Marion Township settlement is satisfactory to everyone

By Jamie MacMillan

At least 34 boat storage facilities could be built along M-66 after Marion Township and Art Reibel, a local businessman, agreed to settlement terms last week in the year-old lawsuit between the two parties.

Reibel filed suit against the township in October, 1997 after repeated attempts to get his 24-acre piece of property along M-66 rezoned from agricultural, A-1, to marine industrial, I-2, failed. The land in question is across the road from the Castle Farms property, owned by the Reibel Family Trust.

Stating a desire to build boat storage units, Reibel's request was first turned down by township officials in January, 1997. At that time, Reibel asked for the property to be split in two, with 400 feet along the property's north side zoned commercial, C-1.

Reibel tried the township again in August, 1997, dropping his request for the small commercial strip, but was still denied a rezone.

The township's basic stance was that ample space in the township has already been provided for boat storage and that boat storage could be done on agricultural land through the use of pole barns.

The township spent $3,316 in legal fees to defend themselves against the suit, according to township clerk Wilson "Bud" Boss.

After last week's settlement, though, the land will be rezoned I-2, marine industrial, and Reibel may begin work on his boat storage park.

Reibel said he has been frustrated by the fact that he has paid commercial real estate taxes on the property for years, yet his use of the land has been restricted to the agricultural zone.

"Once the court said, 'You can't have it both ways,' I think the township eased up," he said.

According to a site plan, the park will be located on seven acres on the property's southern end with an entrance heading east into the park off of Wickersham Road. The boat storage buildings will be lined along both sides of the driveway and between 34-38 units are slated to be built.

The northern portion of the property, which borders M-66, will remain untouched for now. Reibel plans a multiple phase development, but said he has no plans beyond the initial storage facilities.

Any changes to this plan must be approved by the township.

The rest of the settlement limits the scope of Reibel's venture and requires him to adequately landscape the property.

Everything kept at the park must remain stowed indoors and Reibel may not use the property for any other use.

"We don't want any marine manufacturing up there," Boss said lauding the settlement. "We also wanted to make sure everything will be kept inside."

Reibel can pursue other interests on the property, but must first receive a special use permit from the township.

The settlement requires Reibel to maintain a 20-foot green belt along the project's north, east and west perimeter. Two rows of trees must be planted within the next year.

On the south side, a 10-foot green belt must be created with two rows of trees, but not necessarily evergreens. Reibel must tend to the green belt and replace any dead trees within one year.

"It's a fair settlement to all concerned," Reibel said.

Both Varsity and JV Rayder teams beat rival Boyne City

By Jamie MacMillan

Colin Carr scored five touchdowns, including the game winner on a 48-yard scamper, to lead Charlevoix past Boyne City in a remarkable 50-46 contest.

The game was played for pride, county bragging rights and, of course, to determine which team would have to pay for the scoreboard's electric bill following the 96-point outburst which featured 13 touchdowns and close to 900 yards of total offense.

Kidding aside, the Rayders earned the win after twice falling behind by 16 points in the first half and by 10 points early in the third quarter.

The Ramblers opened up a variety of leads by exposing Charlevoix's vulnerability against the forward pass.

Already ahead 8-0, Boyne's Andy Douglas hauled in a pass from quarterback Josh Bush for 65 yards to set up a short TD run to open a 16-0 Boyne lead.

After Carr's first score capped a seven play, 61-yard drive and sliced the lead to 16-6, Bush hit Douglas for 27 yards and connected with Noah Stanek on a 15-yard scoring pass to push the lead to 22-6.

The Rayders rebounded to score the game's next 22 points.

Tom Cunningham snared a 6-yard touchdown pass from Adam Wood capping a nine play, 73 yard drive. With the two point conversion, Boyne's lead was shaved to 22-14.

Carr grabbed his first of two interceptions of the night on Boyne's next possession to set-up his own 21-yard scoring run. He also added the two-point conversion to tie the score at 22-22.

A short Carr run gave the Rayders a short lived 28-22 lead. The Ramblers scored a touchdown, though, on the final play of the first half, set up by a series of short passes to give them a 30-28 halftime advantage.

Boyne pushed the lead to 38-28 on a 42-yard scoring strike from Bush to Douglas on the opening drive of the second half.

A 4-yard run from Carr combined with Matt McClellan's two-point conversion trimmed the Boyne advantage to 38-36.

Carr then gave the Rayders a 42-38 lead on a 26-yard interception return for a touchdown.

Boyne answered by scoring on a 28-yard option play, but Charlevoix took the lead for good on the game's next play from scrimmage when Carr burst in the clear for a 48-yard scoring run.

A pass from Wood to Cunningham gave Charlevoix the two-point conversion and a 50-46 lead.

Boyne threatened one more time, advancing to the Rayder 27-yard line with 36 seconds remaining in the game. Mark Yager intercepted a pass in the end zone to preserve the victory.

For the game, Carr rushed for 300 yards on 31 carries. Wood completed 10 of 17 passes for 136 yards. His two top targets were Cunningham, who caught three balls for 66 yards, and McClellan, who snared four catches covering 54 yards.

It was a good week for the Rayder football program as the JV squad ran its unblemished mark to 8-0 with a 22-12 come-from-behind victory over Boyne City.

The club trailed 12-0 at halftime, but a strong rushing attack featuring Ryan Leitner and Chad Mackowiak saved the day.

Leitner scored on a 4-yard run with Ben VanGuilder running in the two-point conversion and Mackowiak went on a 17-yard scoring scamper with Matt Horon adding the two-point conversion to give Charlevoix a 14-12 lead. VanGuilder added an insurance score on a 5-yard run.

For the game, Leitner rushed for 130 yards on 20 carries while Mackowiak added 110 on 14 carries.

Horon and Jerry Zeidler paced the defense with 15 and 12 tackles respectively.

The junior varsity squad will attempt to complete an unbeaten season with its last game of the season against Maple City-Glen Lake at Kipke Field at 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 29.

Cross country teams take second place

By Jamie MacMillan

The Charlevoix High School cross-country teams warmed up for this weekend's regional finals by cruising to a pair of second place finishes in the Lake Michigan Conference finals.

Ahead of Charlevoix was East Jordan in the boys' field and Elk Rapids in the girls' competition.

The girls' race was particularly close, with the Elks nudging out the Rayders by a 42-46 score. Lowest total team score wins.

Charlevoix's Tricia Hodge won top honors in the individual race, hitting the finish line in a time of 19 minutes, 31 seconds. Hodge, along with Liza Gorkiewicz, who finished fifth with a time of 20:11, earned all-conference honors.

Laura Schairbaum and Emily

Martinus both earned honorable mention all-conference honors.

The boys' race wasn't as close, with East Jordan easily outdistancing the field. Josh Popenhagen and Jeff Popenhagen placed fourth and fifth respectively to earn all-conference honors for Charlevoix. Josh's time was 16:41 while Jeff's time was 16:42.

East Jordan's Tarn Leach won the individual race with a 16:05.

Coach Ken Plude was pleased with the efforts of both his squads, especially the boys, who improved from their third place finish a year ago.

"We closed the gap a little," he said. "Our front groups ran real well."

Next up for the teams is a Halloween date with a host of other schools at the regional finals. The races will be at Benzie High School and are slated to begin at 10 a.m. with the girls' race.

The top three teams advance to the state finals the following weekend.

Plude said East Jordan, ranked No. 4 in the state, is the boys' favorite with Benzie Central, Sandusky, McBain, Rogers City and Charlevoix expected to be in the mix. In the girls' race, Benzie Central enters the event ranked No. 1 and will be the team to beat. Mason County Central, Suttons Bay, Elk Rapids and Charlevoix will be jockeying for qualifying spots as well.

"A whole bunch of teams have a shot," Plude said. "Both fields are tough, but I think our girls' team has a shot at advancing."

New York City marathon beckons two local women

By Laurie Lounsbury

When Anna Austin climbed out of her car in the Glen's parking lot wearing a chic, fuchsia warm-up suit, her silver hair stylishly coiffed, she looked like a woman ready to pick up a few grocery items before starting her day.

And when Paula Strange stepped out of her car to greet Austin, she gave the appearance of a busy mother who ran out of bread and milk.

But the two women weren't meeting in the grocery store parking lot first thing in the morning to swap coupons.

They both bent over to tighten the laces on their worn running shoes before embarking on a 23 mile run. The run was in preparation for the New York City Marathon, which the two Ellsworth women will be entering Nov. 1.

Austin, 57, is the mother of five children and grandmother to five young ones.

Strange, 41, is the mother of four children, ranging in ages from 17 to 7.

The two women both work full time — Austin works at the health department in Charlevoix, and Strange works for the Secretary of State in Traverse City.

They are proof that anyone can be dedicated to running, at any age, if the desire is there.

"You just do what you've got to do," Strange said.

Now they're headed for the thrill

Soccer team concludes season

By Jamie MacMillan

First round heroics were not sustained as the Charlevoix Rayders fell last week 2-1 to the Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian Academy Eagles in the semifinals of the Division IV district soccer tournament.

Rayder striker Ryan Vogelheim scored to give Charlevoix an early 1-0 lead, but the Eagles scored twice in a 15-second span during the second half to steal the game from Charlevoix.

At the 24:50 mark, the Rayders held a 1-0 lead, but by the 25:05 mark they faced a 2-1 deficit after goals from Anthony LeCureux and Spencer Chatfield.

The Rayders advanced into the semifinals on the heels of a 2-1 opening round win over Harbor Light featuring their own dose of heroics.

After a scoreless first half, the Rayders trailed Harbor Light 1-0 with less than five minutes remaining.

After a daring rush down the right sideline, Vogelheim slipped a shot into the net to tie the score. Two minutes later, Jon Boss lifted a corner kick high into the swirling winds. The winds fooled everybody on the ball's descent as it bounced untouched by anyone else into the net, giving the Rayders a 2-1 win.

The Burt Lake team advanced into the Charlevoix game with a 6-1 win over Beaver Island. Unlike the Rayders, the Burt Lake team was able to build on its winning rally.

Trailing 1-0 in the finals against Harbor Springs, the Burt Lake team (Eagles) scored on a direct kick from 30 yards out with less than two minutes to go in the contest. The goal sent the game into overtime and the Eagles claimed the district title with a goal in the middle of the first extra period when the ball deflected into the goal off an Eagle attacker amid a seven player scrum in front of the net.

Charlevoix concluded its season with a 11-7-2 record.

and the challenge of running in the New York City Marathon.

"It's been a challenge to even get into this race," Austin said. "The process started last spring. The first cut-off for applications was in April — we were so excited when we made that."

It's expected that 37,000 people will run in the marathon. Even more than that number apply to run in the race, and entrants are chosen on a lottery basis.

For Austin, the marathon is her first attempt at a long distance race. Strange has run two other marathons in Michigan and Ohio, but hadn't considered the New York City Marathon until Austin cajoled her into it.

"It's all my fault," Austin said, laughing. "My husband's daughter did it (ran in the New York Marathon) last year. I had no interest in running a marathon until I saw that one."

Inspired by the throngs of people running through the streets and boroughs of New York, Austin decided the New York City Marathon was the long distance event for her. She also decided there is no time like the present.

"I decided if I'm going to do this before I turn that big 6-0, I'd better do it soon," she said.

Through running, the two women forged a friendship that transcends their difference in ages.

Strange began running eight years ago, taking time out for the birth of her youngest son. Her sister, Christie Vogelheim, is an avid Charlevoix runner so Strange would make the drive to Charlevoix from Ellsworth to have company during her training runs.

Austin took up running again, after an absence from the sport, when her oldest son died eight years ago. "Running was a way to work through some things," Austin said. "It does help — but then, I suppose so would sewing or knitting."

Hardly the sedate type, Austin chose running as a way to work through her grief instead of making tea cozies or stockings.

She, too, joined the supportive Charlevoix runners for her jogging trips.

It didn't take long for Austin and Strange to realize they didn't need to drive to Charlevoix for running partners. They teamed up and started running together in Ellsworth.

"It's really helped," Strange said. "Neither of us would show up to go running if it weren't for the other."

With the marathon just around the corner, the novice Austin turns to her friend for advice.

"I'm relying on Paula's expertise," she said.

"Just put one foot in front of the other," Strange told her.

Austin has advice of her own for anyone who thinks it's too late to take up a challenge like training for a marathon.

"If we can do it, anyone can," Austin said. "And if you find something you like, don't wait. Life's too short."

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Boulder Park Terrace welcomes trick-or-treaters

Residents of Boulder Park Terrace are busy preparing for a night of fun when they will hand out goodies to the ghosts and goblins taking to the streets of Charlevoix on Halloween.

Boulder Park Terrace welcomes trick-or-treaters to visit from 4-5:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31. Kids will be greeted by residents in the Boulder Park Terrace library just inside the main entrance to the facility located at 14676 West Upright St. in Charlevoix.

Sunday Symphony starts in Petoskey

Sunday Symphony is back in Petoskey. Families with young children are enthusiastically invited to have an interactive adventure in music with the Traverse Symphony Orchestra. Kids and their parents may meet musicians, find out how instruments make music and how that sound is turned into music.

Sunday Symphony in Petoskey is presented by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Before and after each concert, kids are invited to the popular TSO Instrument Petting Zoo, which allows children to try out the instruments the TSO members play.

Following is the schedule for Sunday Symphony in Petoskey: Nov. 22 - Traverse String Quartet; Jan. 17 - Traverse Percussion Ensemble; March 15 - Woodwind Quintet; April 25 - TSO Chamber Orchestra.

Advance individual tickets are $2; tickets will be available at the door for $3. Tickets are available at the McCune Arts Center. For more information, call or visit the Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center, 461 East Mitchell in Petoskey, 347-4337.

Evening Garden Club to meet

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3 at Charlevoix Area Hospital's meeting room B.

The speaker will be Betty Henry of Bloomers. She will speak about container planting.

The group welcomes new members, so anyone is invited to attend.

Jordan arts council hosts Holiday Fair

The Jordan River Arts Council is hosting its eighth annual Holiday Fair, a juried fine arts and crafts show. The event will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14 at the East Jordan High School.

The works of over 50 artists will be featured at the show.

American Red Cross offering classes

The American Red Cross Northern Lower Michigan Chapter will be presenting the following courses in the month of November.

Community First Aid and Safety (includes Adult, Infant, Child CPR and Community First Aid), from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7. The cost of the course is $35. Location: 2350 Mitchell Park, Petoskey.

Instructor Candidate Training, with successful completion of the three day course, participants will become instructors in Community First Aid and Safety. Class schedule is from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 21, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22. Fee for the course is $75. Location is 2350 Mitchell Park, Petoskey.

American Red Cross Babysitter's Training Instructor Course is offered from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, and 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 15. Fee for the course is $50. Participants will become American Red Cross Babysitter's Training Instructors upon successful completion of the two day course.

For registration or information, call 348-7666 or (800) 691-6059.

Ghost Ship is returning to Round Lake

The United States Coast Guard Cutter Acacia, located at the Charlevoix Bridge Park mooring facility, will be hosting their annual Halloween "Ghost Ship" from 6-10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31. This year the Coast Guard will team up with the Charlevoix Food Pantry by requesting that all guests bring a non-perishable food item to serve as their pass to board the bone-chilling haunted ship.

The food pantry would especially appreciate canned fruits/vegetables, powdered juices, and paper products (napkins, towels, plates). Cash or check donations to the Charlevoix Food Pantry will also be accepted during the event.

This event is open to people of all ages and younger children should have an adult escort. Any businesses interested in helping Coast Guard volunteers sponsor this event by donating costume items, decorations, candy or other Halloween accessories are requested to contact Petty Officer Daniel Gambino at 547-4447 or 547-4448.

Last year's event drew nearly 1,000 guests and "ghoulish reviews." This year's event is envisioned to be even grander!

Sixth grade students to perform on stage

Charlevoix Middle School sixth grade students will be presenting a play, "Whodunit," at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 30 in the middle school gym.

Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students and seniors, and preschool children may attend at no cost.

SCRAPBOOK

Courier kept soldiers in touch with home

Editor's note: It's getting to be the time of year when civic-minded groups start community drives to collect coats, canned goods and money for needy people. Cynthia Postmus, with the help of the Charlevoix Public Library, compiled the following stories from an era when there were very different needs to be addressed. The stories are reprinted in their entirety, without any changes to spelling or grammar.

SCHOOL PUPILS IN SCRAP DRIVE

JOIN NATION'S JUNIOR ARMY TO AID CAMPAIGN

Will Scour Charlevoix for Old Metal to Aid War Effort; Officers Are Named
(Charlevoix Courier, Sept. 30, 1942)

The boys and girls of Charlevoix and Charlevoix county are part of a National Junior Army which on October 5 will begin a great attack. The attack is against the worst enemy within our borders today. This enemy could stop our factories from making guns and ships and tanks and planes. This enemy could prevent those weapons from being made by preventing manufacture of the steel out of which parts of those weapons are made.

This enemy is starvation of the steel mills.

But the school pupils of our nation, organized in a great Junior Army, are going to feed the mills. They are going to find and bring together the things out of which tanks and ships are made—things like rusty pipe, broken bed springs, air guns that won't shoot any more.

Around Charlevoix and Charlevoix county that is junk, scrap. But after it has gone through the mills it is bombs for the Nazis and bullets for the Japs.

Commanding General of the Michigan division of the Junior Army of school boys and girls is State Superintendent of Public Instruction Eugene B. Elliott. The regiment in Charlevoix is headed by Supt. O.P. North.

Each school principal is Major in the Junior Army. Under each major come the captains, the teachers. School boys and girls of each school room will be lieutenants, sergeants, corporals and privates of the Junior Army. Those who do well will be promoted, just like real soldiers in the fighting army.

A fighting army uses maps and scouts every foot of ground. Members of the Junior Army will scout the same way for the pieces of junk.

From map plans, each will be given a place to scout. So the Junior Army will scout all of America, each street and road, each city block and country farm, finding junk.

For, so long as the junk lies un-gathered, it is part of the starvation enemy of our steel mills, our war factories, and our fighting men. The boys and girls of Charlevoix and Charlevoix county are going to find and take prisoner all of that enemy in this part of our nation.

LETTERS from the ARMY CAMPS

(Charlevoix Courier, Oct. 28, 1942)

Dear Ken: (editor)

Just a line or two this evening while I've got a few spare moments. The good old home town paper reaches me every Monday.

There's a fellow in the same barracks with me who is from Petoskey, he too finds the Charlevoix Courier very interesting. He also gets his home town paper, so we swap whenever we get through reading the paper.

I always read your column "Letters from the army camps." This parachute outfit is really tough and I mean tough. Every day we go out and fire about three hundred rounds of ammunition with the tommy gun, another week of that and I should be able to hit a barn (I hope). We never jump during the day any more, it's always during the middle of the night. It makes the ground hard to judge but I'll get used to it if I keep that up.

Well, I guess I'll close for now, hoping this letter finds you in good health. Keep the presses rolling.

Good Luck,
Yours truly, P.F.C. Archie Wasegishik
Co. 1, 502nd Para. Inf.
Fort Benning, Ga.

Dear Ken:

I guess I am settled for a while. We have been on the move for the last two weeks. We have been all over Great Lakes. We just get our gear settled in one barracks and we have to move to another. We were on K.P. four days.

I have been working out with the football team for the last two weeks, but there are a lot of good players here. Chuck Carey is playing. We are going to Ann Arbor to play Michigan on Saturday. Other than this we haven't done much work.

I expect to start school next week as a fire control man, which is a sixteen week course. Well, I hope to get paid this morning some time, so better get ready.

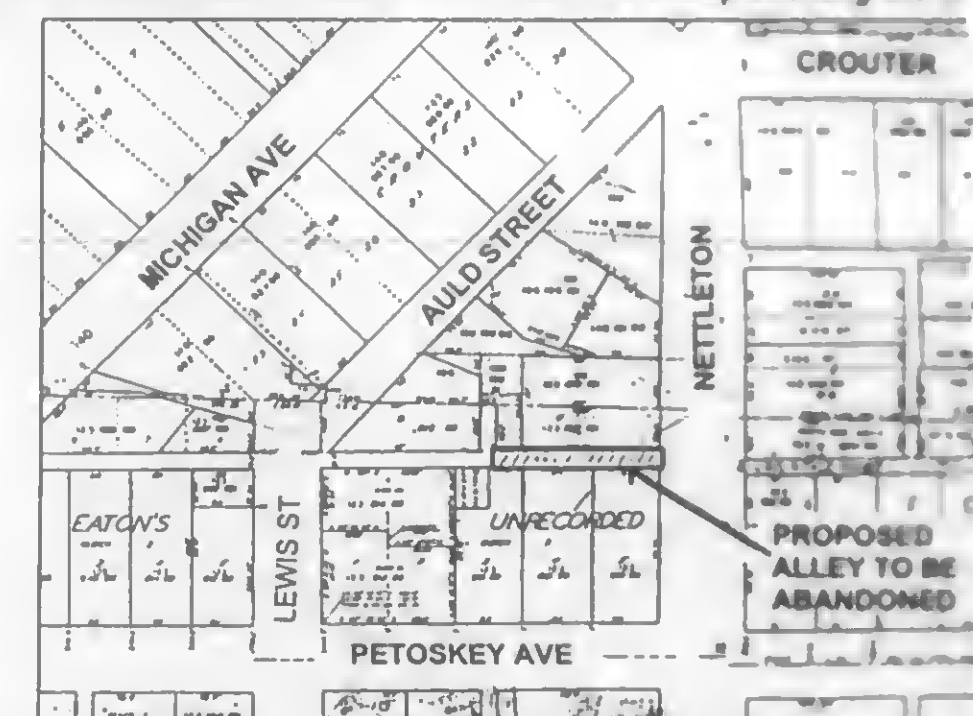

As ever,

Advance individual tickets are $2; tickets will be available at the door for $3. Tickets are available at the McCune Arts Center. For more information, call or visit the Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center, 461 East Mitchell in Petoskey, 347-4337.

Evening Garden Club to meet

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3 at Charlevoix Area Hospital's meeting room B.

The speaker will be Betty Henry of Bloomers. She will speak about container planting.

The group welcomes new members, so anyone is invited to attend.

Jordan arts council hosts Holiday Fair

The Jordan River Arts Council is hosting its eighth annual Holiday Fair, a juried fine arts and crafts show. The event will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14 at the East Jordan High School.

The works of over 50 artists will be featured at the show.

American Red Cross offering classes

The American Red Cross Northern Lower Michigan Chapter will be presenting the following courses in the month of November.

Community First Aid and Safety (includes Adult, Infant, Child CPR and Community First Aid), from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7. The cost of the course is $35. Location: 2350 Mitchell Park, Petoskey.

Instructor Candidate Training, with successful completion of the three day course, participants will become instructors in Community First Aid and Safety. Class schedule is from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 21, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22. Fee for the course is $75. Location is 2350 Mitchell Park, Petoskey.

American Red Cross Babysitter's Training Instructor Course is offered from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, and 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 15. Fee for the course is $50. Participants will become American Red Cross Babysitter's Training Instructors upon successful completion of the two day course.

For registration or information, call 348-7666 or (800) 691-6059.

Ghost Ship is returning to Round Lake

The United States Coast Guard Cutter Acacia, located at the Charlevoix Bridge Park mooring facility, will be hosting their annual Halloween "Ghost Ship" from 6-10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31. This year the Coast Guard will team up with the Charlevoix Food Pantry by requesting that all guests bring a non-perishable food item to serve as their pass to board the bone-chilling haunted ship.

The food pantry would especially appreciate canned fruits/vegetables, powdered juices, and paper products (napkins, towels, plates). Cash or check donations to the Charlevoix Food Pantry will also be accepted during the event.

This event is open to people of all ages and younger children should have an adult escort. Any businesses interested in helping Coast Guard volunteers sponsor this event by donating costume items, decorations, candy or other Halloween accessories are requested to contact Petty Officer Daniel Gambino at 547-4447 or 547-4448.

Last year's event drew nearly 1,000 guests and "ghoulish reviews." This year's event is envisioned to be even grander!

Sixth grade students to perform on stage

Charlevoix Middle School sixth grade students will be presenting a play, "Whodunit," at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 30 in the middle school gym.

Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students and seniors, and preschool children may attend at no cost.

SCHOOL PUPILS IN SCRAP DRIVE

JOIN NATION'S JUNIOR ARMY TO AID CAMPAIGN

Will Scour Charlevoix for Old Metal to Aid War Effort; Officers Are Named

(Charlevoix Courier, Sept. 30, 1942)

The boys and girls of Charlevoix and Charlevoix county are part of a National Junior Army which on October 5 will begin a great attack.

The attack is against the worst enemy within our borders today. This enemy could stop our factories from making guns and ships and tanks and planes. This enemy could prevent those weapons from being made by preventing manufacture of the steel out of which parts of those weapons are made.

This enemy is starvation of the steel mills.

But the school pupils of our nation, organized in a great Junior Army, are going to feed the mills.

They are going to find and bring together the things out of which tanks and ships are made—things like rusty pipe, broken bed springs, air guns that won't shoot any more.

Around Charlevoix and Charlevoix county that is junk, scrap. But after it has gone through the mills it is bombs for the Nazis and bullets for the Japs.

Commanding General of the Michigan division of the Junior Army of school boys and girls is State Superintendent of Public Instruction Eugene B. Elliott. The regiment in Charlevoix is headed by Supt. O.P. North.

Each school principal is Major in the Junior Army. Under each major come the captains, the teachers. School boys and girls of each school room will be lieutenants, sergeants, corporals and privates of the Junior Army. Those who do well will be promoted, just like real soldiers in the fighting army.

A fighting army uses maps and scouts every foot of ground. Members of the Junior Army will scout the same way for the pieces of junk.

From map plans, each will be given a place to scout. So the Junior Army will scout all of America, each street and road, each city block and country farm, finding junk.

For, so long as the junk lies un-gathered, it is part of the starvation enemy of our steel mills, our war factories, and our fighting men. The boys and girls of Charlevoix and Charlevoix county are going to find and take prisoner all of that enemy in this part of our nation.

LETTERS from the ARMY CAMPS

(Charlevoix Courier, Oct. 28, 1942)

Dear Ken: (editor) Just a line or two this evening while I've got a few spare moments. The good old home town paper reaches me every Monday.

There's a fellow in the same barracks with me who is from Petoskey, he too finds the Charlevoix Courier very interesting. He also gets his home town paper, so we swap whenever we get through reading the paper.

I always read your column "Letters from the army camps."

This parachute outfit is really tough and I mean tough. Every day we go out and fire about three hundred rounds of ammunition with the tommy gun, another week of that and I should be able to hit a barn (I hope). We never jump during the day any more, it's always during the middle of the night. It makes the ground hard to judge but I'll get used to it if I keep that up.

Well, I guess I'll close for now, hoping this letter finds you in good health. Keep the presses rolling.

Good Luck,
Yours truly, P.F.C. Archie Wasegishik
Co. I, 502nd Para. Inf.
Fort Benning, Ga.

Dear Ken:

I guess I am settled for a while. We have been on the move for the last two weeks. We have been all over Great Lakes. We just get our gear settled in one barracks and we have to move to another. We were on K.P. four days.

I have been working out with the football team for the last two weeks, but there are a lot of good players here. Chuck Carey is playing. We are going to Ann Arbor to play Michigan on Saturday. Other than this we haven't done much work.

I expect to start school next week as a fire control man, which is a sixteen week course. Well, I hope to get paid this morning some time, so better get ready.

As ever,

Leaves of gold at the end of the rainbow

Top left: City workers used the fire department's pumper truck to drain the water tower near the municipal golf course last Friday. The tower had to be drained because the inside was recently painted and the water had chlorine in it.

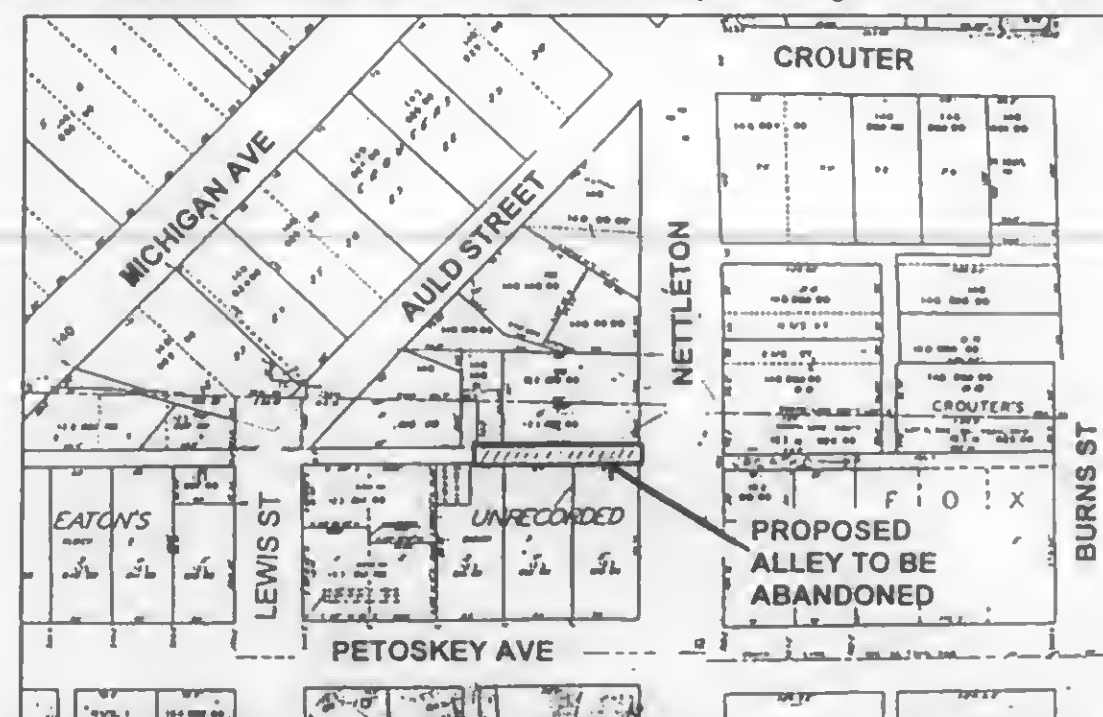

Bottom left: The sprays of water from the fire truck created a rainbow in the woods near the water tower. Closer inspection showed there was no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow — just fallen gold autumn leaves. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

Veterinarians save injured dog's life

Toby, a cute, black and white pooch, was roaming near Loeb Road around noon, Saturday, Oct. 24 when he nearly lost his life. He was shot in the side with an arrow that went straight through his body.

A family driving on Loeb Road in Marion Township noticed the dog in a field with an arrow protruding from its side, and they called 9-1-1.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputy David Hague responded to their call, found the dog and took him to the Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital. Veterinarians Lori DeGrazia and Kurt Henkel were just about to close up shop for the day when Toby arrived.

"The arrow went straight through his abdomen and perforated the intestine three times, and went through the colon," DeGrazia said.

She and Henkel performed surgery on the dog for four-and-one-half hours.

"We weren't sure at all if he was going to make it," DeGrazia said. "With intestinal wounds, the contents can leak out and spread bacteria throughout the abdominal cavity. It can be very life-threatening."

Thanks to their efforts, Toby is now in stable condition. He has no temperature and started to eat Tuesday. DeGrazia said he might be able to go home Wednesday.

The dog's owner was located Monday, Oct. 26 when he came to the sheriff's department to report that his dog was missing. "He belongs to a nice older gentleman," DeGrazia said. "I think this dog is his best buddy."

Anyone with information regarding this incident should contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department at 547-4461, or the Charlevoix County Animal Control Division at 547-9570. A reward of $200 is being offered for any information that leads to an arrest.

Vets go with their hearts when it comes to pet care

By Laurie Lounsbury

Napping peacefully on a small spot of sunshine warming the floor of the veterinary office is Boo, a lean, tan and black Greyhound dog.

Curled up near Boo is Kiwi, a fluffy apricot terrier that was once unfit to live indoors with polite society.

The two dogs graciously made room last Wednesday for a new visitor, Toby, who was recovering from surgery.

The scene was a typical one at the Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital, now under the management of Kurt Henkel and Lorie DeGrazia, a husband and wife team of veterinarians.

The animals snoozing in the office (with the exception of Toby) belong to the veterinary couple. Upon seeing the menagerie of contented mutts, new visitors to the animal hospital are immediately reassured by the couple's devotion to pets.

DeGrazia and Henkel adopted Boo from Michigan State University, where he was helpfully assisting lab workers with blood typing research. Boo had been trained to race at the dog tracks, but flunked the finals for dog racing.

"He was fast enough, but he kept bumping into other dogs when he passed them," DeGrazia said. "I guess they get disqualified if they bump while passing."

Kiwi was an adult dog at a downstate humane society with no one clamoring to take her home. She had never bonded with people and was not housebroken.

"She looked like she needed a good home," DeGrazia said good-naturedly.

The two dogs share the "family" moniker with the other four-legged family members — a horse and four cats.

DeGrazia and Henkel are obviously veterinarians who don't mind taking their work home with them.

"That's a problem sometimes," DeGrazia said. "We get too emotionally involved with our patients. We find ourselves saying, 'C'mon, you've just got to get better.'"

That was the case recently when the couple performed surgery on the black lab and collie mix dog, Toby, owned by Ed Drew.

Toby was shot in the abdomen with an arrow.

After responding to a 9-1-1 call, sheriff's deputy David Hague picked up the injured dog and brought him to the local veterinarians.

The couple had to make swift decisions in order to save Toby's life.

"We knew we didn't have time to wait and see if there was an owner for the dog, or see what the owner might want. We went with our hearts on that one," DeGrazia said.

Going with their hearts and performing surgery on Toby was just what his worried owner would have requested. Drew came to the hospital in search of his dog two days after Toby received his operation.

Toby is doing well now, back home with Drew. Drew was unavailable for comment, reportedly because he took Toby on a vacation.

The veterinarians, who have been practicing in Charlevoix for a little over one year, are delighted to be practicing veterinary medicine up north. They both came from Livonia and earned their Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degrees from Michigan State University in 1987.

Kurt Henkel and Lorie DeGrazia take one of their recent surgical patients, Toby, outside for a little fresh air last Wednesday. (Photo by Laurie Lounsbury)

Both were practicing downstate, hoping someday to move to northwestern Michigan and start a practice.

When they first learned that Dave Norton was selling his Charlevoix practice, the couple called Norton, only to find out he already had a buyer.

Fate intervened a short time later, when DeGrazia's friend was visiting Charlevoix and her dog got sick. The woman took her dog to Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital, where she discovered Norton was still in business. Apparently, his first buyer for the practice didn't follow through.

"We couldn't believe the opportunity came up again," DeGrazia said. "We jumped at it. We really are happy to be here."

While their practice is a general, medical, small animal practice, Henkel and DeGrazia are planning to incorporate more diagnostic capabilities and orthopedic equipment in the future.

"Kurt has a specialty in pathology, which helps with diagnostics," DeGrazia said.

"As time goes on, we want to bring more specialized capabilities up here so people don't have to go to Michigan State University for special treatment," DeGrazia said.

Until that time, the couple will continue to treat animals with what they have — skill and devotion.

Election results

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will welcome board veteran Don Smith back to the board. Smith reclaimed his seat in a race against Christa-Maria, which he won with 1,483 votes to her 531 votes.

Smith lost his seat on the board two years ago to Joan Blanchard. He beat Blanchard in the Republican primary race this summer.

Smith will represent Charlevoix, Marion, Eveline and Norwood townships on the county board of commissioners.

In the race for the county's District No. 6 seat, incumbent Shirley Roloff beat challenger Scott Cochran by a vote of 1,015 to 497. This will be Roloff's second term on the county board.

In the state election, Governor Engler beat Geoffrey Fieger and kept his job by a vote of 1,825,649 to 1,098,598.

In the race for the 106th District House of Representatives seat, Republican Phil Ludlow lost to Democrat Andy Neumann. Both are from Alpena.

Democrat Kay Chase lost her bid for a seat in the State House Senate to incumbent Walter North by a vote of 54,797 to 32,198.

Bart Stupak resisted Michelle McManus's efforts to take away his seat in the United States House of Representatives by a vote of 129,672 to 87,455.

Proposal B, the ballot proposal asking voters if they want to legalize physician-assisted suicide, failed by a vote of 2,019,620 to 826,186.

Proposal C, the ballot proposal which would allow the state to bond for $675 million to clean up the environment, passed by a vote of 1,768,948 to 1,056,106.

Proposal A passed, which will allow wording in the state constitution to be changed from "handicapped" to "disabled."

County spending will increase with revenues next year

By Jamie MacMillan

The cost of operating a small northern Michigan county will grow next year by about $390,000 according to the Charlevoix County 1999 budget approved last week by the local board of commissioners.

Without dissent, the board okayed a $7,194,353 budget for its 1999 fiscal year, which represents a 5.41 percent increase from the $6.8 million budget for 1998.

Revenues will increase next year on three different fronts.

Property taxes are projected to increase from just under $4 million to $4.19 million.

The largest revenue increase will come from permit and license fees. Last year those fees collected less than $290,000, but next year it is projected to haul in over $333,000 for the county.

Most of the increase can be attributed to raising a variety of building fees the county requires, such as mechanical, electrical and plumbing permits.

County Clerk Jane Brannon said the fee increase will help cover an increase in spending within the building inspection department. Wages account for most of the higher expenses. The department hired two new part-time workers and will see their work week increase from 37.5 hours to 40 hours, Brannon said.

Incoming money from state grants will also increase in 1999 to $1,202,064. However, that is a less than a $2,000 increase from 1998.

Next year, the county plans to spend more money on law enforcement equipment, the 9-1-1 emergency system, probate officers and solving possible problems stemming from the year 2000 computer bug.

The commissioners themselves will see their own budget increase 16 percent, from $90,000 to over $107,000.

Brannon said that more committee meetings are expected to be held next year, especially the Renovation Committee, which will oversee two major projects next year with the jail expansion and the humane society relocation.

Commissioners earn $50 for every committee meeting, but if the meeting lasts four hours, then that stipend increases to $75.

Most of the other county departments will see only fractional increases or decreases in their 1999 spending. The county will save nearly $18,000 next year because 1999 isn't a major election year.

The county sheriff's department will be better equipped to fight crime next year due to a 75 percent increase in capital outlay expenditures for the department.

The department will spend over $13,000 in equipment including two new video cameras to be installed in patrol vehicles, replacement radar equipment and three stinger strips.

The strips are sharp, bear trap-like devices which are spread across the road to puncture the tires of vehicles that county officers are pursuing.

After receiving no money last year, the marine division of the sheriff's department will benefit from $3,370 worth of new devices from radios to flares to flotation coats.

The sheriff's secondary patrol budget will increase from $31,000 to $50,000 to fully cover officers' benefits and, for the first time, car insurance on the patrol vehicles. Brannon noted that the increased spending in this area will be covered by a state grant.

The county will also host its spending on the tri-county 9-1-1 system by $33,000 after spending $340,000 on the project in 1998.

Brannon explained that $24,000 of the increase will be kept in a contingency fund set up by counties to cover any possible problems. That fund is expected to total $65,000, Brannon said. Emmet and Cheboygan counties are partners with Charlevoix in the 9-1-1 system.

Probate court's capital expenses will increase from under $2,000 to over $19,000 next year to cover health benefits and office furnishings for two new probation officers.

Wages for the new officers are contained in the court's general expense line item which will actually decrease by 16 percent as the state will be providing the court directly with more money this year after recent changes in the revenue formulas.

In 1999, the county is setting aside $107,000 in the event any of the county's computer or phone systems need to be improved to handle the year 2000 glitch. Brannon said it's probable that the county will incur a major expense to update their primary AS400 computer system.

The board next meets at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 11.

County board violated Freedom of Information law

Because it wasn't a top priority, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has been violating the Michigan Freedom Of Information Act for at least the last two years. The law they've been breaking has been in effect since 1982.

According to section K of the act, which pertains to county boards of commissioners, the board is required to do one of the following immediately after each session:

a) Publish the full report of the meeting as soon as possible in a well-established newspaper in the county; or,

b) Publish a synopsis of the proceedings of the board as soon as possible after each session in at least one well-established newspaper in the county; or,

c) Make the report available as soon as possible after each session, and advertise that the report is available in the county clerk's office in at least one well-established newspaper in the county.

If they choose to publish only a synopsis, they must also advertise that a full report is available to the public in the county clerk's office.

While the county has not been completely ignoring their responsibility, they have not been consistent with the letter of the law.

The county has been publishing a brief compilation of synopses once every two or three months in the Charlevoix Courier and the Boyne Citizen.

They have not been publishing any sort of an advertisement saying that the full report is available in the county clerk's office, which is required by law if the synopsis isn't published.

The board meets twice a month on the second and fourth Wednesdays.

Most of the time, the county has been publishing meeting reports on a monthly basis. However, longer time periods have existed between publications, such as in 1997 when the county published synopses of meetings from April to June and, later, from July to September, all at once.

Recently, the county published a report summing up all meetings which took place from May to September, 1998 in one fell swoop.

Chief County Clerk Cheryl Browe said the oversight was unintentional.

She said when the clerk's office gets busy, publishing a report of recent proceedings isn't a "top priority," largely because local news reporters usually attend the board meetings.

Browe said the clerk's office was unaware that bunching up the synopses could be a violation of the open meetings statute.

Elms will line Charlevoix street bearing their name

Majestic elm trees once formed a huge canopy of shade over many of America's streets. But Dutch elm disease wiped out almost all of the graceful deciduous trees by the 1960s.

Working with a new, disease-resistant variety of elm tree, Charlevoix's Shade Tree Commission and Boy Scout Troop 11 are bringing elms back to Charlevoix. The first batch of American Liberty elms are being planted, appropriately, on Elm Street on Charlevoix's north side.

The tree planting is part of the Johnny Elmseed Regional Nursery Program, a group whose goal is to replant elms in the Midwest, where they once dominated town squares and villages. The group estimated that 100 million elms were lost to Dutch elm disease from 1930 to the present day.

In 1994, the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission planted 75 elm seedlings in a tree nursery behind the waste water treatment plant. Today, they have 165 trees growing in the nursery.

Trees from the first batch of seedlings, now four years old, were planted along Elm Street last Thursday. Eight trees found homes along the stretch of Elm

In a cooperative effort to grow elm trees on the street for which they're named, Boy Scouts from Troop 11 and members of the Shade Tree Commission planted eight new elm trees on Elm Street. ## Township cemetery will expand for first time in 50 years

An expansion project at the Barnard Cemetery in Marion Township began last week.

Opened in 1948, the cemetery on the corner of South Barnard and Klooster roads is owned by the township and, according to township clerk Wilson "Bud" Boss, is being expanded for the first time in its history.

"We're getting close to having no room, so it's time to start developing," Boss said.

The expansion will be across the street from the current cemetery on 5.4 acres of township-owned land. The township board approved awarding an excavating bid to Drenth Excavating in the amount of $16,560 earlier in the month.

Workers from the company spent last week leveling off and lowering the land to improve the sighting of the land. Otherwise, the township has no set time line or blueprints for the expansion of the cemetery.

near Meech Street, and five more were planted Saturday. With the help of the Boy Scouts, eight elms were planted at the other end of the street last year and seven more will be planted this coming spring.

Elm tree planting won't be limited to Elm Street.

"We've had four or five requests for elms in other places around the city," said Bob Irving, a member of the tree commission.

The new elm trees come with a 20 year guarantee against death by disease. Each tree has its own pedigree and certificate.

Pool group deserves support of local governments

A small group of tenacious people banded together years ago to build a pool in Charlevoix.

Calling themselves the Charlevoix Friends of the Pool, they tackled the business of building a pool from every possible angle.

They approached the city council to see if they would donate land for the pool, or sell city property to the pool group at a reasonable price.

That idea sank like a stone.

They approached the public school officials to see if the pool could be built on school property, and asked voters if they would support an operational millage for the pool.

That concept floated about as well as a mafia hit man wearing cement shoes.

Try after try, location after location, the pool group met with resistance from local units of government.

The message was clear — if you want a pool, build it yourselves.

The determined group did just that.

One-and-one-half years ago, the Charlevoix Community Pool opened for business. It was no small feat to get the pool up and running. They had more customers than lifeguards, more interested swimmers than time and manpower to run things smoothly.

Somehow they managed.

Now, under the direction of Al Gooch, the pool is thriving.

There are ample time slots, both in the morning and afternoon, for lap swimming and senior citizen aqua-exercise classes.

Convenient times have been set aside for free swim periods to accommodate kids with their parents and teens on their own.

Every type of class and activity imaginable is being offered at the pool, from water polo to swim team programs.

Many years ago, there was some animosity about building a pool in Charlevoix. Some community members thought an indoor swimming pool was an extravagant luxury. With a price tag of $2 to go swimming, the pool is hardly extravagant, although its sunny, warm interior does seem like a luxury in the winter time.

EDITORIAL

Whatever the community's sentiments were five or 10 years ago doesn't matter today. It's time to put those old feelings aside and move ahead.

The Friends of the Pool have done what they were asked to do — they built a pool on their own.

Now it's time for the communities who are benefiting from the pool to contribute to the cause.

The pool group is asking neighboring townships, the county and the City of Charlevoix to pay a contract fee for use of the pool for its residents. By paying this contract fee for services, the pool can continue to offer programs at reasonable prices.

It is a fair request. After all, the city pays for a golf course and a ski hill. These recreational facilities are what make Charlevoix desirable to visitors and potential residents.

An indoor pool is another recreational facility that makes Charlevoix attractive to others.

In a letter to the pool group, the county board of commissioners denied the pool group's request for funding, saying the Charlevoix pool was not a county function.

Says who? People from all over the county go swimming in the Charlevoix Community Pool.

The county's coffers are overflowing with excess money, yet the commissioners are concerned about giving a pittance of taxpayers' money — $7,200 — to the pool. They expressed the concern that if they give money to pool, they might set a precedent for other communities to ask for help building recreational facilities.

So what? Why not help Boyne City build an indoor ice hockey arena? And why not help East Jordan build a snowmobile or nature trail?

This is northern Michigan, land of nine months of winter and three months of ice fishing in really big holes. We need all the recreational activities we can get.

When the city receives the pool group's request for funding, I hope the city officials will consider it carefully.

The pool group is paying handsomely for the privilege of tapping into the sewer lines.

The city could return the favor and pay $10,000 for its citizens' use of the pool.

Letters to the editor

Big Rock spokesperson responds to "Public alarm system" story

Editor:

The Charlevoix Courier's front page story on Oct. 21 was inaccurate, inflammatory and irresponsible.

The main faults of the story:

None of the statistics used to raise fear in the story pertain to Big Rock Point. The anti-nuclear spokesperson quoted in the story references a study based on a "typical" nuclear plant storing 3,300 12-foot tall spent fuel assemblies in its spent fuel pool which is not located in a containment building. The reality is that Big Rock Point stores a total of 441 6-foot tall spent fuel assemblies in its spent fuel pool which is located in our containment building. The accident results described in the study are simply not possible at Big Rock Point. This major difference should have been reported in the story.

The story contains 15 paragraphs relating to the comments of a spokesperson from an anti-nuclear group. Merely one paragraph quotes a spokesperson from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission confirming Big Rock Point's safety. Big Rock Point personnel were not contacted at all for the story.

The truth is that all credible accident scenarios have been analyzed and reviewed by Consumers Energy employees and then the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission. It has been determined that it is not possible under any credible circumstance to have a significant release of radioactivity off site. While we openly accept legiti-concerns and criticism, we believe that such criticism must be ethical and accurate and that studies are not twisted to promote fear and anxiety as was done in this story.

Alarmist reporting does not help the public understand the importance of nuclear energy and ignores the industry's outstanding safety record in the United States.

Big Rock Point employees have spent the past 36 years operating and then beginning the decommissioning process with an uncompromising commitment to safety. Our neighbors can be assured that we will continue that commitment as we return the site to a green field. Sincerely, Timothy D. Petrosky, Public Affairs Director, Big Rock Point Restoration Project

NUCLEAR

Study was based on a typical nuclear power plant that has more fuel bundles than Big Rock Point, Petrosky said the study didn't apply to Big Rock. "It's not a one-for-one correspondence, but it's indicative of problems you can have off site if there is a release," Lochbaum said.

The Courier requested a copy of the safety study done by Consumer's Energy and submitted to the NRC. The study was not provided to us. When asked who compiled the study for Consumer's Energy, Petrosky said, "I don't feel compelled to tell you that."

Instead of the study, we received the NRC response to the study. According to the NRC response, only an exemption to Big Rock Point's off site emergency plan was approved. The proposed Decommissioning Emergency Plan has not yet been approved for the following reasons:

The plan does not specify that it will have the capability to determine the potential impact of a radiological emergency to the general public;

The plan does not include written agreements between the supporting off site organizations and Big Rock Point that refer to the support to be provided in an emergency;

The plan does not identify, by title and agency, the appropriate off site officials to be notified.

In 1996, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission found that Big Rock Point was in violation of some safety issues regarding the spent fuel pool. The commission noted that Big Rock Point did not have direct alarms that would indicate a loss of water in the spent fuel pool, nor did they have an alarm to indicate a temperature change in the spent fuel pool. The commission did not require Big Rock to install the alarms at that time because Big Rock still had containment integrity.

Big Rock no longer has containment integrity, and they still don't have alarms on the spent fuel pool. Petrosky said the company is planning to install alarms sometime in January of 1999. However, Big Rock Point indicated to the NRC that they already had alarms in the spent fuel pool, which was part of the reason the NRC approved the exemption to their off site emergency plan.

Under the current technical specifications of Big Rock Point, spent fuel cannot be moved without containment integrity. The company has submitted a new set of technical specifications to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that would allow them to move spent fuel without containment integrity. Big Rock Point has not yet received approval for this plan.

Petrosky said the Consumer's Energy study concluded there could be no significant release of radioactivity off site. A significant release would be more than one Rem of radiation, based on the Department of Environmental Quality standards.

Petrosky acknowledged that there could be a release of up to one Rem off site.

The Courier requested additional information regarding safety concerns at Big Rock Point, and was denied the information over the telephone. Petrosky said we must submit our request for information in writing, and the company will then evaluate our request.

Suicide robs family of bonding process of death experience

Dear Editor:

Let me get this strait (sic). Not only do you want people who are terminally ill to be able to decide when to die, thereby robbing their family of the natural bonding and reconciliation that takes place with a natural death, but now you want perfectly healthy people to be able to kill themselves as well. People who may be in a deep depression due to family neglect. People who need a loving family member (such as yourself) to take them into their home and care for them there, instead of spending the rest of their lives in a sterile nursing home. It isn't a law we need to institute, it is a sense of commitment to family that needs to be taught to our children. What has happened to this world isn't what science has done, but what families haven't. What did we do before nursing homes were available?

I grew up in a home where my grandfather lived with us. My father was the youngest of 15 children, and family was very important to us. My grandfather died a small and fragile man at the age of 89. He fought long battles with problems arising from diabetes and Alzheimer's disease. Yet my parents refused to see someone they loved be put into a nursing home. My mother learned to care for every new problem that arose. Even at the end, when my parents had to move a hospital bed into the den for my grandfather, he would not have wanted to kill himself. He was with his family, people who loved him, he died in my father's arms.

My father would not have had it any other way.

Your uncle wasn't asking to die, he was begging you to take him out of that drab and lonely place. He knows death is imminent and doesn't want to spend the rest of his life alone and trapped like an animal. An animal doesn't die because of a missing limb, it does the best it can for as long as it can. It's a desire to live that forces it to make all the choices necessary to live as long as possible. All creatures have it, it is called survival instincts.

Assisted suicide is the easy way out. It's for those people who are too busy or just don't care enough to take personal care of elderly family members. With assisted suicide you don't have to watch the people you love suffer, you don't have to bear the burden of caring for their every need, as you would a baby, yet they did that for you once. What you don't do for your older family members now, your younger family members wouldn't do for you later. You learn what you live!

Insurance representative regrets Burns Clinic decision

Editor:

The recent decision by PhyCor Inc. to terminate the participating agreement between its Petoskey facility, Burns Clinic, and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan places an unfortunate and unnecessary hardship on Blue Cross Blue Shield members and the local community. PhyCor Inc. is the Tennessee-based owner of Burns Clinic.

We have explained that what we pay physicians is the same for doctors in Detroit, Grand Rapids, Traverse City and Petoskey. It is also true that nine out of 10 northern Michigan doctors accept our reimbursement as payment in full for covered services, minus member co-payments and deductibles.

Blue Cross Blue Shield will reimburse PhyCor/Burns nearly $14 million in 1998. When broken down, the figure represents annual payments of almost $140,000 per physician. Our total payments to PhyCor have risen by almost $1 million during each of the last three years. Since PhyCor claims Blue Cross Blue Shield patients generate only about 35 percent of PhyCor/Burns' medical services, total annual revenue per clinic physician is much greater.

The unfortunate result of PhyCor's decision is that the community will be forced to pay more for health care. It will also mean less money for local employers to reinvest in the community. The community may want to ask, "Should health care be controlled by a national, out-of-state company?"

Despite PhyCor's decision, nearly half of Emmet County's physicians will continue to participate with Blue Cross Blue Shield.

Blue Cross Blue Shield is taking steps to do everything we can to ease the burden of PhyCor's decision on our members. For example, our customer service representatives are ready at 800-972-9797 to respond to questions and direct subscribers to well-qualified participating physicians who accept our reimbursement as payment in full.

We hope PhyCor will reconsider its decision. No matter the final outcome, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan will maintain its commitment of service to our members and local communities.

Sincerely,
Charles Zech
Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan

Volunteers thanked for cleaning island

Editor:

Beaver Island's "Make A Difference Day" took place on Oct. 24. The project title was, "Because we Care about Beaver Island." Bill and JoAnne Cashman, on behalf of the Beaver Island Historical Society (which sponsored "Make A Difference Day") would like to extend their heartfelt thanks to all of you who gave up a Saturday to help make Beaver Island a nicer place to live.

The project consisted of:

- Helping the lake-shore environment by picking up litter, plastic pop can holders, and other debris from the beaches;
- Baking and delivering pastries or a meal to an older person or someone who is ill, or doing a chore for them;
- Walking around the town of St. James and picking up litter;
- Helping clear brush from around the Protar House (Protar's home from 1893 until 1925, now owned by the historical society)

Thanks to your efforts, the Protar House, the town, and the beaches are "Looking Good." Let's do something again next "Make A Difference Day," Oct. 23, 1999.

Sincerely,
Bill and JoAnne Cashman

Swim lessons funded by Glen's

Glen's Markets is making it possible for Charlevoix second grade students to have water safety lessons at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool. Glen Catt, chief officer for Glen's, sent a $5,000 check to the pool to finance swim lessons for all second grade students in Charlevoix this year. Charlevoix Elementary School students will be the first group to take lessons, followed by St. Mary's school students and Northwest Academy students.

"The pool board praises Mr. Catt for giving the community this continued water safety instruction, which is in addition to financing last year's instruction for school children in grades two through five," said Suzanne Budd, chairperson of the pool's fund-raising committee. "Mr. Catt and Harold Miller the Charlevoix Glen's manager, both have said repeatedly that swimming and water safety instruction are very important in our lake-dotted communities."

"We feel very fortunate that all four of our children were born at Charlevoix Area Hospital. You labor, deliver and recover in the same room, which is extremely private and comfortable."

"The birth of your child is such an extraordinary event, which is made even more memorable due to the warm, caring and secure environment created at Charlevoix Area Hospital."

Public library offers best of old and new with Internet access

The Charlevoix Public Library offers a variety of services, some new and some traditional.

They have two Internet computers for public use for e-mail and net-searching. At present they have a nice young man who is willing to give lessons on how to use the Internet and do e-mail.

Laurie Lesser Hodgson of LLH Graphics has added three sections of local history information to their page on the web. After the Home & Garden cable channel did a segment on the Earl Young houses, they were receiving requests for information from all around the country. They decided that if they made the 20 some clippings that they had available on the web, they would not have to keep copying and sending them out. This became the library's first web segment. The articles include pictures and text of the houses and some biographical information on Earl Young.

Next, the library staff took the seven Bob Miles volumes of pictures of early Charlevoix and had all but the ones that the Charlevoix Historical Society holds the copyright to for their fund-raising book and put them all on the web page.

They also decided to make available the Rosa Nettleton book of clippings from the early Charlevoix Sentinel, the Charlevoix paper that preceded the Courier, from 1869 - 1906. The whole book was retyped and then re-indexed, using a new computerized method for easier searching.

At present the library has most of its holdings on the web page. Some of the newer titles are not on yet.

The Charlevoix Public Library can be accessed on the web at: <http://www.charlevoix.lib.mi.us/index.htm>.

Also: <http://nlc.lib.mi.us/members/charlevoix.htm>.

This year the library has added 1,241 books to the collection, 336 children's and 905 adult, bringing the total to a little over 25,000 books. They have also added 78 videos to bring the total video collection to 598, and have added 65 books on tape or CD to bring our total to 224. They keep current best-seller lists from the New York Times and the Northwest Michigan best-seller list from the Sunday Traverse City Record-Eagle.

For the financially minded, the library has both the Morning Star and Valu-line financial reports on mutual funds and stocks respectively.

They keep the Charlevoix newspapers, the Journal, the Sentinel, and the Courier, on microfilm, dating back to 1883 and the Lynn Misiak and Richard Sutton were married Sept. 5, 1998 at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Marie and James Kahn of Harbor Springs and Michael and Cathie Misiak of Tecumseh.

The groom is the son of Richard and Jean Sutton of Charlevoix.

Two hundred guests witnessed the double ring ceremony performed by Pastor Bruce Hamilton in a candle lit ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, who escorted her to an altar decorated in green ivy, white satin bows and wildflowers.

The bride wore an ivory satin princess style gown with a lace bodice encrusted with pearls. She wore a cathedral length veil trimmed in satin and carried a bouquet of white and purple irises, ivory and lavender roses, and white and lavender freesia with ivy and greens.

Music at the ceremony was provided by organists Dawn Crain and vocalists were Rhonda Dunn and Lori Belenger.

Maid of honor was Patti Misiak.

sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Christine Schwenke, Brenda Sutton, sister of the groom, and Debbie Wurst, sister of the groom.

They wore floor length purple gowns with princess waists and carried bouquets of white Casablanca lilies accented with purple tulle ribbon.

Flower girl was Keely Blosh, cousin of the groom, who wore a floor length ivory dress with a princess waist and carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Best man was James Fowler. Groomsman were Timothy Webster, Randy Wurst and Doug Skrocki.

Ushers were Art Sutton, uncle of the groom and Roger Martin, uncle of the bride.

A reception was hosted at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix.

The rehearsal dinner was at Ferry Beach, given by the bride and groom's family.

The couple took a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, and are making their home in Charlevoix.

Lynn is a title examiner at Great Lakes Title Company in Charlevoix and Rich works for Twin Bay Glass in Charlevoix.

Obituaries

Michael David Horton

Michael David Horton, 31, of Los Angeles and formerly of Charlevoix, died at Cedar Sinai Hospital Friday, Oct. 23, 1998.

He was born in Charlevoix Sept. 27, 1967, and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1986. He joined the Navy the summer after graduation and, after basic training in Orlando, Fla., trained in Winter Harbor, Maine, as a cryptologic technician. He spent two-and-a-half years on the island of Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean and was named Operator of the Month and Operator of the Quarter. During his time there, he traveled extensively, training other technicians.

Upon his discharge in 1990, he lived briefly in Washington, D.C., before moving to Los Angeles.

He was always optimistic, looking forward to each new day with joy and boundless energy and was a friend to every person he met. His enthusiasm, his many talents and, most of all, his love will be missed by his family and countless friends.

He is survived by his parents, Howard and Rosemary Horton of Charlevoix; his sister, Mary Farrell and her husband, Dr. Daniel Farrell of Spring Lake, Mich.; a brother, William Horton, also of Los Angeles; nieces and nephew, Laura, Maggie and John Farrell of Spring Lake; his special friend, Steven Locke of Los Angeles; several aunts and uncles and 29 first cousins.

Cremation has taken place in California. A memorial Mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix at 10 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 29. Father Tom Neis officiated.

Michael's family asks that local memorials be directed to the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. Arrangements are being handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Benefit dinner hosted at Methodist Church

A benefit dinner for Roy Elliott will be from 4 to 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

The menu is Swiss steak, potatoes and gravy, squash, corn, cole slaw, rolls, homemade desserts, coffee and milk.

Donations for the dinner are $8 for adults, $4 for children 5-12 years and free for children five and under.

Tickets are available at Graham Electric in East Jordan and from members of Barnard United Methodist Church and Barnard Grange.

Jeremiah People to perform in Petoskey

For over 25 years, The Jeremiah People have been sharing the Gospel of Christ through drama and music to people all over the United States and Canada, performing in theaters, churches and universities. Featuring a cast of nine actors/singers, The Jeremiah People will present a new program that includes quality Christian drama and music for all ages which inspires, motivates, and challenges those who attend.

The concert will be from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10 at the Petoskey Middle School. There will be $1 charge per person at the door to cover the cost of the building. A free will offering will be received to help defray the cost of the concert.

The event is sponsored by Emmanuel Episcopal Church of Petoskey, 347-2350.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Somewhere in the deep dark recesses of our family's home in Florida, otherwise known as our garage, is a box. And in that box there are some pictures that I want to find. For among the archives of my childhood is a collection of autographed pictures from each of the Mercury Seven astronauts. I drew space capsules and rocket ships in crayon and mailed them to each astronaut after they came back from a flight and got signed pictures from them all. Now for many folks outside of Florida, that probably didn't ring too many bells until last week's return to space of a member of that original seven.

Everybody knows now about the six American heroes and one American legend that are orbiting the earth aboard the space shuttle Discoverer. Thirty-six years ago, a very young John Glenn went up in Friendship Seven and made three orbits of the earth, the first such flight by an American. For years he wanted to get back into space but he didn't know that he was denied the chance by presidential decree. President Kennedy did not want to risk the nation's first space hero and so he forbade it. But this week, he's up there seeing the heavens again and from all reports acting like a kid enjoying himself, and I'm so glad.

I realize that few of us have the resources and influence that Glenn did in order to pull his lifelong dream of going back into space together. But I wish more of us would stop selling ourselves short when it comes to our dreams. I wish more of us would start believing in the simple truth that, with man some things may be impossible, but with God, all things are possible.

If God has placed a gleam in your heart, then it's there for a reason. If you have a cause or an ideal that stirs up a passion within you, then it's there for a reason. If you sense a special power at work when you are reading or discussing or exploring or praying about something, then it's there for a reason.

Go back to a basic Bible story. Think about Abraham and his wife, Sarah. You remember how Abraham left everything he knew and held dear in response to God's call? God sought to honor this senior saintly couple by giving them a son and Sarah laughed at the idea. You see, Abraham was up in his 90s at the time and she wasn't all that far behind. She thought they both were well past such physical intimacies. She really wanted to give her husband a son and had given up on the idea because of their ages.

I've learned one thing in my own dealing with God — never say never about anything when it comes to Him. The minute the word slips out of my mouth, it's like He gets this grin on His face and says, "Just watch me work."

How can I tell you something like that and why do I believe it? Just about the time you figure God will never do something, that's when you had better look out. If you are prepared to believe God, then you had better be prepared for some things that might seem impossible to come to pass in your life.

One year later you see Sarah, well into her golden years, nursing her newborn son. If God could do that with a woman in her 90s, who knows what He might do for you? If you sense Him leading you to something, there must be a reason for it. Trust Him and keep the faith. God has never fallen short when it comes to the follow-through on the commitments He makes to you and me. If He makes you a promise, He's going to keep it.

Charlevoix land conservancy acquires first property

Peter Paul Faskey of Boyne Falls donated over 1,500 feet of Boyne River frontage property to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy. His donation will ensure that his wishes for the land to remain in its present wild state will be honored in perpetuity.

Faskey is an active member of Friends of the Boyne River and an avid sportsman who has fished and hunted his 31-acre piece of property on the south branch of the Boyne River for over 25 years.

"I've wanted to do this for a long time," Faskey said. "It's a really nice wild piece of land, with lots of fish and game, and I wanted to know that down the line, kids will be able to still walk there, go down to the river and catch a fish."

The property is located south of Metros Road, just south of Boyne Falls. Mature cedar and birch line the riverbanks. The hardwood conifer swamp and the wet meadows are critical in providing wildlife habitat, protecting water quality and providing flood control.

"The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy was established to facilitate exactly this kind of project," said Tom Sheets, president of the Friends of the Boyne River and trustee of the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy. "It involves local citizens and protects critical land. Our mission is to advance community land stewardship and to protect significant natural, agricultural and scenic areas in Charlevoix County. Pete is a perfect example of a local community member who is actively involved in conservation and is happy to share his love of the land with future generations."

Sheets said he's hopeful that Faskey's gift will encourage others on the river to learn about the many conservation opportunities available.

"The Friends of the Boyne River are working to encourage people to learn about the Boyne River and to understand what a wonderful resource it is. This is a great kick off for more preservation and restoration activities for our river," Sheets said.

For more information about the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy, call 237-9335 or 547-4820.

Secretary of State offices will close for fall and winter holidays

Secretary of State Candice S. Miller announced that all 178 Secretary of State branch offices will be closed in observance of state holidays during November and December. The branch offices will close for:

- Veterans Day, Wednesday, Nov. 11;
- Thanksgiving holiday, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 26 and 27;
- Christmas holiday, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 24 and 25;
- New Year's holiday, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1;

Motorists whose driver licenses or license plates expire over any of these holidays should renew early. Customers can expect fastest service midmorning, midafternoon, midweek and midmonth. Branch offices are open Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Wednesdays, the majority of offices are open 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Motorists renewing license plates can avoid a trip to the branch office by renewing by mail, by fax and, if eligible, by touch-tone telephone or Internet. Easy to follow instructions can be found with the renewal notice. License plate tabs will arrive by mail within seven business days.

It's a zoo at pediatrician's new Charlevoix office

Dr. Roderic E. Tinney, M.D., has moved his pediatric practice to Charlevoix from its former location in East Jordan. Dr. Tinney's new office is called Charlevoix Pediatric Clinic, located in the new Pine River
Medical Building at 14734 Park Ave., behind Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Dr. Tinney has worked at the East Jordan Family Health Center since 1986. He is on staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital and Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. Tinney is board certified with the American Board of Pediatrics, and is a Fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Tinney received his undergraduate and medical school degrees at the University of Vermont, completing his studies in 1982. His pediatric internship and residency was done at the University of Michigan Hospitals from 1982 to 1985 and he was chief resident and fellow at U of M from 1985-86.

Tinney and his wife, Pat, are originally from Vermont. Pat is an artist and teacher at East Jordan High School. They live in East Jordan with their three children, ages
6, 13 and 18.

With his move to Charlevoix and the addition of Dr. Ann Farrukh in East Jordan, consistent pediatric coverage will be available at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Appointments may be made with
Dr. Tinney by calling 547-3840.

Waiting for his next patient in the "orangutan examination room" is Dr. Roderic Tinney, pediatrician, who moved his practice from East Jordan to the Pine River Medical Building. Tinney's wife, Pat, painted different animals in all of the examination rooms. Pat is an artist and teacher at East Jordan High School. (Photo courtesy of Charlevoix Area Hospital)

Coalition continues to meet

The Coalition of Insured Medical Consumers (CIMC) will be hosting a round table discussion with representatives from PhyCor/Burns Clinic, Northern Michigan Hospital, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, Burns Clinic Physicians and local independent physicians. The discussion has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 4 at the Charlevoix Country Club. This discussion will only be open to members of the coalition and in-

Cross country girls' team steams ahead to state finals

By Jamie MacMillan

State cross country teams should take note because the Charlevoix Rayders are back.

A year after failing to qualify for the state finals for the first time in over 20 years, the Charlevoix cross country running program rebounded when the girls' team placed second in the regional finals and, in the process, earned a bid to the state class C championships.

Benzie Central, ranked No. 1 in the most recent coach's poll, took the regional title with 67 points. Charlevoix's 109 points nudged them ahead of Elk Rapids, which took third place with 113 points.

All three squads will compete this Saturday in the finals in Brooklyn at Michigan International Speedway.

The Rayder boys' team placed seventh and failed to qualify for Saturday's meet. Senior Jeff Popenhagen, however, will compete in the finals, qualifying individually for the meet with a top-20 finish in the regionals.

"It was tough to lose," coach Ken Plude said, recalling last year. "We lost a little confidence in ourselves, but we gained it back in this race. That's what the celebration was all about for us."

Senior Tricia Hodge, who Plude said was the best team leader he has coached, paced the club with a fifth place finish. Her time was 20 minutes, 24 seconds which earned her all-regional honors in the 125-person race.

Also finishing for the Rayders were Liza Gorkiewicz, 21; Heather Probert, 28; Laura Schairbaum, 29; Emily Martinus, 34; Tiffany Fisher, 68; and Melissa Swem, 82.

Each team is allowed to enter seven runners, but for final scoring purposes, only the top five finishers from each team are counted.

"We were more determined this year than last year," Plude said. "Our seniors were determined to get the team to focus hard for this meet."

The boys placed seventh in a field that Plude called "under-ranked."

"The top seven teams were really tough, which is unfortunate because four good teams will stay home," he said.

East Jordan won the regional meet with 71 points followed by Benzie Central, 109, and Rogers City, 134.

Popenhagen earned an individual spot in the finals by placing 20th in the overall standings with a 17:27. Every runner in the top 20 advances to the finals, as do the top 10 finishers from schools whose teams did not advance.

Popenhagen's effort was a gutsy one, since he ran the final mile of the race on a twisted ankle, Plude said.

Also for Charlevoix were Gordie Selph, 44; Luke Whitley, 49; Josh Popenhagen, 50; Zach Hopkins, 53; Allen Keehn, 62; and Nick Grosberg, 85.

Popenhagen and his mates on the girls' squad now chase after state honors. Benzie Central is the team to beat in the girls' race. Earlier in the year, the Huskies were 120 points better than Charlevoix, but the Rayders narrowed the gap between the clubs to 42 points in the regional meet.

"I think we have the potential to narrow that down even more," Plude said.

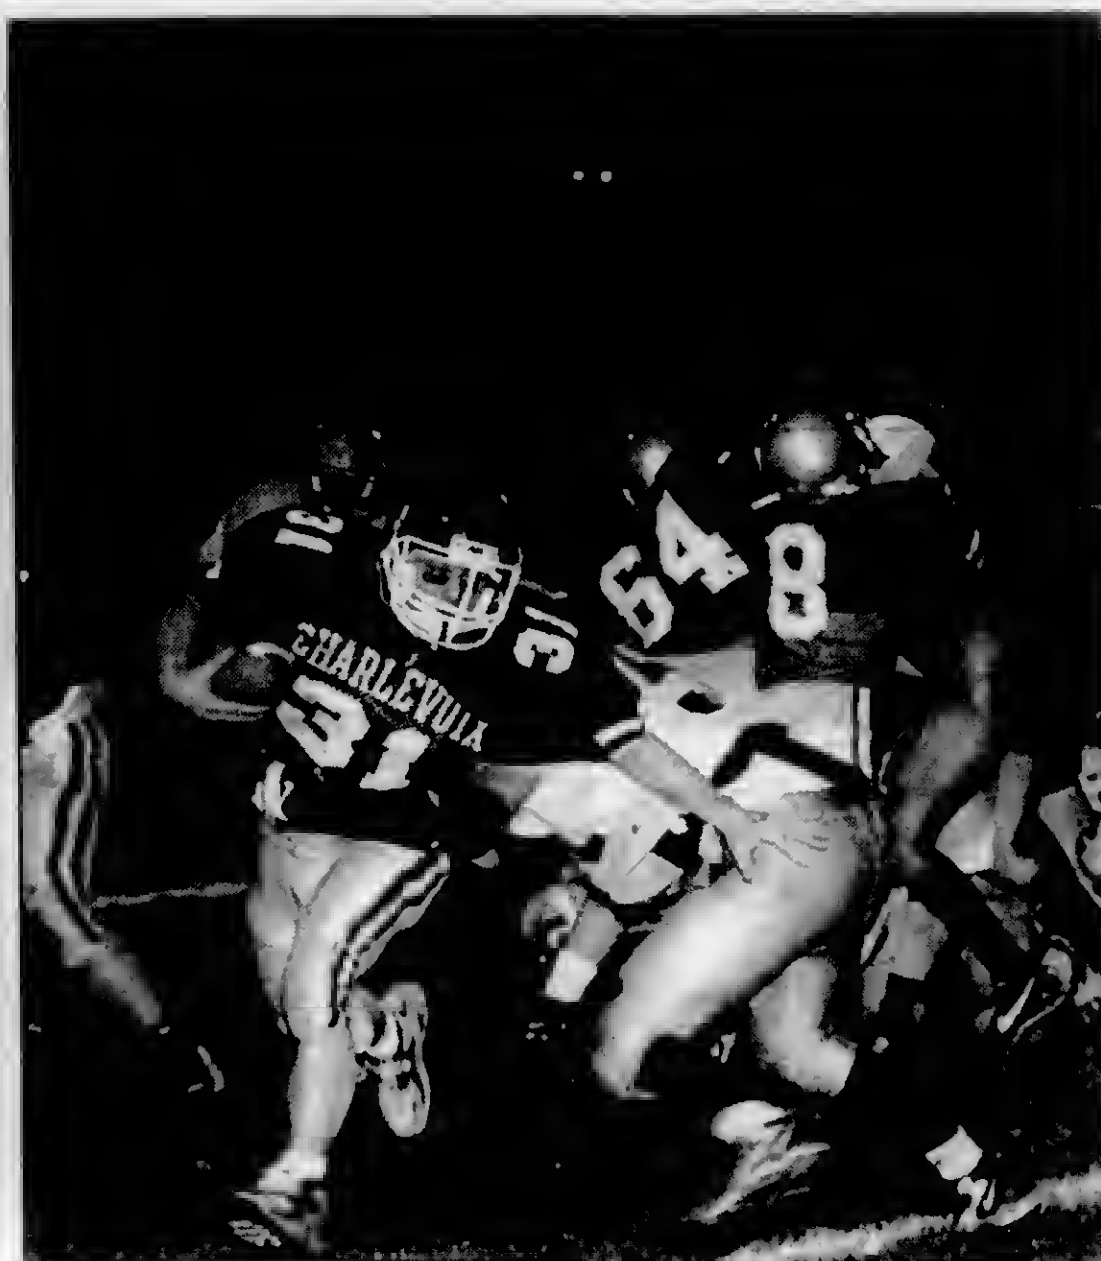

The girls' class C finals are slated to begin at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7 while the boys' race is scheduled for a 3 p.m. start.

"We're looking forward to getting down there and seeing how we stack up," Plude said.

Eighth grade team is undefeated

Congratulations are in order for the members of the Charlevoix Middle School Eighth Grade Basketball Team, who recently completed an undefeated season in both their regular season and in the Inland Lakes eighth grade tournament play. ## Basketball team snaps losing streak with win over Kalkaska

By Jamie MacMillan

The Lady Rayder basketball team is finally riding on the winning track after last week's 50-38 decision over Kalkaska in the club's only contest of the week.

The win snapped an 11-game losing streak and gave the Rayders their first conference win of the season. The Rayders' record has now improved to 2-15, 1-9 in Lake Michigan play.

"We're obviously happy with the win," coach Tim Volovsek said.

The coach said the team has struggled all year to make up for the loss of injured star Jamie Gowell, who has been saddled with a knee injury for the last six weeks. The win over the Blazers, he said, showcased a team that is finally getting used to playing without its top player.

"It's taken this long, but they're finally realizing it's up to them to play aggressive and step up," Volovsek said.

Kristy Shindorf topped all Charlevoix scorers with 15 points. Megan Vogel added 14 and Christine Sweeney poured in nine. Vogel also snared 12 rebounds and Shindorf grabbed seven. Julie Swenor dished out three assists and swiped four of the team's 11 steals.

The team connected on 38 percent of their shots, going 17 for 40. It was the first time all year that the club shot better than 35 percent. The Rayders also swished 9 of 11 free throws in the fourth quarter.

The offensive efficiency aside, though, it was the defensive effort which cleared the way for the win. The Rayders set the tone early, holding the Blazers to six points in the opening quarter. The defense clamped down again in the final stanza, permitting only another six points to be added to the Kalkaska scoreboard as the Rayders broke open a tight contest for a double digit win.

The Rayders harassed Kalkaska by switching the defense throughout the game from man to man to a variety of zone looks.

"That really rattled their kids," Volovsek said. "We shut them down early and they lost confidence."

It may have taken a while, but the Rayders' ride on the winning track could not have come at a better time. Only three games remain before the district tournament begins in Charlevoix Monday, Nov. 16. Pairings for the event will be announced next week.

In the meantime, the Rayders played at Ellsworth last night, Tuesday, but results were incomplete at press time. The squad continues with a contest at East Jordan, Thursday, Nov. 5 before concluding their season at home against Harbor Springs next Tuesday, Nov. 10. A junior varsity game begins each game with a 6 p.m. tip off.

"We have a chance, if we keep playing strong to win a couple more games down the stretch," Volovsek said. "There's some light at the end of the tunnel if we can keep it going."

The junior varsity club dropped their contest to Kalkaska in a hotly contested 46-40 game. Amber Parsons scored eight points, grabbed 15 rebounds and swiped six steals for Charlevoix. Danielle Vogelheim also came through with a solid game, scoring eight points and snaring 10 rebounds.

The Rayder program, however, took two out of three victories from Kalkaska last week, thanks to a 45-37 win in the freshmen game.

Kara Field paced the team with nine points and Jenny Miller and Katie Swenor each added eight points. Kate Madison grabbed eight rebounds while Miller, Chelsea Newcomb and Andrea Tuck each dished out two assists.

Overall, 10 of coach Toni Felter's 15 players scored at least one basket.

"We had a lot of kids who did a lot for us, some of which showed up in the stat sheet, some of which did not," Felter said of the contest.

The contest was tied at 28-28 after three quarters, but the Rayders cruised to a 17-9 fourth quarter advantage to earn their third win of the season over Kalkaska.

The win improves the club's mark to 10-8 with games remaining at East Jordan (4:15 Thursday, Nov. 5) and at home against Harbor Springs (4:15 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10).

Top-ranked teams snatch final victories away from Rayders

Johannesburg-Lewiston scored the game's first 32 points en route to a 46-22 romp over Charlevoix in the regular season closing game for both Charlevoix and Jo-Berg.

The Rayders ended their season with a 4-5 overall mark, 4-2 in Lake Michigan Conference play. Both records are two-game improvements from last year, which gave coach Todd Klinger some solace despite Friday's lopsided loss.

"I'm very pleased with the season, we finished in third place which is our best conference finish in a while," Klinger said.

Against the Rayders, the Cardinals showcased power football, embarking again and again on long, time-consuming drives, usually covering three-quarters of the football field.

The Rayder defense had a chance to set the tone early, but couldn't stop Jo-Berg on a fourth-and-two play en route to their first touchdown.

After increasing their lead to 21-0 midway through the second quarter, the Cardinals recovered an on side kick. They were able to convert the extra possession into their fourth touchdown. After intercepting a Charlevoix pass on the Rayders' next possession, the Cardinals booted a 42-yard field goal for an insurmountable 32-0 intermission lead.

The teams exchanged scores in the second half, but the Rayders did little to carve into the deficit and threaten Jo-Berg's quest for an undefeated regular season.

Statistically, Colin Carr paced the team with 204 yards on 25 carries. Adam Wood tossed 10 completions in 18 attempts for 119 yards. Matt McClellan caught seven passes for 63 yards and Tom Cunningham snagged two balls for 47 yards.

On defense, Jeremy Rafacz found his way into 15 tackles while Shay Hutchison snared 13 tackles and Brian Ward corralled 12.

A year after getting blown out week after week, the Rayders improved to the point where they were a couple of plays away from a six-win season. Klinger said the best part of this year's team was their positive attitude.

"It was always fun to go to practice with this group," Klinger said.

"Regardless of what happened on Friday night, they showed up Monday eager to work with smiles on their faces. I enjoyed working with them."

In junior varsity action last week, the Rayders' trek to an unbeaten season was derailed by another unbeaten team, Maple City-Glen Lake. The Rayders lost, 15-6.

The Lakers jumped out to a 9-0 lead in the first quarter and were able to maintain that margin well into the second quarter.

As halftime approached, Ben VanGuilder recovered a fumble at the 12-yard line. Two plays later, Ryan Leitner converted the chance into points on a 4-yard scoring plunge. The Rayders missed the extra point, but had trimmed the margin to 9-6 going into the locker room.

While statistics weren't kept, it appeared that the Rayders were the dominant team. While the defense kept the Lakers in check, the Rayder offense had little trouble moving the ball and penetrated to within 30 yards of pay dirt on five different occasions.

Each time, however, they turned the ball over, usually after fourth down attempts fell short of the first down line. Eventually, the inability to convert the offensive marches into points came back to haunt Charlevoix. With less than four minutes to go, a potential go-ahead scoring drive was aborted after the Lakers stripped the ball away and recovered a fumble at the Rayders' 24-yard line.

Five plays later, the Lakers added an insurance touchdown for the 15-6 final. Charlevoix's junior varsity team ended their season at 8-1.

"Both the varsity and junior varsity teams had seasons to be proud of," Klinger said.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

High school ski team hosts ski swap

The Charlevoix High School Ski Team will be hosting their Winter Sports Equipment Sale at the high school cafeteria from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14.

Anyone who would like to drop off winter clothing and equipment for the sale should do so between 4 p.m. and 9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 13 at the high school cafeteria.

The sale will include clothing and equipment for all seasonal sports, including Nordic and Alpine skiing, skating and hockey.

Unsold items should be picked up from 2-4 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call 535-2786 in the evenings.

Big Band dinner dance to benefit charter school music program

The Up North Big Band will be performing at a dinner dance to benefit the Northwest Academy music department.

The dinner will be from 5-8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix. The Northwest Academy band will open the evening's entertainment before the Big Band takes the stage for dancing and entertainment.

The cost of the dinner and dancing is $20 per person or $35 per couple. To attend just for the dance, the cost is $15 per person or $25 per couple.

Jordan arts council hosts Holiday Fair

The Jordan River Arts Council is hosting its eighth annual Holiday Fair, a juried fine arts and crafts show. The event will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14 at the East Jordan High School.

The works of over 50 artists will be featured at the show.

Merchants choose theme for Christmas decorating

The Charlevoix Downtown Merchants have chosen a theme for their Christmas promotional activities this year. The theme will be "Charlevoix, the City of White Lights."

The downtown merchants will be working with the city to coordinate Christmas displays that will feature miniature Italian white lights on trees, window displays, etc. They would like to encourage you to participate in this theme and suggest you utilize white lights in your Christmas decorating scheme.

Judging of business decorations will be from 5-7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10. Register your business to be judged at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office by calling 547-2101 or faxing 547-6633. Only businesses that have preregistered will be judged.

Judges will be looking at the entire storefront. Points will be given for holiday spirit, originality and sales appeal, using the business's goods in the display.

Join with the downtown merchants and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce to create a festive "City of White Lights" this season.

Ambassadors host business breakfast

The Ambassadors of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce are hosting a Business Breakfast at 7:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 6 at the Charlevoix County Club. Featured speaker is James P. Hater, General Manager of Charlevoix Manufacturing. Cost of the breakfast "Special" is $5.

Auditions will continue for youth choir

The Crooked Tree Arts Council has extended its audition deadline for regional youth in grades third through eighth to perform in a regional choir with the Traverse Symphony Orchestra Sunday, Dec. 13 in Petoskey.

Auditions will be conducted by director Katherine Trumble. For further information, call the arts council at 347-4337. Those auditioning need not bring anything with them. Auditions will be held in the arts council building in Petoskey.

Garden club to work on holiday arrangements

Charlevoix Area Garden Club will meet at the Charlevoix Estates meeting room at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10, to share tips for wreath and swag-making. Bring dried flowers, raffia, ornaments, holly berries and other wreath-making materials to tie up and hang up for the holidays.

This fun meeting will be hosted by Nancy Fowler and co-hostesses Judy Larson and Lois Lewis. The garden club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc. For more information call Joan Knecht at 547-5072.

Health agency offering flu clinic

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is offering a Community Flu/Pneumovax Clinic at the Charlevoix Health Department from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10. Appointments are not necessary. For further information call 547-0295.

SCRAPBOOK

With the recreational volleyball season about to begin, we thought it was a good time to take a look at past volleyball activity. Apparently there was a time when wearing bell bottoms was the stylish thing to do while playing this indoor sport. We recognize Bruce Bartlett and Hugh Mason in this picture. Can anyone identify the other players? (Courier file photo)

Hark the Herald Angels sing

Right: Lynn Osterbeck of Boyne City created this Christmas greeting card for the Charlevoix County Hospice.

Hospice offers holiday card

November is National Hospice Month, and the Charlevoix County Hospice is proud to introduce their 1998 Christmas card to start the many activities for this very special month. This year's card was again done by Lynn Osterbeck of Boyne City. Local businesses are always so gracious about selling them, and again this year they are available at: Boyne City - Boyne Country Books and The White Rose; Charlevoix -

The Clothing Company and Trade-mark Clothiers; and East Jordan at Busy Bridge Antiques and Gifts.

The price has stayed the same as last year - 20 cards for $12, or a package of 10 for $6. All proceeds from the sale of the cards help to further the work of the Charlevoix County Hospice, Inc., in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties. If you need any more information, call the hospice office at 536-2842.

It's the principal of the thing

Right, center: Fifth grade student Billy Brodin went so far as to shave his head in order to masquerade as his hair follicle-challenged school principal, Richard Swenor.

Clockwise, from lower right: It took costumes and a little body language for Lexi Wilson (left) and Amy Kurtz to demonstrate their Halloween costumes. Lexi was wind and Amy was water.

The elementary school Halloween parade entertained the folks on Bridge Street last Friday, when they traveled downtown in costume.

Kids Corner Nursery School made the Halloween rounds Thursday. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

Plug it in, plug it in

Left: While the high school marching band is known for their traditional, acoustical sound, they made an exception last week when Levi Bakker plugged an electric guitar into an amplifier to play Louie Louie with the band. ## Local grocery store discount card leads to downstate thieves

By Jamie MacMillan

A Glen's market plastic discount card led city police investigators to a prime suspect in a series of home and vehicle break-ins that plagued the city's north side last month.

City police have been investigating two home invasion incidents that occurred last month during the early morning hours on East Dixon and Elm streets. County deputies are investigating a similar crime from that same time frame that occurred on Mercer Road in Charlevoix Township.

The thief or thieves swiped purses from both city homes and drove off with a 1994 Jeep Cherokee from the Elm Street residence.

According to police chief Dennis Halverson, the crimes fit a similar pattern from a half-dozen car break-ins that occurred earlier in the month in the same area.

As with the home invasions, a handful of purses were reported missing.

Police had little to go on until a series of bizarre incidents stretching from here to downstate came to light at the end of October.

Emmet County deputies pulled over a full-sized van for a routine traffic stop on Petoskey's Division Street. The driver, however, ran off and eluded the officers. Upon searching the van, police found a check book which had been stolen from one of the victimized cars in Charlevoix.

The suspect resurfaced in Shelby Township in Macomb County just north of Detroit when the local township authorities responded to a parking lot fight.

According to Shelby Township detective lieutenant Jim Kraus, the fight involved five people, all men. One person in the fight required a brief stay in the hospital for treatment of bruises and scrapes.

Eyewitnesses at the scene said that the same man had driven up in a green GMC Jimmy which police learned had been reported stolen from Emmet County.

According to Kraus, police found personal items belonging to the man inside the car as well as a car key chain with a Glen's plastic tag hooked on it.

Using the phone number on the back of the tag, police were able to contact supermarket officials in Gaylord and trace the tag back to the Elm Street residence in Charlevoix, Kraus said.

City of Charlevoix prepares for the year 2000 problem

By Laurie Lounsbury

The federal government is putting pressure on state and local governments to take care of their own potential computer problems when the year 2000 rolls around. The year 2000 bug, also known as Y2K, is expected to wreak havoc with computers that have old software or embedded chips, causing them to think it's the year 1900 when the date becomes the year 2000.

Fearing widespread disruptions in services provided by state and local municipalities, the U.S. Government Accounting Standards Board created a new rule that says all state and local governments must report the amount of money and resources they have committed to fix the year 2000 problems they might have.

The new rule went into effect last week.

The City of Charlevoix received advance warning of the situation from their auditors a few months ago.

"The year 2000 compliant issue is your biggest priority," auditor Mike Konicki told city council when he delivered their annual audit. "You need to look at software and hardware systems and make sure you don't have a crash on Dec. 31, 1999. There's a vast array of systems out there that have computer-related components."

Rather than hiring an outside consultant, the city is tackling their year 2000 compliance problems internally.

"My guess is we're not going to have a lot of cost involved with it,"

A brawl among thieves led to arrest connected to Charlevoix burglaries

THIEVES

Responding to a simple fight, police had suddenly located a stolen vehicle, and a key chain for a second stolen car.

"I guess you never know what you're going to find," Kraus said.

The suspect, Anthony Jacobs, 24, was arraigned last week in Macomb County's 41st District Court on a possession of stolen property over $100 charge.

Halverson said he plans to send an officer downstate to interview the suspect.

"The goal is to get enough evidence so two home invasion charges can be authorized," Halverson said.

Jacobs listed his hometown as Mackinaw City, according to Kraus.

Both Halverson and Kraus feel they have stumbled upon a larger crime ring whose main focus is credit card fraud.

Kraus explained that the parking lot fight was a disagreement among the alleged thieves and his office is seeking a search warrant for an apartment unit in the building. His office has also asked the local prosecutor to authorize possession of stolen transaction devices charges for Jacobs.

Halverson expected they were dealing with a group of thieves who needed multiple vehicles because no suspicious drop car was found after swiping the Cherokee.

"The math doesn't add up," he said. "There obviously is more than one of them."

City must disclose year 2000 plans in budget

2000

said city treasurer Rick Brandi.

Brandi is in charge of heading up the year 2000 compliance issue. Working with other city department heads, the group has identified 258 potential problem areas in 15 city departments. Of those, four have been checked or fixed and are 2000 compliant. The remaining 256 need to be checked.

The year 2000 bug affects all areas of government, from electrical systems to gas monitors and ambulance equipment. Police and fire department radios, cell phones and traffic signals all have some sort of chip that is date-coded.

The biggest concerns for the city are the control systems at the water treatment plant and the electrical distribution system.

The city's utility billing system will need a major upgrade, which the city has included in their projected budget.

City attorney Jim Young is getting showered with questionnaires asking if the city is year 2000 compliant. Some of the questionnaires are from the State of Michigan, asking for written assurance that the city will be year 2000 compliant and utility services will continue uninterrupted by the problem.

Brandi said the city is taking an inventory of everything they have that could possibly have an embedded computer chip that could cause a problem.

"We have the software to check our systems, and we're using a consultant's checklist so we don't overlook anything," Brandi said.

"Some of the hoopla about this (Y2K) is overdone, but you still have to be careful," he said.

City officials are including year 2000 compliance plans and projected costs in the new city budget, which will cover the fiscal year of 1999-2000.

Winter weather expected to be harsher than usual

By Jamie MacMillan

As if the recent chill in the air wasn't enough of a hint, winter's arrival has been foretold by the activity of the lady bug.

The red and black spotted insect, most known for the good fortune they bring to whomever they land upon, can feel the season's arrival. Packs of the bugs have been spotted in various locales — including the side of this newspaper's office building — burrowing into wooden hibernation spots for the winter.

On Oct. 27, local resident Clayton Smith reported that hundreds of lady bugs were scoping out the trees at his pine plantation on Barnard Road.

"They're looking for a place to spend the winter," Smith said. "In tree bark or the side of a house, anywhere where they can crawl."

Huge, heavy clumps of berries on ash trees would also indicate a heavy winter is around the corner.

This ash tree, loaded with berries, would indicate that a heavy winter is around the corner.

Gaylord National Weather Service.

A typical winter will see between 130-140 inches of snowfall. According to Boris, though, he and most of his brethren are predicting snowfall between 150-200 inches this season.

Such a snowfall would be a far cry from last winter, which was relatively snow-free. According to local weather historian Richard Farmer, who keeps daily logs, the area saw zero snowfall in the usual white month of February last year.

Farmer said he can't remember another time when his log-cutting field just south of Charlevoix wasn't covered with snow.

Everything should be back to normal this year, as last year's El Nino effect, which warmed the area, will be reversed by this year's "La Nina" weather pattern.

La Nina follows El Nino periods, and, according to Boris, La Ninas have a tendency to exacerbate weather circumstances.

"During the cool season, it will make it cooler than normal," Boris said. "The coldest weather will come after Christmas. January, February and March tend to be extremely cold during La Nina."

The first two months of 1999 will be typical, with snow storms and stretches of frigid cold snaps. Residents will notice a major difference in March. Instead of preparing for spring, the area will still be having major battles with Old Man Winter.

"Well into early spring, I think we'll see colder than normal temperatures and above normal precipitation," Boris said.

The latest Farmer's Almanac backs up the forecasting of local weathermen.

Throughout the winter, the Almanac predicts average temperatures five to six degrees colder than usual. Frigid temperatures in middle December, late January and early February will dominate the winter, according to the Almanac.

While the Almanac projects average overall precipitation, it does project above average snowfall with a blizzard projected in early December and major snowstorms in both mid-February and mid-March.

Snow will continue to fall into April, and both April and May will still feel wintry with temperatures at least five degrees colder than normal.

Northern Michigan residents, though, may have gotten an early season reprieve from the elements. Originally, a November cold snap was supposed to jump-start the season. However, an October month which saw temperatures consistently in the 60s and climbing at times into the 70s has thrown off early season forecasts, Boris said.

"It was warm and it made a difference," Boris said. "It hasn't been cold enough, which may keep us snow-free for awhile."

Now temperatures are half of what they were last month. Last Wednesday, Nov. 4, snow pellets came and went throughout the day and many awoke the next morning with a thin layer of the white stuff on their car hoods.

While it might remain snow-free for awhile, it sure does feel like we'll be shoveling on Thanksgiving Day.

OPINIONS

Holiday visits work best with good communication

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

This column is reprinted from Edith's column that ran in the Charlevoix Courier Dec. 2, 1987

As we approach the holiday season, families are reunited from far and wide. Is this year's gathering going to be a dream fulfilled, or fraught with unfulfilled expectations?

One of the major stumbling blocks to a successful reunion seems to be the difficulty in verbalizing our feelings and sharing our hopes. Here's a true story explaining what I mean.

While shopping at the supermarket, I met a neighbor filled with joy at the prospect of her son's arrival for the holidays with five fraternity brothers. Her shopping cart was filled with groceries right up to the top of her nose. She planned a fine dinner — all his favorite dishes.

Two days later our phone rang and that same neighbor said, "Bobby just called to say he and his friends won't be home for dinner. They ran into some ski friends at Boyne Mountain..." Her voice trailed off. "Anyway, we've planned such a lovely dinner, we hope you are free to come this evening and share it with us."

Son Bobby looked forward to a footloose and carefree visit home with his buddies, while mother planned to cook up a storm for her son with loving, nostalgic, tenderness. Unfortunately, neither mother nor son had clearly expressed their expectations.

Surely, if mother had relied less on osmosis and more on experience, she would have said, "We're planning to have you boys home one evening for dinner with all your favorite dishes. Which evening suits you best?" Bobby undoubtedly would not have canceled out so thoughtlessly at the last minute.

Or if Bobby had said, "Mother, please don't plan anything for us this weekend. It's such a relief not to be on schedule. All we want is a place to sleep." Then mother would not have killed the fatted calf, but would have graciously bowed to this fast-food life style. Fathers also need to express their feelings, or they may get lost in the shuffle of reunions. A one-to-one visit — a walk in the woods for an hour for father and son, or father and daughter — may be all that's needed to spark the glow of filial companionship.

Some young mothers find it difficult to acknowledge the fact that everyone in the family is unable to "ooh" and "aah" over their little darlings for the entire visit. The average tolerance of the most devoted relative may be an hour or so now and then.

Brothers, sisters, parents and relatives are looking forward to enjoying each others' adult companionship over lunch or a shopping trip, even if it means engaging a babysitter for a few hours.

Webster's Dictionary defines the word visit, "To go and see someone out of friendship." This would mean that each son-in-law, daughter-in-law and kissing cousin needs to feel welcome and included. Teenagers especially yearn to be accepted by adults, even as they rough-house on the floor with the little ones.

During the next few weeks there will be more family get-togethers than at almost any other time of the year. Parents will visit their children, grandchildren will be visiting grandparents, married daughters and sons home from school will be visiting parents and each and every one will have a fixed image in his or her mind and a hope in his or her heart of what this particular vacation will be like.

Voicing this hope out loud in advance will help make each wish come true. Happy holidays!

Column on assisted suicide was thoughtless and maudlin

Dear Ms. Lounsbury:
In an attempt to write to you before publication last week, I accumulated information on Proposal B, assisted suicide, however, time didn't allow the writing of a letter.

Your article was heart-wrenching, poor Uncle Ruhl, I will allow that he probably did... does exist, however, a maudlin, emotional approach to this legislation (not to the problem, approach that any way you want and I'll play one up with you any day, I've been there, done that, not once, but six times, with one stroke, one cancer, four dementias and I didn't feel like "putting any of them down") will not solve the problem. This legislation is about big government bureaucracy which, like all bureaucracies, will accomplish nothing except demand ever more money to do ever less for patients.

Doctors... well, that's another story.

Ms. Lounsbury, this kind of thoughtless, maudlin, emotionalism is no more an excuse for journalism than your remark that Fieger hasn't said anything negative about Engler. If you consider Fieger saying that he wouldn't agree that the Engler triplets are John's children unless he saw their curly tails because John Engler is a pig positive, then you need to retire from the ranks of editorial journalists and get someone else to write editorials for the Courier. Good grief!

Charlevoix bridge traffic foils bank robbery plans

By Laurie Lounsbury

Even the best laid bank robbery plans can go awry if Charlevoix summer traffic and the raising of Memorial Bridge aren't factored into the equation.

That was the case for Patrick Allen Bingham, 27, also known as Patrick Shea, who planned to rob a bank on the north side of Charlevoix last summer.

Along with several partners, Bingham — or one of his accomplices — reportedly planted a fake pipe bomb at the Charlevoix Post Office on Aug. 25. While area police were diverted to the post office, another conspirator allegedly called in a bomb threat from the Taco Bell on the north side of town.

It was downtown traffic congestion, possibly combined with the raising of the bascule bridge, that was their undoing. The conspirators from the post office couldn't get through town in time to meet up with their cohorts waiting for them at the north side bank.

"They couldn't meet their time schedule, so apparently they panicked and called it off," said Sheriff George T. Lasater.

After the incident, the sheriff's office received a tip from an inmate lodged in the Emmet County Jail who claimed to have knowledge of the suspect and the plot. The information led to the arrest of Bingham and one other conspirator on Friday, Nov. 6.

Bingham, formerly of Massachusetts, has been charged with making a false bomb threat and for conspiracy to commit bank robbery.

Lasater said they are withholding the name of the other person arrested in conjunction with the bomb threat because that person is cooperating with the sheriff's department.

The two men are lodged at the Charlevoix County Jail.

"We have these two men in custody and anticipate more arrests," Lasater said.

Bingham was also arrested on warrants from the Michigan State Police Post in Gladwin for unlawfully driving away an automobile and for possession of a firearm by a felon from a May, 1998 incident which resulted in the sheriff's office locating a stolen car.

The sheriff's office was assisted by the Michigan State Police Petoskey Post's Trooper Jeff Seaberg. Lasater also commends the cooperative effort of investigator Sgt. Don Sproul and Undersheriff Don Schneider of the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department.

city plant others along city streets.

The citizens of Charlevoix also should be grateful to Dale, who quietly goes about watering young stressed trees along other city streets and takes the extra time to get the job done. For example, he took the Petunia truck out of storage to water elms planted on Elm Street at the end of October - when watering Petunias had long since ended for the season.

For his singular important service we truly thank Dale for saving many young trees along our city streets - watering them during crucial hot, dry summer months when no one else was doing it until the trees were able to make it on their own.

Letters to the editor

Ghost ship with food drive was a huge success

Editor:
The crew of the United States Coast Guard Cutter Acacia would like to thank all of the businesses and guests who helped make this year's "Ghost Ship/Food Drive" a tremendous success through their generous donations. More than 1,100 guests braved their way through the city dock parking lot past the fearful "Hannibal Lecter" and "Chain Saw Massacre" and safely boarded the haunted ship. Once aboard, guests encountered a frightful host of "Ghost Ship" characters as they toured through the vessel's bone-chilling passageways, receiving a bag of delectable candy treats before disembarking. Highlighting the success of this year's event was the more than 800 nonperishable food items that were donated by guests and subsequently delivered by Acacia's crew to the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry. Special thanks to the following businesses for their support of the event: Pat McKeown Ford, Kmart, Don's IGA, Oleson's, Ace Hardware, Wolohan Lumher, County Post, Glen's Market, Village Inn Pizza, Radio Shack, Pizza Hut, Little Caesar's, Kilwin's, Charlevoix Area Hospital and the Holiday Gas Station.

On behalf of Acacia's crew, a hearty thanks is extended to the Charlevoix community for making the "Ghost Ship/Food Drive" a huge success.

Petunia truck and driver continue to help around town

Editor:
We wish to thank Dale Boss and his indispensable "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" Petunia truck for watering the elms along Elm Street, planted in 1997 and this year by Scout Troop 11. The scouts grow the elms at the city-sponsored elm tree nursery near the city waste treatment plant, then sell some as a fund-raiser and help the

Hospital employees donate food for needy

Charlevoix Area Hospital staff, physicians, satellite offices and partners in health care contributed a total of 1,333 pounds of canned goods, flour, sugar and dry goods that will now be distributed to local food banks in Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Central Lake.

The food drive was the local effort of the Michigan Health & Hospital Association's Michigan Harvest Gathering, sponsored in conjunction with the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. It's an annual program to raise food and funds for the Food Bank Council of Michigan, which has 12 regional food banks and supports 2,300 community agencies. Charlevoix Area Hospital is a member of the Michigan Health & Hospital Association.

The local food drive was a two-week campaign to bolster the supplies of local food banks in the Charlevoix County area. Boxes were set up around the hospital and at the Boyne Area Medical Center and Boyne Rehak Center in Boyne City, and at the Busy Bridge Antiques and Gifts Shop in East Jordan. Cash or checks were also accepted.

Types of food donated were commercially canned fruits, vegetables and soups, beef stew, tuna, peanut butter, baby food and infant formula, unopened dry foods including cereal, dry beans, lentils, boxed mixes, and personal hygiene (shampoos, toothpaste), and paper products.

All together, the hospital employees donated on average more than six pounds of food per person.

Charlevoix Area Hospital staff members display only a portion of the enormous amount of canned foods donated by hospital employees, physicians and support staff as part of the Michigan Health and Hospital Association's Michigan Harvest Gathering, sponsored in conjunction with the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. All of the items will be distributed to local food banks in the immediate area. Boxing up the food are hospital employees (from left) Chris Wilhelm, Tabitha Rudolph, Tracy Lemond and Kathy Johnson. ## Volunteers needed for arthritis research

Burns Clinic announced that they are participating in an international clinical research trial testing the effectiveness of an investigational medication used for preventing structural joint damage in rheumatoid arthritis. Burns Clinic physician Charles J. Huebner, MD and Nisus Research, a department of Northern Michigan Hospital, is searching for qualified individuals to participate.

Rheumatoid arthritis affects 2.5 million people in the United States. Among people with rheumatoid arthritis, women outnumber men three-to-one. Rheumatoid arthritis causes inflammation in the lining of the joint and/or other internal organs and tends to persist for many years. Anyone can get rheumatoid arthritis, including children and the elderly, but it usually begins in the young adult to middle adult years.

Individuals with a diagnosis of rheumatoid arthritis must be 21 years of age or older to participate in the study. Qualified participants will receive trial medication, laboratory tests and ongoing physical exams by a rheumatoid arthritis specialist at no cost. The study medication is not anti-inflammatory and therefore not expected to relieve pain and swelling. Individuals who are interested in determining if they are eligible to participate, can call 1-888-297-4247 for more information.

Grace Cole

Grace Cole, 90, of Beaver Island, died Saturday, Nov. 7, 1998, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

The funeral service was Wednesday, Nov. 11 at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island. The Rev. Patrick Cawley officiated and burial took place in Holy Cross Cemetery, Beaver Island.

She was born Regina Grace Gillespie on March 28, 1908, on Beaver Island, the daughter of Francis "Ket" and Mary Ann (Boyle) Gillespie. She graduated from Beaver Island School.

In 1926, she married Raymond Cole on Beaver Island. He preceded her in death in 1937.

Grace was known for her cooking, and had cooked at the Killarney Inn on Beaver Island for 16 years. She also cooked at the King Strang Hotel and the Beaver Island Lodge.

She was a member of Holy Cross Catholic Church and Altar Society, and the Beaver Island Historical Society.

Survivors include one son, Donald R. and his wife, Lillian E., of Beaver Island; grandchildren Hugh of Chicago, Ray of Anchorage, Alaska, James of Guernes Island, Wash., Laurel of Lansing, Garrett and his wife, Pam, of Royal Oak, Tom of Ferndale, Paul and his wife, Shirley, of St. Clair Shores, Robert and Brian, both of Beaver Island. Grace is also survived by great-grandchildren, Micaela Grace and MacKenzie Rae; a brother, Norman "Speck" Gillespie of Gaylord; a sister, Lucille Osborne of Williamsburg, Iowa; a nephew, Bud Left; and a niece, Clare Cull, in addition to many other nieces and nephews.

Grace was preceded in death by three brothers, John, Gerard and Jewell Gillespie; and three sisters, Consuelo Left, Delores Pischner and Elvira Supernaw. Memorial contributions may be made to the Beaver Island Medical Center.

Congregational Church will proceed with renovation plans, thanks to many pledges

"Faith Moving Forward" was the theme of a $750,000 fund-raising campaign recently successfully completed by the members of the First Congregational United Church of Christ. The theme demonstrated not only the congregation's faith in the future of their church, but also in the future of downtown Charlevoix.

The plans for the renovation and addition to the 116-year-old building include a completely new youth area which will serve the young people in the community into the 21st century. The sanctuary, which is often used for community programs, will be enlarged, the church office and the minister's study will be placed in more strategic positions, the kitchen will be modernized and Fellowship Hall will have better space of meetings and meals.

All of this will be made possible because pledges have far exceeded the initial goal set for the campaign. Costs for the entire project are estimated at $1,200,000 and to date $950,000 had been pledged.

The congregation learned of their faithful completion of the campaign at a celebration service this past Sunday evening. Sulfane Hamilton and Jeffrey Porter served as the campaign administrators. The executive committee members were Barbara Dowty, Karen Joy, Jane Lieberman, Carrie Minch, Fran Pletz, Harold Pletz, John Porter, Lois Wood, Stuart Wood and the church moderator, Merle Vandenberg.

Philip Schairbaum is the current pastor of the church, having begun his ministry here in the fall of 1983.

OF BLESSINGS

Beacons of Blessing
By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

One of the wonders of modern technology is the way computers can link people around the world in a manner of seconds. One of the advantages is the network of people with similar interests you can connect with in fairly short order. My faith communion has something known as a listserv. By subscribing to it, you receive messages from people literally everywhere in the Church of God.

We have a pastor in Bosnia, a land that has been rife with civil war and strife for many years. His messages to our group have been very thought-provoking and even heart-wrenching. He has seen things up close and personal that some of us have only viewed on television. He surprised more than a few people with a message that showed, even in the midst of trials, one's sense of humor can remain strong.

It's called "Jesus: Truly All Things To All Men." It begins by giving three proofs that Jesus was Jewish: First, He went into His Father's business. Second, He lived at home until the age of 33. Third, He was sure His mother was a virgin, and His mother was sure He was God.

Then came three proofs that Jesus was Irish: First, He never got married. Next, He was always telling stories and last, He loved green pastures.

This was followed by three proofs that Jesus was Puerto Rican. It started out by saying that His first name was Jesus. It reminded us next that He was bilingual. Then it capped it off by saying He was always being harassed by the authorities.

Up next were three proofs that Jesus was Italian. The suggestion was that Jesus always talked with His hands. Second came the reminder that He had wine with every meal and third, that He worked in the building trades.

Bearing in mind this came from Bosnia, the next part of the message really got me. The next proofs were that Jesus had to be a Californian. First, because He never cut His hair. Second, because He always walked around barefoot and third, that He invented a new religion.

The last part of the message contained three proofs that Jesus was black. First, He called everybody brother. Second, He liked Gospel. Third, He couldn't get a fair trial.

If someone from halfway around the world going through such day-to-day strife could find reasons like that to smile, what does it say to you and me? And, considering the nature of his message, what does that tell you Jesus should be to you and me? You can find all things in Christ. He knows what the frustrations of raising children are like. He knows what having a cranky boss can do to a workday. He knows. He understands and He is prepared to help.

Jesus so enjoyed young children. He told those who would listen that their spirit was at the very heart of what the kingdom was all about. He knew the plight of working folks. He showed his fishing disciples where the best catch was. He appreciated the stress that special occasions like a wedding can put on a family. He provided wine for a reception that His mother was worried about. You name the situation and Jesus can be there. He's not only all things to all mankind. He's ready to be everything to you.

School outspends revenues by three-quarters of a million

By Jamie MacMillan

Hiring more teachers and buying more vehicles have pushed the local school district's expenses even higher than originally anticipated, and the result is a 1998-99 fiscal year budget that will outspend incoming revenues by $764,510.

When the current budget was passed in June of 1998, school officials expected to outspend revenues by about $420,000.

In June, expenditures were figured to be $10,125,910, but now that figure has risen to $10,845,460.

The district's fund balance, which exceeded $2.88 million at the start of the fiscal year, is projected to be $2.11 million by the end of the year.

District financial manager Judy Boss explained that a bulk of the increased spending was expected, and in reality took place during the previous fiscal year.

The $168,000 Durant settlement, which the district received last spring, was plugged into last year's budget only as an incoming revenue source. The school purchased additional computer equipment with the money over the summer, and only now in the 1998-99 budget is it being included as an expenditure.

The school spent an extra $6,000 this year on Internet access fees, Boss said.

Also last year, the district purchased a 71-passenger bus costing more than $100,000 that wasn't plugged into the budget until this fall because the district had yet to receive the vehicle.

Other new vehicle purchases include a 1998 Safari GMC van for $20,000 and a new maintenance truck for $9,000.

Teachers' salaries have increased in all three school buildings as the district spent this fall replacing teachers who took advantage of the early retirement incentive.

The highest jump occurred at the elementary school, where the hiring of an additional second grade teacher and computer instructor boosted spending in that category by $64,000 more than originally budgeted.

Boss also explained that substitute teachers' pay will rise by as much as $26,000 more than expected since a handful of K-5 staffers will go on maternity leave at various times this year.

At the middle school, the hiring of a full time industrial arts teacher instead of a part-time staffer as originally intended has upped spending by $30,000.

The high school hired additional people to teach one hour of English and one hour of Spanish for an extra $15,000.

Revenues have also increased from earlier projections.

The amended budget includes 33 extra students, bringing in over $226,000 in new revenue from the state. Also included is a payment of $51 per student from the state, due to an increase in the foundation grant, which will bring in $69,000 in unexpected revenue.

All in all, revenues for the year are projected to be $376,370 higher than expected, from $9.7 million to just over $10 million.

In other school news, the school board officially adopted a revised high school attendance policy.

Last month, parents, students and high school administrators revised the policy to address concerns.

Coalition urges people to help find homes for homeless

Governor John Engler has designated Nov. 8-14 as Homeless Awareness Week 1998 in Michigan. Homeless Awareness Week is a statewide public campaign to educate the public about the many reasons people are homeless, the shortage of affordable housing for low income people, and the diligent work that homeless assistance providers are doing to bring relief to those most in need.

This year's focus is on mothers and children. The number of homeless families with children has increased significantly over the past 10 years, making children the fastest growing group of people experiencing homelessness. Today, the average age of a homeless person is nine years old nationally. Locally, approximately 20 people are sleeping in the area's two emergency shelters and eight people are in transitional housing facilities. In addition to those living in established shelters, in their cars, or in the street, there are many more who teeter on the edge of homelessness. The problem is a systemic one, not merely an individual failure.

You can help. Organize citizen groups that advocate for the building of low income housing in your community and in your neighborhood. Donate to local agencies that are working to prevent and eliminate homelessness, such as the Charlevoix Emmet Housing Coalition (582-2894), The Salvation Army (347-3531), The Nehemiah Project (347-0363), the Women's Resource Center (347-0067) or the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency (347-9070). Pressure your local, state, and federal representatives to appropriate more funding for low income housing. This is not a case of an inability to build more, it is a case of a lack of public and government will to build more. Don't the children of our community deserve it?

Deer hunters should be health conscious

Last year, at least eight Michigan hunters were killed by heart attacks, and many more had nonfatal heart attacks. Hunting is a very tiring activity. Lack of physical activity, smoking, eating fatty foods, excessive drinking of alcohol and being overweight combined with deer hunting may put hunters at risk for a heart attack.

In order to reduce your risk of dying from a heart attack while hunting:

- before hunting, see your doctor for a physical
- watch for signs and symptoms and seek immediate treatment
- don't hunt alone
- eat and drink light, don't smoke
- wear layered clothing
- pace yourself; walk a bit/rest a bit

Heart attack symptoms are often ignored by hunters, partly because the symptoms are very similar to "Hunters Rush". Symptoms of both include increased in heart rate and breathing, shortness of breath, chest discomfort, sweating, clamminess, and feeling anxious. If you have any of these signs and symptoms, stop and rest right away. If they do not go away, get help and go to the closest emergency room. Treatment of heart attacks are most effective if people receive them during the first few hours. Early recognition of heart attack warning signs, followed by early action to seek treatment, will help reduce the number of fatal heart attacks, which is one of the goals of the Healthy Heart Coalition of Northern Michigan, who brings you this message.

cerns in the policy, which was new this year.

The basic change is that now parents can excuse their child's absence with no penalty assessed to the student.

"It was great to see everyone work together to reach a resolution," superintendent of schools John Sturock said. "Hopefully it's a sign of things to come."

The board next meets at 7 p.m., Monday, Dec. 14 in the high school study hall.

Former student returns to share knowledge of HIV, AIDS research

A former student returned to Charlevoix High School recently to enlighten the current science students on possible futures in the scientific community. Dr. Joan Cook-Mills is the Director of the Graduate Program in Pathobiology and molecular medicine at the University of Cincinnati, where she researches HIV and AIDS. Her interest in biology started when she was a student of Mr. Roger Gowell's science class at Charlevoix High School. Gowell invited Cook-Mills back to address his advanced biology class. The physics class joined in, and together they listened attentively to the professor talk about career possibilities and her research topics.

Cook-Mills highlighted the challenges and rewards of a number of science professions, including opportunities in the industrial, pharmaceutical, product manufacturing and education fields. She covered the training and time required to achieve success in each of the career areas.

Thoughtfully, she asked the students to consider where they wanted to live, whether they enjoyed interaction with people, and about their lifestyle priorities. Elaborating on attaining a bachelor's degree versus a graduate degree, Cook-Mills pointed out how she thoroughly enjoyed doing actual laboratory experiments as a new graduate, but now, as project director, her role is much less hands-on.

Gowell prepared his students for Cook-Mills' review of her research by discussing lymphocyte interactions in the human body and their relationship to HIV. The advance discussion helped the students understand as the professor outlined her complex investigations into different body cell functions. As she charted the research process, the students were surprised to learn the extent of time, planning, and fund-raising required in successful projects. They left the lecture aware of new possibilities and increased appreciation of the wonders of the human body.

Planned Parenthood offers flu shots

Planned Parenthood of Northern Michigan is now offering flu shots at its health centers in Marquette, Petoskey, and Traverse City.

"Since many of our clients don't have any other health care provider, we decided to add flu shots to the services we provide," explained Alice Clayton, Director of Patient Services. "This will make it more convenient for our clients to receive the care they need all at one time and place. Women and men who are not currently Planned Parenthood clients are also welcome to receive flu shots from us."

The cost for flu shots is $10. Appointments are necessary, and the shots can be given anytime the health center is open.

Petoskey: Monday, Wednesday 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.; Tuesday 9 a.m. - 6 p.m.; Thursday 9 a.m. - 7 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

To schedule an appointment for a flu shot in Petoskey, call 347-9692.

Doctors move to new office building

The three-physician family practice of doctors Dennis Joy, F. James Stewart and Edward E. Newcomb has moved its office to the new Pine River Medical building behind Charlevoix Area Hospital. This family practice office, known as Pine River Medical, has been treating families in Charlevoix since 1974.

The new 5,200 square-foot physician office building was recently completed by the hospital, and is also the new location of Dr. Rod Tinney, pediatrician, who recently moved his practice from East Jordan.

Joy, Stewart and Newcomb treat patients of all ages, from pediatrics through geriatrics, including pre- and post-natal care, obstetrics and general surgery. All three physicians are board certified by the American Board of Family Practice and all are on the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital, where they also provide the majority of care in the emergency department. They are certified in Advanced Cardiac Life Support, Advanced Trauma Life Support, and Advanced Pediatric and Neo-natal Life Support.

The new office setting provides expanded room for patient care and includes a special procedure room for outpatient surgery. This will be an added convenience to patients who might otherwise need to go to the hospital for these services.

Pine River Medical employs four registered nurses, four receptionists, and four billing employees, in addition to the three physicians.

An open house is planned from 5-7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20 at the new Pine River Medical Building located at 14734 Park Ave., behind Charlevoix Area Hospital. Patients and the public are invited to stop by for a tour of the facility and to meet with the physicians and their staff. Light refreshments will be served. For more information call 547-6554.

Open house marks 25 years of Charlevoix dental practice

Dave Strawbridge

The staff of Dr. Dave Strawbridge, D.D.A., is hosting an open house reception from 5-7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 19 to celebrate his 25 years of practice in Charlevoix.

All friends and patients are invited to attend the celebration at Dr. Strawbridge's office, 303 Belvedere Ave., Charlevoix.

Road to state basketball finals begins in Charlevoix

With one-quarter of a century under its belt, the girls' state basketball tournament enters its next 25 years of play next week throughout the state. In Charlevoix, state competition will begin with the local class C district tournament.

The Rayders open the tournament against Boyne City at 6 p.m. Monday, Nov. 16.

For the 2-17 Rayders, the shoe might be on the other foot as the host for this year's tourney. For the last two years, Charlevoix has opened the single elimination tournament with victories against the host school. In 1996, they topped Boyne City and, last year, they bested East Jordan.

The Rayders have dropped two previous contests with the Ramblers this season, 80-47, and, 64-35.

In the second game on Monday, East Jordan battles Mancelona with tip-off expected to be 8 p.m.

Ski team embarking on fresh fruit fund-raiser

The Charlevoix High School Ski Team will be conducting a Fresh Florida Fruit fund-raising event through the month of November. Proceeds from the fruit sale will be used to buy equipment for the team. In past years, the fresh Florida fruit has been extremely well-received in the community.

Oranges and grapefruits are available in two-fifths or four-fifths of a case. New this year are tangerines, which are available in one-fifth of a case.

The actual number of pieces of fruit in an order depends on the size of the fruit. On average, there are 24 oranges in a two-fifths box; 12 grapefruits in a two-fifths box; and 25 tangerines in a one-fifth box.

The cost for fruit orders is as follows:

Naval oranges; two-fifths for $12, four-fifths for $20.

Pink grapefruits; two-fifths for $11, four-fifths for $18.

Tangerines; one-fifth for $12.

All fruit orders must be picked up at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 14.

To order Florida fruit, call the team coach Sue Miller, at (616) 535-2786 in the evenings, or call a member of the high school ski team. Ski team members include: Tiffany Fisher, Kelly Kusina, Lexi Wilson, Alisha Johnson, Marie Serrels, Karlee Barnard, Kirsten Brendtro, Todd Freidinger, Steve Pirie, Roscoe Serrels, Shawn MacMillan, Joel Trubilowicz, Kyle Louiselle and Jim Dilworth.

The Mancelona-East Jordan winner will play Elk Rapids at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 18 while the Boyne City-Charlevoix winner will battle Harbor Springs at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 18.

The district title game will be 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20.

Harbor Springs, ranked No. 2 in the A.P. class C poll, is the favorite and is seeking its third consecutive district title.

In regular season action last week, the Rayders dropped a pair of contests to Ellsworth, 56-40, and to East Jordan, 50-29.

Megan Vogel led the club against Ellsworth with 10 points and Leslie Hoffman and Kristy Shindorf each scored seven in the loss to East Jordan.

Charlevoix concluded their regular season Tuesday night with a contest against Harbor Springs.

Girls' cross country team takes seventh in state

By Jamie MacMillan

Spurred by an All-State performance from senior Tricia Hodge, the Lady Rayders' cross-country team placed seventh out of 21 schools at last Saturday's class C state finals at the Michigan International Speedway (M.I.S.) in Brooklyn.

"We ran exceptionally, everyone ran faster than their previous best times," coach Ken Plude said. "Anytime you finish seventh and you're ranked 10th, that's good."

Benzie Central edged Pittsford 132-134 for the state title.

Charlevoix's Tricia Hodge crossed the finish line in 20th place, good enough for a medal and all-state honors. Her time was 19 minutes, 28.10 seconds.

Also for Charlevoix was Liza Gorkiewicz, 47; Heather Probert, 83; Laura Schairbaum, 86; Emily Martinus, 133; Melissa Swem, 183; and Tiffany Fisher, 186.

Michigan Lutheran topped the 217-runner field with a time of 18:09.4.

The meet was run under ideal conditions and times were a bit faster than usual thanks to the flat M.I.S. track and its wide open corners, Plude said.

Plude credited the senior leadership of Hodge and Gorkiewicz and their previous state finals' experience for pulling the Rayders through this meet.

In the boys' meet, East Jordan cruised to the state title with 145 points.

Charlevoix did not qualify a team into the boys' field, but senior Jeff Popenhagen did qualify as an individual and ran in the race.

Shackled with an ankle injury and flu-like symptoms, Popenhagen placed 188th with a time of 18:08.

"With the spirit and unity we had, this was the best team I've ever had," Plude said. "We were nobody at the beginning of the season, but now we're somebody."

Melissa Swem (leading) and Tiffany Fisher stay close together at the start of the state final cross country race.

Jeff Popenhagen gave it his best effort at state finals, even though he was plagued with injuries.

Emily Martinus is running neck and neck with an opponent at the state meet.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Chamber to host Business After Hours

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is hosting Business After Hours from 5-7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 12 at Alexander's restaurant in Charlevoix.

The event is sponsored by Alexander's and www.ihgraphics.com.

The event will give everyone the opportunity to see the chamber web site and eat ribs and wings. There is a $3 admission fee.

Middle school offers parent-teacher conferences

The Charlevoix Middle School will be offering parent/teacher conferences from 1:15 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and again from 6:15 p.m. to 9:15 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 19 in the middle school gym.

Students will be dismissed from school that day at 1 p.m. and lunch will be served.

Appointments aren't necessary for the conferences, which will be conducted with an "arena style" format. All teachers will be at their stations in the gym and will see parents on a first come, first serve basis.

Student report cards will be mailed home a few days prior to Nov. 19.

If parents would like to find out what their children are eating during lunch hour, kitchen personnel will be available to provide the information. Parents may make a deposit in their students' lunch account at that time.

Coffee and cookies will be provided during the conferences.

Hypnosis class offered to help break bad habits

The Community Health Education Center in Petoskey is offering a class about hypnosis and self-hypnosis — tools and techniques that can be essential for making any lasting change in one's lifestyle.

A holistic approach to hypnosis will be taught and utilized to launch smokers into life-saving transformations that will render them healthy, whole, and free of their former self-defeating habits.

Bill Michael, Ph.D., clinical Hypnotherapist of Psychological Services in Petoskey will teach the class from 7-10 p.m. Monday, Nov. 16 at the Community Health Education Center. There is no fee for the class. To register for the class, or for more information, call Northern Michigan Hospital Health Access at 1-800-248-6777.

DDA cancels November meeting

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) will not meet Wednesday, Nov. 11 in the council conference room of city hall as scheduled.

The next scheduled meeting of the DDA will be at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 9 in the council conference room of city hall. A complete agenda will be posted prior to the meeting.

Masons host meeting in Boyne City

Attention Masons, the Boyne City Lodge No. 391 F.&A.M. will hold their 110th annual communication for the election of officers and other business at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 12 at 212 N. Lake St. A potluck dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. All Masons are welcome.

Dance at teen center this weekend

There will be a Teen Dance from 7 to 11 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14 at the B.A.S.E.S. Teen Center, 208 W. Lincoln St., Charlevoix. The dance will be deejayed by "Big Daddy." Admission is $3 for members, $5 for non-members.

Big Band dinner dance to benefit charter school music

The Up North Big Band will be performing at a dinner dance to benefit the Northwest Academy music department.

The dinner will be from 5-8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix. The Northwest Academy band will open the evening's entertainment before the Big Band takes the stage for dancing and entertainment.

The cost of the dinner and dancing is $20 per person or $35 per couple. To attend just for the dance, the cost is $15 per person or $25 per couple.

Family Independence Agency gets new phone number

Beginning at noon Tuesday, Nov. 10, the main switchboard number at the Emmet County Family Independence Agency will change to 348-1600. Individual worker telephone numbers will however remain the same. The switchboard will not be in operation from 12 to 1 p.m. In case of an emergency, please call the Charlevoix County FIA at 547-4471.

Wee Elves Bazaar hosted at fairgrounds

The Sixth Annual Wee Elves Bazaar will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 28 at the Emmet County Fairgrounds 4-H Center, Charlevoix Ave., Petoskey. There will be 28 crafters and a door prize drawing every 15 minutes. For more information call, Sylvia Heward at 548-5193.

SCRAPBOOK

Medical care in Charlevoix got its start downtown

By Marilyn Boss

Back in the '20s, '30s and '40s, the Charlevoix community had a hospital that started out in an old house on the northwest corner of Hurlbut and Grant streets. The property is now known as the Hillcrest Apartments. The first house directly to the west was the nurses' residence. My recollections are that the hospital was originally served by two doctors, Dr. Robert Armstrong and Dr. F.F. McMillan. Dr. Armstrong's office was located on the second floor of the Parkside Restaurant building. The building was originally constructed in 1913 by George Priest, a local photographer. He built a large window facing north for his photography studio and used the first floor for that. When I was 4 years old, I can vividly remember walking up that long, dark stairway to Dr. Armstrong's office. I reclined in a chair, and he operated on my neck. I was swathed in bandages for a little while, and was told to use iodized salt only, as I needed the iodine.

Dr. McMillan's office was located on the second floor of the Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering building on Bridge Street. I can remember Dr. McMillan coming to school each year before Halloween, going to each class and telling us to be good. He belonged to the Kiwanis, and they gave out candy to the boys and girls going to the theater for a movie as their treat. The telephone office was located next door his, in what is now the Trademark Clothiers building. If anyone needed either doctor, they would call the telephone operator and ask her where they were, and she would connect them with the home that the doctor was called to at the time. Talk about communication!

he more or less took over where Dr. Armstrong left off. My mother had a serious attack of appendicitis, and Dr. Saltonstall gave her the new, sulfa drug. It saved her life. There were many stories that old timers can tell of our doctors. We were so fortunate to have the good doctors and a hospital in our small town, and we were always thankful for it. The nurses that served there were special, working long hours most of the time. Marge Davenport told me that there were so few nurses, they had to give more than they were called to do. I remember her and Ellen Koskela, who later married Mike Hamlin. Ellen was the hospital superintendent. The late Harry Gebeau's sister, Florence Ripley, was the cook, and prepared delicious meals.

The other day, I had a conversation with Betty Inman, who told me a story about having her tonsils out. Seems her step father, Bert Staley, insisted she get her tonsils out. She was 25 at the time, and went to Dr. Saltonstall. He sat her in a chair, gave her a shot in each side of her throat, as she held the tray that had his operating instruments on it. She sat there as he removed the tonsils, and laid them side by side on the tray she was holding. I gasped, wondering how she had such a strong constitution, and she laughed, saying it didn't bother her.

Instead of ice cream and the usual bland diet, she had turkey and all the trimmings the next day, and healed extremely well.

In the early '50s, the community decided to build a new hospital, and like anything else that happened in Charlevoix, there was a lot of uproar. The naysayers said that all the rats from the dump would come across the fields in the fall of the year, and would invade the new hospital that was proposed to be built on the lake shore, where it is today. No one wanted to see the city tourist park demolished to make way for the hospital. The naysayers said there was no way they should build it there, because the cold wind off the lake would freeze the pipes in the winter time. The trailer park that was located on the property was very nice, but progress couldn't be stopped. Dale remembers that in 1954, on dedication day of the new hospital complex, a little lady from the Belvedere Club, by the name of Mrs. Williams, had her chauffeur bring her down in her big seven passenger Cadillac limousine. She sat there in the sunshine, with a huge smile on her face. The summer folks contributed a great deal of money to this project, and made it possible.

Efforts by the early residents have made our town the wonderful place it is today. Charlevoix residents may now live in a town that is equipped with everything from hospital care, excellent schools, fire departments, police protection, churches, parks, boating facilities, airport and many other things we enjoy. About a month ago, I read in the Traverse City Record Eagle about a man who spent several years traveling the United States to find the 100 best towns. He published a book, and in it were listed the four top towns in Michigan. Those were: Holland, Traverse City, Petoskey and Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Local family works to send aid home to Honduras

By Laurie Lounsbury

On Oct. 30, Maria Reyes was trudging home through the relentless rain that Hurricane Mitch was dumping on her colony near Tegucigalpa, the capitol of Honduras. At the same time, her house on the hillside was being bombarded with the wreckage of homes falling down around hers.

Reyes had left her two children home alone for a couple of hours so she could go grocery shopping. She had just received birthday money from her daughter, Jisell Lopez of Charlevoix.

Her birthday was Oct. 29. Her life was upheaved one day later.

When Reyes got back to her neighborhood, she wasn't sure if she had a home left — or had children who survived the mud slide. She looked up the hill at a mountain of debris piled where her home stood. All of the homes higher up the hillside had washed down the hill, splintering along the way.

"All the homes above hers and around hers came down, except my aunt's house," Jisell said. "It's a miracle they weren't touched."

Reyes could barely see her house, still standing but covered with the remains of other homes.

Reyes quickly learned that her relatives living in the area had gotten her children safely out of the house before the other homes came

Members of the Lopez family living in Charlevoix are (from left) Jisell Lopez, Carlos Lopez Sr., Jisell's daughter, Alejandra, Maria Lopez, and Maria's mom and dad, Janet and Carlos Lopez Jr. The family is working with the community to raise money for the people of Honduras, who lost nearly everything after Hurricane Mitch flooded the country. tumbling down. Then Reyes, her neighbors and relatives headed to a local church that was providing temporary shelter.

None of that was known to Jisell

Lopez and the rest of her family living in Charlevoix.

For one tense week, the Lopez family watched, waited and worried.

They couldn't make contact with any of their many relatives still living in Honduras.

Day after day, they listened to the news of horrendous flooding, damage and death.

All they could do was hope that their loved ones weren't among the dead or homeless.

Finally, on Friday, Nov. 6, one week after the hurricane claimed at least 10,000 Honduran lives and left 2.3 million people homeless, Jisell made contact with her mother.

"I stayed up until 2 a.m. to call her, that was the only time the phone lines weren't busy," she said.

"We didn't know anything," Jisell said of the week they went without communication. "We went on the Internet to see if we could find some information. We even looked at the deceased list for the names of our relatives."

Jisell Lopez came to America four years ago to join her father, Carlos Lopez, and brother, Carlos Jr.

Carlos Sr. owns Charlevoix Area Canvas, a business he started in Charlevoix seven years ago. He lives in Charlevoix with his wife, Cindy, and their three children, Lanie, Mimi and Jenny. Also living in Charlevoix is Carlos Lopez Jr., his wife, Janet, their daughter, Maria, Jisell and her daughter, Alejandra.

Charlevoix High School students sweep the Meap

Scores improve over last year's results

By Jamie MacMillan

Students, teachers and administrators at the Charlevoix High School can walk with their heads held high after state educators released scores earlier this month from the latest round of Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) tests.

The MEAP, taken last spring by 90 members of the high school's current senior class, tested students in four subjects: math, reading, writing and science.

The Charlevoix students tested well in all four categories, notably in science and writing sections.

In science, 83.5 percent of the Charlevoix students met or exceeded state standards. That represents an increase of 28.8 percent who met standards after the 1997 test.

The 83 percent rate also exceeded this year's state average for science proficiency, which was just over 50 percent.

On the writing section, the school almost made a clean sweep, as 95.5 percent of the Charlevoix students met or exceeded state standards. The state average was 56.1 percent.

In reading, Charlevoix students were 84.5 percent proficient as opposed to the state average of 58 percent, while in math, Charlevoix students were 87.8 percent compared to the state average of 59.3 percent.

In all, the Charlevoix scores improved from 1997 as well as exceeded the state average in each of the four categories.

To see how Charlevoix students compared to the state average, see the table on page two.

New mayor takes helm at city council meeting

By Laurie Lounsbury

With the new mayor Butch Russell nattily dressed in a sport coat and tie, city council convened Monday night with one new face and two empty seats at the council table.

Russell vacated his second ward seat to become the new mayor, and Valerie Barnes assumed the seat of retired first ward councilman Don Meggison. A.J. Witthoef was not at the meeting, leaving another empty seat.

The council is looking for someone to fill Russell's second ward seat, and has suggested that anyone interested in the job should call city hall.

"We hope to make that appointment at our next regular meeting," Russell said.

Also needed are citizens to serve on the Zoning Board of Appeals. Anyone interested should call city hall.

Dave Campbell, with his clients Gregory Vereyken and Aaron Moffat, came before the council to request the transfer of a liquor license to the two partners, who bought Alexander's Restaurant last Friday. The two men are brothers-in-law, and both have restaurant experience.

The restaurant will serve Italian food and will be called Giuseppe's Italian Grill.

Contrary to recent rumors circulating about the place, there will be no topless activity. Apparently language in the liquor license permit includes the words "dance, entertainment, dance-entertainment or topless activity."

"It's just a blanket statement," Campbell said. "They have no plans at all for any topless activities — they're just having the existing dance permit transferred to them."

According to Campbell, the new owners are planning to do some significant remodeling to the establishment, and their business will be 85 percent food and 15-20 percent liquor. The restaurant is currently closed for remodeling and redecoration, and will reopen on or about Dec. 1.

Council also approved a grant application for construction of a new city airport terminal. The grant is for $75,000, and must be matched by the city. The city currently has $30,000 in the budget for the project, and plans to borrow another $180,800 for construction. In the fiscal year 1999-2000, the city plans to make a budget contribution from the infrastructure budget of $70,000 to complete the funding for the project. In all, the new terminal is projected to cost $361,600.

The airport committee met with architect James Nichols, who recommended removing the old terminal and starting with new construction rather than trying to remodel and expand the old terminal.

Tippy canoe and safety too

The Charlevoix Community Pool staff and volunteers are providing a six week basic water safety class for all Charlevoix elementary second grade students. The instruction includes two weeks of water safety training and four weeks of swim instruction. This past week, the program taught children about reaching and throwing rescues, swamping canoes and using them for flotation and boarding boats they have fallen out of. Another aspect of the session was teaching the children that the more clothes a person wears when they fall in the water, the better they float. Shown here, Dave Smith helps kids learn about boating safety. (Photo courtesy of Bruce MacArthur)

Snowmobiler's body found on beach

The body of Casey R. Richardson, who died at the age of 26, was found Sunday, Nov. 15, on a Lake Charlevoix beach near Indian Trails Road.

Richardson went through the ice on Lake Charlevoix on Feb. 10, 1996 near the Coast Guard Station, where channel currents make the ice unstable.

A resident living near the Indian Trails Road found the body. The sheriff notified Richardson's widow and parents of the discovery Sunday.

Honduran relatives lost homes and belongings

country secondhand, through news reports on TV and in the newspapers.

"At least our immediate family is doing all right," Carlos Sr. said. "They're safe, but a lot of our relatives lost their houses and belongings. We haven't heard from the rest of our family."

Some of the Lopez family relatives lived on the north shore of Honduras, where the damage was greatest. There are still cousins who are unaccounted for.

While the Lopez family naturally has great concerns for their own family's future in Honduras, they also worry about the people of the whole country.

"There hasn't been any state or town that didn't get damaged," Carlos Sr. said. "Honduras was already 35 years behind developed countries, and this will put us another 20 years behind."

"The soil at the banana plantation is wiped out. The mud and water is over the tree tops. They will have to rebuild the ground, and it's the same thing at the pineapple plantations."

Right now, the Hondurans have to rebuild roads and bridges before they rebuild anything else. All the bridges were washed away with the mud slides and roaring rivers.

"My sister told me they have rigged pulleys and ropes across the water and that is how they pass food across to people," Carlos Sr. said.

The Lopez family living in America is working to do whatever they can to help not only their own families in Honduras, but all of the people who have been devastated by Hurricane Mitch.

They opened an account at Charlevoix State Bank so that people in this area can donate to the cause. Anyone who would like to make a donation should make it to: Hurricane Mitch Relief Fund, c/o American Red Cross, and in the memo line on the check, indicate that the money is for Honduras Relief. The account number at the Charlevoix State Bank is #910028619.

The Charlevoix Middle School student council is also planning to pitch in and raise money for the cause.

"I don't like to go and ask people for money," Carlos Sr. said of the fund-raising activities for Honduras. "I'd rather sell hot dogs in the park to raise money, but things have to be done quickly. People need food and medicine. The big fear now is disease coming from the dead people."

Lou Hollow's quiet departure echoes loudly through town

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

Being a self-effacing man who always hates fanfare and fawning, it's no surprise that Lou Hollow chose to make a quiet, unannounced exodus from Charlevoix and his position as president of Charlevoix State Bank.

He slipped out of town last week, reportedly for a long vacation in Florida.

The departure of Lou will leave a gaping hole the size of Egypt in this community. His role in the local banking business and his contributions to the town in general have been a vital part of Charlevoix.

For many of us, the words "Go see Uncle Lou" are synonymous with getting a loan, a line of credit, a savings or a checking account.

Over the years, Lou Hollow has helped young people who are just starting out and middle-aged people who are starting all over again.

When big lending institutions say, "No, you don't qualify for a loan with us," Uncle Lou was apt to say, "Heck, I know you'll do just fine. We'll give you an in-house loan."

Many homeowners in this town might not have achieved their dream of home ownership without Lou Hollow.

Quite a few businesses around here probably wouldn't have opened their doors in the first place if Lou Hollow hadn't given them their start.

When bigger banks smirked and turned up their noses, Lou solved the problem. He based his decisions on people more than numbers, intuition more than bottom lines, and his heart more than his ledger.

That's not to say Lou Hollow is an old sofite who made poor business decisions.

On the contrary, every bank he ran was enormously successful.

Lou simply has the magical, home town touch.

Giving credit where credit is due is an impossible challenge with Lou Hollow.

When he was named Outstanding Citizen of the Year by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce last January, he swiftly claimed his award, turned his head away from the clicking cameras and quietly murmured, "You've got the wrong guy."

Lou never considers anything he does to be remarkable, generous or noble.

"I'm just doing what anyone would do," he says when someone compliments him on his kindness.

But he is wrong.

Lou always goes way above and beyond the call of duty. He is more cheerful, more helpful and more amusing than most people can imagine being day after day, year after year, decade after decade.

I know I will miss pulling up to the drive-up window and seeing Lou lean into the microphone to whisper a few wildly flirtatious, harmlessly fun remarks.

It was part of the Lou Hollow charm package.

In searching for just the right word to describe Lou, I consulted my friendly thesaurus and looked under the word "Debonair." It seemed like a good place to start.

What I found was a whole list of appropriate words, so I won't be stingy and use just one — Lou is a "suave, chic, dapper, dashing, jaunty, natty, rakish, sleek, smart, snazzy, spiffy and trim" man who has clearly earned his retirement, but will be dearly missed by everyone in town.

The only good news about Lou Hollow's departure from Charlevoix State Bank is that an equally kind-hearted, conscientious man is taking his place. John Kurtz has the same devotion to this community and the same desire to help people with their financial needs. The shoes Lou leaves behind are as big as banana boats, but I'm confident John can fill them.

I guess that means it's time to say, "Farewell, Uncle Lou, and hello, Uncle John."

Letters to the editor

Bank president says farewell to Charlevoix

Dear People of Charlevoix:

Well, friends, 'tis time to say "Thanks" for all your help over the years, as well as "Thanks for the memories." During my 46 years in banking, you have been a great support. You've blessed me with some success, most notable during my recent endeavor to bring you a bank that is truly yours. An apology is due to those who have been puzzled by my quiet withdrawal from an active role. I hope you all accept me for what I am.

It's been a great ride. Like you, there's been a lot of fun; a lot of hard work; a lot of tears; a bit of hurt; and of course, many rewards. Much of it is through the friendships and acquaintances with which

I've been blessed.

I do not want to puzzle any of you by my desire to fade away. Just say that it is just my way. I wish you the best. Like the first track in the Sarah Brightman CD, "Time to say goodbye."

Your friend with gratitude,
Lou Hollow
Charlevoix State Bank

Sinking of Carl D. Bradley should be remembered

Editor:

I am writing on behalf of Joyce Van Den Hout, who lives in the Birchwood Nursing Center in Traverse City.

On Nov. 18, 1958, the Bradley sank in the cold waters of Lake Michigan. On the eve of the 40th anniversary of the tragic loss of the ship and its men, Ms. Van Den Hout would like the event remembered in some way. Ms. Van Den Hout continues to be haunted by the event and her subsequent role in the identification of her brother-in-law's body, Carl Bartell.

Ms. Van Den Hout never properly thanked the people of Charlevoix for their love, understanding and protection during the turmoil that follows such an event. She particularly appreciated the protection and understanding the sheriff and the sheriff's deputies provided the families and friends of the men from the lost ship.

Ms. Van Den Hout understands many of these good people are no longer with us, but perhaps their families would like to know what special people they were. She would like to send a special thank you to the sheriff and deputies that were with the department in 1958.

Regards,
Patricia Bowers
Olath, Kansas

Editor's note: We are planning to do a story on the Bradley's 40th anniversary in next week's issue, after the occasion is commemorated in Port Huron. Josh Barnes will be attending the ceremony and promised to bring us a full report.

Sheriff seeks information about veterans

Editor:
I would like to prepare a booklet on veterans of Charlevoix County with as much information as possible on their experiences and contributions to the preservation of our country during a war or conflict. This would include every war from the Civil War to the present.

This project could have the title or emphasis of what one small county in the United States has contributed to the war efforts over the years.

If I receive the cooperation I need and this project is successful, I will have it published at my expense and sell copies with proceeds going to local Charlevoix County VFW and American Legion posts.

If any citizen feels comfortable in

Move to township increased post office business

By Jamie MacMillan

Six months into life at their new facility, the Charlevoix branch of the United States Post Office has seen both increased productivity and revenues.

It has also seen a new man in charge since the facility opened last April 22.

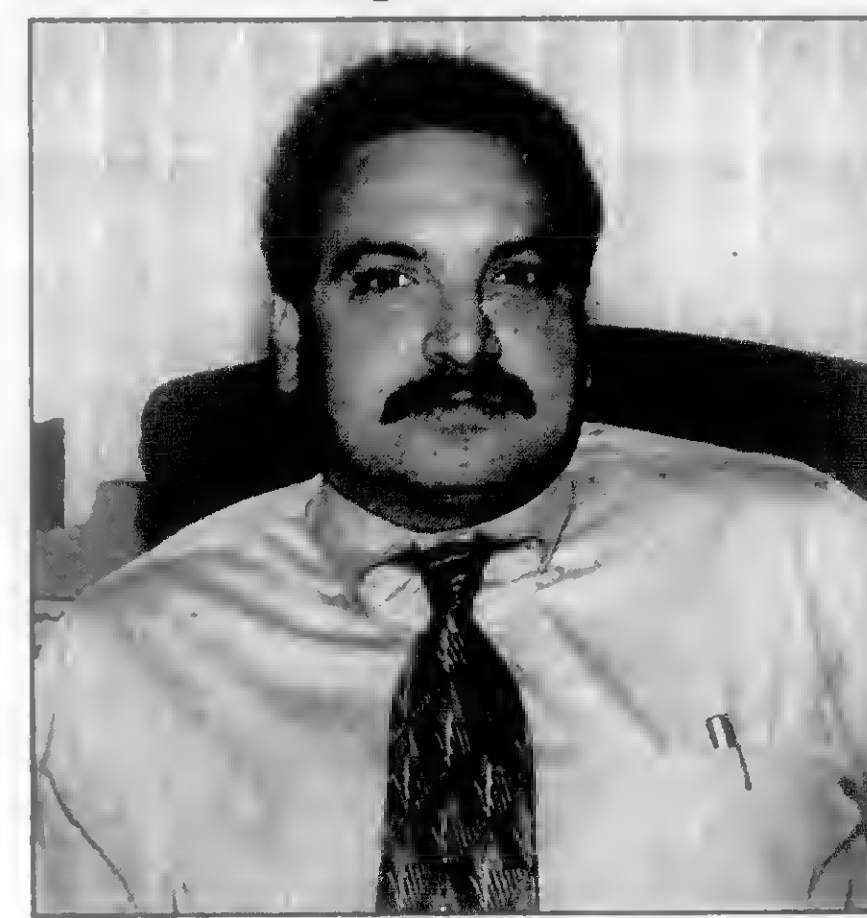

Gaylord resident Blaise Rivers has been overseeing operations at the M-66 post office since late July when long-time postmaster Jay Wheatley opted for retirement.

Rivers began his career with the post office 13 years ago as a mail processing clerk at the Gaylord branch. He's worked as a supervisor at the Grayling branch and for the last six years he has been postmaster at the Boyne City branch.

Rivers came to the Charlevoix branch from Boyne City to serve as acting officer in charge while a larger search to replace Wheatley is conducted. Rivers, who is interested in the full time post, said he doesn't expect anyone to be hired until late January or early February.

A large number of applicants is expected, partly because of the area's natural attraction, but also because of the new facility, an attraction in its own right.

The retail-style post office is only the fifth of its kind in the state of Michigan and 48th in the entire country.

"Productivity is up as well as the general attitude, and it's because now we have the room to move around," Rivers said of the 12,000 square foot facility which is nearly six times as large as the vacated post office on Mason St. "Every-chronological order as it appears on the route so that mail carriers can begin their routes earlier than normal. As it is now, the carriers do the chronological sorting.

Rivers said it should help speed up delivery time, but by how much is too difficult to gauge until the thing seems to be running well."

Rivers said mail clerks are using four percent less time to process incoming mail than they were in the older facility.

Internal efficiency is expected to improve more as the office begins to implement automated mail systems in the next three to six months.

The system will eventually presort mail in system is in place. He did say the system will prevent the post office from having to add any new routes.

The post office might be able to afford adding a new route since revenues have increased by a monthly average of $1,520 since the new facility opened, Rivers said.

The increased revenue stream is twofold.

The new post office increased the number of available post office boxes from 397 to over 1,000. All of the larger boxes, rented for $52 for a sixth month period, have been reserved. The smaller and medium sized boxes, which can be rented for $20 and $29 respectively, are 80 percent taken.

The shopping area, which offers a potpourri of stamps, envelopes and commemorative items, has doubled the amount of inventory the post office can offer.

In the past, all the facility had to offer could be stored in a medium-sized safe. Now, four full-sized lockers are required to store all the post office retail offerings.

"The Charlevoix branch never really offered any commemorative items to the public before purely because of the lack of space," Rivers said.

To placate city officials' worries when the post office left the downtown district of Charlevoix, a vending machine was installed in city hall offering stamps, envelopes and other supplies.

According to Rivers, the vending machine's days are numbered.

Surprisingly, the machine has had no sales since July and Rivers is looking to move the machine to a better location or the local post office will have to give the machine back to its headquarters.

"I would like to keep it in the downtown area," he said. "There just isn't that much foot traffic in city hall to keep it there."

Hospice is a good, alternate choice for care at end of life

There is a well-known saying that there are two unavoidable events in life - taxes and death. Although all humans face death and most of us fear it, we do have options for the end-of-life care we choose for ourselves and our loved ones when faced with a terminal illness.

Because of the fear associated with dying, many of us try to delay or avoid death. In the past, this has resulted in families avoiding the emotional pain by placing their loved ones in an institution, or in families permitting doctors to attempt extreme and expensive life-saving measures, thereby unintentionally prolonging the possibility of physical pain of an illness. Recently, as more terminally ill patients have fought to control their own fates, physician-assisted suicide has become a highly visible and controversial option as well.

But there is another option that not only allows the patient to guide his or her final days, but also treats the family as a cohesive unit by offering spiritual and emotional comfort along with the physical medical treatment.

That option is hospice.

The hospice philosophy of care focuses on the family instead of just the patient. It provides palliative medical care for the patient, as well as psychological, social and spiritual support for both the patient and his or her family. In addition, hospice allows patients to receive this care in the comfort and dignity of their own homes or in home-like settings. This alleviates the patients' fear of spending their final days in the cold, sterile environment of an institution.

The hospice concept of care treats the person, not the disease, and emphasizes the quality of life, not the duration. The hospice team of volunteers and professionals - including physicians, nurses, counselors, social workers, home care aides, and spiritual caregivers - works to develop individualized plans of care designed to ease the patients' physical and emotional pain.

Hospice also eases the financial burden of health care when compared with institutionalization. Approximately 90% of hospice services are delivered in the home, where a family member or friend serves as the primary caregiver. This care has proven to be less expensive than hospital and nursing home services. In 1997, the estimated Medicare charges per day in a hospital and skilled nursing facility were at $2,121 and $454, respectively. The average Medicare charge for a day on hospice during this time was approximately $108.

Although the physical, emotional, and financial benefits of hospice are proven, a more concentrated effort must be made to ensure that hospice care is available for all terminally ill Americans. To achieve this end, the health care delivery system must encourage physicians and the public to consider the hospice option. Physicians are taught to diagnose, treat, and heal illnesses, but they must also be reminded that it is not always possible to heal their patients. They must recognize that once traditional medical care proves to be no longer effective, palliative care is available and, if this type of care is chosen, it should not indicate a physicians' failure to heal. Medical schools must move beyond teaching doctors how to heal and must improve physicians' knowledge of quality care for dying patients when healing is not possible.

Obituaries

Margaret "Jeanne" Carey

Margaret "Jeanne" Carey, 78, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 11, 1998, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

Funeral service was Saturday, Nov. 14 at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix, and the Rev. Margaret A. Nattermann officiated. Burial took place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Jeanne was born Dec. 24, 1919, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Peter and Julia (Corlett) Campbell. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1938. Her senior year of high school was delayed because she was stricken with polio. After high school, she went on to the University of Michigan to receive a bachelor's degree in literature, graduating in 1942. She was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

On Oct. 27, 1943, she married Charles Carey in Charlevoix, and he preceded her in death on Oct. 11, 1996.

Following World War II, she and her husband owned Carey's Boot Shop in Cheboygan. In 1963, they moved to Charlevoix to operate Campbell's Boot Shop following her father's death. At that time, they changed the name of the business to Carey's Boot Shop. In the 1950s through the 1970s they also operated a shoe mart in Charlevoix.

Jeanne participated in the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and the Charlevoix Book Club. She enjoyed reading, boating and golfing, and attended Christ Episcopal Church.

Survivors include two sons, Randy Carey and his wife, Nancy, of Charlevoix, and Pete Carey and his wife, Betsy, of Neenah, Wis.; five grandchildren, Matt of Neenah, Wis., Jill Henshaw and her husband, Jeff, also of Neenah, Kate of Montana, Lauren of Austin, Texas, and Sean and his wife, Kristin, of Antioch, Calif. Three great-grandsons, Kamren Bryce Carey of Antioch, Calif., Jack Henshaw of Neenah, Wis., and Rollin Cade Severson of Austin, Texas, and by one sister, Julia Anne Bandfield and her husband, A.C. Carly Bandfield of Bonwell, Calif. Jeanne was preceded in death by her son, Topper, and brother, Paul Daniel.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Charlevoix Public Library. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Eleanor B. Rudolph

Eleanor B. Rudolph, 94, of Macomb, Ill., and a summer resident of Sequanota Club on Lake Charlevoix since 1935, died Nov. 12, 1998.

Surviving her are two sons, William and Robert, five grandchildren, Jean, Julie, David, Lynne and Joanne, and five great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Macomb, Ill.

Floyd Harwood

Floyd Harwood, 73, died Nov. 1, 1998 at his winter home in Ellenton, Fla.

He was born May 16, 1925 in Northville, Mich., the son of Lester and Margaret Harwood. Floyd moved to northern Michigan at the age of five and attended school at Atwood and Norwood.

He attended Charlevoix High School and graduated in 1943. After graduation, he served in the Navy in the eastern theater during World War II.

After the war, Floyd returned to his studies at Michigan State University and received a degree in engineering. He married Leta Mary Bennett of Wisconsin on June 14, 1946.

Floyd spent most of his working years in Indiana and Illinois, working on government contracts until his retirement in 1990.

Surviving are his wife, Leta, a daughter, Melody Doig of Pontiac, a grandson, Christopher Doig, a sister, Esther Livingston of Zephyr Hills, Fla., and two brothers, Stanley of Birch Run, Mich. and Clare of Lowell, Mich.

There were no services, as per his request.

Family singers to perform at local church

The Bartsch Family Singers will be performing at 6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 29 at the East Upright Church of God. All are welcome to attend.

The Michigan-based family of mom, dad, 22-year-old daughter, and 17-year-old son, conducts a variety of programs including "something for everybody."

The Bartsch Family has performed at the U.S. Pentagon, and on TV. They are approved Salvation Army Evangelists for the Central and Southern territories, and give revival meetings, Vacation Bible Schools, drama-based youth revivals spotlighting Biblical characters, Christian alternative music concerts from the Bartsch brother/sister duo band "C.A.L.M." (Called of a Loving Master), "Family Living" workshops and puppet programs.

In addition to their specialty programs, the Bartsch Family Singers continue to travel across the country performing at various churches, Salvation Army organizations, schools, banquets, Bible camps, senior adult programs, auditoriums, music festivals, fairs, street outreach programs, RV parks, resorts, amusement parks and community events. Their concert presentation consists of songs heard on the radio, original compositions by daughter Julie, traditional, contemporary, praise and worship, southern gospel, and (occasionally) Christian Alternative forms of music accompanied by the piano, harmonica, drums, bass, electric and acoustic guitars.

The Bartsch Family demonstrates that even though a foreclosure occurred on their auto repair business, it was the stepping stone God used to push them into their ministry. Challenging people to "Step out of their materialistic comfort zones into the Lord's special calling for their lives," the Bartschs testify that through adversity, God's strength enables us all to become "better" not "bitter." Results of their ministry are summed up by one program participant: "It has opened my heart up to the Lord again."

The Bartsch Family Singers are well received wherever they go.

Church club for singles over 40 to meet

Service above self

At the 10th Annual Pine River Place Thanksgiving Dinner, hosted by Rotary Club of Charlevoix, Johanna "Jo" Belfy was presented with the Service Above Self award. Every year, Pine River Place residents nominate a resident for the honor. Belfy was chosen as the person who exemplifies service above self. She drives other residents to do their shopping, helps them take their medications or put in eye drops, drives residents to the senior center for meals, and brings home meals from the senior center to those who aren't able to attend the dinners.

Two stabbing incidents occur in Charlevoix County

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department reported two stabbing incidents that happened earlier this week.

The first incident occurred on Beaver Island, when a 28-year-old Boyne City man was stabbed in the arm by a 68-year-old acquaintance Friday afternoon.

The victim said that the two were arguing about a recent death when the older man came toward him and began to wrestle. At some point, the suspect got a knife out of his pocket and stabbed the victim in the back of his arm. The victim did not realize he was stabbed for several minutes after leaving the fight.

The victim sought treatment initially at the Beaver Island Rural Health Center, and was later seen at Charlevoix Area Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Both the suspect and victim had been drinking, and alcohol is believed to be a factor in the incident, which remains under investigation by the sheriff's office.

The second stabbing incident occurred in the early hours of Tuesday morning.

Sheriff George Lasater said that a 38-year-old male from Charlevoix County was arrested and charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder after two male subjects showed up at Charlevoix Area Hospital emergency room with stab wounds.

The stabbing occurred at about 3:38 a.m. Tuesday at the residence of the alleged perpetrator on Castle View Drive in Marion Township. The altercation escalated from attempted assault with a rake, shovel and then scissors.

Bond has not been set yet. Victims were both Charlevoix County residents, and were treated and released from Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The sheriff's department was assisted by Michigan State Police Post no. 78.

Lasater commends Deputy Sheriff Robert Scholey for his quick response which resulted in a timely arrest of the perpetrator.

Help in preparing homes for winter offered

Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency is hosting three home winterization workshops at the following times and locations:

— From 7-8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 30 at the First Presbyterian Church basement in Petoskey.

— From 7-8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 1 at the Boyne City Senior Center, 319 N. Lake St. in Boyne City.

— From 7-8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 3 at the Bellaire Senior Citizen Center, 308 Cayuga in Bellaire.

Gary Yankee from the agency's weatherization department will speak about home weatherization, carbon monoxide safety issues and lowering your winter fuel costs. These workshops are offered without charge and everyone is welcome. A limited amount of weatherization materials, including weather-strip, caulk, sheet plastic for windows, duct tape and more will be distributed free of charge to those attending the workshop. A drawing for a free carbon monoxide detector will take place at each workshop. Refreshments and child care will be provided. Plan on attending the workshop in your area. For more information call the agency in Petoskey at 347-9070.

Get hunting forms at sheriff's office

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office can supply property owners with a courtesy form the property owner may use and fill out when allowing someone to hunt on their private property.

The forms may be obtained at the sheriff's office in Charlevoix, or telephone the office at 547-4461 to have them mailed.

Printed on the back of the form is the Michigan Recreational Trespass Act.

Mental Health board joins other groups for better service

Northern Michigan Community Mental Health, with offices in Petoskey, Cheboygan, Charlevoix and Gaylord, has joined six other regional agencies to assure access to mental health services to residents in 21 northern Michigan counties.

The affiliation is in response to a federal waiver granted by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Health Care Financing Administration in June. The waiver, the first of its kind in the nation, allows the Michigan Department of Community Health to contract with community mental health centers to provide medically necessary and appropriate mental health, substance abuse and long-term developmental disability services and supports under a pre-paid, shared-risk arrangement.

"Managed care simply is an effort to make services available to clients based on their needs," said Alexis Kaczynski, Director of Northern Michigan Community Mental Health. "The emphasis is on serving as many people as possible with just the right amount of services. As a single agency serving Emmet, Cheboygan, Charlevoix and Otsego counties, it would have been difficult to develop the expertise and services needed to perform in such a managed care environment. By joining the alliance we can cost effectively retain as many resources for direct services as possible. We can also pool our skills and talents to improve services across the region."

The six other agencies participating in the regional affiliation include Antrim-Kalkaska Community Mental Health Services, AuSable Valley Community Mental Health, Manistee-Benzie Community Mental Health Services, Great Lakes Community Mental Health, North Central Community Mental Health and Northeast Michigan Community Mental Health.

Under the managed care agreement, the member agencies will adhere to strict performance objectives with regard to:

- Ensuring access to necessary services and supports
- Eliminating inappropriate utilization
- Encouraging consumer and family involvement in the planning and implementation of services
- Consolidating administrative functions
- Measuring and improving quality, based upon outcome measures and consumer satisfaction

According to Kaczynski, under the new managed care system, services will be more consumer-defined.

Under the managed care agreement, the member agencies will adhere to strict performance objectives with regard to:

- Ensuring access to necessary services and supports

High winds leave many northern homes without power

On the 23rd anniversary of the sinking of the Edmund Fitzgerald, Nov. 10, the weather did a perfect imitation of the stormy conditions that claimed the lives of 29 men aboard the doomed freighter.

Winds gusting up to 80 miles an hour tore limbs from trees, knocked down power lines and blew lawn furniture from one neighbor's house to the next.

In all, more than 10,000 homes in northern Michigan were without power at some point from Tuesday, Nov. 10 to Friday, Nov. 13.

Great Lakes Energy, (formerly known as Top O' Michigan) had all available crews working to restore power.

Company officials for Great Lakes energy said the crews were able to keep up with the damage until 3 p.m. Tuesday. At that point, crews couldn't put up the lines as fast as the storm was knocking them down.

In the city of Charlevoix, more than a dozen tree limbs crashed down in the wind, taking power and cable lines with them.

Scott Blanchard of the city electrical department said about 100 homes were without power at some point during the storm.

"We got the lines fixed and no one was without power for more than two-and-one-half to three hours," Blanchard said.

In the townships and outlying arreas, people went without power for two to three days.

The city street department managed to stay on top of the situation, responding to calls for tree removal.

"It kept us

Above: Waves were still crashing on the south pier marking the channel entrance on Wednesday, when the winds were supposed to be dying down.

Left: This tree limb came down on Michigan Avenue around 8 p.m. Tuesday, taking with it a TV cable. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury) really busy for about six hours," said Butch Hart, lead man for the street department.

Hart said the majority of downed trees were on the city golf course. A big pine tree came down on Park Avenue and a willow was ripped out by its roots on the south side of town.

Most of the damage came from tree limbs ripping away from the trunk and taking power or cable lines down with them.

BUSINESS

Refinishing business is passed along to coworkers

By Jamie MacMillan

Rather than celebrating their company's 10-year anniversary, Don and Lorraine Kelly are celebrating the sale of their successful furniture refinishing business instead.

The Kellys have sold their business to Charlevoix residents Sam and Colleen Wilcenski.

Since 1988, the Kellys have owned and operated Kelly's Refinishing Co. from their shop at 100 Overlook Dr., adjacent to Stover Road.

Their venture began with meager surroundings in a tiny workroom attached to their garage.

Soon after, their passion for antiques led them to a decision to combine furniture refinishing with furniture sales. A decade later, the business grew to include not only a much larger area for restoration, but also a pole barn on Old U.S. 31 South to store antique furniture.

"It's grown into quite a big deal," Don Kelly said. "It's grown to the point where we decided to sell part of it. We just couldn't keep up with both."

The Kellys are looking forward to the change. Don, soon to be retired from the Big Rock Point Nuclear

Power Plant after 32 years, and Lorraine hope to have more time to search for those special items their customers request. They'll continue to run their antique business on Old U.S. 31 South, and will also still offer wicker repair at the Overlook Drive location.

After helping the Wilcenskis get their feet wet with their new project, the Kellys have an antique excursion through Arkansas, Missouri and Alabama planned in January. The trip will take them a long way from where it all began.

"It started as a little business hobby," Kelly recalled. "We struggled through that first winter, but soon people saw what we could do."

The Kellys have prided themselves on a two to three week turnaround for their customers to receive a final product. Most companies, Kelly said, take eight to 10 weeks. Kelly said it took a lot of mid-night hours with books on tape keeping him company in order to maintain the quick turnaround. Now, it's up to the Wilcenskis to keep the tradition going.

"We feel really confident that they're perfect for the job," Lorraine Kelly said.

Sam Wilcenski has worked for the Kellys off and on throughout the years. He said he stumbled into this opportunity when Kelly approached him this past summer about selling the business.

"We had an opportunity, and I said go for it," Colleen Wilcenski said. "We are both looking for something to do after Big Rock."

The couple works at the local nuclear plant. Sam is a scheduler at the plant and Colleen works in the human resource department. Since the plant has shut down and is in the decommissioning stages, this opportunity allows the Wilcenskis to stay in the area. Colleen plans to make her separation from her position at Big Rock in January to run their business. Sam, meanwhile, will continue to split his time between Kelly Refinishing and the plant.

"I've always had an interest in woodworking," Sam said. "It's neat to see something go from a declined state to a beautiful finished product."

The couple will eventually be moving the business to Ironton. They broke ground on a pole barn at their Ironton home at 10696 Ferry Road last week and hope to move the business by Dec. 1.

Girls hardwood history began with undefeated teams

By Jamie MacMillan

Twenty-five years ago, high school girls' basketball in the State of Michigan was undergoing a major facelift.

Following the new Title IX legislation that made girls' basketball a school-sanctioned sport, state athletic officials switched the sport from the winter season to the fall in order to avoid competition with boys' basketball for both fan support and gym time.

Not only was the 1973 team the first to play in the fall, it was also the first time the season was capped off with a state tournament.

Amid all those changes remained one local constant.

The Charlevoix Rayders was the team to heat in the northern Michigan area.

The Charlevoix program began its first season in the winter of 1970-71 as a club sport and coach Toni Felter's squad faced only an eight game schedule.

The sport soon earned varsity status and played longer schedules, but Felter's squads, known begrudgingly as the "Rayderettes," swept through most of their competition, save for an occasional defeat at the hands of Petoskey or St. Ignace.

Beginning in 1973, the Lady Rayders began carving their own niche in the school's history books.

Featuring a pair of powerful forwards, a blue collar center and a point guard with long-range shooting capabilities, the team swept through the '73 slate without a defeat, finishing 16-0.

It was the first of back-to-back undefeated regular seasons for Felter's clubs. Using pretty much the same cast of players, the 1974 squad also finished with a 16-0 record heading into tournament play.

Team members from the undefeated 1973 girls' basketball team were (front, from left) Elizabeth Egler, Colleen Russell, Barbara Martin, Tori Alger, and Tammy Penney. (Back, from left) Denise Boss, Lee Steelman, Cheryl Pence, Teri Morris and Tiller Otis.

"They were gym rats, which was nice," Felter, who now coaches the Charlevoix freshmen girls' team, recalled. "They were always bugging me to open the gym up on weekends. They had talent, but they were not afraid to put in a lot of hard work."

The team was loaded with offensive firepower, led by juniors Cheryl Pence and Lee Steelman, a pair of 5-foot, 9-inch forwards. Both averaged double figures in the scoring column and at least one of them led the Rayders in scoring in 14 of the team's 16 games.

Senior point guard Tori Alger provided scoring punch from the outside when teams sagged on the front line. Alger scored in double digits about half the time and would have scored more points had the three-point shot been in the rule book.

The bespectacled Tiller Otis, whose season highlights included 23 and 12 point efforts against Boyne City and Gaylord, manned the center position.

Heidi Dove and Tammy Penney rotated into Felter's lineup at the off-guard position with Colleen Russell, Elizabeth Egler, Denise Boss, Teri Morris and Barbara Martin rounding out the roster as frequent substitutes.

"We were very dedicated and all of us knew the game real well," Tori (Alger) Fisher said. "Even now, I think I could pass to Cheryl or Lee and not have to look at where they were. We had such a technical knowledge of the game, we knew what was happening and where we should be on the court."

Toni Felter, current freshmen team coach, guided the Rayders to victory in 1973.

Fisher said their coach had more to do with their success than their talents.

"She was an inspiration to a lot of us," she said. "She was a role model and supported us emotionally."

After nosing by Onaway 29-28 in the opener, the 1973 team marched through their schedule, winning their games by an average of 24

How To Kill A BUSINESS ... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Undefeated run ends in district tournament

points a contest. Six times the team won by more than 35 points, including a 53-point decision over Boyne City, 75-22.

"They loved to play run-and-gun basketball," Felter said. "When we had our fast break working, we were great."

The team could clamp down on defense and they never allowed an opponent to exceed 40 points.

Prior to the unbeaten run, the Rayders had already established a reputation as the team to beat. Consequently, every time out on the floor, they faced teams who considered Charlevoix their biggest rival.

"Every game was emotional because we knew people were after us," Lee (Steelman) Mosoryak said. "They would do anything they could to beat us."

Twice during the season their undefeated run was challenged.

The Gaylord Blue Devils leapt out to a 10-0 lead, but Charlevoix's press turned it up a notch and scored 20 unanswered points en route to a comfortable 65-34 win.

The Petoskey club, however, gave the Rayders their stiffest test. Looking for revenge from a 44-38 loss earlier in the season, Petoskey had the Rayders on the ropes, leading 33-24 entering the final quarter.

Pence scored 10 of her team-high 18 points in the fourth quarter, including a tip-in off of a free throw miss in the closing seconds to knot the game at 40-40 and send it into an extra session.

The Rayders clawed to a five-point lead before holding off Petoskey 45-44 for the overtime win.

Heading into the first-ever state tournament, the team had high hopes for winning it all. After a first-round drubbing of East Jordan, 59-40, the team squared off against a physical Kalkaska club in the district finals.

Despite leading after each of the first three quarters, the club's offense was squeezed by the Blazers' zone defense and could only muster six points in the fourth quarter, the Rayders' lowest quarter score all season.

In the end, their dreams were shattered by a 36-33 loss.

"Our defense was excellent, but it was a rough and tumble game,"

Fisher recalled. "We really got beat up that night."

With Pence and Steelman as focal points, the team again ran through their schedule without a loss in 1974. Unlike the previous year, though, they captured the elusive district title before being bumped from the tournament by Gladwin in the regional finals.

Gladwin went on to win the state title, and, ironically, Pence currently works as a school teacher in the Gladwin school district.

"I saw their trophy when I visited her," Mosoryak said. "My first thought was, 'That should be in our school.'"

EVENTS IN BRIEF

High School and middle school offer parent-teacher conferences

Parent-Teacher Conferences will be at the high school from 1 to 3 p.m. and 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 23.

The Charlevoix Middle School will be offering parent/teacher conferences from 1:15 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and again from 6:15 p.m. to 9:15 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 19 in the middle school gym.

Students will be dismissed from the middle school that day at 1 p.m. and lunch will be served.

Both schools are using an "Arena Parent-Teacher Conference" format. Parents do not need to call the schools for individual conference times.

For high school students, parents will arrive at the high school, pick up their students' report cards in the trophy case hallway and then enter the gym to see the teacher of their choice. The conferences will only last approximately five to seven minutes each. For more information, call the high school office at 547-3222.

At the middle school, teachers will be at their stations in the gym and will see parents on a first come, first serve basis.

Student report cards will be mailed home a few days prior to Nov. 19.

If parents would like to find out what their children are eating during lunch hour, kitchen personnel will be available to provide the information. Parents may make a deposit in their students' lunch account at that time.

Pool offers condensed lifeguard training

The Charlevoix Community Pool will offer a condensed, two weekend lifeguard training course for those interested in becoming lifeguards. Swimmers enrolling in this course must be 15 years old by Dec. 12. The course is Red Cross certified and the certification is good for three years. The class will be held the weekends of Dec. 12 and Dec. 19. Sessions will be from 6-10 p.m. Fridays, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturdays and from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. Sundays. The fee for the course is $145, which includes materials. Call the pool and ask about available scholarships.

On Thanksgiving weekend, the pool will have normal swim hours with the exception that swim school classes will not be held on Saturday, Nov. 28. The pool will be open Thanksgiving Day from 1-4 p.m. for open swim.

For more information about programs, classes or open swim times, call the pool at 547-0982.

Ellsworth hosts square dance in town hall

There will be a Square Dance from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday, Nov. 20 at the Ellsworth town hall.

Music will be provided by the Fogcutters. No experience is necessary, and kids are welcome. The cost for the square dance is $5 per family or $2 per person.

Petoskey hosting Thanksgiving parade

Join the fun of the Petoskey Thanksgiving Parade at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 21 in downtown Petoskey. There will be bands, floats and Santa will be a big part of the festivities. You are also invited to bring canned goods, non-perishables and new toys which Santa's helpers on the Bay Harbor float will collect. Bay Harbor will match gifts and distribute everything to the Manna Project, Salvation Army and to Toys for Tots.

Planning commission cancels monthly meeting

The City Planning Commission will not meet Monday, Nov. 23 as scheduled due to the fact that it is Thanksgiving week and there is a lack of agenda items. The next scheduled meeting will be at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 28.

A complete agenda will be posted prior to the meeting.

Babysitter class offered by Red Cross

The American Red Cross Northern Lower Michigan Chapter will be offering the new, nationally developed Babysitter's Training Course in Petoskey from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12, at the Red Cross office located at 2350 Mitchell Park, Petoskey.

The fee for the course is $30. The class is fun, informative, and very important to youths between the ages of 11-15 who wish to babysit young children. Youth participating in the class will need to bring a sack lunch.

An optional Babysitter's Kit is available for $13.45 plus tax. The kit contains a first aid kit, flashlight, and family information pad all in a black nylon case with American Red Cross logo. Kits will be available at the class.

Call 348-7666 or (800) 691-6059 for information or to register.

Mitten Tree at Kmart needs donations

The Northern Michigan Medical Society Alliance, in cooperation with Kmart, will be displaying a Mitten Tree at the entrance of the Charlevoix Kmart store from Nov. 18 to Dec. 16.

Warm your heart by warming someone else's hands this holiday season. Place new or gently used mittens or gloves, hats and scarves on and around this tree. All donations will be forwarded to the Family Independence Agency in Charlevoix for distribution.

Holly Daze is geared up for holiday shoppers

Charlevoix Area Hospital's annual fund raising event, Holly Daze, will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 27, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 28 at the hospital.

The event is the hospital's largest fund-raiser of the year. All proceeds will benefit the hospital. Area businesses, organizations, and individuals sponsor and decorate Christmas trees, which are then auctioned off during a live auction Friday evening, with the purchasers taking home the entire tree, ornaments, lights and tree skirt on Saturday afternoon.

The trees will be auctioned off between 6-7:30 p.m. Friday night at a wine and cheese party at the hospital sponsored by NBD, Southdown Corporation (formerly Medusa), DMG Construction, East Jordan Ironworks and Consumers Energy Big Rock Point Restoration Project. One tree, sponsored and decorated by the Busy Bridge Antique and Gift Shop in East Jordan, will be raffled off Saturday at 3 p.m. The tree will be decorated entirely with Beanie Baby toys.

Items for sale during Holly Daze include poinsettias, gift cards, Afghans, Christmas ornaments and, new this year, will be a craft room filled with handcrafted items for sale. Other items donated by area businesses will be sold through silent auction during the event, including an Amish rocking chair, wreaths, toys, candles, gift certificates and a Motorola hand-held telephone.

Tree shopping

Bidders look at a few of the many Christmas trees available at last year's Charlevoix Area Hospital's Holly Daze fund-raising event. Trees will be decorated and then auctioned off this year on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 27-28, at the hospital. (Photo courtesy of Charlevoix Area Hospital)

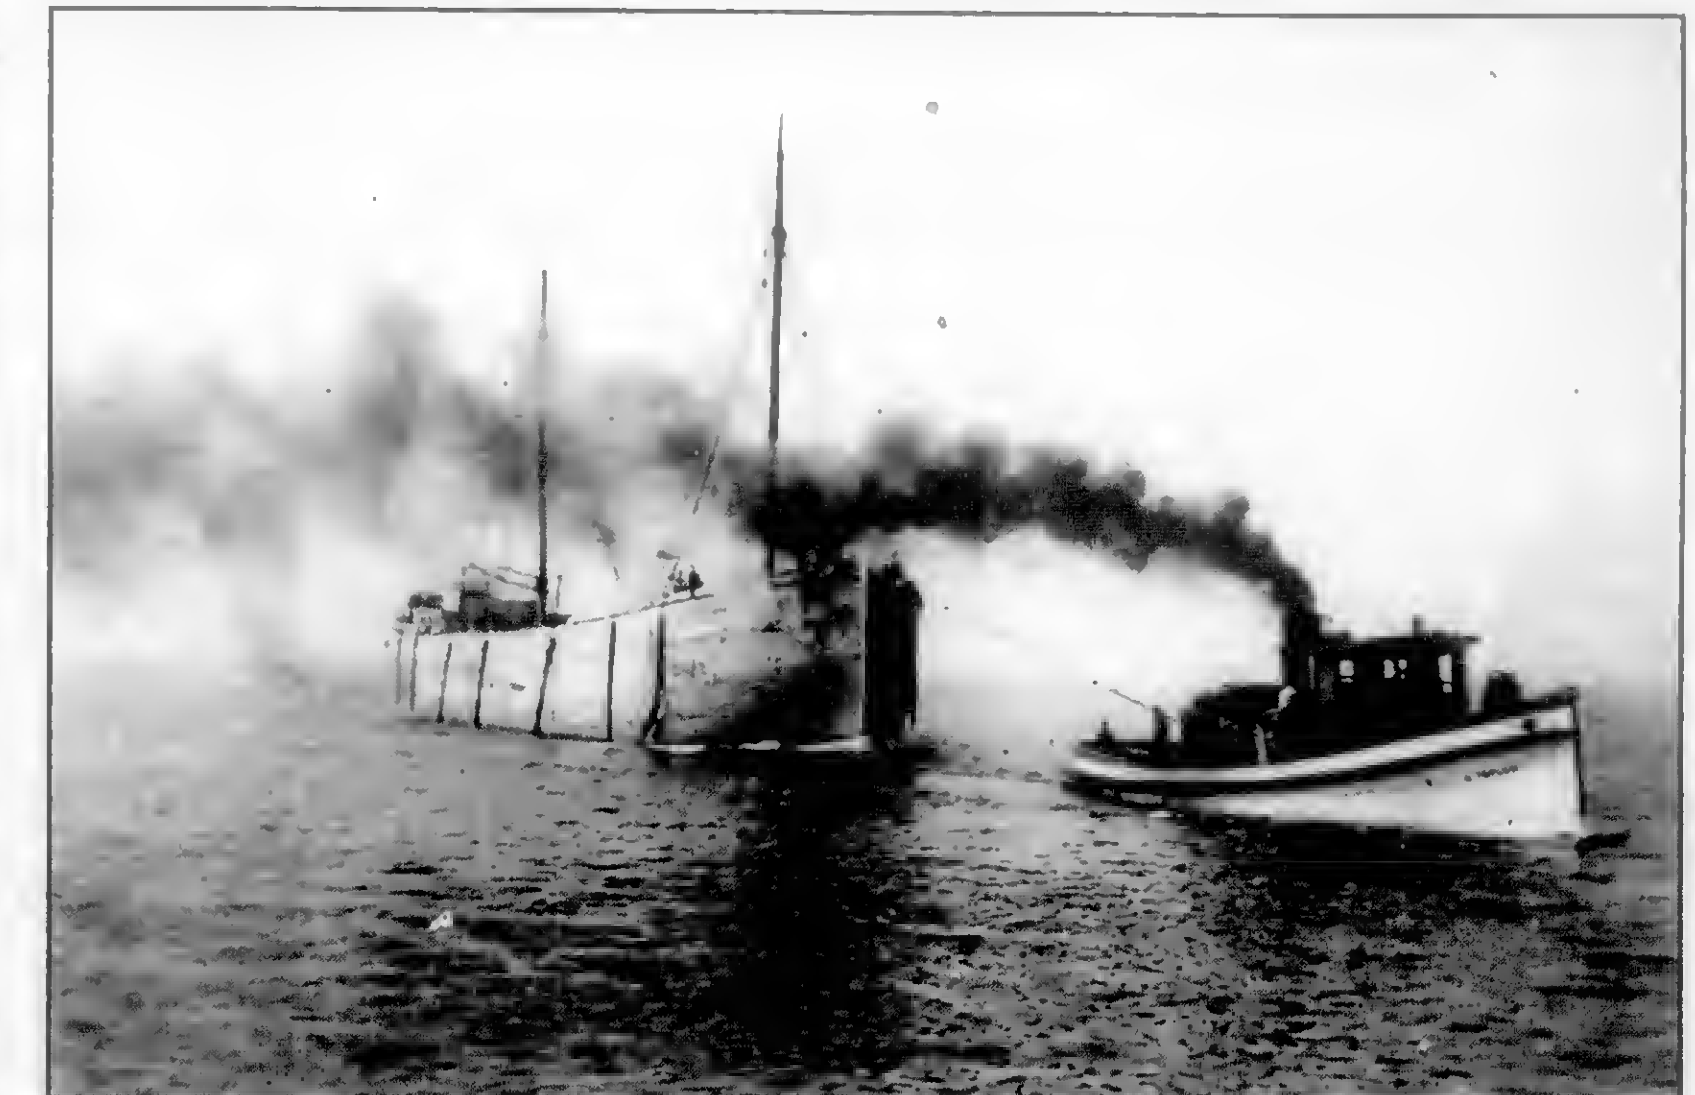

Trees to be auctioned on Friday night are all artificial and are decorated by Sue and Lori Bolt, Mason Interior, Cindi Franco's Cool Stuff, Bartlett's Furniture, Grey Gables, Irish Boat Shop, North Central Michigan College, The Plaid Petunia, Garden Etc., Joyce Holm and Family Affair Yarns and Craft Supplies, Designs on You, Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Chris Wilhelm, and Charlevoix State Bank employees.

Tree sponsors for the event include Dr. James Jeakle and Dr. William Mosher; Pam and Jim Woodward; Rob Polley, DDS; The Lodge; Wilnot Electric; DCL, Inc.; Charlevoix State Bank; Joseph, Corcoran and Telgenhof; John Merrill, DDS; Market Technology; Glenn Paramo, DDS; Grey Gables; Jay Balasz, DDS; Citizens Bank; Lexalite; Barron & Golski; and Dave Strawbridge, DDS.

"We're very excited this year to have 17 trees for our event," said Sulane Hamilton, hospital board member and Holly Daze committee member. "We're trying something new this year with the Friday evening party where the trees will be auctioned off. This should really be a fun event and a wonderful opportunity for businesses to pick up a fully decorated tree that can be put in place on Monday, Nov. 30 to kick off their holiday season."

The Hospital Guild volunteers host a bake sale during the Holly Daze event.

An act of heroism

Mom and son rescue woman from burning car

By Laurie Lounsbury

Peter Gorkiewicz has always been an adventuresome, bold type of kid, not afraid to take chances or try something new.

Those attributes, along with help from Peter's mom, saved the life of Pamela Sue Beatty on the night of Friday, Oct. 9.

Peter was sitting in his home on Carson Avenue when he heard a loud noise. He rushed outside to see a car had crashed on Mt. MeSauba Road near his home. Peter ran barefoot to the scene of the accident, followed close behind by his mother, Jeanne Gorkiewicz. When he got to the accident, he couldn't see the driver inside because the air bags had deployed.

What he could see was smoke and flames coming out of the car engine.

"It was pretty scary," Peter said of the situation. After moving the air bags aside, he could see that Beatty was half-conscious, slumped over on the passenger seat.

"I didn't really want to move her because she might have had neck injuries," Peter said. But the flames coming from the engine of the 1998 Dodge Stratus overrode concerns about moving her. With his mother's help, the two pulled Beatty headfirst from the car and laid her on the grass nearby.

"By the time we got her out, the flames were 20 feet high," Peter said. Within minutes, the entire car was consumed by fire.

After the crisis had passed, Peter wasn't boastful about his brave actions.

"It was more of a reflex action," he said. "I felt pretty good about it, and I would hope that most people would have the sense to help someone out in a situation like that."

Sheriff George Lasater, along with many others in the community, believed that Peter's actions were, indeed, heroic. In light of that, he presented Peter and his mother with The Life Saving Award to honor their bravery. Lasater made the award presentation at an eighth grade assembly at the middle school Monday. The sheriff wanted to honor 14-year-old Peter in front of his peers.

"The dictionary defines a hero as someone who is strong, courageous and has outstanding qualities," Lasater said. "I think both Peter and Jeanne Gorkiewicz fit that description."

"My favorite definition of a hero is from the old west, that says, 'A true hero is someone who's scared to death, and still gets up in the saddle and rides forward.'"

Dale and Marilyn Boss, parents of Pam Beatty, also attended the ceremony to thank Peter. Jeanne was unable to attend the ceremony because of a prior work commitment.

"My daughter is alive because of the bravery of this guy and his mom," Dale said. "I'm proud to live in this little town where people take care of one another."

Consumers Energy joins in law suit against Energy Department

By Laurie Lounsbury

Consumers Energy has joined three other nuclear utility companies in a law suit against the Department of Energy.

The four utility companies — Consolidated Edison, Illinois Power, Pacific Gas and Electric and Consumers Energy — are asking the U.S. Court of Appeals to order the Department of Energy (DOE) to bear the additional costs facing the companies if they're forced to store spent nuclear fuel at their own sites.

Consumers Energy, which owns Big Rock Point, is facing costs of about $17 million to store used fuel on site if they can't ship the spent fuel to a federal repository. The company is planning to restore the site to a green field in seven years. If the Department of Energy doesn't have a repository ready to accept spent fuel, then the fuel will remain at Big Rock Point in dry cask storage.

"We have some spent fuel that's been in the fuel pool for over five years," said Tim Petrosky, public affairs director for Big Rock Point. "We could ship that fuel as soon as the DOE is ready to accept it."

Like all other nuclear utilities, Consumers Energy has been paying the Energy Department funds to develop a storage facility since 1983. Petrosky reported that Consumers Energy has paid $57.3 million into the fund, and of that, $5.3 million came from Big Rock Point.

Consumers Energy and the other three utilities involved with the law suit aren't the first to take legal action against the Energy Department. Three companies on the east coast — Connecticut Yankee Atomic Power, Maine Yankee Atomic Power Co. and Yankee Atomic Power Co. — went to the U.S. Court of Federal Claims saying that the Energy Department has failed to take a nuclear utility's used nuclear fuel. The Federal Claims Court issued a ruling that said the Energy Department is financially responsible for their failure to provide a storage facility for the used fuel.

The three east coast companies are seeking a total of $268 million in damages.

The east coast cases represent the

Handmade glass on exhibit in East Jordan

An exhibit, "All That Glass," opens Nov. 15 and will run through Dec. 10 at the Jordan River Art Center, 301 Main St., East Jordan. Seventeen regional glass artists have been invited to display their work, which demonstrates the variety of techniques used in handmade contemporary glass. Techniques include blown, cast, fused and stained glass, neon, mirror constructions and borosilicate glass.

Artists participating include Glenda Colan, Carolyn Smith and Carol Gilewicz of Charlevoix, along with artists from all over the Midwest.

The invited artists have a wide range of experience and training, some are formally trained, some self-taught, some are professionals with their own studio or business, and some are hobbyists. But all have a love of glass which is evident in the over 150 works exhibited.

The grand opening will be at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 15. Refreshments will be served.

The art center is open daily from 1-4 p.m. Guided tours for groups from schools, churches, seniors and other organizations are planned that include hands-on experiences in stained glass painting, mosaic glass ornament-making and head-making.

Anyone interested in a special tour should call Patti Hodge at 536-7982.

City tree lighting festivities kick off holiday season Friday

The City of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will host its annual Christmas Tree Lighting Celebration in Bridge Park from 4-6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 27, the day after Thanksgiving.

Breaking from tradition, this year there will be a number of Christmas trees in Bridge Park — one for every grade in the elementary school.

Children are encouraged to make their own weatherproof ornament and hang it on the tree designated for their class from 4-5:15 p.m. Hot chocolate will be provided by the Weathervane Restaurant and donuts provided by Bob and Linda Hoffman.

Live music for caroling will be provided by Gary Stutzman and the Northwest Academy Band. Following the lighting of the trees, the group will follow Santa Claus to East Park for photos in the band shell with Santa, weather permitting. Charlevoix Camera will be taking the free photos.

At 5:30 p.m., members of the Assembly of God Church will perform a live nativity at the band shell. Everyone is encouraged to bring an item to donate to the community food pantry on Nov. 27.

Saturday, Dec. 5, all the merchants will join in the Charlevoix Open House. The city fire truck, carrying Santa, will arrive in East Park at 1 p.m. Children are invited to the Charlevoix Cinema III for a free, full length holiday film feature starting at 2 p.m., sponsored by Citizens Bank.

While children enjoy the movie, parents will be able to participate in the merchants open house and shopping spree scheduled for the day.

in the U.S. Court of Appeals. After 180 days passed, companies lost their chance to be heard in the U.S. Court of Appeals.

"This group decided this was the best approach at this time, although it's still possible to take the case to the Federal Claims Court," Petrosky said.

Consumers Energy is not seeking a specific amount in damages at this time. They are waiting to see if the Court of Appeals will accept jurisdiction of the case.

"It's a long, torturous process, made more torturous because we don't know when the DOE will open a (used fuel storage) site," Petrosky said. "Our best estimate is that they'll open a facility in the year 2012."

The utility industry throughout the United States estimates the government owes damages of something near $50 billion because it hasn't built a safe storage facility for the waste.

Six pedestrian deaths occur in county

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater is warning residents in the county of the dangers of crossing roads on foot.

In 1998, there were seven traffic fatalities, and six of those were pedestrians crossing the road. In the city of Charlevoix, there were two pedestrian deaths. The other four pedestrian fatalities occurred in Boyne City, South Arm Township, Melrose Township and Boyne Valley Township.

The cause of the pedestrian fatalities in the townships occurred when a person was crossing a busy highway at night, walking with traffic on a highway with the person's back toward oncoming traffic and walking on a busy highway at night.

Carl D. Bradley crew remembered at 40th anniversary

By Laurie Lounsbury

The sinking of the Carl D. Bradley, a 615 foot freighter, was considered one of the worst tragedies to occur on the Great Lakes.

The Bradley went down on Nov. 18, 1958, about 12 miles off of Gull Island, which is in the Beaver Island archipelago. With it, 33 crew men lost their lives — only two men survived the bitter cold wind and raging water that night.

On the 40th anniversary of the tragedy, a memorial dinner was hosted at the Thomas Edison Inn in Port Huron. Former mayor of Charlevoix Josh Barnes, who was instrumental in finding the wreck part of that, he's always had an interest in shipwrecks.

The Bradley was of particular interest to him, because everyone knew about where she went down, but no one was able to find the ship.

"I had everybody's latitude and longitude coordinates, and none of them were right," Barnes said.

In the early 1970s, Barnes was sure he discovered the Bradley, using Loran radar as a way to mark the spot. But when he went back in a different boat with a different Loran system, he couldn't find it.

It wasn't until the spring of 1995, when he and his sons, Tom and Greg, devoted four days of searching that they made a solid discov-

The broken Bradley on the bottom

Above: As part of the expedition team that found the Bradley on the bottom of Lake Michigan, artist Jim Clary created this rendering of how the Bradley looks in its final resting place. The ship apparently broke in the middle in the heavy seas on the fateful night. Working with his sketches, Clary created paintings of the Bradley during the storm and at the bottom of the lake. line, so we figured she had to be broken," Barnes said.

After making his discovery, Barnes contacted Jim Clary and Frederick Shannon, who organized an expedition to the site.

With the use of video cameras and a two man mini-sub, the discovery was made official.

In 1997, the group went back to the sight with a remote operated vehicle and with Frank Mays, one of the two survivors of the Bradley. The other survivor, Elmer Fleming, is now deceased.

"Frank couldn't believe we'd actually found her," Barnes said. "When he looked through the video camera and saw the name 'Bradley' he just started bawling like a baby."

Finding the Bradley meant finding closure for many people. Families now know that the Bradley broke in the heavy seas.

Edith offers a way to spice up leftover Thanksgiving turkey

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Of all the holidays we celebrate, Thanksgiving is by far my favorite. It has not been commercialized, except possibly by the cranberry sauce people. It is nonpolitical, non denominational, nor patriotic — a feast shared by the colonists as well as by the Indians. It evokes an exchange of sentiments and of presence rather than of presents.

No popular songs have been written by Irving Berlin, or anyone else, to commemorate the occasion of the first Thanksgiving celebrated by the Puritans of long ago. Contrary to legend, the Puritans were anything but straitlaced. They enjoyed good food, wine, dance and music. (What they did not like was instrumental music in churches.) They enjoyed playing several musical instruments, including the harp and violin, and by the turn of the 18th century, all kinds of instruments were being shipped to New England from London.

Over a century ago, a determined woman, Sarah Joseph Hale, thought this Thanksgiving day ought to be a recognized national holiday and President Abraham Lincoln agreed. Everyone knows that since then, once a year on a Thursday, when the frost is on the pumpkin, families gather around a festive table and expect to share the same traditional food and there will be no surprises!

I have already ordered my fresh turkey and stocked up on canned sweet potatoes, orange juice and marshmallows for our favorite casserole. But this year I do have a surprise in store for my group. On Sunday, I will serve an authentic New Orleans-style Turkey Gumbo, a meal made from leftover turkey.

Many years ago a friendly cook, attached to a prominent New Orleans family who summered on Dixon Avenue, kindly taught me how to make this treasured recipe.

The secret ingredient is a spice called file powder, which can be found locally. Gumbo is served in a soup bowl, with a scoop of white rice plopped in the middle. The original recipe also uses okra, but I omit this hither ingredient.

Turkey Gumbo with white rice
Remove nice chunks of dark and white meat from carcass to use later.

To make the broth, put turkey carcass in a large kettle and cover with 3 quarts of cold water. Add cut up celery, onion, salt, pepper. Bring to slow boil and reduce heat and let simmer for 2 or more hours. Strain turkey broth into a pot.

1 turkey carcass
2 stalks celery with greens
1 large onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
In a large pot, make a roux by heating shortening and adding onion and flour.

1/3 cup of shortening (Crisco)
1 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup flour

Add turkey broth to roux, stirring constantly with a wooden spoon until thick. Add small chunks of turkey meat.

In the meantime, cook 1 cup of rice (not minute rice) according to directions.

Just before serving turkey broth, add file powder and stir. (Do not cook any longer as turkey will become stringy!)

1 or 2 teaspoons file powder
Pour turkey gumbo into a soup bowl. Scoop a ball of white rice (with an ice cream scoop, if you have one) and release rice into the middle of hot turkey gumbo and enjoy!

Makes about 10 servings.

Letters to the editor

Nonsmoker is unhappy with local laundromat

Editor:

Recently my wife and I moved to Charlevoix to take care of my ailing mother. After moving in, we found that the clothes in the home had not been washed for at least three years, and with no washer or dryer we were forced to go to the laundromat in the area. The first one we found was in Petoskey (The Village Cleaner & Laundromat) and it was very nice - smoke-free and the people cared — but things changed when we looked and found a laundromat closer to home. After we entered and placed our clothes in the washers, the manager of the Charlevoix Laundromat lit up a cigarette and puffed away, causing secondhand smoke to filter through the air throughout the laundromat, causing the smell and smoke to get into our newly washed clothes, and on us.

Both my wife and I have a heart condition and daily take medication to help us deal with breathing better. We know that secondhand smoke is a killer, but when questioned about the smoking, the manager stated, the owner smokes so it's OK for others - then shortly a person came in and again lit up, so I had to leave the laundromat.

I placed a call to the health department in Charlevoix - the person stated it is a private business and that they had been there before on other complaints but to no avail — super markets and drug stores are also private businesses — but smoke-free.

I know that secondhand smoke is dangerous to our health, but what about the chemicals used in these laundromats — explosions and fire could take lives — so please give us a break, getting trapped in a smokers' environment is very scary.

Outdoor quality time enjoyed by campers

Editor:

Last year's Camp Quality Ski Camp was a rousing success. We hope to have even more campers this year. Camp Quality is a support program for children with cancer and their families. The ski camp is for teenagers between the minimum age of 13 through 18. This ski camp is to be held Dec. 11, 12 and 13. Skiing will take place at Boyne Mountain USA, located in Boyne Falls.

The aim of Camp Quality is to allow children to see and play in the snow again. Other activities, such as a sleigh ride and evening entertainment, are being planned.

There will be a hospital staff resident in camp the entire weekend to care for all medical needs.

Camp Quality is totally community funded, and this camp is offered to the children free of charge.

Parents of children with cancer are invited to call Nancy Ferguson, Ski Camp Director at 547-2285 to receive a camp registration form or for more information.

Thank you for helping us get this information out to the public.

Senior Center thanks volunteers and helpers

Editor:

To all of our wonderful friends at Thanksgiving,

At this time of year, we would like to give our grateful thanks to all of those who have helped to make our Charlevoix Senior Center a reality, and to assist us in keeping it alive and growing. As you may know, we do not receive any city or county millage for operational purposes. We do receive some assistance from the Commission on Aging, for which we are very appreciative.

Our operational expenses are met from memberships, contributions and our many types of fundraisers. Fundraisers include bake sales, raffles, bingo, and the two wonderful dinners we serve to the public each month — a chicken, pork or Swiss steak dinner the second Wednesday of each month, and

New science class gives students more of what they want

By Jamie MacMillan

For Charlevoix junior Beth Owens, enrolling in the high school's new Science in Your Life class was a chance to go into more depth with one of her favorite school subjects.

She didn't want to learn simply the cold hard scientific facts, but, rather, wanted to learn how and why things happen as they do.

A quarter of the way through the school year, the class is not disappointing her.

"I've learned just as much if not more about science in this class," Owens said, comparing the class with previous science courses.

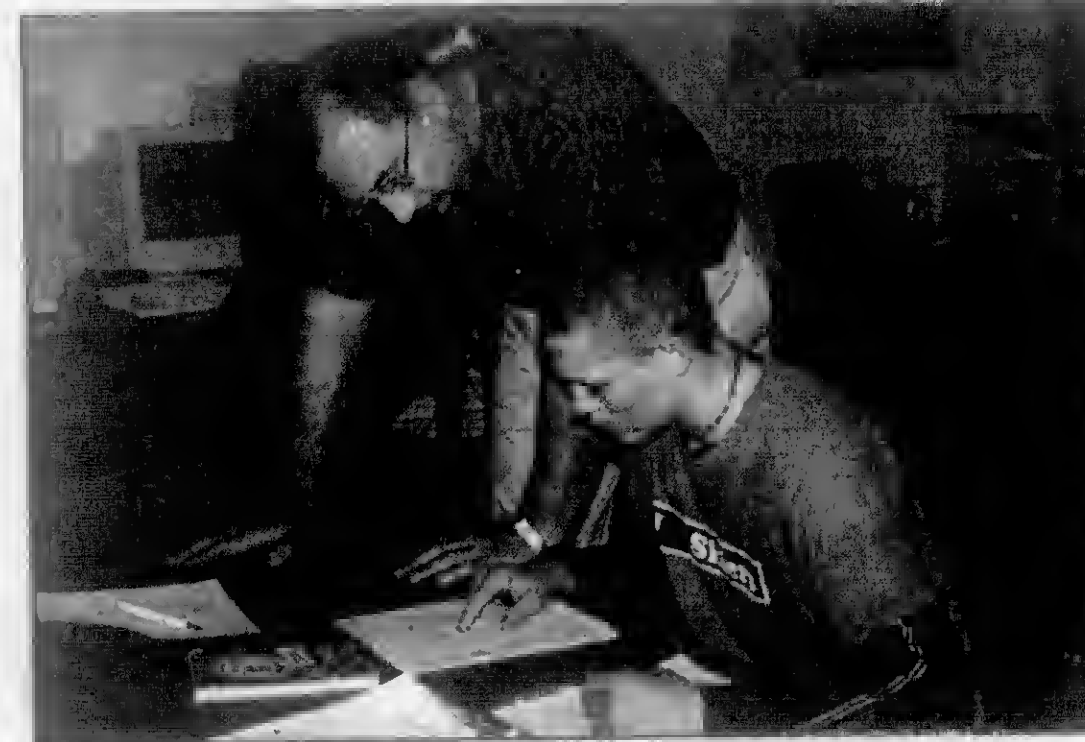

"We're not learning just about cells, but about theories like momentum."

Added classmate Perry Matthews, "I'm researching stuff in this class that I never thought I would ever come across."

The class, new this semester, is the brain child of Tim Volovsek, a third-year science instructor at the high school.

Creating the new class sprouted out of Volovsek's desire to offer more science electives to Charlevoix students.

Students are required to complete five science/math credits in order to graduate. Two specific courses in both math and science are required, leaving students one credit to fill with an elective class in either subject.

Volovsek explained that not enough science options existed for students not interested or prepared to take Advanced Placement courses like physics or advanced chemistry.

"The only way 55 percent of our student body could fulfill their requirements was by taking a third math class," he said. "We need to service more than just the college prep students in the science department."

The basic gist of the class is to give an overview and demonstrate how science is involved and affects the lives we live.

Volovsek outlined three objectives for the course.

He wants to expose students to the new science topics on the state assessment tests, turn them into better researchers and improve on their ability to write, read and present the technical aspects of science.

To reach that end, the class embarks on field trips, reviews movies and documentaries and does more research on the world wide web than most classes.

The class doesn't use a set text book and the class isn't graded by using standard means like pop quizzes or examinations.

Instead, the students are required to constantly write reports, essays and summaries of topics that the class deals with. Students need to complete 17 reports to earn an "A" grade in the course. The instructor said he wanted to create a class where ultimate success was not merely dependent on factual memorization.

"Analysis and taking overall concepts and interrelating them to science, technology and society is an important goal of the class," Volovsek said.

The class has toured the Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant and walked through a road construction site of a major state highway. They've watched films and shows taped from popular networks like the Learning and Discovery channels on subjects ranging from ancient inventions to the physics of a roller coaster. Class room debates on controversial subjects like human cloning, releasing long time captive animals back into the wild and solving the trash overflow problem by blasting the waste into space have been discussed in the class.

"People would be surprised how conservative some of our young people are," Volovsek said recalling some of the discussion.

Another interesting portion of the class is the product research students do. After perusing a series of science magazines, students must choose a new invention or development and write papers dissecting that product's chance at success and affect it would have on society.

The class's popularity surprised Volovsek. Originally, only 12-15 students were projected to attend the 18-week class. Instead, 26 upperclassmen enrolled and school officials extended the class to continue for the entire school year.

Now that the students have their feet wet with the new class, Volovsek said he will shift gears. Writing will remain an anchor of assessment, but as the year goes on, students will be asked to present their findings to their classmates in speeches with visual aids instead of simple written reports for the teacher's eyes only.

"We're really using this medium to do a lot more life skills than one might think," Volovsek said.

Owens would agree. She admitted that, at times, she's not the most careful of students. This class, though, with its focus on writing, research and note-taking, has turned her around.

"It keeps you more organized," she said of the class. "I have never been this organized in a class before."

Local grad named to all state team

Sophomore offensive lineman Michael Rautio of Charlevoix was named to the All Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association Football Second Team after a great season with the Olivet College Fighting Comets.

Rautio was a force on the offensive line in just his second collegiate football season. He helped lead Olivet to their first winning season since 1974 with an overall record of 5-4.

A 1997 graduate of Charlevoix High School, Rautio is the son of Michael and Linda Rautio of Charlevoix.

Olivet College is a liberal arts college located in south central lower Michigan, celebrating its 154th year in existence. Olivet offers 18 varsity sports and is a member of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the oldest athletic conference in the nation.

Solve your holiday baking problems

Take a walk
— a cookie walk

With the holiday season just around the corner, women are looking for short cuts to ease their stress and to have more time with their families.

The First Congregational Church U.C.C. of Charlevoix is hosting a Christmas Cookie Walk in the fellowship hall at 9 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 5, to help busy working women.

A cookie walk is an excellent way to solve holiday baking problems. Customers come to the church and purchase decorated coffee cans for $8, $10 or $12. They then walk around the room and fill their cans with beautiful and delicious Christmas cookies. It's quick, easy and fun. Chairpersons for the event are Myrtle Fulton, Nancy Fowler and Nan Vandenberg.

For more information, call the church at 547-9122.

Obituaries

Frances Durance

Frances Durance, 105, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 17, 1998 at the Fuller Adult Foster Care Home in East Jordan.

Frances was born April 15, 1893, in Charlevoix County, the daughter of George and Mary Isabel (Cook) Durance, early Charlevoix settlers.

She was the last survivor of 10 children, and was preceded in death by her sisters, Margaret, Mary Elizabeth, Myrtle, Genevieve (Baumgarten); and brothers, William and Albin. Three infant brothers died during an epidemic in Charlevoix in the fall of 1888. She was also predeceased by a niece, Marygrace (Ragan) Robinson of Romeo, Mich.

Frances Durance's parents moved from the Ironton area to a home near Stover Creek (near the current Catholic cemetery), and then settled in at the Mercer Boulevard and Waller Road farm before 1889. The Durance farm was home to Frances until her death.

Frances attended Charlevoix schools, Valparaiso University in Indiana, and received her teaching degree from Ypsilanti Normal School (Eastern Michigan University) in 1923.

She was a teacher and administrator in communities in Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan for more than 30 years. She served as principal of schools in Lake Orion, Oscoda and Boyne Falls.

Every summer, and upon her retirement from teaching, she returned to the Charlevoix farm to raise strawberries with her brother, Albin. She was an active American Youth Hostel hostess in her farmhouse until she was 100 years old.

Frances was a charter member of the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, a longtime member and former officer of the Order of the Eastern Star Chapter 72, the Queen Esther Shrine in Petoskey, Rebekah Lodge in Charlevoix, the Green Pine Chapter of the Retired Teachers and the Grange. At the age of 94, she personally cared for her sister, Genevieve Baumgarten, and Genevieve's daughter, Marygrace Robinson, through their last illnesses.

She will be remembered by all who knew her for her modern spirit, intelligence, independence and generous heart.

She is survived by her nephew, Edward (Shirley) Durance of Ann Arbor, and his family: Paul (Nancy) Durance, their sons, William and Richard, of Lexington, Ky., Diane Durance (Scott Ewen), their daughter, Kristen Ewen and son, Timothy Ewen, of Ann Arbor; Laura (Andrew) Diestel, their daughters, Leah and Jessica (Andrew) Diestel, and Stephen (Robbyn) Durance and their sons, Matthew, Daniel and Peter, of Midland.

The funeral service was Sunday, Nov. 22 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, where the Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated. Burial took place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Dorris E. Pearsall

Dorris E. Pearsall, 85, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 16, 1998, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

The funeral service was Friday, Nov. 20 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Community Church of God officiated. Burial took place in Brookside Cemetery.

Dorris was born June 26, 1913, in Silvertown, Ore., the daughter of Robert and Emma (Evers) Struthers.

She moved to the Charlevoix area at the age of 4. Dorris graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1931, then graduated from Charlevoix County Normal School.

She taught school in Boyne City, then worked in food services at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She also worked as a waitress at area restaurants and summer resorts.

BEACONS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

It's been a long time since I suggested that pastors need loving too. We are so blessed with a group of committed clergy in our community that it is all too easy to take them for granted. I hope you don't take your pastor for granted. There are days where the man or woman who shepherds, teaches, and encourages you could use a little blessing themselves.

Friday was just such a day for Linda and me. My loving bride was admitted to the hospital for surgery. It is an adventure you know. You start with a whole hunch of paperwork and then some of the best nurses in the world whisk you away to get ready. They take blood pressure readings, listen to your heart, hook up I.V. lines, and tell you all about the possibilities involved in your procedure.

After the initial hustle and bustle comes the short wait. The short wait is that period of time between when they have finished prepping you and the surgeon says, "Let's get down to business." I got to go just down to the corner before the operating room suite and then I had to kiss her goodbye. It's a most unusual feeling to place someone who means so much to you in other people's care.

I walked out of the surgery suite and headed to the solarium. How reassuring it was to get there and see Dave, Bonnie, Elsie, Joanne, Lorene, and my mom there. I don't expect the names to mean anything to you. The point is I was not going to be there alone.

The three hours the surgery took passed much faster with company. We talked about life. Dave and Bonnie sprung some theology questions on me. Lorene lamented another end of a Chicago Cubs' season of dreams. Joanne talked about moving into her house. You can imagine what the talk was like.

Finally, Bill Mosher came around the corner with the news I had been longing for. Everything went well. It took a little longer than he expected but some things can't be predicted until you actually open up a patient. His wisdom and grace made a difference. The best sight of all was seeing Linda back in her room.

Now where's the devotion in all this? Pastors are people too. They have family crises and dark moments just like you do. They need their arms lifted up in prayer just like you do. In fact, the better you take care of them, the more able they are to care for you.

When was the last time you expressed your appreciation for your pastor? Just how in tune are you with the special occasions, achievements, or family things that take place in your pastor's family? A pastor's child has milestones that need to be recognized too. They win awards or participate in plays or learn to ride bikes or any number of things.

A pastor is on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Yes, it's true that such hours are a part of the profession but that does not make them any less human. Does he or she have the time they need to spend with their family? Are their days off really off? Can they take occasional weekend sojourns like so many of you do?

I am so thankful for the church family I have been blessed with. They have learned a lot about the care and feeding of their pastor. I hope you are aware of how to keep your pastor's spirits up too.

ORDINANCE #647

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX BY REPEALING CHAPTER 33, TITLE III, OF SAID CODE AND REPLACING IT WITH A NEW CHAPTER 33.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

1) That Chapter 33, Title III, of the City Code be repealed and replaced with the following Chapter 33:

CEMETERY ORDINANCE

Section 3.51 - Definitions. Unless the context specifically indicates otherwise, terms used in this Chapter shall have the meanings set forth in this section:

- "Cemetery" shall mean any public cemetery owned, managed or controlled by the City.
- "Burial space" or "burial plot" shall mean a plot or portion of a plot in any cemetery designated and maintained for the burial of a human body or bodies and for no other purposes.
- "Owner" shall mean any person or persons owning or possessing the privilege, license or right of burial in any burial space.
- "Resident" shall mean any person who pays real or personal property taxes to the City or a person who is a qualified elector in the City of Charlevoix.

Section 3.52 - City Cemeteries. All City cemeteries shall be under the management, supervision and care of the City Manager. The City Manager shall, if necessary, cause such cemeteries to be laid out in plots, lots, blocks, drives and walks; the plots and lots to be numbered, blocks lettered, drives and walks therein to be named, and plats thereof to be made. City cemeteries may be established inside or outside of the City limits.

Section 3.53 - Rules and Regulations. The City Council shall from time to time make, amend or delete rules and regulations for the burial of the dead, care, improvement and protection of the grounds, mausoleums, monuments and appurtenances of the cemeteries and the orderly conduct of persons visiting the same as the City Council shall deem necessary. The City Manager shall see that this Chapter and all rules and regulations enacted by the City Council are enforced.

Section 3.54 - Sale of Plots.

1. All deeds for burial plots shall be executed on behalf of the City by the City Clerk. Residents of the City shall be entitled to purchase a burial plot in any City cemetery according to the fee schedule applicable to residents. Non-residents of the City shall also be entitled to purchase a burial plot in any City cemetery according to the fee schedule applicable to non-residents. Prior to purchasing a burial plot, a person seeking such purchase or an authorized agent of the purchaser shall complete a questionnaire/application provided by the City concerning the applicant's residency and shall submit the completed application to the City Clerk, Sexton or their designated representative. The same may investigate the accuracy or completeness of the application. If the City Clerk shall provide the applicant with written reasons upon which the decision was based. An incomplete application may be a basis for denial of residency. If the applicant is dissatisfied with the decision rendered by the City Clerk, the applicant shall have ten (10) days from the date the written notice was mailed or personally delivered to the applicant to file a written request with the City Manager requesting a review of the City Clerk's decision. The applicant shall include in the request for review all facts upon which the applicant relies to establish residency. The City manager shall investigate the application and render a written decision and shall mail a decision to the applicant at an address provided by the applicant or may personally deliver the decision to the applicant. The decision of the City Manager shall be final. An applicant's failure to comply with the foregoing time limitations shall constitute a waiver of any right to a review of the City Clerk's decision.

2. Upon the purchase of any burial plot, the City Clerk shall prepare and deliver to the purchaser a duly executed deed for said burial plot. Such deed shall convey to the purchaser the right of burial only, and shall be subject to the provisions of this code, and such ordinance, rules, and regulations as may hereafter be adopted by the City.

Section 3.55 - Plot Owner's Burial Rights. The owner of any burial space in any City cemetery shall have right to burial of the dead only and shall allow no burials for remuneration. No rights to ownership of land is conveyed by a cemetery deed. In order for a burial to take place, a cemetery deed showing the current owner of the plot or an assignment of the cemetery deed showing the current owner of the plot must be recorded with the City Clerk. The owner of a cemetery deed may be buried at the City cemetery pursuant to the cemetery deed or the owner of the cemetery deed may allow another person to be buried in the plot pursuant to the cemetery deed. If a plot is owned by more than one person, then a co-owner or a representative of the co-owner shall obtain the written consent of other co-owners before the burial of co-owner or any other person takes place.

Section 3.56 - Records. The City Manager shall cause to be kept a register of all burials made in any City cemetery in which shall appear the name of the deceased, the date and place of burial and such other information as the City Manager may deem appropriate. The City Manager shall also cause to be kept proper records in which the deeds or assignments of deeds to all burial plots shall be recorded. These records shall also show if a resident fee or non-resident fee has been paid for the deed. If an assignment of an existing deed is made from a resident owner to a non-resident owner, then, at the time of the recording of the assignment, an additional fee shall be paid to the City in an amount equal to the difference between resident rates and non-resident rates for the type of plot in question. The rate differential shall be based upon rates which are in effect at the time that the assignment is recorded with the City Clerk. There shall be no refund if a non-resident plot owner transfers ownership to a resident. Changes in ownership must be recorded with the City Clerk before burial will be permitted. The City Council may establish, by resolution, transfer fees.

Section 3.57 - Perpetual Care. The City Council shall, from time to time, establish by resolution the amount to be paid for cemetery burial plots. This amount shall include a sufficient sum to provide for perpetual care of the plots so sold. The City may accept sums donated by any testator, trustee or other person for the care of the cemetery or any plots therein. The City shall be obligated to maintain and care for all plots in the cemetery for which perpetual care has been paid except as otherwise provided by the statutes of the State of Michigan. Any interest money available in any perpetual care fund or other cemetery fund belonging to the City shall be used for such cemetery purposes as the City Council shall determine. If there is a transfer of a deed for which a perpetual care charge has not been paid, then before recording the transfer of any such deed, the City shall collect a new charge for perpetual care.

Section 3.58 - Fees. The City Council shall, from time to time, establish by resolution or as part of its annual operating budget the rates for cemetery services and other related cemetery fees, including fees for cemetery related services performed by the City Clerk. There may be differing rates or fees for residents of the City and non-residents. In the case of request for indigent burial, the City Manager shall have the authority to waive applicable charges. If the owner of a cemetery deed is a non-resident at the time of his or her burial pursuant to the cemetery deed, then a non-resident burial fee will be charged.

Community Christmas Project needs everyone's help

Thanksgiving is here. Can Christmas be far behind?

Under the leadership of Mary Helen Riggle and Cynthia Garland, volunteers for the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project have been working since mid-October, organizing the various committees necessary to assure that needy families in this area have a holiday meal and gifts for the children.

Last year, 125 low income families, totaling 400 individuals, had a happier Christmas because of the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project's "food baskets." In addition, 86 senior citizens and persons in adult foster care were remembered with a small, personal, tender loving care gift. The Christmas project doesn't limit gifts to food and canned goods. With community donations they can provide a new toy, mittens and socks for children.

The Bridge Street Book Shop, through its Angel Tree, provides books for children.

The Giving Tree at St. Mary's Parish, headed by Mark and Donna Cross, donates many gifts for children. Other volunteers handle last minute requests.

The Barnard Grange last year donated several turkeys for large families, as well as mittens and socks.

The Rainbow Shoppe buys the chicken packed with the dinners, about $1,000 worth of fowl.

Cash donations are needed to fund the grocery shopping which is done through Oleson's, Glen's and Don's IGA local grocery stores. Anyone wishing to make a donation may send a check to: Community Christmas Project, in care of Jeannette Boss, 1202 Matchett Road, Charlevoix.

Distribution of the Christmas dinners and gifts will be from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 19, at the First Congregational Church United Church of Christ.

Lions to sell Christmas trees

The Charlevoix Lions Club will be selling Christmas trees in downtown Charlevoix's East Park starting Wednesday, Dec. 2. This familiar Lions Club charity fund-raiser has been a tradition for many years. The club members look forward to helping their many community friends choose just the right tree.

The wide selection of Douglas fir and blue spruce trees are grown nearby and are freshly cut just prior to delivery to the lot.

Hours will be from 4-8 p.m. weekdays; 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturdays and noon to 6 p.m. Sundays. The trees are attractively priced. Approximately 80 percent of the proceeds help fund local charities, and the balance helps Michigan Lion-sponsored organizations such as the Leader Dog Training Center, the Leader Puppy Program and the Michigan Eye Bank and Transplant Center.

To help keep that tree fresh throughout the holidays, the Lions are providing a "Care and Feeding" instruction tag with every tree.

Heading up this year's activity are Lions Tom Conlan and Eric Kammermann.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful sponsors residential lighting contest

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is sponsoring its 13th residential Christmas light display contest. Judging will take place from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15. Recognition will be given to three homes in four sections of town, as well as to an overall "grand winner."

Judging the displays will be winners from last year's contest. They will be driven from home to home in the petunia truck by Dale and Marilyn Boss while listening to holiday music.

The committee encourages residents to register (or friends or neighbors may call).

To enter, call Mary Adams at 547-0348 or Judy Corley at 547-1945.

Super Eight motels bring families together for the holidays

Visiting a friend or loved one for Thanksgiving or Christmas need a place to stay? The Petoskey Super 8 Motel at 2645 Charlevoix Ave. may be able to assist you.

Through Super 8's ninth annual Rooms At The Inn holiday program, participating Super 8 properties, like the one in Petoskey, will offer free accommodations on Thanksgiving and Christmas Eve to out-of-town friends or relatives of patients in nearby nursing homes, veteran's homes, hospitals or treatment centers.

"Super 8's Room At The Inn program is designed to bring families and friends together during the holidays," said Super 8 President and CEO Robert N. Weller. "By removing the cost of motel rooms, Super 8s across the country will hopefully make holiday gatherings a little bit easier for those in need." Rooms At The Inn was inspired by a similar program started in 1987 by Super 8 franchisee Linda Aamold Tharaldson of Fargo, North Dakota. Linda Aamold Tharaldson said, because they experienced several family tragedies around the holidays, "Christmas and Thanksgiving were associated with a lot of bad memories for us. We decided a program like this would help us change that, and would turn a negative into a positive."

Super 8 Motels, Inc. adopted the program in 1990. Last year more than 500 Super 8s throughout the United States and Canada donated nearly 1,000 rooms. This year the chain expects to give away even more rooms.

Advanced registration is not required but recommended since the number of available rooms may be limited. Reservations can be made by contacting the Petoskey Super 8 at 439-8000, or through Superline, Super 8's toll-free reservation center, at 1-800-800-8000.

Super 8 Motels, Inc., founded in American's heartland in 1974, has more than 1,700 motels and 100,000 rooms throughout the United States and Canada.

Burns Clinic offers information resource center for cancer patients

Cancer patients and their families have a new source at Burns Clinic in Petoskey to turn to for information.

CancerHelp is an easy-to-use cancer patient education database of current information on all aspects of living with cancer. The computer containing this database is located in the Oncology Department on the third floor of the Burns Clinic in Petoskey and is funded by a grant from the National Cancer Institute.

The database, which is updated monthly by the National Cancer Institute, contains information on diagnosis and treatment options, support services, medications, prevention information, National Cancer Institution full text publications, general information on clinical trials, and medication information about tests, chemotherapy, radiation therapy and its side effects. In addition, the CancerHelp database includes information on regional and national cancer organizations, citations of books and abstracts from audio, video tapes and journal articles, and interactive videos.

The software operates on a touch screen computer. The user touches topics on the screen and more information is displayed. A printer is attached so users can print information for future reference.

"It does get a lot of use," said Therese Green, who oversees educational activities for the Northern Michigan Hospital/Burns Clinic Foundation. "People print out their specific information, take it home, then bring their questions in to their nurse or doctors."

Citizens Bank appoints a new commercial officer

James R. Kanary, President of Citizens Bank-North, recently announced the appointment of Jack C. Frost as a Commercial Relationship Officer. He will be responsible for providing commercial banking services, including lending, deposits, and cash management, for the business community in the Charlevoix area.

Prior to joining Citizens Bank in September of 1997, Frost managed a full-facility Amoco service station and towing service in Kalamazoo. His duties included financial statement analysis, sales and pricing. His most recent position at Citizens Bank was as a credit analyst where he was responsible for analyzing the fiscal management of various companies in Michigan and Illinois. He also has experience as a brokerage representative.

Frost holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from Western Michigan University. He is an active member of the Kiwanis Club in Charlevoix and the International Fraternity of Phi Gamma Delta.

"Providing quality commercial banking services for our clients is one of our top priorities," said Kanary.

Jack C. Frost

"Frost's experience as a business manager will be an added advantage in helping to meet the financial needs for the business community. He is a valuable asset to our team."

Citizens Bank provides a wide range of commercial, consumer, mortgage banking, trust investment and financial planning services to a broad client base.

Twenty-five years of dental bliss

Terry Fillmore has joined Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors as a full-time sales associate in the company's Charlevoix office. Fillmore has been licensed as a realtor since 1996.

Prior to joining Coldwell Banker, Fillmore was a real estate agent with a local resort complex. A graduate of Bellaire High School and Austin Peay University, he spent four years in the U.S. Air Force. He spent five years in the insurance industry in Tennessee before returning to northern Michigan.

Fillmore is a life member of the U.S. Judo Association and has an EMT license. He also has insurance licenses in addition to his real estate license. He has completed Fast Track and is completing the Success Track course.

Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors is a third-generation, family owned realty company with 12 offices throughout Northern Michigan and three locations in Grand Rapids. Schmidt Realtors is an affiliate of Coldwell Banker Real Estate Corporation, a subsidiary of Cendant Corporation (NYSE: CD) with more than 2,800 independently owned and operated real estate offices and nearly 62,000 sales associates throughout North America.

Host families needed for foreign students

As the holidays are coming, Pacific Intercultural Exchange (PIE) is looking for host families for International Students for the second semester of high school. Local representatives would like to have the students all have as early as possible their Christmas present, — an American host family that they can write, e-mail, or call.

These students will be coming to Charlevoix, and surrounding areas the middle of January 1999, and staying till June.

PIE is a nonprofit, educational, government-sponsored organization. The students are 15 to 18 years of age. They bring their own spending money, and have full medical insurance. The family is responsible for love, board, and room. The students are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families.

The second semester student files are in now. If you are interested in a 1999-2000 school year student, the student files will be coming in January 1999.

PIE representatives match stu-

City urges businesses to join in Christmas decoration contest

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is asking all businesses to participate in the 1998 Christmas Decorating Contest.

Decorate your storefront, light up your windows and be ready for judging from 5-7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10.

Register your business for judging at the chamber office by calling 547-2101 or faxing them at 547-6633.

Only businesses that have pre-registered will be judged.

dents with host families by finding common interest and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the "perfect match."

There are no "typical" host families. PIE can fit a student into just about any type of family situation, whether it is a single parent, childless couple, empty-nester, retired couple, or large family.

PIE has students from Spain, Germany, Belgium, Mexico, Ghana, Yugoslavia, Armenia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Poland,

Turkey, China, Brazil, Japan, Argentina, as well as other countries. PIE has sponsored more than 18,000 students from 35 countries since its founding in 1975.

PIE also sends American students to other countries in the outboard program. Pacific Intercultural Exchange is always looking for volunteers who would enjoy working with these international students.

For more information about hosting a student and learning more about our program, call your Regional Coordinator, Pat Blundy, at 1-800-382-7439.

City recreation league: Grown-ups just want to have fun

Clockwise, from top left: In the recreational coed volleyball league, Adele Lepman, playing for Superior Mechanical, begins to dive for the ball while her teammate looks on. ### Popularity of volleyball creates demand for new team

By Jamie MacMillan

One of the more successful athletic programs at Charlevoix High School will expand to include another squad this winter.

Athletic Director Keith Haske said a freshmen girls' volleyball team will hit the courts at the start of the winter sports season.

The high school program, coached for the last 17 years by Brenda Bryan, has grown into one of the more popular sports at the school and varsity teams coached by Bryan have won a handful of conference and district titles in recent years.

The success on the court has led to a problem most coaches would love to have — too many students coming out for the team. As a result, the volleyball program is one of the few sports at Charlevoix that cuts prospective student-athletes from its squad.

The addition of a freshmen team, Haske said, should eliminate the need to cut players.

"It's tough because you want to be able to take all the kids and not cut," he said. "This will be a good opportunity for the kids."

Haske said that 18 freshmen have already signed up to play, although some might end up on the junior varsity squad.

What the team doesn't have at the moment is either a coach or a schedule.

The coaching position is still open to any applicants and Haske hopes to be able to recommend a coach candidate at the board of education's next meeting Monday, Dec. 14. Two people have already filed an application for the position, Haske said.

As far as the schedule goes, Haske is still working out certain wrinkles. When a schedule is announced it is likely that games with Kalkaska, Elk Rapids and Traverse City-St. Francis will be on the docket since those are the only other Lake Michigan Conference schools with freshmen volleyball teams.

Other area schools with freshmen squads include Petoskey, Gaylord, and both Traverse City Central and West.

Haske said he'll likely schedule triple headers with all three Charlevoix squads playing the same school on the same day. The home games might not be one after another, however. Haske said he might experiment with playing both the JV and freshmen games at the same time since the gym floor can accommodate two games at once.

With two games at once, the school can keep the 6 p.m. start times, which would leave gym time for other sports and be easier for parents to attend the matches.

Following the Call

Pastor Bruce Hamilton is moving on to Florida

By Laurie Lounsbury

He's officiated at Blessing of the Boat ceremonies and Blessing of the Pets ceremonies. He's written humorous poems about the graduating high school seniors. He's married more couples and delivered more eulogies than he can remember. And every time tragedy struck, he was there to comfort the grieving and console the heartsick.

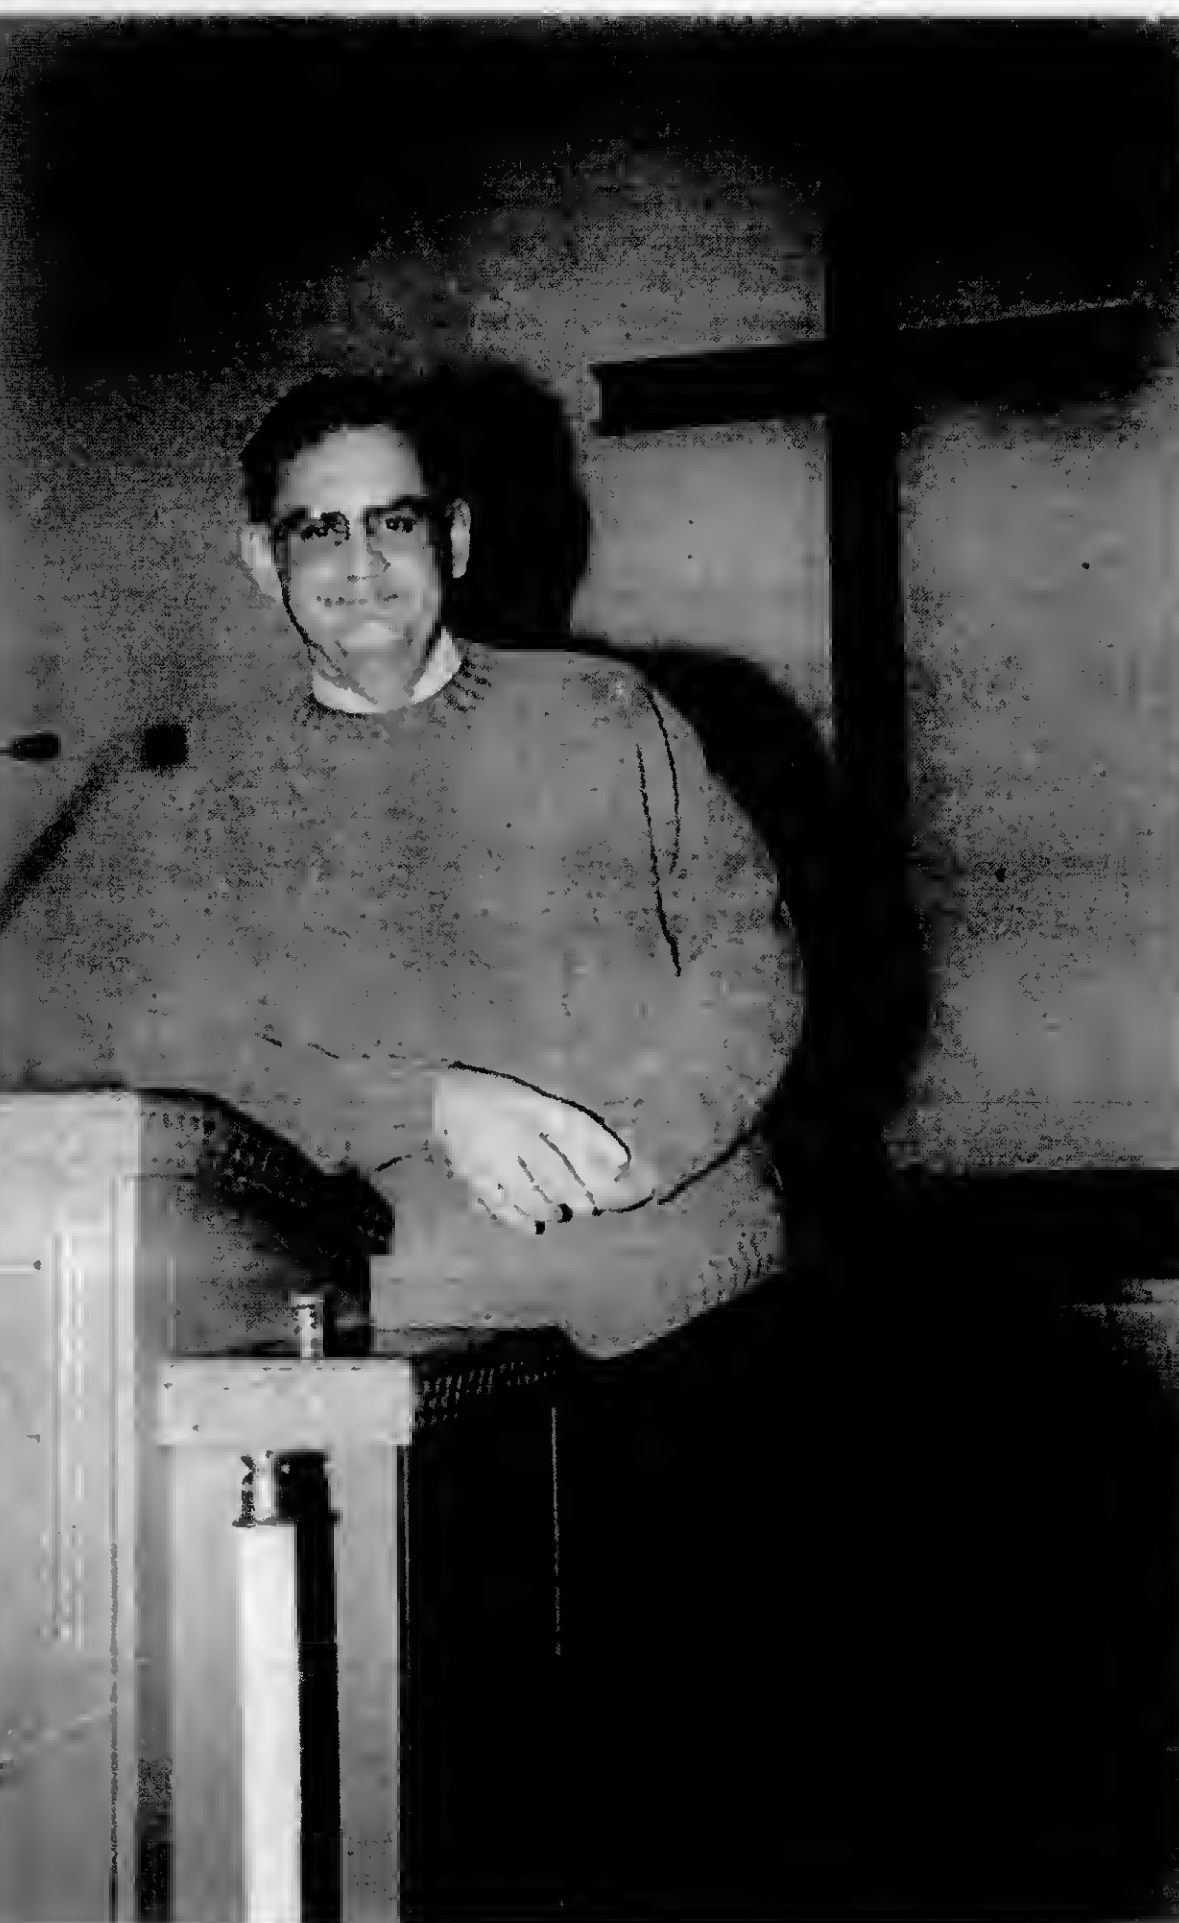

In essence, anytime there's been a need for a caring pastor in Charlevoix, Bruce Hamilton has been there.

When Hamilton leaves his post as the pastor of the Community Church of God at the end of this year, his absence will be felt through town like the rip of a shock wave.

Hamilton came to Charlevoix in August of 1995, a man born and raised in the south whose last parish had been in Gadsden, Alabama.

"At the time, I was looking for a change and the Charlevoix church was looking for a pastor," Hamilton said. "Some executives in my denomination were taking bets about how long a deep southerner would last in the deep north. They've long since lost their money."

Indeed, Hamilton quickly assimilated himself into northern life in Charlevoix. When he saw a need in town, he filled it. He was one of the their successful Coats For Kids project.

"When I learned that one-third of the kids in town come from single parent homes, I knew there were struggles there," he said of the project.

Hamilton also founded Rotary's middle school scholarship program that awards a $50 scholarship to top middle school graduates. Hamilton wanted middle school students to be able to look ahead to their college education.

Hamilton's easygoing personality and willingness to be out in the community has put him in demand for every type of blessing and ceremony imaginable. He gave Glen's Market his blessing every time they embarked on an expansion project.

"I never blessed a grocery store, but I blessed them twice," Hamilton said.

When Sequanota Club members took a close look at the fleet of aging boats in their dock slips, they decided to have a Blessing of the Boats ceremony. Bruce Hamilton was the man for the job, willing to stand on the edge of the dock and deliver a prayer to bobbing boats and their drivers.

And when the Charlevoix County Humane Society decided to bless the homeless and abandoned pets housed at their shelter, Hamilton gave his blessing to the lonely critters.

"I've always lived by the philosophy that if you want folks to learn about the gospel, you've got to go to them, not wait for them to come to you," Hamilton said.

Over the years, there have been funny moments, touching

times and occasionally, painful experiences. They all come with the role of pastor.

Hamilton is particularly fond of his job of delivering a tribute to graduating seniors. The tradition started in 1993, when the high school received a warning from the American Civil Liberties Union saying that prayer would not be tolerated at graduation ceremonies.

"I just wondered if there was a way around it," Hamilton said.

He found a way — he writes a funny, touching poem about the graduates, and finishes the poem with the same tag line every year: "Blessings to the class of '98, from me and You Know Who."

One of the most difficult moments for Hamilton was when he delivered the eulogy for Monica Havens, a local teen who died in an alcohol-related car accident.

"Monica was a beautiful, joyful girl," Hamilton said. "I hoped in Monica's life and death, teens could learn the importance of realizing the value of their own lives."

Knowing from his brother's military experience that servicemen sometimes feel they're looked down upon in a community, Hamilton reached out for the family and crew of the Coast Guard cutter in town.

"I didn't want them to feel that way (unwanted) here," Hamilton said.

In 1988, Hamilton invited the entire crew and family of the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite to a Thanksgiving dinner at his church. Nearly 200 people packed the church fellowship hall for the occasion, with both Coast Guard members and church members joining together for the meal.

"I kind of got adopted by the Coast Guard then, and I really got adopted when the Mesquite went down the next year," Hamilton said.

As could be expected, Hamilton was on hand when the buses pulled up at the church, carrying the crew of the Mesquite safely home after the ship ran aground on the Keweenaw Point.

If Hamilton could be found guilty of any wrongdoing, it was neglecting himself for the sake of others. He had a heart attack at age 40. "The doctor told me I had to spend time doing things for myself," Hamilton said.

To that end, Hamilton dove back into academic life, earning a master's degree, and is now working on a doctorate. Returning to the college campus led to Hamilton's teaching part-time at North Central Michigan College and becoming a substitute teacher in the Charlevoix schools.

Hamilton will leave all of his activities in northern Michigan behind at the end of this year. On Jan. 3, he will assume his new position as Senior Pastor at the Haines Creek Church of God in Leesburg, Fla. The town is about 40 miles northwest of Orlando, where Hamilton's sister lives.

Although Hamilton wasn't looking for a new church or a move, he believes it is his calling to go to Florida.

"I didn't seek the move, they sought me out," Hamilton said. Old friends and mentors convinced Hamilton to take the job in Florida.

"It was a conspiracy of kindness," he said of their pursuit.

Hamilton still faces the tough job of cleaning out his office at the church. His desk bears the signs of a writer — it is cluttered with notes and books. On the walls hang the reminders of his many good deeds. He has awards and plaques commemorating a number of occasions where he has helped one group or another in town.

"I have acres and acres of memories of Charlevoix to take with me," he said.

"This is a very special town, more like one big family. And I've been blessed with a great parish. They had come through a rough time when I got here. We were able to love each other and heal each other."

Now it will be the town's turn to help Hamilton's parishioners heal themselves after his departure.

At least Hamilton will continue to touch the community in one familiar way — he promised he would continue to occasionally write a Beacons column for the Courier.

"I have to send at least one column from Florida in the middle of January, just to say how warm it is when you're hurried in snow," he joked.

The joke quickly turned into nostalgic tears when Hamilton thought about his impending departure.

"These have been 13 of the most exciting, learning, growing years of my life," Hamilton said. "We'll never be able to thank the community for the way they've let us be a part of their lives."

Hamilton, his wife of 25 years, Linda, their son David, 16, and daughter Debbie, 21, will move to Florida on Dec. 28.

Book Angels are back

Bridge Street Book Shop is announcing the fifth annual book Angel Program as part of the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project. Last year, over 400 books were delivered to less fortunate children in Charlevoix County.

People may stop by the book shop and select an Angel from the Christmas tree. Each Angel represents a child of a specific age and gender. A book may then be selected for that child and purchased at a 20 percent discount. The book shop staff will gift wrap the book and deliver it to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project to be distributed with other gifts for families in need. The goal is to have all Angels claimed from the book shop Christmas Tree by Dec. 16.

Bridge Street Book Shop holiday hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Wednesdays, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursdays, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Thank you for supporting the Book Angel Project so that all children may enjoy the gift of wondrous stories.

Happy holidays from everyone at Bridge Street Book Shop.

Charlevoix student is honored with Eagle Scout title

By Jamie MacMillan

In life's journey, there are many benchmarks to pass that ultimately help define one life, such as graduation and job promotions.

For youths involved and interested in the tradition of scouting, no other achievement is greater than earning Eagle Scout status.

Forty-nine northern Michigan teenagers were bestowed that honor during the last year, including Charlevoix resident Tim Tebeau.

Tebeau, the son of Suzanne and Pram Acharya and Bob Tebeau, has been involved in scouting for the last 12 years, since he was 6 years old.

For him, staying involved and striving for Eagle Scout honors was a matter of family tradition, as three uncles preceded him in becoming an Eagle.

"It was always a goal, my grandmother wanted us to follow and do the same thing," the 18-year-old said.

One his uncles, Tim Kirk, was integral in Tim's entrance into the scouting brotherhood. Tebeau said he took him to his first scouting summer camp and always helped out and was involved in all of his scouting activities.

Originally from Dearborn, Tebeau began his journey as a member of a downstate troop. He and his family moved to Charlevoix three years ago, and after an adjustment period to get to know his new surroundings, Tebeau entered Troop 11, led by Charlevoix resident Tim May.

Tebeau said that while the basic value structures are the same, differences do exist between scouting troops downstate and in the north country. Everything is bigger downstate and scout troops are usually 25 members strong, with many surpassing 50 members. In contrast, northern Michigan troops number 15 scouts.

Tebeau recalled one downstate jamboree on Belle Island that numbered in the thousands.

"We basically overtook the whole island," he laughed.

The size of the troops, combined with the lack of outdoor activities, helped foster a more competitive and driven atmosphere in downstate scouting life. The outdoor activities aren't as plentiful downstate, so scouts tend to focus more on passing their merit badges with a little more gusto, Tebeau said.

Overall, Tebeau said he likes the laid back atmosphere of northern Michigan and would rather have more camping and outdoor escapades than the intense focus of passing merit badges. After all, it's what helped keep his interest while others of his generation dropped out.

"I've always enjoyed camping," he said. "Downstate it provided a nice environment and an escape route from the city."

Tebeau also highlighted the companionship, leadership hierarchy and value structures of scouting as other reasons why he maintained an interest in the organization.

"I admire the stability it offered," he said. "The morals and regimens it instills are very important. Everyone I know has always benefited from the scouting experience."

The final leg of the Eagle Scout journey was Tebeau's recent project, which was replanting a series of new elm trees along Charlevoix's Elm Street, adjacent to the Community Reformed Church. It was grueling work, which added up to about 80 hours labor, Tebeau said.

Tebeau's next step in life is a college education. The Charlevoix class of 1998 graduate is currently enrolled in North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. He's on target to earn an associate's degree in English from the school by next fall. From there, he said he'd like to enter the University of Michigan, study literature and eventually teach the subject at the college level.

Eventually, he said he would like to reenter scouting in an adult leadership position.

"Scouting has taught me how to organize and lead people as well as be responsible for myself," he said. "Those are valuable skills for virtually everything."

Charlevoix school bands perform Christmas Concert

The Charlevoix Public Schools invite the community to the annual Christmas concert at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10 in the high school gymnasium.

The program features the seventh, eighth and high school concert bands, as well as the new Charlevoix Jazz Lab band.

The seventh grade band will perform first, playing the march from the Notebook for Anna Magdalena Bach, Chesapeake Overture, Rock on the Roof and Doo-Wah Dixieland. The eighth grade band will follow, performing the following selections: March of the Irish Guard, Adirondack Overture, I Heard the Bells and Brookpark Overture. The Jazz Lab band will next perform All About the Blues and Night Train. The Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band will conclude the program with Flourish for Wind Band, Overture in B Flat, Russian Christmas Music, Trilogy of European Carols, Cantique De Noel and the March from Third Suite by Robert Jager.

There will be a dessert social immediately following the concert in the cafeteria, as well as door prizes awarded during the course of the evening. The new Charlevoix Audio Yearbook CD will be played over the gymnasium sound system. The CDs may be purchased for $11.95 that evening. Proceeds go toward the upkeep of the recording studio and the Charlevoix Creative Coalition.

Bruce Hamilton will be missed by the entire community

PASTOR

times and occasionally, painful experiences. They all come with the role of pastor.

Hamilton is particularly fond of his job of delivering a tribute to graduating seniors. The tradition started in 1993, when the high school received a warning from the American Civil Liberties Union saying that prayer would not be tolerated at graduation ceremonies.

"I just wondered if there was a way around it," Hamilton said.

He found a way — he writes a funny, touching poem about the graduates, and finishes the poem with the same tag line every year: "Blessings to the class of '98, from me and You Know Who."

One of the most difficult moments for Hamilton was when he delivered the eulogy for Monica Havens, a local teen who died in an alcohol-related car accident.

"Monica was a beautiful, joyful girl," Hamilton said. "I hoped in Monica's life and death, teens could learn the importance of realizing the value of their own lives."

Knowing from his brother's military experience that servicemen sometimes feel they're looked down upon in a community, Hamilton reached out for the family and crew of the Coast Guard cutter in town.

"I didn't want them to feel that way (unwanted) here," Hamilton said.

In 1988, Hamilton invited the entire crew and family of the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite to a Thanksgiving dinner at his church. Nearly 200 people packed the church fellowship hall for the occasion, with both Coast Guard members and church members joining together for the meal.

"I kind of got adopted by the Coast Guard then, and I really got adopted when the Mesquite went down the next year," Hamilton said.

As could be expected, Hamilton

was on hand when the buses pulled up at the church, carrying the crew of the Mesquite safely home after the ship ran aground on the Keweenaw Point.

If Hamilton could be found guilty of any wrongdoing, it was neglecting himself for the sake of others. He had a heart attack at age 40. "The doctor told me I had to spend time doing things for myself," Hamilton said.

To that end, Hamilton dove back into academic life, earning a master's degree, and is now working on a doctorate. Returning to the college campus led to Hamilton's teaching part-time at North Central Michigan College and becoming a substitute teacher in the Charlevoix schools.

Hamilton will leave all of his activities in northern Michigan behind at the end of this year. On Jan. 3, he will assume his new position as Senior Pastor at the Haines Creek Church of God in Leesburg, Fla. The town is about 40 miles northwest of Orlando, where Hamilton's sister lives.

Although Hamilton wasn't looking for a new church or a move, he believes it is his calling to go to Florida.

"I didn't seek the move, they sought me out," Hamilton said. Old friends and mentors convinced Hamilton to take the job in Florida.

"It was a conspiracy of kindness," he said of their pursuit.

Hamilton still faces the tough job of cleaning out his office at the church. His desk bears the signs of a writer — it is cluttered with notes and books. On the walls hang the reminders of his many good deeds. He has awards and plaques commemorating a number of occasions where he has helped one group or another in town.

"I have acres and acres of memories of Charlevoix to take with me," he said.

At least Hamilton will continue to touch the community in one familiar way — he promised he would continue to occasionally write a Beacons column for the Courier.

"I have to send at least one column from Florida in the middle of January, just to say how warm it is when you're buried in snow," he joked.

The joke quickly turned into nostalgic tears when Hamilton thought about his impending departure.

"These have been 13 of the most exciting, learning, growing years of my life," Hamilton said. "We'll never be able to thank the community for the way they've let us be a part of their lives."

Middle school food drive doesn't lack for enthusiasm

By the time you're reading this, the Charlevoix Middle School students will have already embarked on their annual canned food drive to help the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project.

Every year, middle school students surpass their previous year's efforts to raise a phenomenal amount of money and canned goods for the needy.

It's a wonderful thing to see the kids scrambling around town, rosycheked from running through the cold air, knocking on doors and soliciting goods.

The middle school kids will no doubt try harder than ever this year to collect goods. Spurring them on is the competitive aspect of the canned food drive — every class in each grade competes against one another to collect the most goods.

Kids at that age enjoy the spirited competition to collect more money and canned goods than their friends in other classes. The friendly rivalry builds steam until the week before Christmas, when the entire student body puts forth its last frenzied effort to win the coveted prize, the Golden Corn Trophy.

The big winner, of course, is the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project. Without the middle school, they might not be able to meet their goal of providing food and goods to all the less fortunate people in our community.

There is one disturbing downside to the middle school canned food drive. It seems that every year, in their efforts to raise more goods than the previous year, the competition grows increasingly fierce and time-consuming.

Students are seen out of school during the day collecting goods. Homework is abandoned in favor of going door-to-door to collect goods.

One class last year sold 50-50 raffle tickets to raise money for goods. Is it legal for 13-year-old kids to be selling raffle tickets? Is it a good idea to promote the gambling mentality in students, even if it is for a good cause?

EDITORIAL

The middle school canned food drive, at times, seems to overshadow the original purpose of the middle school — education.

Of course, kids are learning a valuable lesson about helping those less fortunate than themselves when they embark on their canned food campaign.

But is the competition and the 'Win at all costs' mentality in keeping with the spirit of generosity?

Several parents of middle school kids have expressed their concern about the canned food drive. No one is opposed to the project — of course it's viewed as a noble endeavor by everyone. But the many hours of lost classroom time is viewed by some to be a disruptive by-product of the drive.

The middle school canned food drive is certainly a wonderful project, and it's understood that kids in that age group tend to get wildly exuberant about many things, (with the possible exception of math and vocabulary words). But without strong direction, kids can easily lose sight of the main reason they're in school.

We all hope the food drive can be kept in balance with the educational process in the month of December. It will require the participation of parents, teachers and students to maintain that balance. Let this holiday season be one of giving as well as getting — giving to the Community Christmas Project and getting an education.

Teen center offers more with addition of sound studio

By Jamie MacMillan

Educators have long held the philosophy that getting teens involved in extra-curricular activities such as sports or performing arts will go a long way toward not only keeping their interest in school, but also away from the perils of drugs and alcohol.

If that is true, then local teens may have another positive outlet with the relocation of On the Run, a musical production business. It is now housed in the teen center in Charlevoix at 208 West Lincoln St. Andy Barger has spent the last eight years mixing tunes and running his business out of the garage of his Boyne City home, but earlier this month he put the finishing touches on his new music and theater production facility in the back room of the local teen center.

Barger's involvement with the teen center began when the center's assistant director Tom Clemens inquired if Barger would be the deejay for the dances held at the teen center. Two days after he deejayed his first dance at the center, he began relocating his equipment.

"We've really turned this into Andy's room," Clemens said. "We're delighted. It'll really add to what we do here. Andy is the man."

Barger's move to the teen center is another chapter in his long history in helping wayward teens. Six years ago, he began taking in at-risk students from Antrim County through a county juvenile court program and taught them the basics of making music.

Letters to the editor

Sheriff thanks those who helped during storm

Editor:
Letters of appreciation from Sheriff Lasater dated Nov. 12, 1998
Dear Mr. Hodge,

Please accept this correspondence as a letter of appreciation for your help on Tuesday with a large tree in the highway.

Deputy Lasater has conveyed to me that without your help, specifically retrieving your chainsaw and skillfully cutting the large branches, he would have ended up waiting for the county road commission for a very long time.

We wish to recognize you for your generous and selfless assistance. If you or any member of your family should ever need anything, feel free to call on your friends at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

We need a third party in political system

Editor:
Here's why we need a third party...

There were many bills before Congress that failed to make it out of committee, much less into law. Activists have listed those bills for us.

What did the 105th Congress do for us?

House passed the Patient Protection Act; never voted on in the Senate.

Congress failed to pass Sen. Jon Kyl's bill restoring seniors' freedom to contract privately for medical services.

Congress failed to pass revisions to the Waxman-Hatch law to improve consumer access to generic drugs.

Congress failed to pass FDA reform legislation streamlining the approval process of new, life-saving drugs.

The House passed an incremental increase in the earning limit (which is still pending in the Senate as we

Lunch room computers slow service, increase counts

By Jamie MacMillan

When the Charlevoix Board of Education purchased three Command Control Systems computers for their lunchrooms, the company sales official said school districts average an 11 percent revenue increase with their lunch programs after implementing the computers.

That was a welcome enticement for a school board looking to maximize its revenues, especially with a lunch program that outspent its budget by nearly $20,000 in the 1997-98 fiscal year.

The school board transferred $35,000 from the district's general fund budget to cover the shortfall, as well as $14,719 for the three computer systems.

With the transfer, the lunch program's reserve fund actually grew from over $11,000 to $12,533 last year.

Driving the purchase of the computers was the thought that the old, pre-technology, hand-to-till method of collecting lunch money could be costing the district revenue for two

Only a portion of his students come to him through the court system, and throughout the year he always seems to have a handful of students under his guidance. With the move to the teen center, he said he hopes to be able to incorporate students from Emmet and Charlevoix into his programs.

"I love kids, and I love what they do here at the teen center," Barger, also known as Big Daddy, said. "I'd rather see kids in here than out buying drugs or going to jail."

Barger began his music career at the age of five when his mother, a drummer, plopped him down with a drumming pad, sticks and an instructional book. Since then, he has been in various bands and drum corps as well as worked as a sound technician at the Jordan Valley Express.

Barger also spent 12 years in the military with most of his time spent commanding battle tanks along the East-West Germany border.

For three months during his tour, he worked on a military production of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat. During his final two years of service, he was stationed in Irwin, Texas, where he worked at the military's $40 million recording studio. With that experience fresh in his mind, he decided to go into the music business himself when his military career ended.

His musical skills are varied and he teaches kids the finer aspects of bass, drums, guitars and audio engineering. In addition to learning how to play instruments, students in Barger's classes learn the technical aspects of the recording business, build equipment and assist with studio maintenance.

"The best part about teaching in a recording studio is that once we learn a song we can record it," he said. "They can walk out of here with a demo tape and a big smile on their faces saying, 'That's me on there.'"

The general public will have a chance to see Barger's recording studio during the teen center's open house from 9 a.m.-7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 4. A community dance with free admission and Barger's tunes as entertainment will follow at 7 p.m.

Barger and On the Run productions can be reached at 547-1149.

"We're going to do some good things here," he said. "I think it'll turn out bigger than we think."

Computers should increase sales at school cafeterias

During the peak of the lunch crush, it was thought that, at times, lunch line collectors could be accidentally undercharging students' lunches as well as not keeping an accurate count of Type A lunches sold.

Type A lunches are the basic meal served each day and must include three of the four food groups. The school district receives a state reimbursement of 18 cents for each Type A lunch sold.

The new computer systems calculate the price of each student's meal as well as keep a running tab on total Type A lunches sold on a daily basis. Anyone familiar with the "Touch and Serve" systems in place at some local restaurants would recognize these machines.

Each student is given a lunch card which they can use to pay for lunch if they have previously set up a debit account for their meals.

The computer screen has buttons for each menu item, from separate a la carte items like pizza, salads and chips, to a button simply for Type A lunches. The employee running the machine simply swipes the buttons on the machine that correspond with what's on a student's tray.

With a third of the school year already over, school officials said it was still too early to tell if the machines were actually making a difference.

Employees in each lunchroom lauded the machines for their accuracy, but only at the middle school were they able to discern if more Type A lunches were being counted. Previously, employees hadn't counted pizza lunches as Type A meals, employee Carol Ward said.

But since pizza is topped with all the necessary food groups, the computer is making sure each pizza lunch is counted as a Type A lunch. That has increased the average daily number of Type A lunches sold at the middle school from 150 to 165, Ward said.

Spread out over an entire year, such an increase could lead to an extra $500 in state reimbursements. Last year, for example, the state reimbursed the school $1,437 for lunches sold at the middle school.

Beyond that, the machines have created longer lunch lines, haven't been mechanically reliable and the company offered very little training to school employees using the machines for the first time.

At the middle school, where students are divided into two different 45-minute lunch periods, lunch employees were once able to move the entire group through the line in less than 10 minutes. Now, however, it takes 25 minutes to move each lunch period through the line. At the beginning of the year, it took the entire 45-minute period to get that accomplished.

A similar situation occurred at the high school where lunch lines approached one hour in length. The situation was grave at the high school, where an open campus policy allows students to leave the building for lunch. To remain competitive with the local lunch eateries, the district equipped the high school with a second Command Control System to reduce lunch line waits.

"Either we lose kids or we get another computer," Babs Sharrow, high school lunch supervisor, said. "We're still slower, it takes about 10 minutes longer now to go through the line."

The machines have had their see LUNCH, page 27

Obituaries

Robert R. Koontz

Robert R. Koontz, 72, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 24, 1998 at his home.

The funeral service was Saturday, Nov. 28 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Harold E. Kruse of the Ironton Congregational Church officiated. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Mr. Koontz was born June 13, 1926, in Carlinville, Ill., the son of Robert and Thelma (Rawson) Koontz. He was raised in the Royal Oak area and graduated from Royal Oak High School. He then attended Columbia Military Academy in Tennessee.

Mr. Koontz served in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II in the South Pacific and in China.

On May 27, 1950, he married Lola J. Siegle in Royal Oak. The couple moved from Rochester to Charlevoix in 1973.

Mr. Koontz owned Koontz Building and Remodeling until his retirement in 1994. He loved snowmobiling and he was a member of the Marine Corps League of Petoskey, Charlevoix V.F.W. Post 1153, Charlevoix Masonic Lodge No. 282, and the Ironton Congregational Church.

Survivors include his wife, Lola; two sons, Michael R. Koontz and his wife, Janet L. of Charlevoix, and Matthew R. Koontz of Quito, Ecuador; and two grandchildren, Joshua and Jessica Koontz of Charlevoix. Mr. Koontz was preceded in death by his son, Mark, in 1985.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Thomas H. Arthur

Thomas H. Arthur, 75, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, Nov. 25, 1998, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He was born Aug. 21, 1923 in Detroit, the son of Peter and Elizabeth (Coles) Arthur. He was preceded in death by his parents.

He moved to Charlevoix in 1983 from Detroit.

On May 19, 1952, he married Helen E. Parker in Detroit. She survives him. Also surviving are six children: Timothy (Alice) Arthur of Wayne, Joseph (Shirley) Arthur of Redford, Dorothy (Charles) Metzger of Charlevoix, Pete (Mary) Arthur of East Jordan, Jonathan (Pat) Arthur of Cass City, Lorraine (Joseph) Niswander of Charlevoix, many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Private family services were held at the Charlevoix Community Church of God, and the Rev. Bruce Hamilton officiated. Interment will be in Southern Cemetery in Central Lake Township. Arrangements were handled by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Bethany Lutheran hosts Advent worship series

Advent Midweek Worship Services will be held at Bethany Lutheran Church, 1407 Bridge St., Charlevoix at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 2, 9, and 16.

The worship series, "Advent Blues," will examine the roles of Christ as prophet, priest, and king. All are invited to join us for these special Advent services — you will long remember the "blues" of Advent. Please call the church office (547-9446) for more information.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Once again through the wonders of e-mail, I get to share a special story with you from a special friend. Jan Spurgeon is no stranger to Charlevoix. She is serving on the mission field in Russia with the United Methodist Church and she passed on a story that is more than appropriate for a week where many of us sat down to Thanksgiving dinner with all the trimmings.

There once was a woman who was diagnosed with terminal cancer. She has been given three months to live and her doctor told her she should start making preparations to die (something we all should be doing all of the time). So she contacted her pastor and had him come to her house to discuss certain aspects of her final wishes.

She told him which songs she wanted sung at the service, what scriptures she would like read, and what she wanted to be wearing. The woman also told her pastor that she wanted to be buried with her favorite Bible. Everything was in order and the pastor was preparing to leave when the woman suddenly remembered something very important to her.

"There's one more thing," she said excitedly.

"What's that?" came the pastor's reply.

"This is very important," the woman continued. "I want to be buried with a fork in my right hand."

The pastor stood looking at the woman not knowing quite what to say.

"That shocks you, doesn't it?" the woman asked.

"Well to be honest, I'm puzzled by the request," said the pastor.

The woman explained, "In all my years of attending church socials and functions where food was involved (and let's be honest, food is an important part of any church event; spiritual or otherwise), my favorite part was when whoever was clearing away the dishes of the main course would come over and say, 'You can keep your fork.' It was my favorite part because I knew that something better was coming.

"When they told me to keep my fork, I knew that something great was about to be given to me. It wasn't Jello or pudding. You didn't need a fork for that. It was chocolate cake or cherry pie! When they told me to keep my fork, I knew the best was yet to come!"

"So I just want people to see me there in that casket with a fork in my hand and I want them to wonder, 'What's with the fork?' Then I want you to tell them: 'Something better is coming, so keep your fork too.'"

The pastor's eyes were swelled up with tears of joy as he hugged the woman goodbye. He knew this would be one of the last times he would see her before her death. But he also knew the woman had a better grasp of heaven than he did.

Guests were walking by the woman's casket and they saw the pretty dress she was wearing, noticed her Bible, and clearly saw the fork placed in her right hand. Over and over the pastor heard the question, "What's with the fork?" and over and over he smiled.

During his message, the pastor told of the conversation he had with the woman shortly before she died. He also told them about the fork and what it symbolized to her. The pastor told the people how he could not stop thinking about the fork and told them that they probably would not be able to stop thinking about it either. He was right.

So the next time you reach down for your fork, let it remind you oh so gently, that there is something better coming. I hope everyone had a happy Thanksgiving.

FAMILY

Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Otmanowski

Cheryl Warner and Steven Otmanowski, both of Elgin, Ill., were married Aug. 21, 1998 at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Charles F. Warner of Ellsworth and Jean DuBois of Newport Richey, Fla.

The groom is the son of Chester and Mariann Otmanowski of Charlevoix.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Father Neis in the church decorated with bows made by the bride's mother, which adorned the pews.

The bride, who was escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a gown of white French matte satin enhanced with an array of sequins, pearls and appliques. Her veil was handmade by the bride and her mother. She carried a bouquet of white and lavender florals, including lavender roses, Gerber daisies and white roses.

Music at the ceremony was provided by Maggie Murray, who sang The Wedding Song.

Maid of honor was Carole Wolf, and bridesmaid was Bonnie Johnson. They wore long gowns of heather-colored French satin. Flower girl was Skylar Potter, who wore a gown that matched the bridesmaids.

The mother of the bride wore a deep rose-colored dress, and the mother of the groom wore a soft beige dress.

Ring bearer was Logan Carson. Best man was Robert Timms, and groomsmen were Chuck Otmanowski, brother of the groom.

Ushers were Joe and Ken Otmanowski, also brothers of the groom.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents at the American Legion Hall. The groom's mother and sister hosted a rehearsal dinner at the groom's parent's home in Charlevoix the evening before the wedding.

The couple took a wedding trip to Maui, Hawaii. They are living in Elgin, Ill., where the groom works for United Airlines and the bride works for Haeger Potteries.

Grief support offered to help handle the holidays after loss

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay will offer "Handling the Holidays for Children and Teens in Grief," a program geared toward children and teens who have suffered the loss of a loved one through death.

The session will be from 6:30-7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 7 at the Petoskey United Methodist Church at 1804 E. Mitchell St. in Petoskey.

Any child or teenager and their parents or guardians are encouraged to attend. A separate session for the parents/guardians will be offered. Group discussions and activities will be a part of the format.

"It's important to recognize that there is a difference between the grief of a child and the grief an adult experiences when facing the death of a loved one. Small children often express grief through behavior while teenagers may become withdrawn and closed about discussing it. Our aim at offering this program is to help children and teens through the grief process and also help significant adults in these children's lives understand the dynamics of grief in children," said Gina Wittenberg, family counselor with Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

"Grief around the holidays is especially difficult. Family celebrations obviously have a void left by the death and the pain of the experience is more real when a family gathers together," Wittenberg said.

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay serves residents in a three-county service area which includes Emmet County and parts of Charlevoix and Otsego counties. The session is free but registration is recommended so that the appropriate materials for participants can be available. To register, call 347-9700.

Helpful angels needed

Debra Buckner, a Charlevoix resident and single parent, was diagnosed in July of this year with cancer of the tonsils.

After attending the University of Michigan Hospital and most recently, a hospital in Houston, Texas, she has been undergoing radiation treatments.

The prognosis could require surgery on her neck.

Since July, with no income, her bills have risen to almost $10,000.

If anyone would like to help Debra financially, they may make a contribution to "The Debra Buckner Fund," at the Charlevoix State Bank.

Charlevoix Area Hospital BIRTHING CENTER

"I chose to have my second baby at Charlevoix Area Hospital because of its smaller size and the individual care each patient receives."

"Charlevoix Area Hospital is so peaceful. You get more attention. The nurses made me feel like I was the only patient there."

New ideas, old traditions mixed well in downtown parks

Gary Stutzman leads the Northwest Academy Band in Christmas carols while visitors sing along with the band in Bridge Park.

A live nativity scene (including livestock) in the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park was very popular with the kids. Winter Kyvick (right) soothes a young calf while Kayla Eggers pets the gentle animal.

Jeanine Wallace, owner of the Shop of the Gulls, visits with Linda Hoffman, owner of Interior Motives, while the two serve free cocoa to visitors in Bridge Park.

Use caution with holiday decorations and candles

The holiday season is traditionally a joyful time of the year, but it can also be a dangerous one if caution is not exercised with Christmas trees and holiday lighting.

"In 1997, Michigan fire departments reported a loss of more than $665 million in property values due to fires," said Carl L. English, vice president of electric transmission and distribution for Consumers Energy. Of the 49,627 fires reported in Michigan during 1997, four were attributed to Christmas tree incidents. These holiday fires accounted for property and content losses of $63,250. In December of last year, 297 cooking fires caused $5.4 million in damages, six fires caused by decorations, resulting in damages of 477,100 and 39 incidents of candle fires caused $116,330 in damages.

Last year, 182 deaths and 730 civilian injuries in our state were caused by fires," said Captain Wade Schaefer, State Fire Marshal. "These deaths are particularly tragic when they occur during the holiday season, so we encourage residents to check their smoke detectors to be sure they're operating properly."

Consumers Energy and the State Fire Marshal offer these safe holiday suggestions:

— Choose a fresh Christmas tree and water it frequently. Place the tree in a stand that will not tip over and keep the tree away from heat sources and exit ways.

— Keep burning candles away from decorations and other materials that can catch fire. Do not leave children unattended in a room with lighted candles and remember to keep matches and lighters out of children's reach.

— When decorating with lights, purchase only those labeled by a testing laboratory, such as UL. Check for frayed or damaged cords and replace them. Don't overload electric outlets and always unplug all lights before leaving home or going to sleep.

— When hosting holiday parties, provide guests who smoke with large, deep ashtrays. After the party, remember to check inside and under furniture and in trash cans for smoldering cigarette butts.

— Never leave the stove unattended while cooking. Keep cooking areas clean, wear clothes with tight fitting sleeves, and turn pot handles inward on the stove and out of children's reach.

— Special care should be taken around your fireplace during this season. Make sure the flue is open before starting a fire. Never burn wrappings or a Christmas tree in the fireplace.

— Always keep a fire extinguisher handy.

"Shopping at home gives you more Christmas Presence."

The businesses in the Charlevoix area are strong supporters of community projects. It is only fair, then, that we think of the Charlevoix area first for all our shopping needs.

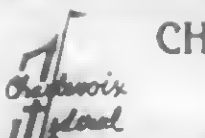

Whether it's sporting events, carnivals, fairs, parades or other community events, the local business community is always there to offer financial assistance for these worthwhile projects. That's also true of support for school projects and activities for the various civic clubs and for other church and charitable activities.

Anytime there is a need in the community, it is the businesses who are asked to respond - and they always do. Area consumers are asked to consider this when making buying decisions. Our businesses can continue to support the various community projects only if the residents of the area continue to patronize our businesses.

And while you're considering that, consider also that our businesses are operated by our friends and neighbors. They are here year-round, paying taxes that help support our schools, as well as the various municipal and county government services that make our quality of life so appealing.

The merchants who are sponsoring this page urge everyone in the Charlevoix area to consider these things and to shop the friendly local businesses for all your needs. Doing so helps keep Charlevoix area businesses strong and in turn helps them help the Charlevoix area to remain strong.

This Christmas ... Shop Charlevoix First.

Safety + Liquidity = Money Market Plus

Even in today's uncertain market, there's still a way to earn high returns without undue risk - The Money Market Plus Account from Standard Federal Bank.

As you can see, the more you deposit the higher the yield. And when you move up a tier by depositing more, you'll earn the higher yield for your entire account balance.

In addition to higher yields than many of today's money funds, Money Market Plus offers other clear advantages. You can withdraw your money at any time with no interest penalties, making this an investment with instant liquidity.

Helping You Along The Way.™

Downtown business celebrates a successful 25 years

By Jamie MacMillan

Over the course of his business's quarter-century of operation, Charlevoix shopkeeper Mike Holmes has seen neighboring stores come and go.

Through all the change, though, Holmes said there has been one constant to doing business in downtown Charlevoix — the cooperative spirit the merchants have toward one another.

"We all do different things and look after each other," the owner of the Appletree said. "We all work together to make Charlevoix an inviting town."

Holmes and his business partner and wife, Barbara, have been celebrating their store's 25th anniversary with a birthday sale throughout this month.

The couple opened the store on Memorial weekend of 1973 and, as they embark upon their second quarter-century of business, have works from over 500 artists packed in their quaint storefront along Charlevoix's Bridge Street.

The latest popular artistic works include stained glass, mouth-blown sun catchers of all varieties, Kathleen Chaney-Fritz's landscape sketches and Jeff Field's bear carvings.

"We needed a creative outlet and we've always been interested in American crafts and giving local artists a chance," Holmes said. "We're always looking for new ones and try to get as much in the store as possible."

Each year, Holmes said he likes to add works from 10-20 new artists to his inventory.

The couple began their business after Holmes retired from a 13-year career as a hydrogeological surveyor for the United States government. The work was good, he recalled, but he was on the road and away from his suburban Detroit home for long stretches of time. The travel was made more difficult by the fact the Holmes felt he was missing out on the lives on his three growing children.

He stepped away from the job and he and his wife parlayed their interest in creative arts into a business. They relocated to Charlevoix, Holmes said, because he discovered the town during his work travels and immediately fell in love with it.

"It definitely is the best city along the Great Lakes," he said.

Big Rock Point names new radiation protection manager

Mark L. Lesinski has been named radiation protection and environmental services manager at Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project. He will be reporting to General Manager, Ken Powers.

Lesinski has more than 20 years of experience in the health physics and radiation protection fields. He has participated in or led several major projects in his assignments at 12 nuclear plants located throughout the United States.

Most recently, Lesinski was president and manager of InteRem, Inc., a company providing radiation protection oversight at nuclear plants. He has helped plan, implement and manage health physics activities related to steam generator replacement and major system piping removal, as well as replacement projects at nine nuclear plants around the country including Consumers Energy's Palisades nuclear plant near South Haven. Lesinski's radiological planning and management of the steam generator replacement project at Palisades set industry standards. He has served as a construction management health physicist, radiation protection engineer and health physics and chemistry technician at other nuclear plants.

Lesinski earned a bachelor's degree in biology from the University of Buffalo and has pursued graduate studies in radiation science. He is certified by the National Registry of Radiation Protection Technologist and is an associate member of the American Academy of Health Physics. He has co-authored two papers concerning radiation protection.

Lesinski replaces Ken Pallagi, a 15-year Big Rock veteran, who will serve as Lesinski's deputy.

"Mark Lesinski's vast industry knowledge and success in safely removing and disposing of large nuclear plant components make him exceptionally qualified for this position as we move into the dismantlement phase at Big Rock Point," said Powers. "Our team's combination of site and industry experience will help us meet our goal of returning the site to a green field in a safe and timely manner."

Lesinski and his wife, Debra, have a daughter, Catherine. They plan to relocate to Charlevoix. Lesinski's interests include physical fitness, including recent participation in a tri-athlete competition in Hawaii.

Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and an important research site for the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down Aug. 29, 1997, after 35 years of service, making it the nation's longest running nuclear plant.

cause it was a summer holiday weekend. The reason for Holmes' sudden confidence, though, was that the store opened a day later than announced. That unexpected closed day brought countless of would be shoppers peeking through the windows and inquiring about merchandise.

"I knew then that we might be on to a good thing," he recalled.

Surviving the winters and springs can sometimes doom fledgling businesses, but Holmes said the secret to his success has been twofold. He reiterated that the downtown merchants support each other, but also that you need to be an extremely hands-on owner to survive the down seasons. If you

Nuke waste will stay at Big Rock for many years

Highly radioactive waste at four nuclear power plants in Michigan may have to remain at the plants for years to come under a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

On Monday, the court justices, without comment, let stand a 1997 ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia that said the federal government need not begin collecting nuclear waste from the states until it comes up with somewhere to put it.

But the ruling also said the U.S. Department of Energy can be sued for monetary damages by utilities and others who have relied on the government having a permanent burial site in place by Feb. 1, 1998. That should put pressure on Congress to get the burial site up and running, Gov. John Engler said Monday.

If it does, that would be good news for Michigan's major utilities, some of which are already storing used nuclear fuel in dry casks along the shore of Lake Michigan.

Consumers Energy, which owns Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant, is already involved with a law suit to make the Department of Energy be responsible for any added financial burden of storing used fuel on site.

Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant is planning to put its used fuel into dry casks in the year 2002. Currently, the plant has its fuel in a spent fuel pool inside the plant.

Some of the fuel in the spent fuel pool has cooled long enough in the spent fuel pool to be removed and shipped to a federal repository as soon as one becomes available.

make yourself available to your clients and look out for their interests even when they may not be shopping by informing them of new merchandise, then they will become buyers regardless of the season.

Along the way, the business has not only achieved financial success, but also family success. Every member of the family of five has

Sometimes dizziness can be cured with simple treatment

When William Trojanek, 77, fell off the fender of the tractor he was riding, he broke seven ribs and a collarbone. But those weren't the worst of his injuries. He soon found that he suffered from severe dizziness. The bones would eventually heal, but the dizziness continued.

The dairy farmer from Boyne City found himself so dizzy that he couldn't bend over to look under a tractor's engine.

"I got dizzy when I got up," Trojanek said. "I didn't dare stand up because I'd fall on the floor."

During his mishap with a tractor in September 1997, Trojanek apparently rattled or hit his head, causing some minor damage to the inner ear, the area of the human body that helps to control our balance, or ability to tell which way is up and down. One of the most common causes of dizziness (vertigo) is BPPV (Benign Paroxysmal Positional Vertigo) where crystals (or otoconia) break loose and begin to swirl around the inner ear canals. This can happen after trauma, but most times the cause is unknown. This swirling of crystals irritates the nerves, making them fire more often, which makes the patient feel dizzy. Simple things such as tipping the head back to look up on a high shelf can cause a person to become so dizzy they lose their balance. This can result in falling injuries such as fractured hips and broken bones. Fortunately for Trojanek and others suffering from (BPPV), a simple therapy can reduce, and in most cases, eliminate the symptoms of dizziness.

"Removing those crystals from the canals and getting them back in the vestibule can stop the vertigo," said Nina Leib, a physical therapist at Boyne Rehabilitation Center in Boyne City, a satellite office of Charlevoix Area Hospital. Leib is certified by the American Board of Physical Therapists, and has received additional training in BPPV therapy at the Ear, Nose and Throat Clinic in Ann Arbor.

Leib treated William Trojanek about 10 weeks after his tractor fall. Trojanek said he was cured after one treatment.

Wearing a pair of Frenzel glasses, which magnify the patient's eye movements so the therapist can see any flickering of the eyes, Trojanek laid down on a cot. Leib held his head over the side and gently shook his head to one side and then the other. The crystals in Trojanek's inner ear were "rattled" back in place.

"It's quite amazing that these movements can cure it," Leib said. The treatment usually involves two visits, one to diagnose the problem and another to verify that the first treatment worked.

Trojanek recommends anyone suffering from dizziness to try the BPPV treatments.

"I don't know if they'd have as good a result as I did, but it can't get any worse (from the treatment)," Trojanek said. "One doctor told me if I didn't get better he was going to send me to Ann Arbor."

Earlier treatments from vertigo for Trojanek included medications that made him drowsy, too drowsy to operate heavy equipment.

"Now how am I going to farm if I can't use heavy equipment?" Trojanek asked.

The new BPPV treatment is available from physical therapists without medications or surgeries, Leib said. Nearly 50 percent of the population over 60 years old will have vertigo at some time, she said.

The typical picture for BPPV is that positions and head movements elicit dizziness that lasts less than two minutes. It's not uncommon for patients to complain of discomfort when getting up from lying on their back. Leib said it's important to differentiate between vertigo (a spinning sensation) or if a person's vision goes black. If vision is involved, it usually indicates circulation problems.

Other causes for vertigo can include inner ear infections and Meniere's disease. Occasionally people don't heal properly from an inner ear infection. Exercises and treatments exist that can help in these types of cases.

The therapy that Leib offers does require a doctor's referral. Leib has successfully treated about 20 patients. For more information call Boyne Rehab Center at 582-6365.

Community chorale presents annual Festival of Carols

At 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6, the Charlevoix Area Community Chorale and Orchestra will present its annual Festival of Carols at the Charlevoix Congregational Church, located at the corner of Park and State streets.

Featured during the program will be John Rutter's "Magnificat" with Barbara Dowty, Charlevoix soprano as soloist, and Ellen Addington as conductor.

St. Luke's account tells of Mary's outpouring of praise and joy in hearing that she was to be giving birth to Christ. This passage of scriptures has become known as the Magnificat, the Song of Mary, or Mary's Canticle.

John Rutter writes that his music was obviously influenced by the joyous celebrations in Puerto Rico, Mexico and Spain during the feast days of the Virgin. People celebrated with processions and singing and dancing in the streets. The music of this Magnificat reflects this feeling of great joy.

Following this short work will be a Festival of Carols, including the congregation, chorale and orchestra. By request, the orchestra will perform two of Leroy Anderson's perennial seasonal favorites — "A Christmas Festival" and "Sleigh Ride."

The chorale will also be performing Faure's "Cantique de Jean Racine" and Rutter's "The Very Best Time of Year."

The public is cordially invited to attend. There is no charge but a free offering will be accepted. A reception will follow the program.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Charlevoix ambassadors host business breakfast

The Ambassadors of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce are hosting a Business Breakfast at 7:30 a.m. Friday, Dec. 4 at the Grey Gables Inn.

The featured speaker will be Doug Roberts, past treasurer of the State of Michigan. The cost of the breakfast special is $5.

Choral society hosts community sing

Little Traverse Choral Society is giving a Christmas gift to the community. After a hiatus of several years, the society is renewing its tradition of holding a Messiah Community Sing. This event will take place Sunday, Dec. 6, at First Presbyterian Church of Petoskey with an open rehearsal at 7 p.m. and performance at 7:45 p.m. Part I of Handel's classic work will be sung using the Schirmer score.

Music director of the society, Katharine Trumble, has selected soloists for the arias and recitatives after conducting open auditions for interested singers. The choruses will be sung by the audience and the choral society. Accompaniment will be provided by Wayne Wyrembelski, organist at Gaylord's Saint Mary's Cathedral.

Everyone in the community is invited to attend as a singer or listener. Bring your score if you have one or there will be scores available to use. Thanks to the generosity of NBD Bank there will be no admission charge. Just come along to enjoy this glorious music of the Christmas season. For information, please call the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce at 347-4150.

Cookie walk solves holiday baking problems

The First Congregational Church U.C.C. of Charlevoix is hosting a Christmas Cookie Walk in the fellowship hall at 9 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 5, to help busy working women.

Customers may come to the church and purchase decorated coffee cans for $8, $10 or $12. Then they walk around the room and fill their cans with beautiful and delicious Christmas cookies. It's quick, easy and fun. Chairpersons for the event are Myrtle Fulton, Nancy Fowler and Nan VandenBerg. For more information, call the church at 547-9122.

Financial aid workshop offers help for college-bound students

Charlevoix High School counselors Toni Felter and John Prescott will be hosting a Financial Aid Workshop for college-bound juniors and seniors and their parents from 7-8:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 7 in the high school study hall. They will hand out FAFSA forms and discuss scholarships.

Garden club hosts annual holiday luncheon

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will host their annual Christmas luncheon and the installation of their new officers at noon Tuesday, Dec. 8 at Mahogany's Restaurant in the Charlevoix Country Club. The club is now taking reservations for the luncheon.

Hostess of the event is Rebecca Haney, with co-hostesses Anne Hansen and Alice Irving.

After the luncheon the club will have the installation of officers, special awards and holiday music to round out a very special holiday event. For more information call Joan Knecht at 547-5072.

Methodist church hosts bazaar and bake sale

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church is hosting a bazaar and bake sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5 at their church, located at 104 State St., Charlevoix. Items available at the sale include many special Christmas gifts and goodies.

Chorale and barber shoppers to perform

The 60-voice Northern Michigan Chorale and the Petoskey Gaslite Chorus Barbershoppers will perform from 7:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 8 in the First Presbyterian Church on Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey. Each group will give a 20-minute performance and then combine their talents for the final segment of Holiday songs.

A goodwill offering will be taken with proceeds to be donated to The Manna Project which provides food for the needy every week of the year.

Pet pictures with Santa offered

All pets are invited to have their picture taken with Santa and his elves at the County Post in Charlevoix from 9 a.m. till 12 noon Saturday, Dec. 5.

The cost is only $5 per picture. Proceeds benefit the new shelter.

Food drive and child identification sponsored by realtor

A canned food drive is being paired with a child identification process to help the people of the community.

Canned food may be dropped off at any Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtor office in northern Michigan, and locally at Oma's Breakfast Club in Oleson's Shopping Center, through Dec. 15.

A child identification process, which includes fingerprinting and a photo, will take place from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 19 at any Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtor offices.

For more information, call Terry Fillmore at 547-4444.

SCRAPBOOK

Singing has always been an integral part of Charlevoix

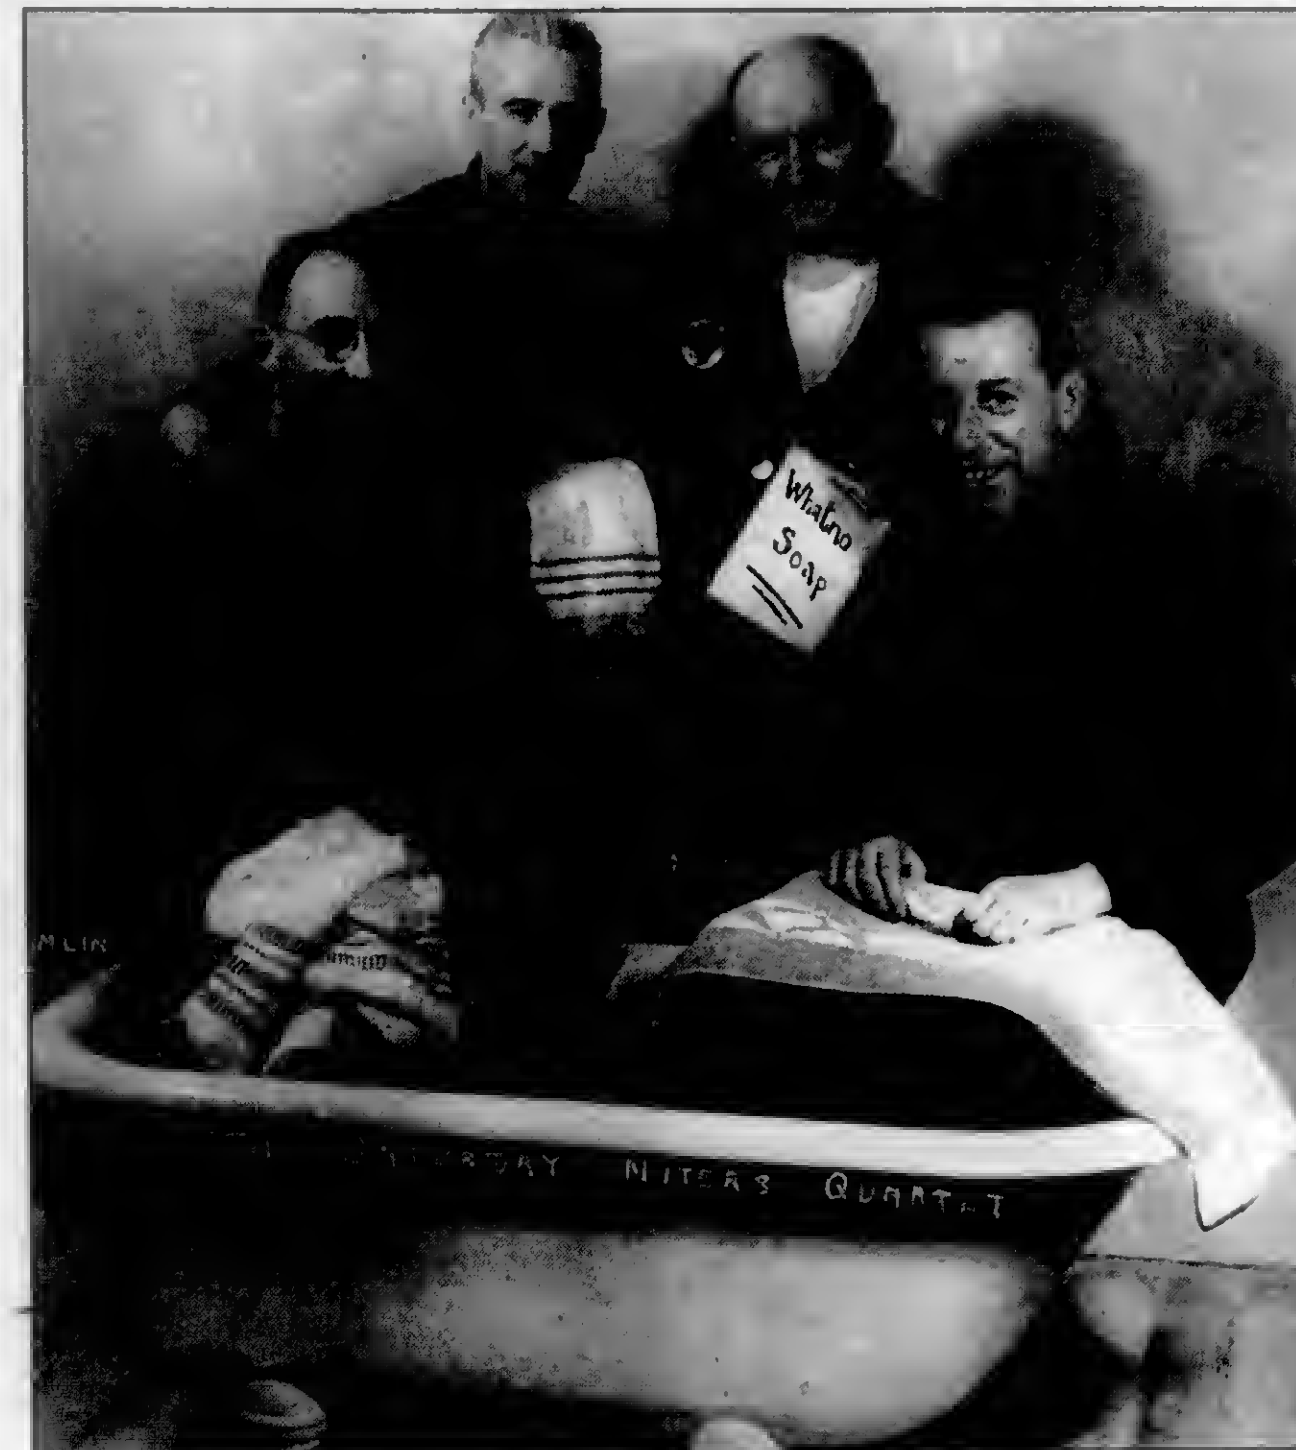

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

World War I is rarely remembered for its music or its musicians. This is due in part to the lack of archival records or letters about the men who took their musical talent across the Atlantic Ocean. Such soldiers were trained in lifting the spirits of fighting personnel through music that later carried through to their civilian life. One such Charlevoix soldier of note was Doug Nettleton.

Born Douglas C. Nettleton in July of 1894 to David and Rosa Nettleton of Charlevoix, Doug grew up uneventfully with brother Arthur and well-respected parents.

After his graduation from Charlevoix High School in 1911, little is known of Nettleton's activities other than he spent some time playing in the band for the famous Hagenbeck and Wallace Circus.

In May of 1918, at the age of 24, Nettleton eagerly joined approximately two million other young volunteers of the American Expeditionary Forces as they prepared to assist in ending of World War I. Departing the Charlevoix railroad station, he and several other young recruits journeyed through Grand Rapids on their way to Waco, Texas for a hot and humid summer of military training. Mustered in as a private and classified as a musician first class, second occupation pharmacist, Nettleton (#451576) was assigned to the Headquarters Platoon, H.Q. Company, 64th Infantry in July and was in France by September. Once there, Nettleton saw little action, but traveled heavily as his unit was sent place to place to entertain troops, interrupted only by rumors of peace along the way. Many of his experiences were recorded and mailed to his mother, Rosa, who kept and bound the letters in a journal for his return in July, 1919. While lacking in the trench warfare and gas attacks descriptions witnessed by other Charlevoix veterans, Nettleton eloquently penned the rare, day-to-day experiences of military life and the French people during this tumultuous period of history.

After returning to Charlevoix, Nettleton pursued a degree in dentistry. He earned a board certification for pharmacy in July, 1921 while living in Manton, Mich. In 1930, he was awarded a degree in dentistry from the University of Michigan. Nettleton then established a practice in Perry, Mich. Two years later he married his longtime girlfriend, Hilda Hyers of

They had originally met while both worked at the Central Drug Store.

In 1936, the couple returned to Charlevoix to build and open a dentist office. This office, located on Clinton Street, is now occupied by Dr. Robert Martin.

Once in Charlevoix, Nettleton wasted little time in taking up the ham radio. He also offered his home's basement to the local barber shoppers as a singing venue. Nettleton sang in such quartets as the "Saturday Neters" and the "Ballad Benders" with Charlie "Voice of an Angel" Hamlin as second tenor, Nettleton as first tenor, Dr. Gilbert Saltonstall, baritone, and Rev. C. Evans as bass. Besides participating in local and West Michigan venues, Nettleton offered his home for several of the annual Labor Day barber shopper jamborees.

Nettleton remained in Charlevoix until moving his practice to Manton, Mich. in 1949. It was there that he suffered a stroke in July, 1956 that forced him into early retirement and back to Charlevoix. Two years later, on July 13, Douglas Nettleton passed away, after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage nine days earlier. His widow remarried Richard Meyer and remained in Charlevoix until her death in June 1989.

If you would like to learn more about local veterans or musical groups contact Harsha House Museum Director Betsy Reynolds for an appointment at 547-0373.

Employees needed training on computers

share of breakdowns amid the lunch rush also causing delays in student lunch lines. The high and middle schools are both on their second set of card swipers and power packs while keyboards and screens have periodically frozen throughout the year.

"We kind of got a lemon," Ward joked of their original equipment.

Employees in each lunch room said they weren't properly trained with the machines. A company official briefly visited each lunchroom for a few minutes on the first day of school, but lunchroom employees have been learning the ropes on the fly.

Lori Brown, employee in the high school lunchroom, said a particular trouble is when the wrong button gets swiped on the machine, there seems to be no natural, quick way to correct that mistake.

The machines, though, have helped create a more efficient lunch time at the elementary school.

Prior to this year, classroom teachers were in charge of students' lunch tickets and had to sort, organize and replace any lost tickets during class time. Now each student is equipped with new lunch cards for the computers. The school keeps each card in a storage rack on the lunch kitchen wall, organized in columns according to what class the student is in. It looks very similar to a work place time card area. Students grab their cards while in line, use it for their meals and place them back into their slots when lunch is over.

Principal Richard Swenor said the switch has saved class time, giving each teacher more time to teach rather than worry about lunch organization.

Added teacher Pat Carland, "There was a lot of red tape involved with keeping track of lunch tickets. It's so much better now."

How To Kill A BUSINESS ... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Consumers Energy contributes to fire fighting equipment fund

To recognize Big Rock Point's long cooperative relationship with local fire fighting agencies, the Consumers Energy Foundation has awarded a $5,000 grant to the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Fighters Association for the purchase of a thermal imager.

The Fire Fighters Association has been raising funds for the thermal imager since April. With the Big Rock donation, it has now raised about $14,800 toward the $18,500 goal.

The thermal imager will give fire fighters and emergency medical technicians (EMTs) the ability to see through dense smoke and darkness to locate trapped or unconscious victims.

During a fire, smoke is often the greatest enemy of fire fighters. It can be so thick that they are unable to see even a few inches ahead. Fire fighters often compromise their personal safety when they enter a building to search for victims they cannot see or hear. The thermal imaging camera will enable fire fighters to see through dense smoke and move around in a room quickly and safely, checking inside closets, under beds, and other places frightened people seek shelter during a fire. Using the thermal imager can cut the time needed to find a victim by up to 50 percent.

In addition to helping the fire fighters and EMTs, the imager also will assist the Charlevoix City Police and Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department to find victims in water or dense woods.

"Big Rock Point remains steadfast to its safety commitment, and we are encouraged to see a similar commitment in our community organizations. The grant for the thermal imager is characteristic of our long-term alliance with our local fire fighters association," said site general manager Ken Powers.

"Throughout the years, Consumers Energy has been a good neighbor to the Charlevoix community. Their donation will help save the lives and property of local individuals," said Tom Meggison, co-chairman of the thermal imager fund.

The Consumers Energy Foundation is the philanthropic arm of Consumers Energy. It provides funding to areas including education, the environment, Michigan growth and enhancement, culture and the arts, social services and emerging issues. In 1998, the foundation will make approximately $1.5 million in charitable investments throughout Michigan.

Consumers Energy, the principle subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation, is Michigan's largest natural gas and electric utility serving more than six million of the state's nine and one-half million residents in all 68 lower peninsula counties.

Enjoy your shopping in the city of white lights - Charlevoix

The City of Charlevoix is rapidly being converted to a City of White Lights, thanks to the merchants and city workers who have blanketed the town with sparkling white lights.

For the first time ever, Bridge Park glows with the warmth of seven Christmas trees lit up and decorated by the Charlevoix Elementary School children. Up and down the streets, merchants have decorated their windows with white lights and white gift items, stressing the theme of City of White Lights this year.

Everyone is invited to enjoy the white decorations when they come to the Charlevoix Open House, which begins at 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5 with the arrival of Santa.

Santa will arrive by city fire truck at the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets. There, he will greet children and pass out goodies.

Children are also invited to Charlevoix Cinema III for a free, full length holiday film feature, which will begin at 2 p.m. and is sponsored by Citizens Bank.

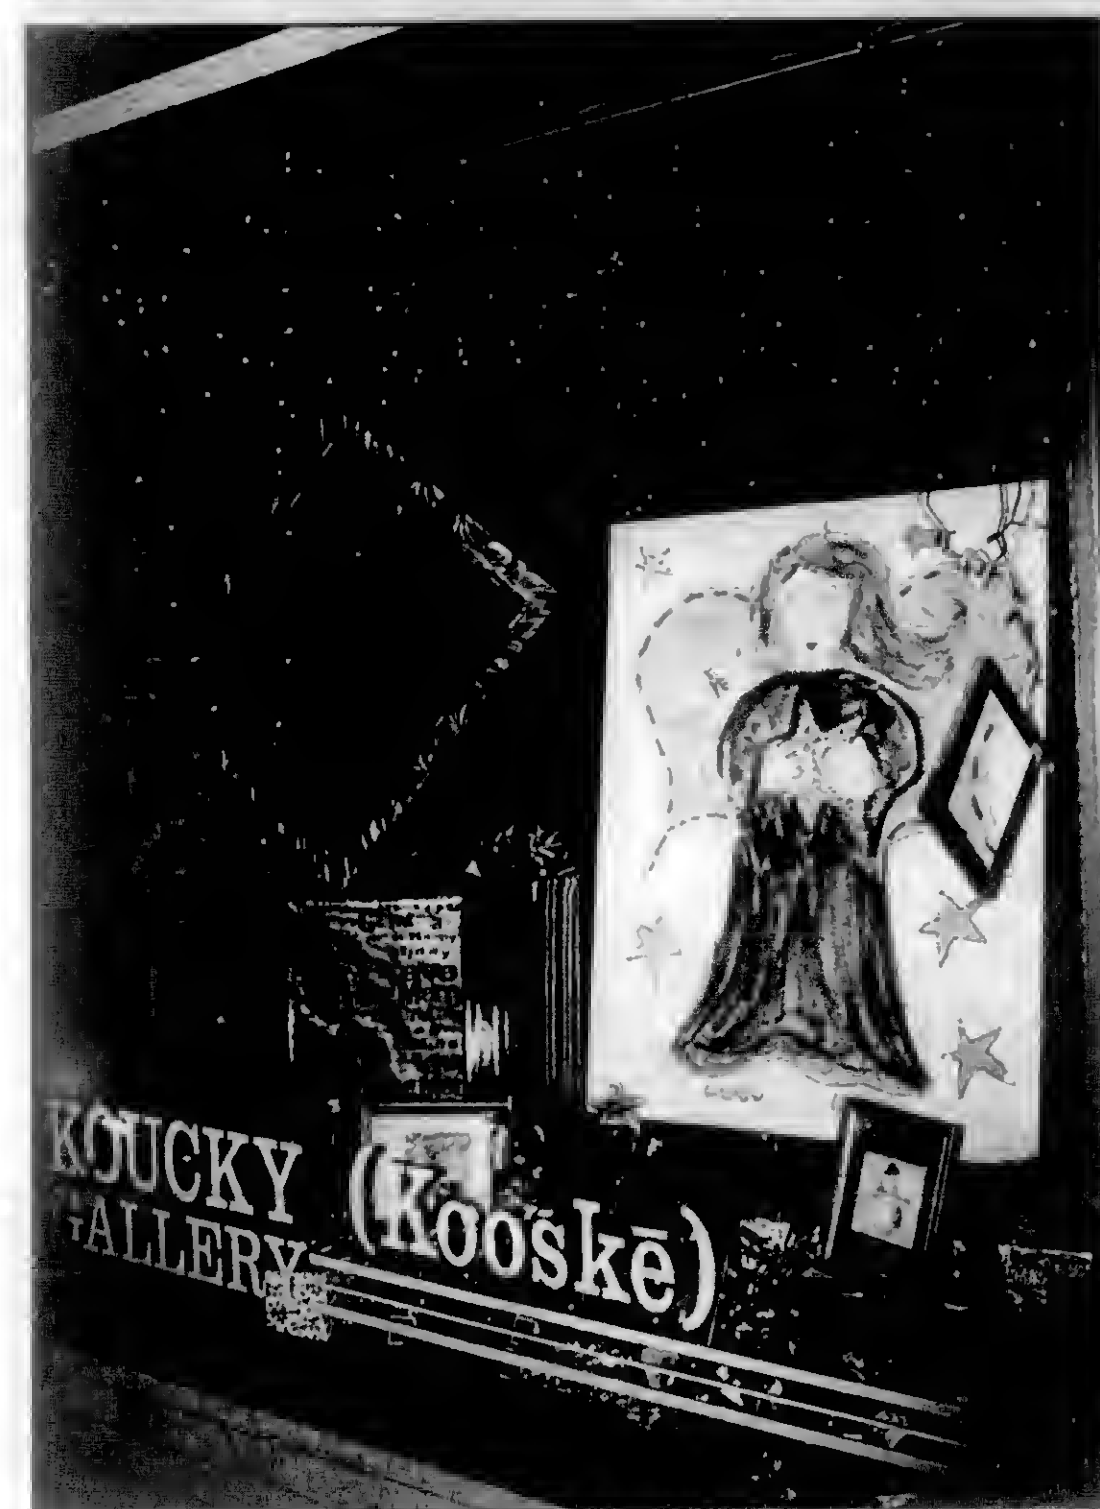

While children enjoy the movie, parents are free to visit the stores of Charlevoix and participate in the Shopping Spree planned for the day.

Window dressing

All the merchants chose to go with a white theme this year for their window decorations.

Move over, Neiman's - Charlevoix can beat your offer

Interior Motives, owned by Linda Hoffman, is offering a bedroom suite of furniture and bedding for a queen.

Above: Shop of the Gulls has a wide variety of Waterford crystal, guaranteed to please anyone on your Christmas list.

Right: This mermaid is the perfect accoutrement for an indoor or outdoor fountain, offered at The Appletree.

'Tis the season when we get swamped with holiday gift catalogs. Although we might not resist browsing through them, The Neiman Marcus catalog is always a holiday favorite, with its incredible items for sale at prices that would set most of us back by a year's worth of income.

But oh, what fun to think about it.

After some extensive store browsing in town, we've discovered that Neiman Marcus has nothing on Charlevoix. The local merchants can offer holiday gifts and package deals to rival almost anything in the world-famous catalog. So if the stock market was good to you this year, and the sky's the limit for your Christmas budget, see what local merchants have to offer you.

The Appletree

Mike Holmes, owner of the Appletree, is offering the perfect item for the person who wants to spend a few relaxing moments being quiet and reflective while enjoying classic old world beauty and charm — a brass mermaid fountain with a verdigris patina finish and granite pool. This fountain will bring energy and elegance to your garden or interior of your home. Comes with a submersible recirculating pump for just $2,193.14.

Also offered at the Appletree is a Tiffany-style lamp to enhance any room, for a mere $958.70. The lamp would no doubt look exquisite shining its light on a beautiful set of 12 handmade and hand-painted French cereal bowls and coffee mugs, which sell for $761.93. A box of Special K, valued at $3.59, is included with the dishes.

And what would be the compelling reason to indulge in these delights?

"You only live once," Holmes said.

Carey's Shoes

Before you tackle Mt. Everest, the adventuresome hiker might want to train right here in town at Mt. McSaubia. Randy Carey, owner of Carey's Shoes, is offering the "Mt. McSaubia, Randy has one thing to say — "Try it if you think it's so easy."

Interior Motives
Would you like to sleep the pampered slumber of royalty? If so, Linda Hoffman, owner of Interior Motives, recommends the Ivana Trump Bedroom Set: a queen-size, wrought iron canopy bed fit for royalty, lovingly covered with a five-piece tapestry duvet set. When not stored in your hand-painted trunk, a luxurious chenille throw drapes the foot of the bed for those extra cool evenings. An artist-inspired handmade lamp sits atop a one-of-a-kind, four-foot tall jewelry chest. The Ivana Trump Bedroom Set sells for $5,800.

"Pamper yourself after a long, hard day by retreating to your special world," Hoffman said. "Opulence only starts to describe this

Do you want your Christmas tree to sparkle with the brilliance of diamonds? Then trim it entirely with Waterford crystal ornaments. Jeanine Wallace, owner of the store, carries an extensive line of Waterford crystal, including four different styles of crystal ornaments for the tree. A tree-trimming crystal package of 200 ornaments will cost you $9,000. However, Wallace will be happy to sell the ornaments individually for $45 each. ## Charlevoix Area Community Chorale to perform

Start the season with favorite carols

At 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6, the Charlevoix Area Community Chorale and Orchestra will present its annual Festival of Carols at the Charlevoix Congregational Church, located at the corner of Park and State streets.

Featured during the program will be John Rutter's "Magnificat" with Barbara Dowty, Charlevoix soprano as soloist, and Ellen Addington as conductor.

St. Luke's account tells of Mary's outpouring of praise and joy in hearing that she was to be giving birth to Christ. This passage of scriptures has become known as the Magnificat, the Song of Mary, or Mary's Canticle. John Rutter writes that his music was obviously influenced by the joyous celebrations in Puerto Rico, Mexico and Spain during the feast days of the Virgin. People celebrated with processions and singing and dancing in the streets. The music of this Magnificat reflects this feeling of great joy.

Following this short work will be a Festival of Carols, including the congregation, chorale and orchestra. By request, the orchestra will perform two of Leroy Anderson's perennial seasonal favorites — "A Christmas Festival" and "Sleigh Ride."

The chorale will also be performing Faure's "Cantique de Jean Racine" and Rutter's "The Very Best Time of Year."

The public is cordially invited to attend. There is no charge but a free will offering will be accepted. A reception will follow the program.

Some members of the First Congregational Church Choir (shown here) also sing in the Charlevoix Area Community Chorale, which will be performing this Sunday at 4 p.m.

Great gifts for under $5,000 or so suggest you hang the ornaments higher on the tree."

And for those people who are already planning for the millennium, Wallace carries a Waterford crystal, millennium wine holder. ## Where are we? At North Point or the North Pole?

Just when you think it can't get any bigger or grander, it does.

The home of Dale and Marilyn Boss, also known in Charlevoix as Santa's Workshop, is an ever-increasing display of lights, characters, elves and holiday spirit.

Consider this: The Bosses place 232 display pieces around their property, spend $500 for electricity to light the display for the month of December, work like elves on overtime for a month, rising at 5:30 a.m. to prepare the scene, erect 10 Christmas trees in their A-frame home and greet 800 people who come to visit Santa on Christmas Eve.

In past years, Dale tapped into his neighbor's electrical outlets as well as his own to get enough power for the lighted display. (Of course, he paid his neighbor's electric bill).

But that wasn't enough. Last year, Dale had new, 200 ampere electrical service installed just to run the Christmas display. The Big Bird figure alone, which is darned near as tall as the house, has 1,200 lights on it.

When asked how many total lights they have, neither Dale nor Marilyn could hazard a guess. So why do they do it?

"You get out of this life what you put into it," Dale said. "To me, the kids are everything. I don't care what it costs. I never saw a Brink's truck following a hearse to the cemetery when you're gone, so it doesn't matter what it costs."

Marilyn builds all the display figures, cutting them from plywood and then hand-painting them.

From 6-9 p.m. Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, Dale and Marilyn will be dressed as Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, greeting children and parents. Dale's Model T car will be parked on the lawn, crammed with oversized stuffed animals.

After visiting the Boss home Christmas Eve, local kids are convinced that Santa doesn't live on the North Pole — he lives on North Point.

As the Bosses prepare for this season, folks are already driving by, checking to see if Santa's workshop is up and running. Dale and Marilyn take time out from their tasks to chat with people and give them a personal tour of the property.

If you need a lift during the holiday season, take some time to drive by the Boss home on Maple Street in North Point and visit with the Bosses. It will renew your faith in the holiday spirit.

Holidays bring the sound of Christmas music

Charlevoix school bands to perform

The Charlevoix Public Schools invite the community to the annual Christmas concert at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10 in the high school gymnasium.

The program features the seventh, eighth and high school concert bands, as well as the new Charlevoix Jazz Lab band.

The seventh grade band will perform first, playing the march from the Notebook for Anna Magdalena Bach, Chesapeake Overture, Rockin on the Roof and Doo-Wah Dixieland. The eighth grade band will follow, performing the following selections: March of the Irish Guard, Adirondack Overture, I Heard the Bells and Brookpark Overture. The Jazz Lab band will next perform All About the Blues and Night Train. The Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band will conclude the program with Flourish for Wind Band, Overture in B Flat, Russian Christmas Music, Trilogy of European Carols, Cantique De Noel and the March from Third Suite by Robert Jager.

There will be a dessert social immediately following the concert in the cafeteria, as well as door prizes awarded during the course of the evening. The new Charlevoix Audio Yearbook CD will be played over the gymnasium sound system. The CDs may be purchased for $11.95 that evening. Proceeds go toward the upkeep of the recording studio and the Charlevoix Creative Coalition.

If the concert is postponed due to inclement weather, it will be performed at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 17 in the high school gym.

Area youth choir gives first performance

Everyone is invited to experience the Traverse Symphony Orchestra, accompanied by coloratura mezzo soprano Hilerie Klein and the Crooked Tree Arts Council Youth Choir at 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13 at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey. It is the first public performance for the Youth Choir, under the direction of Katharine Trumble.

The concert is the second in the Crooked Tree Arts Council 1998-99 Concert Series Season.

Whether you are in the mood for the thunderous crescendo of drums, the soft air of flutes and clarinets, or riding the smooth waves of strings, the Traverse Symphony Orchestra, conducted by David Holland, is just the ticket. The orchestra is Michigan's only professional orchestra north of Grand Rapids and the musicians hail from throughout northern Michigan.

Hilerie Klein will perform with the orchestra. Klein is a coloratura mezzo soprano performing with the Tri-Cities Opera in New York, while also doing graduate work and teaching voice at SUNY-Binghamton.

Originally from Chicago, she holds a bachelor degree in vocal performance from the Cleveland Institute of Music and spent three years and several summers at Interlochen Center for the Arts. She is the recipient of the Boris Goldovsky Prize in Opera and the Interlochen Arts Camp honored her as Best Female Principle in the past 25 years of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. Music critic Donald Rosenberg of the Cleveland Plain Dealer said of Klein, "... a mellifluous mezzo... and an incisive way with words."

The Crooked Tree Arts Council Youth Choir will perform for the first time during the concert. Choir director and Crooked Tree Arts Council board member Katharine Trumble is thrilled with the response to the youth choir.

The first question many of the children and parents involved was, "Will the choir continue after the holiday performance?" The answer is a hopeful "yes," according to arts council executive director Michelle Conklin.

"There is a need for such a choir in Emmet and Charlevoix counties," Conklin said. "We hope the interest in the youth choir will continue to grow so that the children can be a part of a wonderful choir."

The Youth Choir is comprised of youth in third through seventh grades from Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Tickets are available for the Holiday Concert at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey and at the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs. Prices are $15 for adults and $8 for students.

Book Angel Project wings into its fifth season

Bridge Street Book Shop is announcing the fifth annual Book Angel Program as part of the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project. Last year, over 400 books were delivered to less fortunate children in Charlevoix County.

People may stop by the book shop and select an Angel from the Christmas tree. Each Angel represents a child of a specific age and gender. A book may then be selected for that child and purchased at a 20 percent discount. The book shop staff will gift wrap the book and deliver it to the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project to be distributed with other gifts for families in need. The goal is to have all Angels claimed from the book shop Christmas Tree by Dec. 16.

Bridge Street Book Shop holiday hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Wednesdays, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursdays, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Thank you for supporting the Book Angel Project so that all children may enjoy the gift of wondrous stories.

Happy holidays from everyone at Bridge Street Book Shop.

Church bazaars and bake sales are a big help for busy folks

The First Congregational Church U.C.C. of Charlevoix is hosting a Christmas Cookie Walk in the fellowship hall at 9 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 5., to help busy working women.

Customers may come to the church and purchase decorated coffee cans for $8, $10 or $12. Then they walk around the room and fill their cans with beautiful and delicious Christmas cookies. It's quick, easy and fun. Chairpersons for the event are Myrtle Fulton, Nancy Fowler and Nan VandenBerg.

For more information, call the church at 547-9122.

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church is hosting a bazaar and bake sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5 at their church, located at 104 State St., Charlevoix. Items available at the sale include many special Christmas gifts and goodies.

The Boyne City United Methodist Church is hosting its annual Christmas Bazaar from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5. Featured items will be an extensive Barbie Doll collection, a New and Next-to-New Shop, a Bake Shoppe,

Choral society hosts community sing

Little Traverse Choral Society is giving a Christmas gift to the community. After a hiatus of several years, the society is renewing its tradition of holding a Messiah Community Sing. This event will take place Sunday, Dec. 6, at First Presbyterian Church of Petoskey with an open rehearsal at 7 p.m. and performance at 7:45 p.m. Part I of Handel's classic work will be sung using the Schirmer score.

Music director of the society, Katharine Trumble, has selected soloists for the arias and recitatives after conducting open auditions for interested singers. The choruses will be sung by the audience and the choral society. Accompaniment will be provided by Wayne Wyrembelski, organist at Gaylord's Saint Mary's Cathedral.

Everyone in the community is invited to attend as a singer or listener. Bring your score if you have one or there will be scores available to use. Thanks to the generosity of NBD Bank there will be no admission charge. Just come along to enjoy this glorious music of the Christmas season. For information, please call the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce at 347-4150.

The man and the pen behind the Voices on the Water

By Laurie Lounsbury

In his new book, Voices on the Water, Glen Ruggles did something most writers don't have the will power to do — he got out of the way.

Exercising admirable self-restraint, Ruggles let the people who have deep roots in the Antrim County Chain of Lakes do the story-telling in their own voices.

The result is an unvarnished, poignant and frequently amusing account of life along the water, both past and present.

An easy-going man and a good listener, Ruggles is a skilled artisan in the craft of compiling oral histories.

"I love oral history," Ruggles said. "It's a contemporary approach to history, and it's a blast for me."

"It's quite an art, and I didn't realize it until I started with it," he continued. "When I leave an interview, I don't want them to know any more about me than when I came in. I don't want to color an interview with my opinion or start swapping stories. I know I did a good job when they ask me to stay for dinner."

It took Ruggles 12 years to compile the interviews of 38 people who live along Torch Lake, Clam Lake and other bodies of water that make up the 75-mile chain of inland waterways. Creating the book was an enduring act of devotion for the man who wanted to protect the stories and preserve the waters in the area he's loved with a passion since his childhood, when his family moved to Elk Rapids in the 1940s.

As a former history teacher, Ruggles had a natural interest in the Chain of Lakes area history.

"I hadn't found any history of the Chain of Lakes," Ruggles said. "People don't know about the chain, and the maps are often poorly done, so you can't tell it's a chain."

When Ruggles started his task of compiling the history of the area, he envisioned a book of 200 pages with 100 photographs.

It's not too much too ask — just think of Charlevoix First

By Laurie Lounsbury

While planning their new campaign to promote shopping in Charlevoix, the chamber of commerce board of directors found themselves stumped by one question — What can't you get in Charlevoix?

Well, maybe a life-sized, six-foot-tall stuffed Barney doll can't be bought locally.

And a pair of hippo toenail clippers are darned hard to find in town.

Yes, it might be tough to get a pair of Rossignol GX racing skis for your junior racer in Charlevoix. But think about it. Just about everything else on your shopping list, both during the holidays and all year long, is probably right here in Charlevoix.

"So many things are right here in town that people don't know about," said Laurie Lesser Hodgson, a volunteer for the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce committee to promote shopping in Charlevoix.

Steve Andrae, chairman of the chamber of commerce board of directors, announced that the group is launching a new campaign called "Charlevoix First."

"This is not really a Christmas promotion exclusively, but a year-round concept," Andrae said.

In essence, the concept is to encourage people in Charlevoix to give consideration to their local stores before shopping elsewhere.

"Before getting in your car and heading for the malls, catalog shopping or logging onto the Internet, we'd like people to think of Charlevoix first," Andrae said.

Loyalty and community spirit are driving forces behind the campaign. Andrae noted that many businesses and companies in town support local charities, school groups, organizations and clubs. It would serve everyone well to return the favor and support the businesses in town.

"Everyone in this community wants a vibrant downtown, and if we don't support it, that won't happen," Andrae said.

businesses have moved into the formerly empty retail spaces, the chamber of commerce would like to see the community support the new and existing shops.

"If we don't support these people, they're going to go away," Lesser Hodgson said.

Lesser Hodgson is quick to point out the advantages of shopping locally. She recently bought office furniture at Michigan Officeways, where they assembled the furniture for her.

"Do you think they would have assembled it for me if I'd bought it at Sams Club?" she asked, stressing that local businesses often provide more service for their products than the bigger stores in the cities.

Another myth to shopping locally is that merchants here charge more for items found in catalogs or big chain stores.

Not true. Shoppers have reported finding name brand sunglasses and shoes in town that either cost the same or less than in catalogs or at other locations.

While the chamber board acknowledges that a family shopping trip out of town is a fun event, they would like to see people do a portion of their shopping in town.

"You need to give them (the local merchants) the opportunity to show what they have to offer, at least by going in the stores and looking," Andrae said.

"We still have a town and shops and neighbors to think about," Lesser Hodgson added. "It will all go away if we don't help keep them in business."

When shopping locally, Andrae recommends that shoppers look for the Charlevoix First logo to help support members of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Sno Challenge is canceled for 1999 winter season

Crowds and drinking contributed to event's demise

By Laurie Lounsbury

An event that started decades ago as a fun family wintertime gathering grew and evolved into something that left the locals out of the loop.

Because of that, and for other safety concerns, the 1999 Sno Challenge has been canceled.

City manager Mike Wiesner met with the event coordinators, the city police chief and the county sheriff to discuss the future of the Mt. McSaubia Sno Challenge. They all decided the event, which drew 7,000 people last year, wasn't really in the public's best interest.

"The event just got too big from where it started," said city recreation director and event coordinator Ike Boss. "It became a big drunk. We want to get back to being a family event. Everyone was in complete agreement about this decision."

Wiesner cited similar reasons when he read a prepared statement to the city council at their regular Monday night meeting.

"Some of the concerns regarding the event are the high level of congestion in the area, complaints to the sheriff's department regarding trespassing by snowmobilers, excessive drinking by spectators at the event and concerns from the general public that the event was a family event; some parents and children are no longer attending due to the change in the flavor of the event," Wiesner said.

Looking to the future, Wiesner said the city would like to host a public forum, similar to the forum held to discuss the Venetian Festival, to determine what type of winterfest could be offered in lieu of the Sno Challenge.

"This isn't a permanent thing, to cancel the event," Boss said. "We just need a one year hiatus to see what we can put together in future years."

In its early years, Sno Challenge consisted of downhill ski races for area kids, Bump Jump races, Thundertube races, and snowmobile hill climbs on the steepest run at the hill — Suicide.

Over the years, the snowmobile hill climbs were moved from Suicide to the front face of the hill, and became a side-by-side racing format. The Thundertube races fell by the wayside a few years ago when they were determined to be too dangerous.

Added to the event in the past seven or eight years were truck hill climbs, where four-wheel trucks raced side by side up the ski hill.

While the truck and snowmobile climbs drew large crowds, they were not well received by people living near the ski hill whose front lawns were trampled by crowds and chewed up by snowmobiles.

"You have to remember, when we started this event there was vacant land across from Mt. McSaubia — now there's a 50 home subdivision," Wiesner said.

Boss also said the proximity of homes to the ski hill changed everyone's thinking about the event. "The biggest factor was the location," Boss said. "It's too residential, with no parking. I think if we had the space to handle the parked cars, we would still be having it this year."

Still slated to be hosted this winter for families are the ski and snowboard races. Last year, the races were moved to a week night. The move was "extremely well-received by parents and racers."

"We had a really nice turn-out for the kids' races on a week night last year, so we'll definitely plan to do it again this year," Boss said.

In other business, city council unanimously approved a rezoning zoned motel-hotel. Realtor Greg Bryan requested the rezoning on behalf of Stroud.

"There was no interest in the property with the motel hotel zoning," Bryan said. "We figured it was time to make the change and get on with it."

The property is now zoned C-1, community service commercial.

Tom Barnes, lot owner in the neighboring C and O Club, was opposed to the rezoning, saying that the zoning was too broad and could allow undesirable businesses to come into the area.

"I have great concerns over what might happen there," he said. "There are certain things in C-1 that I wouldn't want to see there."

Tom's father, Josh Barnes, also a member of the C and O Club, was also opposed to the rezoning. He cited the city code that states an increased financial return for the applicant should not be a consideration for rezoning.

property owned by Oscar Stroud on U.S. 31 North, next to the Sleep Inn.

The property, which has been for sale for three years, had been

Chain of Lakes history lovingly preserved by author

"It changed shape 19 times," he said with a gentle chuckle. "I firmly believe that everyone has a story to tell. Not one person turned me down for an interview, although they sometimes wondered, 'Why me?' After interviewing them all, I couldn't bring myself to cut any of them out."

With all of the stories included, the book became 345 pages long with 275 rare, wonderful photographs. The old photographs of lumber camps, boaters on the quiet waters, and the original cottages in the area are terrific, and abundantly sprinkled throughout the book. A large number of the photos were loaned to Ruggles by the Elk Rapids Historical Society, the Helena Township Historical Society in Alden and the Bellaire Area Historical Society.

"They loaned me anything I wanted," Ruggles said of the groups. "I was flabbergasted by their generosity."

The current photos, taken by Ruggles, touchingly capture the people whose voices are heard. Even without the text, the story of the chain of lakes could be told through the evocative pictures.

It is the stories, though, that really capture the essence of the area. The stories are divided into 12 categories: the lumberjack, the resort owner, the fisherman, the homemaker, the scientist, the poet, the businessman, the summer resident, the preservationist, the farmer, the teacher and the historian.

"I wanted a cross section of lifestyles and geographic balance, so I didn't focus on one part of the chain," Ruggles said.

Each person interviewed has a story to tell that reflects their unique relationship with the area. And while their stories vary widely, from the earthy, amusing tales of the lumberjacks and fishermen to the strong, passionate tales of the environmentalists, they each have the same underlying bond — the water.

"My only stock question was to ask them all to describe their favorite view," Ruggles said. "They all responded so rapidly, no one had to ponder. And they're all bemoaning the loss of that view, with the development that's occurring."

Ellen Moore Poulson, a summer resident of Elk Lake for 65 years, was poetic in her reply:

"I like to watch its moods. You can see the water in two ways: if you soften your vision, you can see the bottom, you can see the sand and the ripples and pebbles, but then on the surface, you get the refraction of light and if you can see both of them at the same time, you have a painting in your mind like Escher used to do. Sparkling water, dancing water."

In contrast, there are the eloquently simple words of Mae Fitzpatrick, a homemaker who married a farmer in 1919 and was widowed in 1930 with six small children to

"Well, I think the water was good. I think that lake is an awful lot of company to you. To me, it's always been company. It's better than having close neighbors. You got something to look at. That I've always appreciated. The water changes and when the sun comes up over the water, it's just beautiful."

Charlevoix's JoAnne Beemon, who was portrayed prominently in the hook for her environmental work on the chain, had this to say:

"Every day changes, every day is a new day, every day is a new Monet. One day, going into the river, a rain had just fallen. The wind before the rain had blown the pink petals of the wild roses down onto the green lily pads, and in between were white water lilies. It's just incredibly beautiful — how can anything be so perfect and so alive?"

The stories convey every aspect of life along the Chain of Lakes, every emotion evoked by the water. It's no wonder that the book is now the number one best seller in the paperback, nonfiction category in northwest Michigan. Printed as a paperback, the book sells for $19.95.

"I wanted to do it so it was affordable," said Ruggles, who self-published the book.

The book was released in the first week of October, after the departure of the tourists. To Ruggles' amazement, he sold 1,300 of the 5,000 copies in the area in the first two months. The book is not available in any mall or large book store chain.

"I'm a firm believer in small town America, so if you want to buy the book you have to find it on Main Street in a small town."

The book is carried in Charlevoix at the Bridge Street Book Shop, at the three Alden Bank branches and Nature Connection in Alden, the Village Market and Harbor Antiques in Elk Rapids, and at Betty Beeby's Art Studio in Eastport.

As price of gas goes down, so does amount of service

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

There are a lot of us folks who believe that in spite of this computer age, everything is not getting any simpler or easier!

Let's consider the gas station situation. Remember the friendly, old neighborhood gas station? They not only would fill your engine with gas, your tires with air, change your oil, and wash your windows, but they also offered you a tune up, a car wash, charged your battery when needed, and even sold you a set of new tires every 30,000 miles. You were never offered coffee or a Coke then, yet today you'll find a Shell Gas Station listed in the phone book under Shell Food Marts! What are they trying to tell us?

For starters, let's consider the headlines on the front page of the Detroit Free Press last week that announced "Exxon Buys Mobil." An executive of the Service Station Dealers' Association who represents independent owners of gas stations announced that "everybody is trying to cut costs and make their operation as streamlined as possible."

For the consumer this means that one is hard put to find a full service station anywhere! In Charlevoix, on the south side of town, we can consider ourselves lucky to have full service available at the Shell Station on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays between eight and four o'clock.

The Charlevoix EZ Mart Mobil station also recently started offering full service from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

My new car can tell me what direction I am traveling, but there's no button to tell the engine what day of the week it is.

Consequently, if I am low on gas on Saturday or Sunday, it's necessary to get out of the car in the wind, rain and snow and serve myself. Not a happy scene for a senior citizen.

Fortunately there's a Marathon

Station in Petoskey that I frequently patronize. It has both self-serve and full service pumps. For 1 cent more per gallon, they will fill your tank and wash your windows with enthusiasm.

I must confess that for one reason or another, I also have a proclivity to getting a dead battery in my car. I even carried a set of cables until someone borrowed them and never returned them. Subsequently, I used to call my friendly neighborhood gas station attendant, and within the half hour, he would appear, hook up the cable and charge my battery.

Last week I called AAA instead. After listening to the instructions to press 1 for road service, 2 for towing, 3 for billing, etc., I got a real live person. She told me someone would be there within the hour. And by George, someone was. Someone from Mancelona! This fine young man thought nothing of driving 30 miles to Charlevoix to charge my battery. He told me he goes at least once a week to Boyne City. Is this what bean counters call cutting costs and streamlining?

The proposed merger between Exxon and Mobil will speed the closing of more independent licensed gasoline outlets, and many more owners will be forced to leave the business.

"This is not good for any community not to have local business people involved," said Terry Burns, Director of the Service Station Dealers' Association of Michigan. Oil company executives say that savings will come by eliminating roughly 9,000 jobs and reducing annual expenses by $2.8 billion.

Yes, according to Mobil chairman Lucio Noto, "We need to face some facts. The world has changed." But is it better for the consumer? I don't think so!

Letters to the editor

Editor:

It is with respect and thanks that we congratulate Lou Hollow on his retirement from banking in our community. It is, however, difficult to refer to him as only "banker," because he did so much more in supporting our community than a mere bank is capable of doing.

He fostered and developed relationships with many community groups, individuals, and businesses that helped make our community what it is today. His desire and willingness to listen and offer support and guidance for anyone he ran into on the street is very rare.

For us personally, we would like to thank him for helping us launch our business and offering well thought-out support and encouragement. His friendly insight during casual conversation was always welcome and reassuring and will be missed by Bergmann Marine and the entire community.

We all would like to sincerely offer our best wishes to Lou and his family in his retirement, whatever adventures it might send their way.

Respectfully,
The staff at Bergmann Marine

Our Apologies: The Charlevoix Senior Center wishes to extend apologies to all those who have tried to visit our center this week. Due to cleaning, painting, some necessary repairs, and the laying of new carpeting in our center, it was necessary to close the center this entire week. We were able to continue with the "meals on wheels" for those who are home-bound, but we were unable to hold lunches or any social activities at the center. We certainly hope that it did not inconvenience any of you too much, and would like to have you return to visit us starting Monday, Dec. 7 when we will again be operating all facilities. Please come join us at lunches, for exercise classes, cards, bingo, potluck dinners, etc. We are sure you will be delighted with the improvements made and the warmth and hospitality of our senior center. Please plan to join us at our ham dinner to be held on Wednesday, Dec. 9, and for other activities. It will be the last chance to purchase tickets for the Princess Holly bride and her bridesmaid Barbie Dolls. The winning ticket of the Barbie Dolls raffle will be pulled at the dinner - you might be the winner! The center is also planning a tour of the Charlevoix area to view the Christmas lights on Dec. 15. This will start with a potluck dinner at the center, followed by a bus tour (donation of $2 for the bus), and return to the center for dessert and Christmas music, etc. Please bring a dish to pass and your own table service. Plan to join us for this Christmas celebration.

We would also like to extend our thanks to those who volunteered to do the work on the center, including Earl Muma, Clem Olach and Bill Stevens, and to the sheriff's department, who allowed four of their clients to come work for us. It was tremendous help.

Again, our apologies for the necessity of closing the center this week. Please come visit us again. Charlevoix Senior Center Board of Directors

Give the gift of the great outdoors during the holiday season

Every year, area conservancies and environmental groups join in the holiday spirit by offering special "Gifts With A Cause." This year, the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy is offering the gift of a Harold Kohn, black and white print for all new supporting membership donations. The 11-inch by 14-inch print portrays a deer standing in an open meadow and is suitable for framing.

Dr. Harold Kohn wrote, "Could not the Creator have made some sort of law-abiding universe without extra adornments of breathtaking beauty? It would seem so. Yet, while the bare necessities are here, added to them are rich flourishes of liveliness as if the Designer had said, 'Now, these are for creations' sake.' Then adding beauty. He said, 'And this is for love's sake.'" The quote is from Kohn's writings in Pathways to Understanding.

A supporting membership costs $50. Checks may be made to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy and sent to: 108 Park Ave., Charlevoix, MI 49720. Please include a mailing address, so the Harold Kohn print can be mailed to you.

Donations to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy are tax deductible.

many very good reasons), they must pay extra for Burns Clinic care or avoid Burns Clinic care.

CIMC has devoted substantial time and effort in attempting to understand the reasons for, the effect of, and the alternatives to the planned changes. CIMC conducted a forum among its members, at which representatives of Burns Clinic, PhyCor (which manages the Clinic) and Blue Cross Blue Shield offered comments and answered questions. It met separately with representatives of Burns Clinic, PhyCor and Blue Cross Blue Shield.

CIMC recognizes that Burns Clinic care is excellent and convenient, and that its physicians are entitled to earn a reasonable living.

CIMC recognizes that PhyCor is a "for-profit" corporation, and must answer to its shareholders.

CIMC recognizes that Blue Cross Blue Shield is a "not-for-profit" insurer, which is limited by laws and regulations. However, CIMC believes that little good will come to anyone (Burns Clinic, PhyCor, Blue Cross Blue Shield or the residents of the Burns Clinic service area) from Burns Clinic's "depar-ticipation" from Blue Cross Blue Shield and its decision to participate with other insurers while leaving Blue Cross Blue Shield out. Why? CIMC believes:

— That Burns Clinic and PhyCor over-estimate the number of patients who will "switch" from Blue Cross Blue Shield to other insurance coverage;

— That Burns Clinic and PhyCor under-estimate the number of patients who will leave Burns Clinic and seek alternative health care services;

— That Burns Clinic and PhyCor over-estimate the number of patients insured through Blue Cross Blue Shield who will pay extra for receiving Burns Clinic care;

— That the end result would be devastating for Burns Clinic, PhyCor and the consuming public.

Believing as it does, CIMC has directed the following letter to the parties with the power to avert this crisis, and requests that it be reprinted in its entirety:

Concord students present opera

Once again, the Concord Academy students in Petoskey have produced another original opera, written and performed by the seventh and eighth grade students of the school. The opera will be performed at McCune Arts Center in Petoskey Jan. 13 and 14, 1999.

The tradition of having an annual opera at Concord began when music teacher Kathryn Loyer Shanski and drama instructor Gary Schils became interested in creating opportunities for their students to experience real opera. They decided to take a course in Milwaukee, hosted by the Metropolitan Opera Guild, to learn to teach the Concord Academy students how to make and perform an original opera. Concord Academy has already successfully created one opera and have another one on the way. This upcoming opera is about image in everyday life.

Tickets for the opera are $3 per person or $8 for a family.

We accept Blue Cross of Michigan

Because our physicians understand how important affordable health care is to the members of our community, we continue to participate with Blue Cross Blue Shield insurance.

Our partner hospitals — Community Memorial Hospital, Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital — also continue to accept Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan.

We appreciate the opportunity to care for the people of Northern Michigan and welcome your phone calls to discuss any concerns you may have.

FAMILY

Wedding

Carla Hoffman and Steven Dick were married in an afternoon wedding at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey Aug. 22, 1998.

The bride is the daughter of Robert and Shirley Hoffman and Joan Hoffman of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of John and Barb McIntosh and James Dick, all of Okemos, Mich.

The church was decorated with white tulle pew bows and pale pink, yellow and white roses.

Father James Hayden and Father John Nicola performed the double ring rites in front of 150 guests.

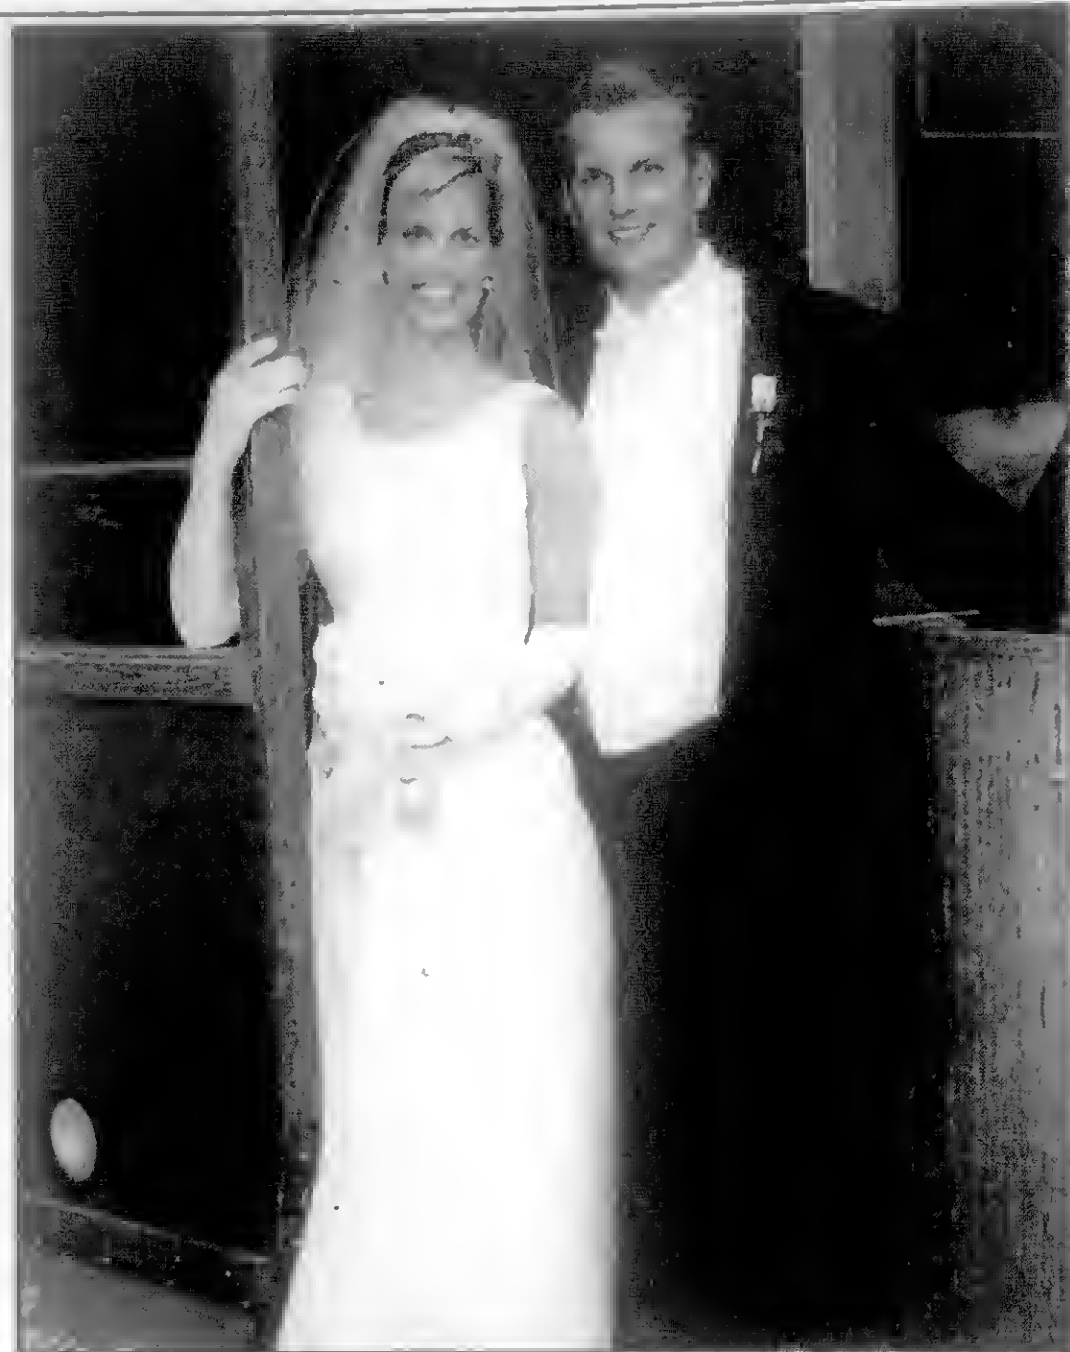

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Robert Hoffman. She wore an Alfred Angelo gown featuring A-line, cream satin in a tank style with a pearl neckline and a train. Her veil went to the middle of her back, and she also wore gloves and carried a bouquet of pale pink, yellow and cream-colored roses.

The maid of honor was Lisa Miller, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Shauna Hoffman, Julie Hoffman, Susi Schall, Heather Keller and Christy Coolman. They wore tea length, satin tank-style Alfred Angelo navy blue dresses and carried bouquets of cream-colored roses.

Becky Parker served as mass reader.

The flower girls were Mallory Hoffman, Samantha Miller and Aubrie Hoffman. They wore tea length, cream satin dresses designed to match the bride's gown, and carried small bouquets of pale pink, yellow and cream-colored roses.

Ring bearers were Jimmy Bock and Jacob Ridenour. Best man was Paul Schryer and groomsmen were Rob Aldredge, Chris Truman, Clay Burch, Jason Kasprzyk and Bob Ralls. Ushers were Paul Hoffman

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Dick and Tim Hoffman.

A reception was hosted by the parents of the bride at Stafford's Bay View Inn of Petoskey. Clay and Lisa Miller assisted with the reception.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted the evening before the wedding at the lakeside home of Robert and Shirley Hoffman.

The couple took a wedding trip to Antigua in the West Indies and are making their home in Kentwood, Mich.

Both the bride and the groom graduated from Western Michigan University with bachelor of science degrees. Carla works for TDI talking phone books of Grand Rapids. Steve is a research scientist for the Perrigo Company.

Hospital Christmas card displays local art work

Botanical watercolor artist Marion Shearlight of Norwood designed the Charlevoix Area Hospital annual Christmas greeting card this year. The cards feature two large, red poinsettias and are for sale at the hospital in the Development Office.

Each year the hospital makes available to the public a different Christmas greeting card. The cards are available with or without an inside message that reads: "Wishing you happy and healthy times with those you hold dear."

Cards are $7.50 for a package of 10 and can be purchased at the hospital Development Office located at the rear of the hospital. All proceeds benefit Charlevoix Area Hospital, a nonprofit community hospital. For more information call 547-8502.

FAMILY

Wedding

Liberty Christine Harrison and Thomas Jay Purdy were married Saturday, Oct. 10 in a ceremony at the Lake Louise Tennant Chapel on Thumb Lake.

The Rev. Asa T. Compton, a long time family friend, performed the double ring rites in front of 130 friends and family members. A Unity candle arrangement, altar sprays and pew markers of herbs accented with garden flowers and hydrangeas decorated the church.

The bride is the daughter of Rob and Rona Harrison of Thumb Lake and Charlevoix. Her grandparents are Bruce and Norma Henley and Clara Harrison, all of Charlevoix.

The groom is the son of Tom and Marlene Purdy of Caledonia, Mich.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Rob and Rona Harrison. Ivory roses and streamers accented the back waist of the bride's floor length satin and shirred organza gown. Her double-tiered veil was sprinkled with crystals and pearls. A cascade of soft greens and herbs accented with garden flowers, hydrangeas and roses in ivory and pastel lavender shades made up her bouquet.

Music performed at the ceremony included soloists singing From This Moment On and The Lord's Prayer, with organ accompaniment.

Maid of honor was Cecy Bailey, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Kelly Van Weelde, Catrina Asbury and Kelli Brown. They wore floor length organza gowns in lavender twilight and carried bouquets with cascades of soft greens and herbs accented with garden flowers.

Flower girl was Caitlyn Bailey, the bride's niece. She wore a purple velvet dress and carried a tussy mussy of garden flowers.

Assisting at the chapel were Dan and Penny Engstrom and Julie Gregory.

Best man was Todd Overmire and groomsmen were Dave Johnson, Brian Purdy and Tom Price. Ushers were Craig Bailey and Jon VanWeelde.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents at Hidden Valley Resort in Gaylord. Assisting with the reception were John and Jennifer O'Brien.

The rehearsal dinner was also hosted at Hidden Valley Resort by the groom's parents.

The wedding couple took a honeymoon trip to Mackinac Island. They are making their home in Caledonia, where Tom is in the family business, Caledonia Rent-All, and Lihlie is an environmental consultant with ATC Associates.

Oh boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments of Charlevoix area people.

Air Force Airman Chad W. Thomson graduated from the vehicle operations apprentice course at Fort Leonard Wood, Waynesville, MO.

During the six-week course, he received instruction in vehicle management principles, operator licensing, data processing, and fa-miliarization of cargo trucks, forklifts, wreckers, buses and tractor trailers.

After completing the course, Thomson was awarded 12 credit hours toward his associate degree in transportation from the Community College of the Air Force.

He will be assigned to the 347th

Transportation Squadron at Moody Air Force Base, Valdosta, GA.

Thomson is the son of Dawn M. Crain of Charlevoix, and William A. Thomson of Bay City, and a 1998 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

NOTICE
CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP BOARD OF REVIEW
DECEMBER 15, 1998

On Tuesday, December 15, 1998 the Charlevoix Township Board of Review will hold a special meeting to correct a mutual mistake of fact or a clerical error. An owner of property that is a "homestead" or is "qualified agricultural" property on May 1 may appeal to the December Board of Review for the current year and the immediately preceding year if the exemption was not on the tax roll.

PA 74 of 1995 authorizes December (and July) BOR to hear appeals for poverty exemptions, but not poverty exemptions denied by the March Board of Review.

An owner of property may appeal the rescission of a homestead exemption to the July or December Board of Review in either the year for which the exemption is rescinded or in the immediately succeeding year.

Helen "Joanne" Pischner Pearl

Helen "Joanne" Pischner Pearl of Des Moines, Iowa, died May 17, 1998, at Seatonia Convalescent Care Center in Des Moines of Alzheimer's disease. She was 63.

She was born Dec. 21, 1934, in Cheboygan, Mich., to Emil and Delores Pischner. She attended high school in Charlevoix and college in Minnesota, and worked as an X-ray technician.

She was a resident of the South County area for 38 years. In 1956, she married Howard Pearl and was a homemaker.

Mrs. Pearl was a member of St. Stephen the Martyr

Catholic Church in Renton, past member of Beta Sigma Pi, and a former Girl Scout leader.

Mrs. Pearl enjoyed gardening.

She is survived by her husband, Howard Pearl of Maple Valley, Iowa; a son, Phillip Pearl of Milwaukee, Wis.; three daughters, Julie Gustafson of Bonney Lake, Iowa, Judie Donabauer of East Waukegan, Iowa and Felicia Pearl-Abbott of Sunnyside, Iowa; two brothers, Roger Pischner of Charlevoix and Barry Pischner of Grand Rapids; and six grandchildren.

Private services were held. Memorials may be made to the Alzheimer's Association.

Rollin Cade Severson

Rollin Cade Severson

Rollin Cade Severson, 2 months old, of Austin, Texas, died Nov. 22, 1998 at home.

A memorial service was held at Cook-Walden Forest Oaks in Austin, Texas on Nov. 24, with many family members and friends in attendance. The Rev. Beth Clare officiated and a tribute was given by Major Jack L. Briggs, USAF, great-uncle of the deceased.

Rollin was born Sept. 19, 1998 in Austin Texas, the son of Lauren Carey and Jeremy Severson. Rollin was greatly loved by them and his sweet smile will be missed very much by everyone he touched in his brief life.

In addition to his parents, Rollin's survivors include his grandparents, Doug and Lynda Severson of Eau Claire, Wis., and Jacqui Briggs of Carrollton, Texas. Rollin was preceded in death by his grandfather, Charles (Topper) Carey and great-grandparents, Charles and Jeanne Carey of Charlevoix.

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community of God Church

I caught a small portion of a television show about the history of gospel music and since my daughter has worked so much on some of the Bill Gaither Gospel Series videos, I wanted to see how another company was doing it. They were interviewing JD Sumner and the Sunshine Boys. Back in the hey days of gospel music, quartets traveled from concert to concert in cars.

For JD and his group, that meant a big old nine passenger Fleetwood Cadillac. And since money was always an issue — you never knew what you were going to get paid — that car had gone a long, long way. One of the back wheel bearings started to go bad. They didn't know which one for sure. The danger was that it could catch fire and burn. But then again, the fellows decided if it did burn, they could collect the insurance and get a better car.

JD happened to be behind the wheel this one night. That bearing was just making noise and grinding more and more. The gas was running low so he swung into a gas station. Sure enough, the minute he pulled up to the pump, the bearing let go and it did spark and catch fire right under the gas tank.

The attendant came out in a panic and said, "I'll call the fire department right away." JD said, "Mind your own business boy, it's insured." JD's plans never had a chance. You see, the gas station they stopped at just happened to be right across the street from the state training school for firefighters. Four hundred men responded to the fire call!

Giggling as he told it after all these years, JD said that clearly his plans weren't God's. Not only did the firemen put it out but also the insurance company got it running again. The only trouble was they never could get the smell of burnt cotton out of the car.

I may not have had a car catch on fire, but I have had more than a few moments in my life where I thought things were going to work out one way and God had something else in mind. It's not that it's wrong for us to make plans. It's wrong when we don't realize who has the best plan. God's way, even though we may not always see or understand it, is always best.

When you think about the Christmas story, you need to remember one character in it whose plans were totally changed by God. Joseph had planned for years to be married to Mary. He was known as a man of wisdom and spiritual stature. Imagine what it was like for him when Mary told him about the angel Gabriel sharing the news that she would conceive a child by God's Holy Spirit and that child would be the Savior of the world. Such an announcement would be enough to curdle any husband's cream!

He was tempted to divorce Mary quietly and go on with life. God appeared to him in a dream and told him not to worry. If he would take care of Mary and her child, God would take care of him.

You know the rest of the story as well as I do. Joseph put his plans aside in favor of God's. It's a good thing he did too! Would you like to imagine what the world would be like had Joseph said no? There are times when lots of things in life don't go the way we planned. But if you are a child of God, I can promise you this: if you are willing to put your faith in the Master's plan for your life, everything will always turn out for the best. I am so glad that Joseph stood by Mary and I'm even more grateful that God, through His Son Jesus, is prepared to stand by you.

liturgical dance throughout the cantata. Bremer, a 1998 Hope College graduate with a major in dance performance and choreography, teaches ballet at the Grand Rapids Ballet and the Caledonia Dance Center and is an advocate for the integration of dance in worship with a sensitivity to biblical teaching on the art form.

The presentation is open to the public free of charge, however a free will offering will be taken. For more information about the performance, call the church at 547-9482.

If you can't hit the slopes, then return to the lakes

The Saturday following Thanksgiving is traditionally a time for folks in northern Michigan to go skiing for the first time of the season. Since balmy temperatures made skiing impossible, a group of Charlevoix residents took to the water and went boating over to Beaver Island for lunch. They are (from left) Tom Bickersteth, Pete Pace, Doris Schuette, Werner Schuette, Tom Papiernik, C.T. Martin, Francie Martin and Mary McElroy. (Photo courtesy of Francie Martin)

These Annual Percentage Yields (APYs) are effective as of November 1, 1998 and are guaranteed through January 2, 1999 and may change after that date. Minimum opening balance $2,500. If funds in the account drop below $2,500, an APY of 2.53% will be paid. A $7.50 monthly service charge will be assessed on accounts that do not maintain a minimum daily balance of at least $500 or an average daily balance of at least $1,000 over a monthly cycle period. This fee could reduce earnings on accounts.

Even in today's uncertain market, there's still a way to earn high returns without undue risk — The Money Market Plus Account from Standard Federal Bank.

As you can see, the more you deposit the higher the yield. And when you move up a tier by depositing more, you'll earn the higher yield for your entire account balance.

In addition to higher yields than many of today's money funds, Money Market Plus offers other clear advantages. You can withdraw your money at any time with no interest penalties, making this an investment with instant liquidity.

A car that really smokes

This Jeep caught fire last Friday at Charlevoix Area Hospital's parking lot when the owner started the vehicle. The Charlevoix Township Fire Department responded to the blaze, which apparently was caused by a spark that ignited grease near the exhaust system. At right, the owner, Ms. Simonson, watches forlornly as her car is destroyed by the smoke. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

Charlevoix kids had no trouble finding Santa in the fire hall

Even robust Santa preferred the dry warmth of the fire hall to the cold drizzling rain outside last Saturday, when he came to town for the Charlevoix Merchant's Open House.

Paige Schwartzfisher knew exactly what she wanted — a box of treats — and wasted no time pointing it out to Santa. Maggie Hamilton, 2, waited patiently in line for Santa.

Allie Hodge, 2, on left, and Delaney Hodge, 2 and 1/2, on right, had a fine time chatting with the jolly old elf.

The Northwest Academy band provided music to shop by all day, going from store to store. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

New faces look to add fourth straight volleyball league title

Games reduced to two out of three format

By Jamie MacMillan

After bidding adieu to six regular players from last year's conference championship team as well as losing a seventh player to a season-ending injury, Charlevoix volleyball coach Brenda Bryan will rely on a handful of new faces to continue the recent streak of winning seasons.

"On one hand we'll be a young team, but on the other hand we do have six seniors on this team," Bryan said.

Seniors Ann Spang and Christine Sweeney are the only holdovers who started in games last year. Both are solid front row players whom Bryan expects to also see action on the back row.

While the remainder of the senior class has little starting experience, most of them saw a good deal of action in back-up roles last year.

Among them, Mandi Webb is the team's strongest server, Bryan said, and will be a key back row player. Bryan also highlighted the heavy hitting abilities of Julie Swenor and Michelle Potter.

The senior class is also bolstered by Elk Rapids transfer Courtney Butler.

Joining the senior class is a six-pack of underclassmen, five of whom will be first year varsity players.

Bryan has been impressed with the all-around game of junior Beth Owens and foresees her as a solid back row player. Classmates Kristy Shindorf and Lyndsey Carland will offer the team a pair of solid spikers for the front row.

A pair of sophomores round out the varsity roster with Megan Vogel and Kelly Dreyer. Dreyer will jump into the starting line-up as the team's setter.

"It'll be up to her to be in the right spot, but she's a hustler and will do real well," Bryan said.

Despite the new faces in expanded roles, Bryan expects her club, along with East Jordan, Elk Rapids and Traverse City-St. Francis, to be in the mix for the league title.

The Rayders are three-time defending Lake Michigan Conference Champions.

"If nothing else, we'll have a good time and play well together," she said. "As for how well we will do, I never really know for sure this early."

The excitement for the upcoming season has definitely trickled down to the program's underclassmen teams as junior varsity coach Annemarie Conway welcomes a 12-member team that is full of both talent and positive attitude.

"It looks like a strong team," Conway said. "They have good skills and nice height."

A quintet of sophomores — Molly Arnold, Lisa Miller, Abby Schaperkötter, Michelle Martin and Amber Parsons — will be in their second year of play under coach Conway.

They will be joined by sophomore newcomer Shandra Spenceley as well as freshmen Kelly Reid, Kate Madison, Danielle Vogelheim, Jenny Miller, Taryn Drost and Kathryn Ricks.

"We'll rely heavily on the sophomores while we bring the freshmen up to speed," Conway said.

For other eager freshmen, a new addition to the winter sports season will be the inaugural season for the school's freshmen volleyball team. While the team is still being organized regarding game schedules, a group of 13 have been involved in preseason practices.

Anne Gorney, a high school science teacher, will coach the freshmen team.

"It's awesome," Conway said of the additional team. "We're really thankful for the sports boosters' support in this. Otherwise, we would have had to basically cut a whole team's worth of kids."

There is one rule change to note as the new volleyball season begins. All games will be best two-out-of-three sets, a reduction from the best three-out-of-five format in previous seasons.

Bryan has mixed feelings about the change.

On one hand, she said it will better prepare teams for the post-season style of play, but it will also limit playing time.

"Everybody kind of considers that first game as a warm-up, so it'll be a tough adjustment for all the teams," she said.

Wrestlers plan to grapple their way back to the top

With all but three weight classes filled, coach Joe Johnston has program aiming high

By Jamie MacMillan

No local coach may be smiling more than wrestling coach Joe Johnston during his preseason practices.

It's not so much because of high expectations of a stellar season, although Johnston did say that winning the district title is a reachable goal this season.

It's mostly because he finally has enough wrestlers to make up a full team. After spending last winter with only five grapplers, Johnston has 16 on this year's squad and already has 11 of 14 weight divisions filled. With further development of some of his inexperienced players, 13, if not all of the weight divisions, will be filled by the time the season is in full swing, Johnston reported.

As the season begins, the coach still has openings in the 103, 130 and 152-pound divisions.

"What a difference, it's like night and day," the second-year coach said.

The lack of numbers, which put the program in jeopardy last spring, was a challenge in practice since the players he did have were so far apart in weight class that they couldn't wrestle each other in practice. Now, Johnston said practices can be filled with practice bouts, which will create a savvy team when outside competition rolls around.

With more wrestlers, Johnston won't be able to spend as much one-on-one time with each player, but he has enlisted former Charlevoix wrestler Chris MacCallum to help out in practices.

The jewel of the wrestling program is senior James Pop.

Pop, wrestling in the 171-pound division, was last year's Most Valuable Player after compiling a 22-13 record and reeling in 120 points throughout the season for the Rayders. Pop continued his good season into the playoffs, where he advanced into regional competition.

This year, he has been named team captain and will be instrumental, Johnston said, in keeping the young team motivated throughout the year.

"He's good on his feet and has a good take-down shot," Johnston said of his skills.

Sophomore Ryan Novotny, last year's Most Improved Player, returns, but will wrestle in the 140-pound division after competing at 125 during his freshman year.

The remainder of the varsity squad consists of upperclassmen new to the program and freshmen who wrestled at the middle school level last year, Johnston said.

Ben Macks, William Potter, Skip Torres, Ken Burch and Ian Mays round out the team's roster and will contribute as the season goes along, Johnston said.

Kennedy and Zeitler have been named assistant captains, Johnston said.

"The middle school program has been a big help," Johnston said. "They still have a lot to learn, but I'm pleased with their experience. Over the years they will develop into good wrestlers."

With the benefit of a full roster, the club has a full, 16-meet schedule including five home dates after having only one home event the last two seasons.

Included for the home slate is an in-season tournament, the Charlevoix Christmas Classic at 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 19.

While young, Johnston has his team aiming high, pointing toward postseason honors and unseating Mancelona as the district champion.

"We might have a shot at it," he said. "At the least, I think we can come close and give them a good run for the team title."

A Charlevoix wrestler pins his opponent quickly and effectively.

Rayders look to run and gun into league contention

With a talented group of nine seniors, Rayders could be a surprise foe.

By Jamie MacMillan

If basketball coach Keith Haske's vision of the Charlevoix basketball program comes true, then people will cringe whenever they have to step onto the court with his running Rayders.

"We want to establish a system, that this is how Charlevoix plays and they play as hard as any team in the state," the second year coach said. "Hopefully, people will hate to play us."

Lately, though, the Rayders have been welcomed with open arms as they've been on the wrong end of a 26-60 record over the last four seasons, including a 13-34 record in Lake Michigan Conference games in that time span.

Haske, however, envisions a turnaround year that will not only include the school's first winning season in six years, but will also put the Rayders squarely in the hunt in both the conference and district title chases.

The optimism comes from having every player back from last season's squad that finished 7-15, but displayed both grit and potential after an 0-7 start nearly buried the season.

"We showed flashes last year, but we need to become more consistent," Haske said. "I have been very impressed with our attitude in practice — the kids have been working real hard and are showing a lot of enthusiasm."

All five starters from last year return, including a pair of three-year starters in the back court. Seniors Matt McClellan and Jim Kanine enter their third year as a duo.

McClellan, who also plays small forward, plays a full court game, is the team's best defender and can be an explosive scorer. He led the club in scoring one year ago, averaging 12 points a contest. Haske said he is the team's most complete player.

Kanine, meanwhile, is a steady point guard who averaged just under 10 points a game last year. His offensive skills are important, but it's his improved defensive abilities that has caught Haske's attention in preseason practice.

Joining them in the back court will be senior Colin Carr and junior Adam Wood. Carr is a solid scorer while Wood, a newcomer to the team, has a good three-point shot, Haske said. Tom Cunningham and Tino Tripicchio will also add to the perimeter mix. Cunningham, Haske said, is playing the best basketball of his high school career.

Up front, senior Matt Dennis and junior Sean Stockman will man the forward positions while seniors Justin Thorp and Todd Schaperkötter will split action at the center position.

Haske said that both his pivot-men have made strides in their game under the tutelage of assistant coach Brett Erskine.

"If our big kids can play at our faster pace, then we can be successful," Haske said.

Juniors Andy Granath, Russ Ward, Jon Boss and Shay Hutchison could also enter the mix, but Haske admitted with such a strong senior class that playing time might be hard to come by for the underclassmen.

"We can go two deep, sometimes three deep at certain positions," Haske said. "If we can get games at our pace, we will be able to wear teams down."

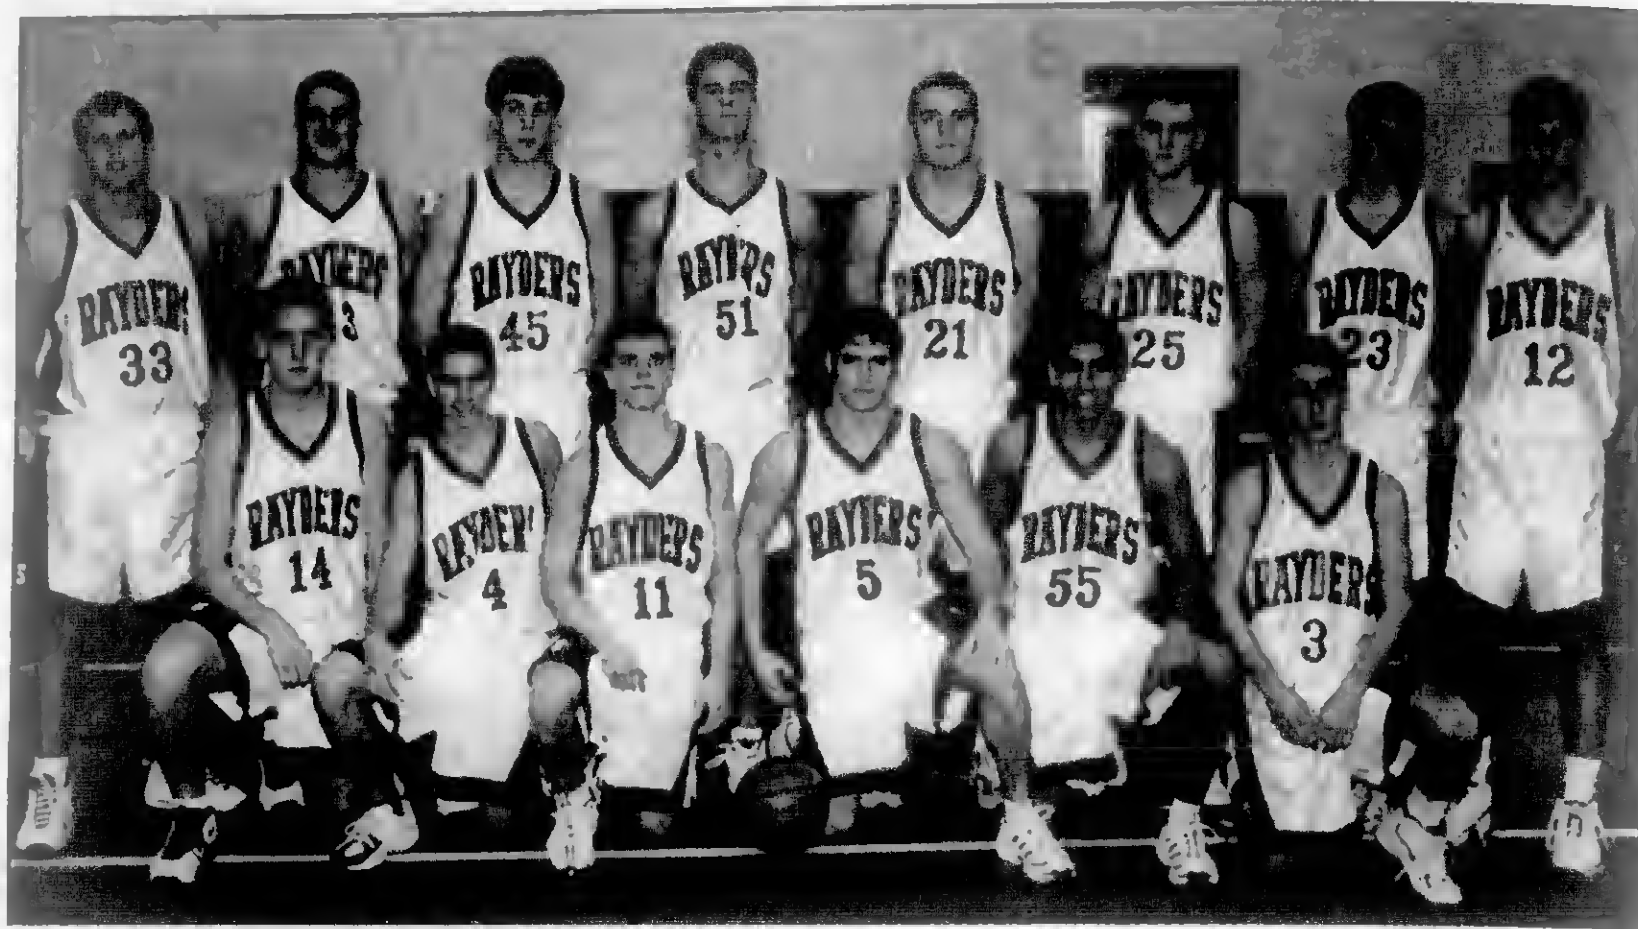

Haske's frenetic, fast-paced style of play lends itself to balanced scoring. Last year, seven players scored over 100 points for the season. A perfect game, he said, is when five players score between 12-18 points, which Charlevoix's players were able to do.

On the eve of the season, Haske is pondering how his charges will fare against Elk Rapids. The Elks also return all their starters, and have been tabbed as the league favorite after a second place finish one year ago. The Elks topped Charlevoix three different times last year, and only struggled against Boyne City.

Boyne, however, lost their top six players from last year's conference champions. Similar personnel losses at East Jordan, Traverse City St. Francis and Kalkaska could open the door for a strong Charlevoix challenge for conference honors.

Haske said playing more aggressively on both ends of the floor will determine the team's success. "If we're more aggressive with our defensive pressure, it will help us run a smoother offense," he said. "We just need to react and play."

If that happens, don't be surprised if Cinderella ends up being a swashbuckling pirate.

Center Justin Thorp, left, and guard Matt McClellan, right, lead a talented cast of Rayders into battle this winter. Thorp gives the club a presence in the post while McClellan, according to coach Keith Haske, is the team's most complete player. In last year's tournament win over Harbor Springs, he scored a game high 26 points.

New coaches lead the JV and freshmen teams into battle

By Jamie MacMillan

Both of the reserve basketball teams begin this season with new leaders at the helm.

Brandon Bruce has stepped in to coach the junior varsity squad. He replaces Todd Klinger who had been the coach for six seasons.

Bruce, who has coached the school's freshmen club for the last few seasons, will coach a club that has no holdovers from last year's junior varsity team.

Despite that, Bruce will be familiar with the club since eleven of his fourteen players played under Bruce on last year's freshmen team.

Sophomores Bryan Burns, Doug Rick, Matt Horon, Ryan Lietner, Zach Dennis, George Sikorski, Corey Bascom, Jeremiah Teuscher, Will Wright and Ben Coen all enter their second year under Bruce's tutelage.

A trio of freshmen, Patrick Gowell, Ryan Stone and Scott Parrish round out the roster.

The freshmen team, meanwhile, will now be coached by Tim Volovsek. Volovsek also is the girls' varsity basketball coach.

His first freshmen team consists of ten players whom, he said, are hard workers and already have a good dose of basketball skill.

The team scrimmaged last week against Gaylord and Volovsek highlighted the good play of point guard Ryan Rafacz, guard Shawn McDonough, forward Keith Daly and forward/center Dustin Mervyn.

Rounding out the roster are Dennis Avery, Ben Speigl, Kyle Dobrowolski, Rob Boss, Jim Shepard and Nick Schwein.

Of the team's 17-game schedule, seven will be played at home. Their next home contest is 4:15 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15 against St. Ignace. The club ends its season with the traditional Petoskey Invitational on Friday, March 4 through Saturday, March 6.

"We're learning quickly, but we won't hit full stride until mid-season while we learn coach Haske's system," Volovsek said.

Rayder racers will be tackling the downhill slopes

By Jamie MacMillan

While both of Charlevoix downhill skiing teams are small in numbers, varsity coach Sue Miller is actually breathing easier about her teams' chances than she was a year ago.

Last year, she had only four skiers on her girls' team. While the quartet was talented, her skiers would have virtually eliminated the team from winning any meets had any one of them fallen during a race.

Now, with a trio of freshmen added to the mix, Miller is excited to hit the slopes with a fuller complement of skiers.

"What a blessing," she said. "It'll give us more options rather than waiting on the edge of a cliff, hoping for no falls."

Another blessing is that each of Miller's squads will be led by a state finalist with Todd Freidinger and Tiffany Fisher, both juniors.

"That does give us some ground to work with," Miller said.

Fisher, who qualified for the state finals in both the slalom and giant slalom in 1998, leads the girls' team, which finished in fourth place last year in the conference.

Other returning letter-winners include senior Kelly Kusina and juniors Kirsten Brendtro and Alisha Johnson.

Freshmen new to the team include Lexi Wilson, Marie Serrels and Karlee Barnard.

"It's still a young team, but it's an experienced racing team, which is a bonus for us," Miller said.

The three freshmen girls and freshman Roscoe Serrels all have experience racing with the Central United States Ski Association (CUSSA). Last year, as eighth grade students, Wilson and Serrels qualified for the CUSSA championships. The four freshmen skied for Northwest Academy's ski team last year.

Freidinger leads a boys' club that has a few more question marks after losing four letter-winners from last year's team. Last year, the boys' team finished third in the conference.

Freidinger, who qualified for last year's state finals in the slalom event, will be joined by senior Steve Pirie, juniors Joel Trubilowicz and Shaun MacMillan and freshmen Roscoe Serrels, Kyle Louiselle, Jim Dilworth.

MacMillan, however, won't join the club until next month, after he returns from Denmark where he is spending the semester on a foreign exchange program.

"Hopefully we can bring back some good results," Miller said. "I think we'll be strong competition, but we can only wait and see."

The teams will also have to wait and see if they can get on the slopes anytime soon. The spring-like start of the month of December has not only been without snow, it has also not brought enough cold weather for the ski hills to make snow.

Miller has had the team running, biking, rollerblading and playing soccer to keep them conditioned and in good spirits as they wait for the white stuff. Once they do hit the slopes, the team will be sporting new red ski coats, courtesy of the school's athletic department, to replace the black coats which had been the team's coats for the last 10 years.

"The kids are real anxious to get on the slopes, and so am I," Miller said.

The season hopefully begins for the Rayders next month with the Petoskey/Harbor Springs Invitational at Boyne Highlands at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 5.

The season continues with nine other events including the regional finals on Thursday, Feb. 11 at a time and site to be determined later and the conference finals at Boyne Mountain at 12 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 16. The state championships will be held in Marquette on Monday, Feb. 22.

BUSINESS

Please pass the turkeys

Right: After an extremely successful year, Pat McKeown, owner of Pat McKeown Ford, decided to give something back to the community. To that end, he donated 50 turkeys to the Charlevoix Christmas Project. It was eighth grade student Kelly Zimmerman who approached McKeown with a request for a donation. Zimmerman is collecting donations for the Spirit of Christmas middle school food drive. She will personally collect 1,000 donated items this year. Community food pantry chairman Kay Chase was thrilled with the donation of the turkeys, as was Debbie Gelderblom, chairman of the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project. She said the turkeys will ensure that every large family has a turkey dinner on Christmas day. Shown here making a donation of the first turkey to the Charlevoix Christmas Project is Pat McKeown (center) with (from left) Dennis VanGuilder, middle school principal, Kelly Zimmerman, Kay Smith, Debbie Gelderblom and Tom Sothard, middle school project coordinator.

Citizens Bank offers Santa dollars

Citizens Bank is trying to make this year a little brighter for a number of the local charities in our area. On Monday, Nov. 23, Citizens Bank started offering Santa Dollars throughout all the bank's locations in Michigan and Illinois.

Santa Dollars provide the purchaser with a unique holiday gift and the proceeds from the sale of the Santa Dollars go to benefit local charities in each of the markets Citizens Bank serves.

In the Charlevoix, Grayling, Gaylord, Traverse City markets, the charity selected is Child and Family Services.

Santa Dollars consist of an actual one dollar bill with a removable sticker of Santa Claus over the picture of George Washington. Each Santa Dollar is held in a gift card and envelope and sold for $2 each.

"It's not very often you come across a program that can benefit the consumer and charity at the same time," said James R. Kanary, President of Citizens Bank-Charlevoix/Grayling commented.

"The Santa Dollars program does just that. It provides the consumer with a unique holiday gift for someone, and at the same time makes a contribution to a worthwhile charity. We are very excited about the program and anticipate a large response, which means more money for the charity."

Santa Dollars will be offered exclusively through all Citizens Bank locations. They went on sale on Nov. 23, and will be offered through Dec. 24. All contributions to the charities will be made before the end of 1998.

Adam Wood
Most Outstanding
Offensive Player

Brian Ward
Most Outstanding
Defensive Player

Mark Yager
Coaches' Award

Jeremy Rafacz
110 Percent Award

The Charlevoix Rayders put the finishing touches on their 1998 football season by handing out team awards during the team's banquet recently.

Senior tailback Colin Carr was named the team's Most Valuable Player after a season in which he rushed for a school record 1,710 yards. He also scored 21 touchdowns, nine two-point conversions and made 34 tackles when playing on the defense.

Quarterback Adam Wood was named the team's Most Outstanding Offensive Player. A junior, Wood completed 56 percent of his passes for 1,507 yards and 17 touchdowns. He threw only eight interceptions in his first year as lead signal-caller.

Senior Brian Ward was named the Most Outstanding Defensive Player. Ward led the defensive charge all season for the Rayders and was in on 103 tackles, 37 of which were solo corals.

Other awards included, Mark Yager, Coaches' Award; Jeremy Rafacz, 110 percent award; Shay Hutchison, Most Improved Player; and Carl Goff, Outstanding Lineman. Wood, Yager, Wally Wujcik and Erik Butcher all were honored with Iron Club status for dressing and participating in every practice during the season.

The Lake Michigan Conference also announced its postseason honors in late November.

Carr, Goff, Ward and Wood all were placed on the All-Conference First Team. Rafacz, Wujcik, Tom Cunningham, Matt McClellan and George LaBlanc were named to the league's honorable mention team.

Cranberry Cup crazy

While most of the community was bemoaning the tricky turn of the weather Sunday afternoon when cold winds started to whip across the lake, sailors in the Cranberry Cup Regatta were cheering the change in weather. The addition of wind was welcomed by the 10 boats that participated in the end of the season yacht club race. Taking first place in the regatta was Skipper Kevin Meier aboard the H.S. Moisture Missile. Bryan Burly captured second place in Rock Steady, while third place went to Dave Strawbridge in Swine Flew.

Following the three leaders were: fourth place, Mark Snyder in Hussy; fifth place, Chuck Carmichael in Pygmalion; sixth place, Chris Prining in Pigasus; seventh place, Pam Grove and Pam Barnes with High Maintenance; eighth place, Marty Jensen with Superfluous; ninth place, Bob Grove with Pale Face Light; and 10th place, Tim Wilford with Fast Break. ## Young wrestling team has promise

By Jamie MacMillan

Charlevoix wrestler James Pop continued where he left off last season by winning five of six matches during the first week of the high school wrestling season.

The 171-pound grappler won a pair of decisions in a tri-match last week between Charlevoix, Manton and Rogers City. His hot streak continued at last Saturday's Mancelona Invitational, where he won three of four matches to pace the Rayders to team wins over Mesick, 60-12, and Pine River, 54-29.

Luke Whitley also earned wins against Mesick and Pine River in the 160-pound division. Jerry Zeitler, 145, and Pat Matthews, 215, also earned wins against Pine River. In a reversal of last year's fortunes, the remainder of Charlevoix's points came on forfeits when their opponents couldn't offer up wrestlers in all the weight classes.

Unfortunately, the youth and inexperience of coach Joe Johnston's charges was clear when the Rayders squared off with better competition.

Facial expressions tell the story and take top honors

Perhaps it was their ability to convey a wide range of emotions, as shown in the pictures above, that enabled the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts team to capture first place in a pentathlon tournament in Ann Arbor last weekend.

The team was 23 members strong, and each member gave an individual performance in five different categories of competition. The students had to recite prose from a book, perform a dramatic interpretation from a play, recite poetry, perform by telling a story of a children's mythical or moral story and perform an original interpretation, which was a personal piece written by the student.

Charlevoix students beat a major rival, Andover, for the first place position.

"We're very excited," said performing arts member Nick Kessler.

Caleb Levengood

"By beating Andover, we're instilled with quite a bit of confidence."

In the individual categories, Nick Kessler took second place and Jessie Murray took fifth place.

Numerous other actors received honorable mentions for their performances.

"Our director was aglow with our performance," Kessler said of Connie Ford.

The team also took home honors from an earlier tournament based on original interpretation, where Kessler earned second place and Murray snagged seventh place.

Now the group will work on their play for the winter season.

were rocked by Rogers City, 60-15, and Manton, 66-9. Whitley and Matthews each pinned their opposition to win their matches against Rogers City, but Pop's victory was the only Rayder win over Manton.

"Both have excellent programs," Johnston said. "Because of our age and youth we had a lot of freshmen mistakes which was exposed against some of the teams with more experience."

How uneven were the teams in the experience department?

Johnston's match card was filled with eight freshmen while Manton came into the bouts touting eight highly regarded seniors.

The experience factor was an issue as well in the weekend invitational, as the Rayders were downed by the host Ironmen, 66-12, and Glenn Lake, 66-18.

Zeitler and Pop won matches against Glen Lake while Whitley beat Manelona. Charlevoix did earn a forfeit win against each school.

Despite the hard knocks, Johnston was pleased with the first week of competition that saw his grapplers win 13 matches.

"I don't feel bad at all," he said. "Our progress is coming along and we'll only get better."

The Rayders wrestled at Sault Ste. Marie last night, Tuesday, but results were incomplete at press time. The Rayders will next be in action at 6 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 17 in a tri-match with Roscommon and Whitmore-Preseott.

Book signing by Glen Ruggles will benefit land conservancy

On Thursday, Dec. 10, 1998 Glenn Ruggles will host a slide show, reading, and book-signing featuring his recently-released history of the Chain of Lakes, a book called Voices on the Water.

Ruggles is donating a portion of his book sales from this event to the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy's Chain of Lakes Challenge Campaign.

Started in late 1997, the Challenge Campaign was the brain child of two anonymous donors who wanted to raise watershed awareness in the Chain of Lakes region.

These donors challenged the regional conservancy to raise $250,000, with a promise to match these funds dollar-for-dollar.

This fall, the regional conservancy reached its $250,000 goal, raising $500,000 to protect the Chain of Lakes Watershed. However, the challenge grant donors were so pleased with the success of the campaign that they recently announced they are "lifting the cap." Until Dec. 31, every dollar given toward the Chain of Lakes will continue to be worth two! This is a golden opportunity for everyone who cares about the Chain of Lakes and wants to see this unique waterway preserved.

In transcribed interviews, author Glenn Ruggles has preserved the voices of Chain of Lakes residents in his collection of oral histories called Voices on the Water. Appearing by category, the 38 interviews-accompanied by 275 historic photos and two dozen maps of the Chain-comprise an unusual journal of life in northern Michigan. The joys, sorrows, and unadorned love for the water of these people tell a compelling and passionate story about this unusual necklace of lakes.

Ruggles brings the 75-mile Chain to life in a vibrant style.

"This regional history, superbly evoked through oral history, is a deftly crafted portrait of a beautiful waterway in America's upper Midwest. Glenn Ruggles deserves more than regional acclaim for giving us this excellent book," said Charles Morricoy, former president of the National Oral History Association. The slide show, reading, and book-signing will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10 at the Elk Rapids Township Hall. Ruggles' book is the perfect holiday gift for anyone who loves the Chain of Lakes. Any book purchased at this event will help protect this beloved waterway forever.

PTO hosts Santa's workshop

A perennial favorite, the Santa luncheon and children's Craft-making Workshop will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12 in the Charlevoix Elementary School gym.

The craft-making will begin at 10 a.m. and continue through 1 p.m. There will be 12-14 different craft projects for children, and the cost ranges from $1 to $5.

Lunch with Santa, which includes pizza, a drink and dessert, begins at 11:15 a.m. Children will be able to have their picture taken with Santa during the luncheon. The cost of the lunch is $3.

The event is sponsored by the Charlevoix Elementary PTO and the Elementary Enrichment Program.

For more information, call Amy Fiser at 547-1250, Shelly Stevenson at 547-3141, or the elementary school at 547-3215.

Don't forget light display contest

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful reminds Charlevoix area residents to enter their homes in the Christmas Light Display Contest. The committee knows that there are many beautiful displays that are not yet registered.

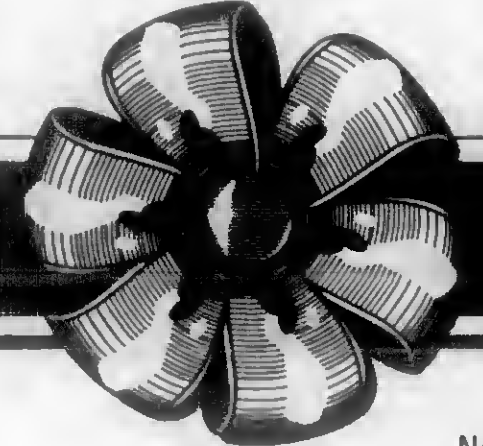

Judges this year are Scott and Kirstin Cochran and Bob and Pat Miller, winners from last year's contest. Judging will take place from 5:30-6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15. Recognition will be given to three homes in four sections of town, as well as an overall "grand winner."

If you'd like to have the petunia truck drive the judges by your home (while playing Christmas carols) call Mary at 547-0348 or Judy at 547-1945 to register. The winners' names and addresses will be published so that everyone in the community can enjoy their decorations as part of the holiday season.

Gift From The Wallet.

Gift From The Heart.

Now, instead of giving just a cash gift this year, give them a gift from the heart with Santa Dollars® from Citizens Bank. Santa Dollars® make a truly heartfelt gift because the proceeds from their sale go to support charities right here in our community.

With each $2.00 purchase, you receive a real one dollar bill with Santa's picture on it, a gift card and an envelope. Normally, you might spend that much just on the card!

So come in to any Citizens Bank branch today to get your Santa Dollars®. They're a very special gift that will do your heart good, and do some good for those in need this holiday season!

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Master gardeners host Christmas party

Members of the Northern Michigan Master Gardener Association (NMMGA), master gardener students and recent graduates are invited to attend the Monday, Dec. 14 Christmas party to be held at the Terrace Inn in Petoskey. The party will begin at 7 p.m. with a "finger food" pot luck and will include a Christmas auction and election of officers for the coming year.

Current members of the Petoskey master gardener class should arrive at 6 p.m. to grade final exams prior to the party.

Class members from Central Lake, past master gardener graduates and members of NMMGA should arrive at 7 p.m. Everyone is encouraged to bring a wrapped gift ($10 limit) for a Christmas auction to be held during the party. Proceeds from the party will benefit the Terrace Inn for their generosity in hosting NMMGA meetings.

Additional nominations for officers, including president, vice president, treasurer, secretary, corresponding secretary, historian and plant sale coordinator will be accepted at the meeting and be followed by the election. Anyone interested in any of those positions should contact Dick Hemme at 347-0759. Members are also reminded to send in their nominations for Master Gardener of the Year to Dick Hemme at P.O. Box 773, Petoskey, 49770.

NMMGA includes Master Gardeners and students in the five county area (Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego). For more information about the Michigan State University Extension Master Gardener program call 348-1770. Those interested in joining NMMGA, should call 582-2715 for more information.

The evening will start with social hour at 6:30 p.m., followed by a potluck dinner at 7 p.m. Music and dancing will start at approximately 8 p.m. All Legion and Auxiliary members and all prospective members are urged to come for the fun-filled evening. Veteran are all welcome. Please bring a dish to pass for the potluck dinner. This is the first Christmas party they have held in several years, and they hope to make it an annual event. Please come and bring a guest who would like to join.

Nativity Church hosts cookie walk

Over 1,000 divine, decorated cookies will be waiting to be taken home from the ninth annual Nativity Church Cookie Walk in Boyne City. Proceeds from the cookie walk will help pay for the church's new convenience ramp. The cookie walk will be from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12 next to the Boyne City Library, 201 E. Main St., Boyne City.

Boyne City Lodge to elect officers

The Boyne City Lodge No. 391 F. & A.M. will hold an open installation of officers for the 1999 Masonic Year at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 11, in the Masonic Hall, 212

N. Lake St., Boyne City.

The officers scheduled to be installed are Gene A. Farley, Worshipful Master; Daniel J-Rehkoph Chingwa, Senior Warden; Henry R. Erber, Junior Warden; Lyle W. Ross, Treasurer; John C. Talboys, Secretary; Frederick N. Welch, Senior Deacon; Robert Freed, Junior Deacon; Willard J. Chipman, Senior Steward.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Soup kitchen open to public

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church Soup Kitchen is open to the public from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

School bands to perform this week

The Charlevoix Public Schools invite the community to the annual Christmas concert at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10 in the high school gymnasium.

The program features the seventh, eighth and high school concert hands, as well as the new Charlevoix Jazz Lab band.

The seventh grade band will perform first, playing the march from the Notebook for Anna Magdalena Bach, Chesapeake Overture, Rockin on the Roof and Doo-Wah Dixieland. The eighth grade band will follow, performing the following selections: March of the Irish Guard, Adirondack Overture, I Heard the Bells and Brookpark Overture. The Jazz Lab band will next perform All About the Blues and Night Train. The Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band will conclude the program with Flourish for Wind Band, Overture in B Flat, Russian Christmas Music, Trilogy of European Carols, Cantique De Noel and the March from Third Suite by Robert Jager.

There will be a dessert social immediately following the concert in the cafeteria. The new Charlevoix Audio Yearbook CD will be played over the gymnasium sound system. The CDs may be purchased for $11.95 that evening. Proceeds go toward the upkeep of the recording studio and the Charlevoix Creative Coalition.

SCRAPBOOK

Santa's Workshop started with one great, big tree

By Marilyn Boss

At this time of year, our thoughts return to years past, with memories of happy times with family and friends. When I was small, my sister and I crept down the stairs in the middle of the night, as so many others remember doing. We were all excited to see what Santa had brought, and when we started rattling the wrapping paper to see what was under the tree, Mom and Dad awoke and in no uncertain terms informed us that it was 3:15 a.m. and morning was a long way off. We went dolefully back to bed, and learned that we had to stay there until dawn from then on.

I recall that one year, we were each given a Didee doll, and what fun that was. Another year, my dad gave me a miniature gas station with a hoist that worked, and gas pumps that were attached to it. The hoses were made of rubber and there was a handle that "pumped" the gas. Later in the morning, the aunts, uncles and cousins went to Grandma and Grandpa Iken's home at the county jail, just a block away. We had a great time there, and Grandma made the Christmas dinner for all of us. She was a very good cook, and I recall always having a dish of horseradish on the table for those that liked it. I never could bring myself to try it. There were always lots of vegetables, mashed potatoes, meat and homemade pies on the table.

Dale recalls the tradition his family had of going in the evening to his Grandma and Grandpa Chew's home in the country for oyster stew. Grandpa raised vegetable oysters (salsify) in the garden, and stored them in the basement to be used through the winter.

We always decorated our first house with lights, but when we built our present home, we had a 25-foot tree each year, which was in the center of the living room, and reached to the peak of the house. We had to put up 25 foot ladders to reach the top branches, and it was a harrowing experience. We put a Merry Christmas sign outside, and a few years later, added Snoopy, his dog house, and all the gang singing carols. I still have them in our scene today. Then one year, after seeing our Halloween decorations, Mrs. Max Gennett asked me why I didn't do something bigger for Christmas. That was all I needed to let my imagination go, so I bought sheets of plywood, laid them out on the grass, and painted them all an undercoat of white. Then, I cut the figures out, sanded each one, and then painted on the clothes and faces. They were about 24 inches tall, and in various poses. We placed them on the house and in the yard. I made 51 elves that first year. The toys the elves are working on were yard sale purchases. I also made Santa and Mrs. Claus, Rudolph, with his red blinking nose, three other reindeer, kittens, puppies, mice, lollipops, candy canes, balloons, and birds.

Christmases past are fun to remember, and Christmas present is also enjoyable to prepare. Using my imagination, and the input of others, we always seem to have new ideas to add. It's fun!

Playing with honor

Right: (From left) Lori Stargardt, Marcy Bennett and Christine Potee are three of the four Charlevoix students who auditioned for and were selected to be in the District II Honors Band. Dena Sheldon also qualified. Lori, Dena and Marcy are flute players, while Christine is a clarinet player. The students competed against students from many larger schools in the district for the positions.

Community loses man who always was ready to help Harold Krutsch dies

By Laurie Lounsbury

Harold Krutsch may have lived in Charlevoix for a brief 14 years, but his contributions to the town were more than many people give in a lifetime.

Krutsch died Friday, Dec. 11 at home with his wife, Jacqueline.

Krutsch first came to Charlevoix in 1984 to manage the Weatherlane Terrace. He wasted no time jumping into community activities.

"He got involved in the community as soon as he got here," said Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and long time friend. "Most people would take a few years in a new town to get to know people, but Harold was volunteering his time right from the get-go."

In 1986, Krutsch was instrumental in creating the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, a group promoting the Charlevoix Area and supporting the hotels and lodges in the area.

"He was very supportive of Charlevoix businesses and the downtown area," said a long time friend, John Kurtz.

It was Krutsch's idea to have concerts in the park during the summer. Since their inception, the concerts have proven to be a very popular attraction with both visitors and local residents.

"Harold knew that not everybody goes to the beaches and plays golf," Merta said. "He appreciated the arts, and knew our visitors in town would appreciate having those concerts in the park."

Krutsch was also the driving force behind the Convention and Visitors Bureau's donation of rental skis to Mt. McSaubia. It had come to his attention

A silver ghost of Christmas past

By Laurie Lounsbury

Here's a Charlevoix trivia question: What's big and shiny and used to be a landmark sight on Park Avenue?

Anyone who's been in the area more than 15 years probably knows the answer: Walter Hoffman's aluminum Christmas tree.

The tree stood all year long for nearly 20 years in the second story bay window of the Hoffman home, formerly located at 103 Park Ave., where Hoffman Park is today.

The late Walter Hoffman loved the Christmas season. He used to dress up every year as Santa Claus and listen to Charlevoix children's Christmas wishes while sitting in the lobby of Charlevoix County State Bank. When asked why he kept the tree up in his house all year long, Hoffman always said, "Because I have Christmas in my heart all year."

The tree disappeared when the Hoffman house was torn down and the park was built on the property donated by Hoffman to the city.

Charlevoix residents have probably spent an idle moment or two wondering what ever happened to the tree.

Jo Anne Beemon found the answer — and the tree.

"I was talking to Betty Hoffman (Walter's wife) and just happened to mention the tree, and she told me she still had it in the garage," Beemon said.

When Beemon expressed an interest in the tree, Betty wasted no time donating the tree to the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy.

Now, after a 15 year absence, the familiar landmark sight can be seen again on Park Avenue — this time on the other side of the street, overlooking the site of its former home.

In a matter of minutes after putting the tree up in the conservancy window, Beemon was getting calls about it.

"Is that really Walter Hoffman's tree?" callers asked in disbelief.

"The response has been astounding," said Sulane

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY LAND CONSERVANCY

Hamilton, trustee of the conservancy.

Beemon considers resurrection of the tree an act of conservation in keeping with the organization.

"Somehow, it just seemed like a nice thing to do," she said. "It's kind of a tribute to the good conservation and community ethic of Walter and Betty Hoffman. And it brings back great memories."

School contracts extended three years with pay increase

By Jamie MacMillan

Citing a desire for greater stability and less antagonism, the Charlevoix Board of Education extended the contracts for all staff members from certified associations for another three years.

The extension covers all the teachers, faculty and support staff members throughout the district. The current agreement would have expired at the end of July, 1999.

"It was very important to reach this agreement," superintendent of schools John Sturock said. "This will give us great stability over the next three years."

Added board president Allen Telgenhof, "This is a very fair contract."

Terms of the contract will remain the same except that staff members will receive a 0.6 percent pay increase.

Staff members are paid based on years of service with some adjustments based on college degrees earned. After each year of service, staff members move up one notch on the step level and receive pay increases as a result. Each year the base salary at each step is increased by 2 percent. With the new contract, though, those salary bases will now increase annually by 2.6 percent.

"This will be a sign of great things to come," Sturock said. "I'm excited by the fact that this is off the table."

The board also approved an increased pay scale for incoming substitute teachers. Separate from the union contracts, this new pay scale will only cover substitutes for the schools' support staffs, such as secretaries and custodians.

Pay rates for those subs have remained at the same level since September, 1987. School officials said that they're having difficulty locating subs since their pay rates aren't competitive.

"We're having trouble getting subs because we're simply not paying them enough," Sturock said. "It's not worth their while."

Hourly rates for substitutes in custodial positions will increase from $6.99 to $9.30; kitchen positions will increase from $5.64 to $7.50; secretarial positions will increase from $6.95 to $9.25; and assistant positions will increase from $6.22 to $8.25.

Fees for substitute teachers in the classroom will remain the same. The district pays a flat fee of $60 per day to classroom substitutes.

Despite the increase, not all board members were convinced that this would solve the problem.

"Unemployment is so low that any type of job is hard to fill," Michael MacMillan said. "I'm not so sure this would make a difference."

In other news, Sturock gave the board an update on a pair of maintenance projects at the high school — asbestos removal and roof repair.

Both projects are slated to be done this summer. The roof will be redone to cover all the leaky spots and then the west end of the building will be removed of asbestos and wiring replaced where work was done. The remainder of the building will be cleared of asbestos the following year, Sturock said.

Originally, the plan was to remove all the asbestos at once, but problems with the leaky roof have redirected the thinking. Since each area with asbestos will be equipped with a new ceiling, Sturock said its more prudent to take care of the roof first so new ceiling tiles won't be damaged by any leaks.

Sturock also noted that by doing asbestos abatement all at once, the whole school would have to shut down. This way, the east side of the building can remain open during the summer.

"Our main concern is if we get started and didn't finish we would have a problem in the fall getting school back in session," Sturock said.

Money for the projects will come from the district's sinking fund, a fund supported by the six-year, one-mill levy approved by voters in June, 1997.

The fund is for building projects, but can only be used after money is collected.

Other than replacing the heating systems and making minor roof repairs at the high school in 1997, no other projects have been done, since the cost of the work would require at least another year of tax collection. Last year, it was estimated that the asbestos project and subsequent rewiring could cost over $1 million.

"That, however, was an estimate for the whole building. Sturock said he plans to meet with officials from the architectural firm Beta Design next month to get an estimate. Bids for the project will go out in February, be awarded in March and work should start in June 21, 1999.

County takes charge of proposed bike trail along lake shore

By Jamie MacMillan

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners approved a resolution last week that will put the county in charge of upkeep and maintenance of a proposed bike trail along the Lake Michigan shoreline.

The county's role will entail sweeping the trail a couple times a year and clearing away debris like fallen trees. Of course, no one is sure exactly how much time and money the county will spend on upkeep since the trail isn't expected to be usable until the summer of 2000.

"We're still hoping that we can be done in 1999, but realistically it'll be 2000 before we're on it," said Jerry Corley of the Charlevoix Trails Committee.

The local committee is a spoke in the larger wheel of the Top of Michigan Trails Council and its ambitious plans to convert abandoned railroad corridors throughout northern Michigan into non-motorized trails for bikers, walkers, cross-country skiers and in-line skaters. Their "Rails to Trails" campaign is beginning to come to fruition, Corley said, as a trail from Petoskey to the Emmet-Charlevoix county line at Bay Shore Road will be ready for travel this summer.

The local trail will cover 7.5 miles from the county line to Waller Road in Charlevoix Township. There, the trail will connect with a trail built this past summer by the township which extends to Mt. McSaub.

Corley said connecting with the township trail will be an asset since it will give bikers an avenue into the city of Charlevoix.

The cost of the trail will be in the ballpark of $1.5-1.8 million, Corley said. Corley's committee is applying for a federal grant to cover a portion of the costs and the remainder will be covered by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

In 1991, the state legislature passed a resolution pledging financial support for a non-motorized trail in Charlevoix County as part of an agreement that resulted in the abandonment of the railroad corridor which runs parallel to the south side of U.S. 31.

The railroad company petitioned for abandonment, but the county was opposed because it envisioned continued usage of the corridor via trails or even the reemergence of railroad travel, county planner Larry Sullivan said.

The county dropped its opposition when the legislature promised to appropriate funds to MDOT to cover costs of an eventual project.

Technically, it will be MDOT that will be applying for the federal grant since they will be the entity that will be covering the local match as stipulated in the grant. Typically, local bodies are required to match 20 percent of the grant amount.

"For us, a county, to raise $300,000-400,000 would be a very difficult thing to do," Sullivan said.

Instead, the local committee is doing the leg work for MDOT, such as engineering research and garnering local support. The county's agreement to handle the basic maintenance costs is the "final piece of the puzzle," Corley said.

The trail itself will run along the shoreline side of U.S. 31. Corley said the committee investigated placing the trail along the south side across the actual railroad corridor. That idea was scrapped since only a handful of property owners along the way were ready to grant property easements. Corley also noted there were safety concerns should the trail be on the south side.

"There are three parks along the route by the water," he said. "If a trail was on the south side it would be a dangerous situation crossing the highway."

There are wetland issues along the north side of the highway, but trail officials plan to build boardwalks in those areas rather than using asphalt.

"Wherever you see cattails," Corley said, they will use boardwalks. While funding appears guaranthat the youth in the community couldn't rent skis locally to get started in the sport, nor could visitors who wanted their first downhill or cross country ski experience to be at Mt. McSaub.

"He lived right across from Mt. McSaub, and after the group donated skis to the hill, Harold used to say, 'I just love to watch those people skiing over there,'" Merta recalled.

Not one to rest on his laurels or past achievements, Krusch continued to come up with new promotional ideas for Charlevoix. He came up with the theme, "Once in a Blue Moon," for Charlevoix's promotional literature, and was extremely involved in designing all the promotional brochures and videos for Charlevoix. Showing his willingness to help, along with his sense of humor, Krusch made a cameo appearance in a Charlevoix promotional video. He was seen chomping on an apple, grinning and inviting people to Charlevoix's Applefest.

In 1996, Krusch was recognized by the chamber of commerce for his devotion to the community by being given the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President's Award.

"The award goes to the most outstanding person who has volunteered their time and resources to help the chamber of commerce," Merta said.

Krusch did have a life outside his civic volunteer duties. He and his wife, Jacqueline, enjoyed many happy times together in Charlevoix. As a couple, they were frequently seen strolling through town together at various community events.

"He was very proud of, and dedicated.

Perhaps Harold Krusch can best be remembered as a man who was not only true to his community, but was also true to himself.

"The most important thing about Harold was that he was a very genuine person," Kurtz said. "When you talked to Harold, you were talking to Harold — there was no facade."

"Charlevoix is definitely going to miss Harold Krusch," Merta added.

OPINIONS

It's a peaceful, easy feeling to shop where you're known

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is launching a new campaign...Charlevoix First. They are asking local people to consider shopping in Charlevoix before heading out to the malls in big cities or logging onto the Internet to order items.

Although the campaign is a year-round effort, it is particularly meaningful at Christmas time.

They don't have to twist my arm to get me to shop in town.

I'm one of those people who hates shopping. I really hate it if I have to go to a big town with monster stores and malls crowded with surly people who are frantically trying to get their shopping done so they can go home and watch "It's a Wonderful Life" on TV.

My occasional visits to shopping malls leave me frustrated, stressed out and wondering what happened to the Christmas spirit. I stand endlessly in line, watching precious moments of my life dribble away while I'm waiting to buy an item. When I get to the front of the line,

I'm told I need a driver's license, passport, voter's registration card, organ donor card, two major credit cards and a library card with a photo to write a check.

Or something like that.

All I usually carry is a half-empty package of chewing gum and my car keys.

The parking lots at big malls look like the arena for a new sport — Demolition Derby meets Deer Hunter. Clever drivers stalk shoppers burdened with packages as they leave the stores, hoping to follow them to their parking spot. Departing shoppers are kept in the cross hairs of the driver's sights. When other drivers employ the same technique and follow the same person, it gets ugly as each driver tries to nudge the other one out of position.

This is fun? This is the wonder and glory of the season? I don't think so.

In their efforts to keep people shopping locally, the chamber of commerce board stresses the value of service that's offered with a home town purchase.

Service is a vague word that is better demonstrated with specific examples.

For example: When I go into the Bridge Street Book Shop, I can ask Kit and Diane Foster to give me a recommendation for books for my kids. I don't need to tell them that one child is a 17-year-old boy and the other is a 14-year-old girl.

They know my kids.

They know their tastes in books and their interests outside school.

And when my kids ask me what I'd like for Christmas, I send them to the local bookstore. Kit and Diane know exactly what type of books I like, and will recommend a book for my kids to give me. I have never been disappointed with their choices.

Can amazon.com do that? Do the people at Borders know you that well?

When I go in The Appletree, I don't even need to tell Mike Holmes what I'm looking for. He knows I like to get gifts for my sister and nieces there. He knows all the women in my family, and knows their preferences in earrings and art work.

Nobody at Hudsons can tell me what my sister will like. Nobody at Hudsons even has the time to tell me where the jewelry section is when I'm lost, which I frequently am in those big stores.

I can go to the Charlevoix Camera Shop and ask Marell to give some advice about a framed photo for my mother. She knows my mother, and she spends the time helping me make choices about matting and framing.

Will Wal-Mart do that for you?

Last year, a friend of mine who lives in Charlevoix and works long hours in Petoskey needed a new dress for New Year's Eve. Since her shopping time was severely limited, she called Kathy Meggison at J. Phillips and told her she needed a dress. Within 10 minutes, Kathy called her back and described some dresses over the phone to her. She knew my friend's size, favorite colors and styles, and was able to pick out an outfit for her.

Can the outlet mall do that for you?

Shopping in Charlevoix is like visiting family relatives during the holidays. We all know one another, and it's an annual opportunity for a warm fuzzy visit.

When I occasionally have to wait in line to buy something, shop keepers like Jeanine Wallace and Randy Carey simply call out, "Hang on a sec Laurie. I'll be right with you."

They see me waiting. They know me. They don't try to pretend I'm not there, like those harried store clerks do in the big department stores.

When you need a little fortification during your shopping excursion, you can always drop into one of our local restaurants. It beats the heck out of sitting in the noisy din of the food court, cleaning up someone else's ketchup goo left behind on a wobbly formica table.

One frequent comment made by people who shop out of town is that they can save money. These are the same people who gripe about how frantic and frenzied they are during the holiday season.

I don't know about them, but I think my time is money.

If I shop in Charlevoix, I save loads of time. And what can be more valuable than time spent with family and friends during the holidays?

In a somewhat related topic, I want to commend Gary Stutzman and his Northwest Academy Band students for providing wonderful entertainment downtown during the Charlevoix Christmas Open House.

The regular band students went from store to store, playing Christmas carols for merrily surprised shoppers and store owners. Three members of the school's newly formed string ensemble — York Smith, Hiroshi Yoshida and Heather Stark — played violins and a cello for shoppers. The bands played all day long, inside and outdoors, adding a delightful new dimension to the open house.

Welcome Wagon lady says goodbye

Editor:

I am writing to let you know that the Welcome Wagon home visit program in Charlevoix is ending Dec. 31, 1998, after being a service to this community since the early 1970's — the closure a decision made by the company's new owners.

I want to thank all of the many civic, reciprocal, professional, and business sponsors that have provided a welcome to new residents, best wishes to brides, and congratulations to new parents through materials, maps, information, gifts, and additional gift certificates.

Welcome Wagon representatives, past and present, have taken information and gifts to Charlevoix households in the traditional Welcome Wagon basket. I hope that all of us will keep supporting Charlevoix area organizations and businesses so that the variety of clubs, opportunities, goods and services will continue to prosper in our special little community.

Pharmacist leaves Charlevoix to open new business

Editor:

I would like to thank all my past customers for allowing me to be your pharmacist for the past eight years. Some of you are aware of my departure and some are just finding out. I'm sorry that I haven't been able to talk to each and every one of you to let you know about my decision to leave my position. It was a very difficult decision, but I have a desire to practice my profession in an atmosphere where I can provide my clients with comprehensive pharmaceutical care with friendly service. I'm not leaving the area, but have decided to open up my own pharmacy in a neighboring community. I look forward to once again being available for your pharmaceutical needs in the near future.

Sincerely,

Family Affair is looking out for needy families

The Family Affair business in the Airport Plaza recently became the newest kettle site for the Salvation Army. The store owners, Vicki Moses and Sally Wynkoop (on right) have also created a Mitten Tree, an Adopt a Family Angel Tree and are taking food donations, all to benefit the Salvation Army. They are shown here with Salvation Army Captain Doug Yeck (left) and Myra Jenkins, volunteer coordinator for the group. Yeck is shown holding a snowboard, which will go to a child in the area. He'll be very happy to have his Christmas wish fulfilled by the Angel Tree at Family Affair. (Photo courtesy of Keith Matheny/Petoskey News-Review)

around CHARLEVOIX FIRST!

- * Go into the shops to see what they have (name brand items, hand-crafted items, practical and whimsical items).
- * COMPARE prices. Remember shopping elsewhere costs you extra time, gas & food money.
- * ASK about ordering what you don't see.
- * FIND out what services they provide after a sale (gift wrapping, shipping, etc.)

YOU WILL BE AMAZED at what there is here, right in your own back yard, if you take the time to look and ask.

Constitution includes references to God

Editor:

This letter is about the Declaration of Independence and President William Jefferson Clinton.

The declaration (1,321 words long), explicitly sets forth the principles that are the CORNERSTONE

OF AMERICA'S FREEDOM. They strongly affirm the divine origin of human rights.

The founding fathers of the United States in 1776 made it unmistakably clear that: God is the very foundation of "all men." They deliberately included four references to Him in the Declaration — two at the beginning and two at the end.

1. "... the laws of Nature and of Nature's God." These words are in the first sentence and are rooted in "The Laws of Nature," and more precisely in "Nature's God."

2. "... endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights..." (John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Robert Livingston and Roger Sherman) added this specific reference to God in the second sentence.

3. "... appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world..." The members of Congress took it upon themselves to add another reference to God, going on record before the world that they turned to divine authority to justify their action.

4. "... with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence..." In the closing sentence of the Declaration, Congress made one last profession of trust in God.

Purrfect presents

Charlevoix third, fourth and fifth graders sit for a moment, surrounded by heaps of pet supplies, before getting back to the task of helping Charlevoix County Humane Society director Martha Wiesler (standing in back) load the donated supplies into her car.

The humane thing to do

Kids collect supplies for homeless pets

The student councils of Charlevoix's third, fourth and fifth grades embarked on a campaign to gather supplies for the homeless cats and dogs living at the Charlevoix County Humane Society animal shelter.

"They were absolutely amazing, with the amount of supplies they collected," she said.

In all, the value of donated pet supplies came to $612.87.

Wiesler said the donations will enable her to allot more money to medications and vaccinations for the pets.

The kids gathered donations ranging from 237 pounds of dog food, 63 pounds of dog treats, 230 pounds of cat food, 37 cat toys, 13 dog balls, five leashes, 10 collars, and 340 rawhide chews.

Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Wright

Brenda Sutton and Stuart Wright were married Oct. 24, 1998 at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

Pastor Bruce Hamilton performed the double ring ceremony, which was witnessed by 250 guests in a church decorated with green ivy and white satin bows.

The bride is the daughter of Richard and Jean Sutton of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Larry and Beth Wright of Oqueoc, Mich.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father. She wore a white satin and schiffle lace gown with a heart shaped opening in the back and trimmed with dripping pearls. The gown had a sweetheart neckline enhanced with long sleeves of schiffle lace. The fully detachable, chapel length train was adorned with cut-out appliques and schiffle lace. The bride carried a bouquet of cascading red and white roses, star gazer lilies and green ivy.

The pianist at the ceremony was Becky Bliss.

Tricia Richardson, cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Wurst, sister of the bride, Donna Himebauch, the bride's aunt, Laura Sladek, Becky Berden, cousin of the groom, and junior bridesmaid was Elizabeth Blosch, cousin of the bride.

They wore cranberry colored, prima satin tea length dresses with chantilly lace and three-quarter length sleeves and a heart-shaped opening in the back with dripping pearl trim. They carried star gazer lilies with green ivy.

Flower girls were Keely Blosch and Kali Crain, both cousins of the bride. They wore white satin and lace tea length gowns and carried bouquets that were a smaller version of the bride's bouquet.

Ring bearer was Robert Blosch, cousin of the bride.

Best man was Tom Hall.

Groomsmen were Don LaLonde, cousin of the groom, Dan LaLonde, cousin of the groom, Randy Pomranke, cousin of the groom, Rich Sutton, brother of the bride, and junior groomsmen was Cody Crain, the bride's cousin.

Ushers were Randy Wurst, brother-in-law of the bride, and Art Sutton, the bride's uncle.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix.

Host and hostess were Howard and Wanda Barrow, the bride's aunt and uncle.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents the night before the wedding at Nanny's Place in Charlevoix.

The newlyweds will take a wedding trip to Las Vegas in January, 1999. They are making their home in Charlevoix, where the bride is employed at Woodburn Diamond Die in Charlevoix. The groom is employed at Hodgkiss and Douma in Petoskey.

First and second wards get new council representation

By Laurie Lounsbury

Two new people have joined the city council — one, by election and one, by appointment.

While Bill Bellows, the newly appointed councilman representing the second ward, is new to this council, he is not new to the position. Bellows first served on the city council in 1979 as an appointment, filling in a vacated seat. After that, he served on the planning commission until 1984. He then ran for a seat on the city council. After being elected, he served two terms, from 1984 to 1988.

Bellows is retired after running his electrical business in Charlevoix for 25 years.

Originally from New York, Bellows became familiar with the Charlevoix area in 1967, when he was serving in the air force and was transferred to the Bay Shore Combat Evaluation Group. He worked in the air force in radar and electronic maintenance.

Bellows said there are no particular issues with the city council that concern him — he simply offered to fill in until the next election. At that point, he will decide if he wants to officially run for the seat.

Bellows and his wife, Bonnie, live on State Street and have six grown children, two of whom live in the Charlevoix area. Valerie Barnes was elected to the first ward council seat vacated by Don Meggison, who retired from council after serving three terms. Barnes was raised in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. She attended undergraduate school at Adrian College, followed by law school at

Bill Bellows

Willamette Law School in Salem, Ore.

After graduation, she returned to Charlevoix and joined the law firm of Joseph, Corcoran and Telgenhof in October of 1995.

Barnes said she ran for a seat on the council because she wanted to be involved with the community. Prior to joining the council, she served on the city planning commission.

Like Bellows, Barnes said there are no particular issues that concern her at this time.

"My dad did such a fine job of leaving everything in order I don't think there are any pressing concerns," she said.

When asked if she had any plans to follow in her father, Josh Barnes' footsteps, Barnes said, "No, not until I'm 70."

Barnes enjoys racing sailboats and is active in the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Obituaries

Harold "Bill" Krutsch

Harold "Bill" Krutsch, 69, of Charlevoix, died Dec. 11, 1998, at his home in Charlevoix. A funeral Mass was held Tuesday, Dec. 15 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated and burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Krutsch was born April 8, 1929 in Detroit, the son of Harold J. and Lauretta (Bertrand) Krutsch Sr. He graduated from Denby High School in Detroit and attended Michigan State University. He served in the U.S. Navy during the Korean conflict aboard the aircraft carrier Coral Sea as Chief Petty Officer in communications. On Jan. 23, 1955, he married the former Jacqueline Jennings in Detroit. They made their home in Fraser, Flint, Frankenmuth and Saginaw before moving to Charlevoix in 1984. Harold spent 40 years in hotel management, having managed for Albert Pick Hotels, Ramada Inns and Holiday Inns. He retired in 1995 after 11 years as manager of the Weatherlane Terrace in Charlevoix.

Harold served on the Saginaw Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and was president of the Saginaw Convention and Visitors Bureau. He was voted president of the Saginaw Convention and Visitors Bureau. He was voted "Outstanding Businessman in Saginaw's Buena Vista Township." He served on the Walter C. Averill Career Opportunities Center Advisory Council and was president of the Michigan Lodging Association in 1978.

Harold was instrumental in the development of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau in 1986 and had served as its president. He also served on the Charlevoix Housing Commission and was vice president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, president of the Charlevoix Lions Club, served on the board of directors executive committee for Keep Michigan Beautiful, and as an advisor for Charlevoix Friends of the Pool. He supported the North Point Preserve Project and the Charlevoix Area Hospital Building Campaign. In 1996, Harold received the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce President's Award.

He is survived by his wife, Jacqueline, of Charlevoix; son, James Michael and his wife, Jocelyn Krutsch, and their children, Brandon and Colleen of South Bend, Ind.; daughter, Linda Marie and her husband, Scott Warner, and their children, Tyler and Lauren Grace of Kalamazoo; and sister, Shirley Krutsch of Clinton Twp. He was preceded in death by his brother Charles.

Memorial contributions may be made to the St. Mary's Church Building Fund or the American Heart Association. Envelopes for contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Rex Edward Fair

Rex Edward Fair, 80, of Charlevoix and formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, died Dec. 13 at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 16 at Faith Lutheran Church in Sault Ste. Marie. Pastor Robert B. Patrick will officiate and burial will be in Oaklawn Chapel Gardens, Bruce Township. Visitation was Tuesday evening at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix and from 1 p.m. until the time of the service at Faith Lutheran Church in Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Fair was born Feb. 24, 1918 in Mt. Pleasant, the son of Harvey and Lieueila (Childers) Fair. He served in the U.S. Army Engineering Corps during World War II. On Aug. 19, 1950, he married the former Ruth Varner in Mt. Pleasant and she preceded him in death on Oct. 22, 1984. He was employed by Michcon and in 1962 he moved to Sault Ste. Marie. He retired as foreman in 1977 after over 30 years with Michcon. On May 24, 1986, he married the former Betty Jean Pittman in Ironton near Charlevoix. They then made their home in Charlevoix.

Rex was a member of the Brimley Lions Club and the Brimley V.F.W. Post. He is survived by his wife, Betty Jean of Charlevoix; son Rex and his wife, Sharon Fair of Stevens Point, Wis.; three daughters, Lynn Shumbarger of Sault Ste. Marie, Nancy and her husband, Richard Koning of Nashville, N.C., Christine and her husband, Don Isenhoff of Sparta; two stepsons, Roy and his wife, Laura Pittman of Titusville, Penn., Rod and his wife, Jane Pittman of Charlevoix; several grandchildren and great-grandchildren; and a sister, Wreatha Philo of Breckenridge.

Memorial contributions may be made to: Leukemia Society of America, 600 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016-1900.

Special service and open house will honor departing pastor Bruce Hamilton

The Charlevoix Community Church of God will be offering a community worship service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 27 in honor of the departing Rev. Bruce Hamilton. Following the service, there will be a potluck dinner and everyone in the community is invited to join the church for the service and dinner.

At 2 p.m., the church will host an open house reception for Rev. Hamilton. The community is encouraged to attend.

Community Reformed Church offers special Advent Communion Service

Community Reformed Church will offer an Advent Communion Service at 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 20. The public is invited to attend the service. Pastor Larry Grooters emphasized that this service carries a spirit of quiet reflection and reverence as the community awaits the coming of Christmas.

Grooters will give a short meditation. David Otis, June Otis and Eric Cherry will provide music for the service. The church is located at the corner of Petoskey Avenue and Meech Street in Charlevoix. For more information, call 547-9482.

Program shows Christmas through a child's eyes

The "Not So Silent Night" is a musical providing a delightful look at this special holiday season as seen through the eyes of a child.

The musical will take place from 6-7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 20 at the First Baptist Church, 06789 North M-66 Hwy. in Charlevoix.

Everyone is invited to come and enjoy the show. There will be a nursery available. Refreshments will be served after the program.

Announce your church events here

Send your church announcement of an upcoming event to the Charlevoix Courier, P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Deadline for upcoming events is 10 a.m. on the Monday preceding the Courier issue in which you would like to have your event mentioned.

Big Rock Point employees hit new record in fund-raising

Employees at Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project recently completed a successful United Way campaign, with contributions 23 percent higher than their goal.

Management, support, Utility Workers Union of America Local 346, and contract employees donated $18,445 for the 1998 campaign. Strong support from site contractors, including Burns International Security Services, ACRO, Sargent and Lundy, NPS Energy Services, BNFL, MDM, and Asta Engineering helped the plant exceed its goal of $15,000. The average employee donation was $184.46.

Employees designated a total of $16,262 to go to the Char-Em United Way. This amount represents approximately nine percent of that agency's 1998 goal of $190,000. In addition, a corporate donation from Consumers Energy will be made to the Char-Em United Way early next year. Big Rock Point employees and Consumers Energy have donated more than $100,000 to the United Way over the past five years.

"The success of our 1998 United Way campaign reflects the strong community commitment held by Big Rock Point employees," said site general manager Ken Powers. "We are proud to support the United Way as they work to support our communities."

Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and an important research site of the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down on Aug. 29, 1997. Its 35 years of service made it the nation's longest running nuclear plant. Due to its many contributions to the nuclear and medical communities, the plant was named a Nuclear Historic Landmark by the American Nuclear Society.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation, is Michigan's largest natu-

Area man gets birthday card — two years late

Max Gennett glanced at his mail the other day and saw he had received a card from his sister. It didn't seem unusual, at this time of year, to be getting such a card.

What was unusual was that the card envelope had been taped shut. And what was even more unusual was that it was not a Christmas card, but a card postmarked April, 1996.

Upon opening the envelope, Max got another surprise. It was a birthday card sent to him more than two years ago.

No, the U.S. Postal Service was not to blame for losing the errant card.

Also enclosed in the envelope was a letter from the United States Postal Inspection Service. It said the following:

"Dear Postal Customer:
"The enclosed piece of mail was found in the Atlanta metro area in an opened condition. The U.S. Postal Inspection Service conducted a criminal investigation which resulted in an arrest of a non postal employee. This non employee was subsequently convicted in federal court for violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1708, Theft of Mail. This individual was recently sentenced to serve 15 months in a federal prison and given three years probation upon release. The perpetrator was fined $15,000 and given $100 special assessment. No restitution to the victims was ordered by the court."

"The mail being returned to you has been held as evidence at the direction of the U.S. Attorney's Office, Northern District of Georgia."

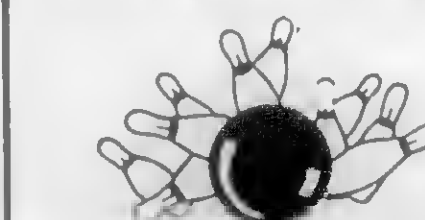

"The U.S. Postal Inspection Service deeply regrets any inconvenience and/or loss you suffered as a result of this theft."

"Sincerely,
I. T. Carle,
Inspector In Charge"

The letter got Max out of hot water with his sister, who wondered why he never thanked her for the birthday card.

So now we know who to blame when our mail doesn't reach its destination — the mail thieves.

Elk Rapids tops field in volleyball tournament

By Jamie MacMillan

The Charlevoix JV volleyball team won their first game Saturday, and followed it with three other wins en route to a third place finish in the Charlevoix Junior Varsity Volleyball Invitational.

While the weather outside resembled beach volleyball season, the indoor season began for area JV teams with an exciting, tightly fought tournament.

"We liked it, there was good competition," Rayder JV coach Anemarie Conway said. "There were some real neat games going on."

Seven other squads joined the Charlevoix JVs including Petoskey, Boyne City, Elk Rapids, Harbor Springs, Kalkaska and freshmen clubs from Charlevoix and Petoskey.

The squads were split into two, four team pools with the top two teams in each pool advancing into a mini-tournament.

The JV Rayders split two games with Boyne City, 15-12, 12-15, and with the Petoskey freshmen, 6-15, 15-6 before sweeping two from Kalkaska, 15-5, 15-4, to claim the top spot in Pool A. Kalkaska, meanwhile, nabbed the second spot in Pool A.

Petoskey JV and Elk Rapids advanced out of Pool B.

Ironically, it was the runners up in each pool — Kalkaska and Elk Rapids — that dueling in the finals. The Elks swept by Charlevoix JV in the semis, 15-11, 15-5, and Kalkaska topped Petoskey.

In the finals, Kalkaska took the first set, but the Elks battled back to win the final two sets to earn the championship.

"In the beginning, hands were shaking, the girls were so nervous," Conway said of the season opening tournament. "As the day wore on, though, we became really consistent and safe with our serves."

Kate Madison and Kelly Reid gave the club good front row play, Amber Parsons and Kathryn Ricks were the top setters and the team looked really good passing the ball, Conway said.

"The team has a nice skill level and was able to get into a nice cohesive groove," Conway said. "The key will be getting more aggressive, putting a little more velocity on our spikes."

While the club had to watch another team walk out of their gym with the trophy, the Rayders won't have long to wait before a chance to exact some revenge. The Rayders and Elk Rapids, who did not meet during Saturday's festivities, will get the conference season going with a match on Thursday, Dec. 17 in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

The game begins at 6 p.m., with the varsity game to follow.

Decisive fourth quarter run lifts Rayders past Petoskey

By Jamie MacMillan

While it remains to be seen if it was a sign of things to come or simply an opening night oddity, it sure was fun for the Charlevoix basketball team and its brigade of fans who traveled to Petoskey to watch last week's season opener.

Outscoring the Northmen 23-13 in the game's final 10 minutes, the Rayders broke open a tight contest to win going away, 71-61.

The win snapped a six-game losing streak to Petoskey and was only the second win by Charlevoix in the last 12 contests in this series. The win was also the first victory in a season opener for Charlevoix since 1994.

The quality of play during the stretch run was attributed to a roster dominated by nine seniors, the victorious coach said.

"I think our experience, pulled us through," Rayder coach Keith Haske said. "They've all been there before and in crunch time you hope they will step forward."

Ironically, it was a junior who sparked the Rayders' win.

Adam Wood, playing in his first varsity contest, came off the bench to drill six treys and score a game-high 20 points.

"He's been hot and cold in practice, but it all came together for him," Haske said. "He gave us a big boost — he definitely has the green light."

Haske said he felt that the club could attack certain dead spots in Petoskey's zone defense, notably along the baseline perimeter. Wood carried through on the strategy and drained a pair of treys from each corner during the contest.

Other heroes for Charlevoix included Matt McClellan, who dropped in 18 points on a series of acrobatic moves; Matt Dennis, who scored 16 points on offensive put-backs and transition hoops; and Justin Thorp, who grabbed a team high 12 rebounds and set an early tone with two blocked shots in the game's opening minute.

Both teams exchanged scoring flurries during the first quarter.

The Northmen held a 13-12 lead at the quarter break, but Wood opened the scoring in the second stanza with his first three-pointer. He drilled in two more in the quarter and ended the half with a short jumper after an offensive rebound to give Charlevoix a 36-32 lead at intermission.

The Northmen grabbed the lead early in the second half, 41-38, on a 9-2 run.

They extended the margin to 44-40, but Charlevoix soon caught them when a McClellan three-pointer tied the score at 48-48. A free throw by Thorp gave the Rayders a lead they would never relinquish, 49-48, with two minutes left in the third quarter.

Ahead by just two points midway through the final frame, the Rayders put the game away with an 8-0 spurt. The run was capped by Wood's final three-pointer, giving the club an insurmountable 65-55 lead with 2:35 left in the game.

In the night's undercard, the Petoskey JVs ended the game on a 16-3 run to topple the Rayders' JV team, 76-66.

Charlevoix opened with an early five point lead, but trailed the Northmen, 31-30, at the half.

Petoskey opened the second half on an 11-0 run to take a commanding 42-30 lead. The Rayders, though, chipped away at the lead and trailed only 52-48 going into the final frame after Ben Coen sank a jumper to end the third quarter.

Trailing by five in the fourth quarter, the Rayders exploded on a 10-2 run, highlighted by five points from Scott Parrish, to edge ahead, 63-60. Petoskey, however, remained cool, and scored the game's next 10 points and iced the contest with solid free throw shooting in the final minute.

Charlevoix fans storm the court after the final buzzer in the Rayders' 71-61 win over Petoskey. The win snapped a six game losing streak to the rival Northmen. Despite being on the road, the Rayders were spurred on by a loud student section, dubbed the "Number One Fan Crew." (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

Bring It Home for Christmas!

1 Taxes
A part of every dollar you spend locally goes to local government paying for services that would otherwise go on your personal tax bill.

4 Quality Merchandise
When you buy locally you're building on a relationship with a business. Your satisfaction is paramount to that business so any problems you may have will be handled on a personal basis.

6 Save Money
By the time you figure in the cost of gas and your time you may actually spend more money to bring in an item from out of town. Local merchants provide goods and services at competitive costs - so why not save time and money with them?

9 Personal Service
You're more than just a number to an area merchant. You're a face, a name - a personality. And area businesses will go the extra mile to assure your satisfaction. Get to know them well enough and they can even aid you in selecting gifts for those hard to buy for folks.

2 Selection
As a local customer your tastes determine what goods and services are available locally. The more you shop here the better the selection of goods and services available.

3 Employment
Area businesses employ area people. Your local spending helps create jobs for your friends, family and neighbors.

5 Community Involvement
You'll know that your holiday expenditures are also going to help your community. Area businesses support your friends and neighbors - support them and you support us all.

7 Economic Development
Your local dollar is more than five times as valuable to our economy than out-of-town money. The reason? Local dollars will circulate five times through the local economy before leaving. A dollar spent in another community is gone forever. Also the cost of attracting outside money is prohibitive.

8 Merchandise Availability
In the time it takes you to plan a trip out of town many merchants can special order items. You get exactly what you want without wasting time and energy on a long trip.

10 We Care
When you shop at area merchants you're more likely to be greeted with a smile, helped and treated as a guest. Because that's exactly what you are. You're our guests.

Two local members receive international award

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club honored two members recently by awarding them the George F. Hixson Fellowship Award. John C. Lachman, retired from Hoskins Manufacturing and Gayle Gennett, elementary school counselor for Charlevoix Public Schools, received the international award for their continued outstanding work in the Kiwanis Club and the Charlevoix community.

The George F. Hixson Fellowship Award is one of the Kiwanis International Foundation's highest honors. Membership is given to individuals who donate $1,000 and demonstrate strong Kiwanis support. The funds received for a Hixson Fellowship can be designated for one of two programs: Either the Kiwanis International Foundation endowment or the Kiwanis International Worldwide Service Project/Iodine Deficiency Disorders.

George F. Hixson was the first Kiwanis International president. The fellowship was created in 1983 in his honor. George F. Hixson died March 10, 1967, but his name will live forever; remembered by all those who are members of the George F. Hixson Fellowship.

Stayin' Alive is theme of non-alcohol drink program

Stayin' Alive was a popular Bee Gees tune in 1978 — the same year that AAA Michigan launched its "First A Friend, Then A Host" nonalcoholic drink program. For 20 years, the Auto Club has provided its "Great Pretenders Party Guide" free to Michigan residents to help make the holidays safe. More than 60,000 copies of the guide are distributed each holiday season through AAA Michigan branches, traffic safety organizations and in response to mail and phone requests.

To help promote this holiday safety message, employees of the AAA Michigan Charlevoix MISA (Membership and Insurance Sales Agency), at 1002 Bridge St., will mix free samples of the nonalcoholic drinks at the branch from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15.

"Stayin' Alive is one theme we take to heart," said agent Daniel Michalski. "That was our goal in 1978 — to help make the roads safer during the holidays, when people tend to drink and drive. That's still our goal today."

The AAA Michigan "Great Pretenders Party Guide" features 19 recipes by Michigan residents who were selected as finalists in four regional "Zero-Proof Mix-Off" contests held in October, as well as recipes from professional bartenders. In keeping with this year's theme — "Remember '78" — drink recipes have names like "Copacabana Shake," "Disco Slush" and "Milliken's Mimosa."

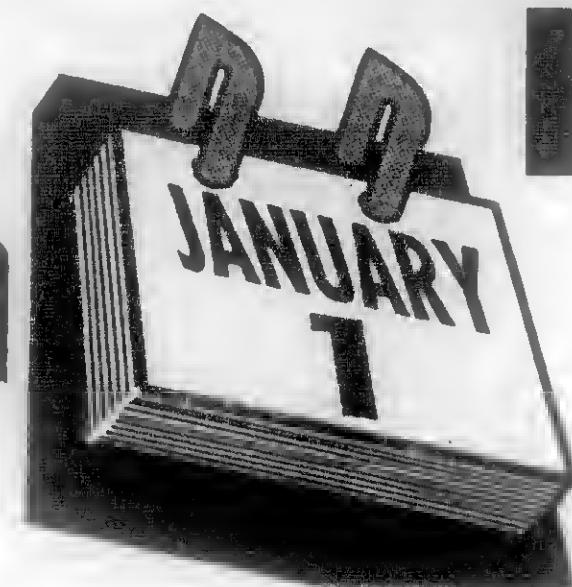

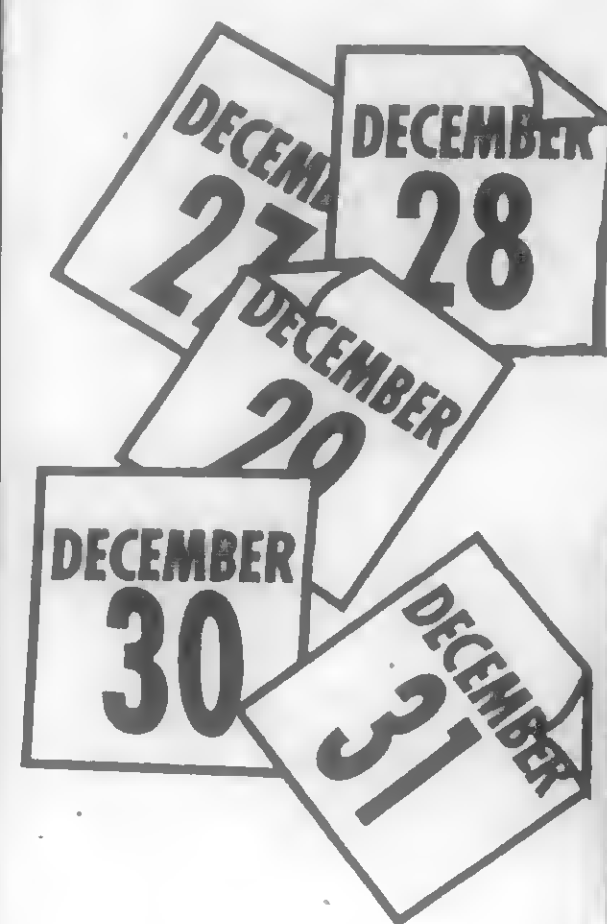

Alcohol continues to play a large role in traffic injuries and fatalities in Michigan. In 1997, 544 people died in traffic crashes statewide in which alcohol use was a factor. Drivers age 21 through 44 were involved in 62 percent of the alcohol-related fatal crashes. This holiday season, AAA Michigan advises party hosts to be "First A Friend, Then A Host" by following these recommendations:

- Serve a variety of nonalcoholic beverages like drinks featured in the "Great Pretenders Party Guide." Don't force alcoholic drinks on your guests.

- Put away the alcohol after a reasonable time, and make it known that coffee and desserts are available.

- Encourage car pooling. Give a small gift to the designated drivers. Take the keys, call a cab, or insist that a guest who has had too much to drink sleep overnight at your home.

For a copy of the "Great Pretenders Party Guide," write: Public Relations Department, AAA Michigan, 1 Auto Club Drive, Dearborn, MI 48126, call (313) 336-1500, or visit us on line at: http://www.aaamich.com/information/newswire/press\_articles/112.htm

School receives money for Internet

By Jamie MacMillan

A federal initiative that raised controversy on Capitol Hill will land an additional $31,000 into the Charlevoix Public Schools district for telecommunication and Internet costs.

The money became available through the Universal Services Fund, a federal program designed to help school districts across the country get Internet access.

The program was the focus of much debate this past summer, since the money was to be raised with surcharges on monthly phone bills. Initially, $2.25 billion was to be allotted for the program, but that figure was reduced considerably after legislative compromises.

Despite the reduction, money remained for the Charlevoix district, which had applied for the funds last year. The main intent of the program is to give needy school districts the funds required to buy computers and hook them up to the Internet.

Charlevoix, however, is beyond that need with 70 computers in the high school alone that have Internet access. Instead, the local district will spend the money on the bills associated with maintaining the on-line status.

Scott Mays, Charlevoix Schools' technology coordinator, said the money will cover all of the on-line costs in the current fiscal year as well as into the first six months of next year. As for money already spent this year, Mays said those companies would give the district a rebate.

"Anytime we can offset costs it's a plus. A couple thousand here, a couple thousand there really begins to add up," added superintendent John Sturrock.

While the government expects to follow through on a second wave of funding for the program, Charlevoix was one of three local districts which currently will receive any cash from the program.

Boyer Falls will receive $5,500 and the Char-Em I.S.D. will receive $19,000, according to Sturrock.

A tender fish tale — or a real whopper

In this spot belongs a picture of a huge walleye fish caught by Sam Supernaw.

Sam claims the fish was at least 9 or 10 pounds, a female bearing hundreds of eggs.

Sam caught the fish and kept it alive with the intent of releasing it. His plan was to get it weighed officially, then zip down to the Courier to have his picture taken with the whopper, and finally release it.

But the fish was starting to look a little worse for wear in its tub of water, and Sam didn't have the heart to tote it around town, so he released it quickly and skipped the weigh-in and photo opportunity.

"They say for every fish you release, you catch 100," Sam said hopefully.

We hope the saying is true and Sam's kindness to the pregnant fish will pay off with many more fruitful fishing days.

Masons install new officers

The officers installed were: Gene Farley P.M., as Worshipful Master; Danny J-Rehkopf Chingwa, Senior Warden; Henry Erber, Junior Warden; Fred Welch, Senior Deacon; Ronald Freed, Junior Deacon; Lyle Ross, Treasurer; John Talboys, P.M., Secretary; Rex Judkins P.M., Tiler.

Approximately 50 friends and relatives witnessed the installation including immediate Past Master Edward Woelfert, members of the order of Eastern Star, and White Shrine.

The winning shoppers

Steve Andrae, chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, picks the winners of the 1998 Christmas Open House Shopping Spree with Dorian MacGillivray, downtown coordinator. The four winners were: C. Michael of East Jordan, $200 winner; Robin Morgridge of Charlevoix, $125 winner; Erin Ulvund of Boyne City, $75 winner; and Bill Kappler of Harbor Springs, $50 winner. The chamber congratulates all winners and thanks all participating chamber members. (Photo by Kim Taylor)

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS:
Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a mortgage made March 21, 1997, by James R. Baker and Terrell L. Baker, husband and wife, as mortgagors, to NBD Bank, as mortgagee, and recorded on March 25, 1997, at Liber 313, Page 708, Charlevoix County Records; and the entire balance secured by said mortgage having matured and having become due and payable in accordance with the terms of the mortgage and the obligation secured by the mortgage; and on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this notice $151,499.32 principal and $6,315.24 interest; and no legal or equitable proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by the mortgage; and the power of sale contained in the mortgage having become operative by reason of the default.

Notice is now given that on Friday, January 8, 1999, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., in the main lobby of the County Building, 301 State Street, in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, the premises described in the mortgage, situated in the City of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and described as follows:

(PARCEL A)
Lots 4, 5, and 6, Block B, MILLER'S ADDITION, to Spring Harbor (now City of Boyne City), according to the recorded plat thereof.

(PARCEL B)
Lot 100, Block M, SOUTH BOYNE ADDITION, as per the recorded plat thereof, ALSO: Thirty Six (36') feet off the South end of Lot 102, Block M, SOUTH BOYNE ADDITION, to the Village, now City, of Boyne City, EXCEPTING THEREFROM, HOWEVER, Commencing at the Southwesterly corner of Lot 102, Block M, SOUTH BOYNE ADDITION, according to the recorded plat thereof; thence Northwest along the Westerly line of said lot 10 feet to the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing Northwest along the Westerly line of said lot 26 feet; thence Northeast parallel with Bruce Street, to Maple Street, which is the Easterly line of said Lot 102; thence Southeast along Maple Street, on said lot line, 26 feet; thence Southwest parallel to Bruce Street, to the point of beginning.

This sale is for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid on the mortgage, together with the legal costs and charges of sale, including the attorney fees allowed by law and in the mortgage, and any sums which may be paid by the mortgagee subsequent to the date of this notice to protect its interests in the premises.

The length of the redemption period will be six (6) months from date of sale.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Charter school hosts Christmas Concert

The Northwest Academy bands will be performing in their third annual Christmas Concert at 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 19. The public is invited to attend to listen to their favorite Christmas songs, plus excerpts from Phantom of the Opera.

Performing will be the beginning, intermediate and advanced bands of Northwest Academy, the school jazz band and the newly formed string ensemble, all under the direction of Gary Stutzman.

A silent auction will be held before and after the concert. Coffee and desserts will be available to enjoy during the concert.

The concert will be performed at the school on Hurlbut Street. For more information, call the school at 547-9000.

Free lunch program is open to public

The Community Lunch Program is sponsored by Ministerial Association and is from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. This program is sponsored by several area churches.

Area youth will perform in Beauty and the Beast

The Crooked Tree Arts Council Youth Theater Company is presenting Beauty And The Beast beginning Wednesday, Dec. 16 at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

The one-and-one-half hour show will start at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Dec. 16 through Dec. 19. A matinee will be at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 20. All performances will be at the Ross Stokes Theater in the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

The musical production stars Ursula Anderman as Beauty and Mike Craig as Beast.

Director Becca Buchalter is pleased with the number of youth involved, and the schools represented in the production. Sixty-one cast members come from seven towns in the area: Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Gaylord and Mackinaw City.

In addition to director Buchalter, John Van Patten is musical director, Eleanor Hill is vocal director, costume designer is Dee Lewis, and prop designer is Leslie Adams.

Tickets are $4 for students and $6 for adults and can be purchased in the gallery at the McCune Arts Center. Please call 347-4337 for details and to reserve tickets.

This production is sponsored by the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Kiwanis Club of Harbor Springs and the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

NCMC looks to include Charlevoix in district Charlevoix may become a college town

A Petoskey community college that started in 1958 with 157 students may take another leap in growth in the next few months.

North Central Michigan College (NCMC), which is in the Emmet County school district, is proposing to expand to include Charlevoix County. The school now has an enrollment of 2,185 students, 433 of whom live in Charlevoix County.

The college's board of trustees voted unanimously at their Dec. 15 meeting to hold an election in Charlevoix County March 11, 1999 to ask residents if they want to join the college district.

The election will have two ballot questions: one will ask voters if they support the annexation to join the Petoskey-based college district. The second question will ask voters to approve a 2.5416 millage in property taxes to fund the college. The millage request is the same as the college's current millage levied in Emmet County.

Both questions on the Charlevoix County ballot proposal must pass if Charlevoix is to become part of the college district.

If Charlevoix County joins the college district, tuition will be reduced for county residents taking classes at the school.

A home full of holiday joy

Sarah Blackburn was imbued with a healthy dose of the Christmas spirit as a child. Her mother loved to decorate the house from floorboards to rafters with signs of the holiday spirit.

As an adult, Sarah carried on her mother's tradition of spirited Christmas decorating with her own family.

In fact at one point in time, it could be said that Sarah was positively pregnant with the Christmas spirit — her youngest child of five was born on Christmas Day.

"I love Christmas," Sarah said. "This is my favorite time of year. I leave all the decorations up until Valentine's Day."

After a lifetime of collecting, creating and decorating for the winter holiday, Sarah now has a houseful of every type of Christmas decoration imaginable. She and her husband, Bill, both retired, live in Lake Michigan Heights, where Sarah has plenty of time to trim the home. Originally from Lansing, they've lived in the Charlevoix area for the last three years, where Bill now works part-time as manager of the Junior Achievement program.

Until Christmas time. Then Bill works for Sarah, putting up Christmas trees, decorations and lights. He figures it's better to help than risk inactivity in their holiday home.

"I'm afraid if I sit still she'll decorate me," Bill joked.

Indeed, there isn't a square foot of wall space,

City sets goals for coming year

By Laurie Lounsbury

Imagine driving to northern Michigan on U.S. 31, passing through occasional small towns where both sides of the street are flanked by shoulder-to-shoulder buildings.

Finally, you drive into Charlevoix, come down the south hill and are greeted with the sight of an emerald ribbon of green park on your right and Round Lake Harbor beyond it — a wide open vista uninterrupted by buildings.

That could be the vision of downtown Charlevoix from Antrim Street to Clinton Street if the city council decides to pursue one of its potential goals.

At a goal planning session last week, city manager Mike Wiesner informed members of the planning commission and city council that the possibility exists to buy the former Wharfside building that currently houses Kilwins, North Seas Gallery and the Pine Lake Boat Shop.

With grant funding, the building could be bought and torn down to create a panoramic view of the harbor. Wiesner said the owner was willing to sell the building.

Nearly everyone at the meeting had mixed feelings about the proposal, saying that having more park and view space is desirable, but also expressing reluctance to tear down a historic building that houses successful businesses.

"They're an asset to the community," June Cross, a member of the floor space or shelf space that doesn't boast some Christmas decor. Even a kitchen shelf was emptied and made into the ideal nook for a nativity scene.

For years, Sarah made as many decorations as she bought at craft shows or garage sales. She made ceramic gingerbread houses, Santas, ornaments and even an entire Christmas village, which she gave to her ailing mother. As grown-ups, her daughters quickly picked up the practice and started making their own craft items for the holidays. Sarah's oldest daughter Theresa made two big cloth, old-fashioned Santa dolls out of sentimental fabric. One Santa is made of her sister's wedding dress and wears Sarah's mother's antique pin. Another is wearing the remnants of Sarah's first grandchild's holiday outfit.

Right: Sarah's daughter made this Santa out of her sister's wedding dress.

There are more Santas in the Blackburn home than Sarah can count — she quit counting at number 60, and that was many years ago. Some Santas rest safely in the shelves of cupboards, while others are tall dolls, standing on the floor ready to greet the 16 grandchildren.

"The grand kids are absolutely in awe when they come up to visit," Sarah said.

When Sarah's grandchildren visit, it, they wander from room to room, studying the hundreds of ornaments, lights, reindeer, elves, nativity scenes. The main attraction is a gingerbread home surrounded by an entire lawn of candy cane trees and peppermint paths, all made by Sarah.

"Every room in the house has something of Christmas in it," Sarah said.

Three Christmas trees stand watch in different places in the home. The tree in the den is Sarah's tree, trimmed in a silver theme. It stands in a 50-year-old cast iron tree stand that belonged to her grandmother. The stand is hand-painted with pointsettias and lit with old-style bulbs.

The living room tree is the kids' tree, trimmed in all the ornaments the kids made when they were young. Still intact are dough ornaments, balsa wood ornaments and reindeer made of clothespins from decades-old school projects.

A third tree is one Sarah made from a real tree branch and artificial garland. It is trimmed the old-fashioned way, with popcorn and cranberries.

Even with all the decorating to be done every season, Sarah finds time to make about 70 pounds of peanut brittle, which she gives away to friends and neighbors.

After all of the children and grandchildren have come and gone for their holiday visit, Sarah and Bill open up their home to the neighborhood for a Christmas party in January.

Sarah is happy to bake and prepare for all the company.

"This is my domain," she said of her spacious kitchen. "And this is my time of year."

Growing Christmas trees is a two-family labor of love

By Jamie MacMillan

From shopping to baking to party-going, the Christmas holidays are filled with all-consuming activities.

Decorating for the holidays can be thrown into that mix as well. Any drive through the local neighborhoods easily proves people's dedication to this art.

Decorating, of course, continues inside the home with the Christmas tree as the centerpiece. A lot of time is spent prior to the holiday season just collecting all the ornaments and knickknacks for the tree and hours are then spent arranging all the items on the branches for the perfect design.

While a lot of work is spent decorating the tree in the Christmas spirit, much more work is put into the actual growing and harvesting of the trees.

So much so that Al Shindorf, a local tree farmer, jokes, "We're pretty much giving the trees away for free, but charging people for the labor involved in growing them."

Shindorf and his partner, Bruce Bartlett Jr., have been in the Christmas tree business since 1978 when they purchased 40 acres of land just north of Ellsworth and planted 10,000 trees that spring. The following year, they purchased an adjacent 40-acre parcel and planted 10,000 more trees.

As their business grew, they purchased more land between Charlevoix and Ellsworth and, in their estimation, have planted over 100,000 trees.

A hot, dry summer put some stress on their crops, they said, but it did come with a silver lining. Shindorf said that with all the sunshine, their blue spruce trees are more colorful than usual.

The pair are among the 950 tree farmers in the state that are registered with the Michigan Christmas Tree Association. Christmas trees are big business in the state of Michigan and the industry hauls in $70 million annually to the state's economy, association spokesman Laurie Cottrill said. That figure is surpassed by only North Carolina and Oregon. From each year's harvest about three-quarters of the trees are exported to other states, Cottrill said.

Despite the state's stature in the industry, membership in the state's association has declined in the last decade from a peak of over 1,400 members.

Cottrill highlighted two reasons for the membership decline. People are easing out of the business due to labor shortages and the time it takes to produce a profit-making harvest.

"Some have gotten into the business thinking it was a get rich quick scheme," Cottrill noted. "It takes a long time before you can harvest anything."

Bartlett and Shindorf can attest to that. Despite having 20,000 trees planted within their venture's first year, it was seven years before they harvested anything. Even then it was only about 50 trees.

force to the fact that it's hard labor, but also to the fact that fast food restaurants and other businesses have begun to pay excellent wages.

"Working at McDonald's in the air conditioning is a little more glamorous than working out in the fields," he said.

The local farm owned by Shindorf and Bartlett has avoided the labor pinch because it lacks a labor force. Instead, work on the farm has been done by the families of both Bartlett and Shindorf. Typically, their children's friends also pitch in and Shindorf fondly recalls the days when his son and his football teammates worked the farm and in the process got a work-out.

The labor shortage may ultimately catch up with them as children become adults and move on to careers of their own. Sensing this, the partners have begun to slow down their venture. They haven't planted any trees in five years and have allowed thousands of their trees to grow past harvesting size.

Shindorf foresees them selling the land in a matter of years.

"We have had some good times doing this and somebody will be real happy in the future that all these trees are here," Bartlett said.

"We were excited, we finally had 10 bucks to our name," joked Bartlett of their first sale.

Since that first harvest, though, their harvests have increased. Earlier this decade it peaked at 3,000 for a few years, mostly attributed to the fact that they shipped half of that to buyers in Indiana. They have scaled back due to time constraints and have settled in to a consistent 500-600 tree harvest each year.

Labor pinches are putting tree farmers throughout the state in a bind.

Dave Gearhart, proprietor of North Star Farms in Afton, recalls recent times when his labor force included 15-20 people. Now, he said, he considers himself lucky to have a crew of a half-dozen.

He attributes the declining labor

Story of Everett Kircher's life belongs in resort hall of fame

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Anyone who has ever skied in Boyne Country will enjoy reading Everett Kircher's reminiscences. This light paperback book brought back to me many happy, and some amusing, experiences of learning to ski at the Highlands, Thunder, Walloon and Boyne Mountain.

When Everett mentions the old Poma Lift, I vividly recall coaxing a friend, Pam Miller, to join me for the first time on the two-man lift. Feet on the ground, half-seated, half leaning against a bar, we rode up the hill until we hit a hump and lost our balance. Arms, legs, skis and poles tangled together like two pretzels — we laughed so hard we couldn't get up. It took a ski patrol person to gently unwind us, or we'd still be there.

Thanks to Everett Kircher, the ski boom started her way back in 1947. Kircher, an automobile dealer in Detroit and an avid skier, looked for a mountain in Michigan where he and his friends could ski on weekends. They found Boyne Mountain and from this modest beginning, Kircher describes clearly how he parlayed a 500-foot mountain into one of the largest individually owned resort empires in the world and amassed a sizable fortune along the way.

Today, Boyne USA resorts consist of five major "ski in the winter and golf in the summer" resorts. These include Big Sky of Montana, Brighton Ski Bowl near Salt Lake City and Crystal Mountain in Seattle, along with Boyne Highlands and Boyne Mountain in Michigan.

Originally Kircher had planned to use the rope tow system, but fortunately he heard of a used, single-person chair lift for sale by Sun Valley, and converted that single chair to a double chair in his own machine shop and Studebaker auto dealership. He reasoned that a double chair would transport twice as many skiers up the mountain and thus would increase his profit. This was the first chair lift in the Midwest! He then defied the advice of "experts" and in 1963 installed the world's first triple chair lift at Boyne Highlands (I wrote about this event in an article for the New York Times and Chicago Tribune Travel Section). In 1965, Kircher installed a four-place lift at Boyne Mountain. Still not satisfied, Kircher notched another milestone by erecting the first detachable six-place, high speed chair lift in the United States at Boyne Mountain.

People say that he never took no for an answer. Instead, he would say, "Let's do it! Let's get it done!"

Making man-made snow was another challenge for this innovator. Since one could not count on Mother Nature in the Midwest to provide good snow for skiing, Kircher recounts his role in pioneering artificial snowmaking machinery to make man-made snow.

He co-invented the Boyne snow-maker, the first efficient device accepted as the standard for marginal temperature snowmaking. Later, he describes the difficulties in designing the patented Highlands Snow

Gun, which is currently in use around the world. He was also at the forefront of many of the grooming techniques and recalls the first attempt of his mechanical packer, made from bicycle wheels and wooden slats. This was a big improvement from the days the ski patrol used to pack snow by foot. Much of the equipment has been refined and is used today.

To attract affluent skiers, Kircher first invited gold medal Olympic champion Stein Eriksen to run the ski school at Boyne Mountain, along with a number of his Norwegian buddies in 1955. He stayed on for three years and was first to teach the reverse shoulder racing technique instead of the old Arlberg method.

After Eriksen left, Kircher coaxed Othmar Schneider to run the ski school, and he stayed here for 17 years.

To combat airlines' falling prices that attracted skiers to fly west to Colorado, Kircher promoted a one-week ski package that included housing, meals, lift tickets, lessons and no hidden charges, all for $49 per person. Kids had their own ski week programs that included hot chocolate with their young, handsome Austrian instructors.

Boyne's salvation in the summer was the sprouting convention business, along with adding seven championship golf courses.

Most recently, a 27 hole golf course has been laid out in Bay Harbor between Charlevoix and Petoskey, located along the bluff of Lake Michigan, a course rightly compared to Pebble Beach.

Kircher's sons John and Stephen run the western and Midwestern operations, while daughters Amy and Kathryn manage the Boyne South golf course and Boyne Design Group. At age 81, Kircher stays involved to make sure "they are thinking straight."

The book, "Everett Kircher: Michigan's Resort Pioneer" is available in hardcover for $18 and paperback for $9. Nicely designed with double space print, it is easy to read. Unfortunately, in my opinion, the quality of the delightful photographs could have been improved, nor is it registered with the Library of Congress. This means it is only available up north through local bookstores.

Still, one can't help but agree with Stein Eriksen, who justifiably feels that Everett Kircher should be in every ski hall of fame for what he did for the ski industry in its infancy, and consequently for the resort industry in this area.

Here we go a caroling, among the kids in school

Clockwise, from top left: It's important to keep your whistle wet when you're singing a lot of carols at the Charlevoix Elementary School Holiday Singalong.

This little tot in the audience was intrigued with Marina LaBlance's signal sent to the bigger kids to smile.

Kids always look forward to the teachers' song, when it's the grown-ups' turn to get up and perform.

No, they're not throwing their hands up because they forgot the words — the gestures seen here are part of a Christmas song performed every year with great enthusiasm.

Residential homes took home prizes in lighting contest

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's Residential Lighting Display Contest was recently judged by Scott and Kristin Cochran and Bob and Pat Miller, winners of last year's contest.

The overall winner this year was Maggie Murray. Her home is located on U.S. 31 North on a drive just west of the car detailing shop.

Top finishers in the different sections of town were:

In town, north of the bridge — First place, Nate and Judy Herri-man, 306 Bums St.; second place, Tom and Pat Pence, 204 Lewis St.

Downtown, west of U.S. 31 — John and Elaine Scharenbroch, 505 W. Upright St.; second place, Terry and Marti Roeth, 504 W. Upright St.; third place, Don and Laura Wells, 410 W. Upright St. Many other homes on the street are also decorated, making it the street with the most visible Christmas spirit.

Downtown, east of U.S. 31 — first place, A.J. and Michelle Wit-thoef, 102 Belvedere; second place, Dennis and Diane Priess, 516 Meadow Lane; third place, Al and Liz Gooch, 101 Hampton Ct.

Out of town — first place, Dick and Sheila Bogart, 12755 U.S. 31 N.; second place, Tom and Pam Barnes, 13105 Beechwood Dr.; third place, Brad and Vivian Shear-er, 08527 Mercer.

The committee expresses thanks to all local residents who decorated their homes this year. They are all winners. KCB hopes everyone will drive by these homes this holiday season. They help make our city "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Dripping icicles and a basket of poinsettias added to the charm of Maggie Murray's home, just off of U.S. 31 North, which was the overall winner in this year's Keep Charlevoix Beautiful residential lighting contest. The quaint log cabin was elaborately trimmed in a variety of lights.

Circle of Light Christmas Eve service offered at Community Reformed Church

The Community Reformed Church will host its traditional Circle of Light Christmas Eve Service at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 24.

The theme of this year's celebration is "The Voices of Christmas: Hearing the Christmas story from the Saints of All Ages."

Lay readers Maria Webb, Jessie Cunningham, Kathy Martinczek, Marlene Evens, Nathan Boss, Bud Klooster, Dick Swenor and Allen Telgenhof will offer selections from the Old Testament through the promises of Revelations interspersed with traditional Christmas carols.

Maria Webb will sing "What Child is This?" and the Merrill Family Choir will perform, accompanied by Terry VanderSlik.

At the conclusion of the service, Jonathan Mays will lead the congregation in the singing of "Pass It On," as the light from one candle is passed around the whole sanctuary until everyone's candle is lit, and the Circle of Light is complete.

The community is invited to attend. The church is located at the corner of Meech Street and Petoskey Avenue in Charlevoix. For more information, call 547-9482.

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Call me crazy if you want to, but there isn't anything that I won't do for my children. If they need their Dad's help, I want them to know that come what may, I'll do my best to be there for them. Because of that, I went through something of a parental marathon last Friday. I taught my 8 a.m. class at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey and when I was done with that at 9 a.m., I drove to Anderson, Ind. My daughter is a senior in college there and she needed a way home for Christmas. Arriving at her apartment at about 4:30 p.m., we loaded and repacked her stuff in my car and set off for home at 6:30 that evening. The 840-mile round trip got me back to my warm snugly bed about 2:30 Saturday morning.

This trip was a little different than most trips, though. I did something that I don't ordinarily do. I let my daughter drive a good portion of the trip back. It's not that she's not a good driver. She is. But most men folk are very reluctant to surrender the wheel to anyone else when it comes to long hauls and I learned a good lesson. For one thing, I found out just how grown up my first born has become. We talked, really talked while we drove. We didn't just talk about her boyfriend or her school work. We talked about her life, her aspirations, and how she felt about what she has been doing so far.

Another thing I valued about the journey was a realization that perhaps she did understand just how hard her Dad and Mom both have been working to see her through school. She wanted to drive because she knew how worn out I was. She understood what it was like not only leading my church family but also guiding three classes of students through their final exam process. She was concerned about me.

If felt so good that I did something else I don't ordinarily do when someone else is doing the driving. I actually dozed off a few times on the way back. Oh, it wasn't a solid sleep. I jumped awake once when I felt the car swerve. I looked up just in time to see three deer meandering across the highway in front of us. Another time she admitted to getting sleepy so we pulled off and got a stretch break and some food. All in all, I probably drove 500 miles and she drove the rest.

There are two things I hope you'll remember from this little tale. First, be sure you are doing everything you can to see that your children are not only your children, but that they are also your friends. Second, you poured out your heart and soul into them to get them grown up. When they are grown, don't be afraid to let them love you back.

God poured out His heart and soul when He gave us His son Jesus. He set before us a living model of how each of us could learn, believe, love and grow in our faith. At Christmas, we celebrate the birth of the baby. Let us never forget that the Christ child we honor grew up and became a man. God has gone out of His way to show you ways that Jesus could be your friend. Jesus Himself is more than willing to love you. As you give of your heart to the Lord, don't be afraid to let Him love you back.

Big Rock Point donates toys for 11th year in a row

Employees at Big Rock Point Restoration Project continued their long holiday tradition of helping local families by donating toys and money during their annual Christmas party. Each guest attending the event donated a toy to the Salvation Army of Charlevoix and Emmet counties. More than 230 gifts were collected and will be distributed to local children this holiday season. The Charlevoix County Family Independence Agency also received a $500 donation from plant employees.

"I am pleased we have people in our community like the employees at Big Rock Point who can see what the Salvation Army is doing and are willing to reach out and meet the needs of the community," said Captain Douglas Yeck of the Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army expects to supply toys to about 1,000 children this holiday season.

Over the course of the 11-year history of the party, Big Rock employees have donated approximately 1,200 toys to the Salvation Army and $9,500 to various organizations.

The Family Independence Agency will use their donation for their "small dollar emergency fund," which allows needy families to receive money when needs arise throughout the year. This year-round care fund benefits families that are not able to receive care elsewhere.

New director of finance named at LexaLite Corporation

Hunting widow's revenge backfired like a plugged up shotgun

Birdie Whitley was just a teensy bit miffed when her husband, Ken, and their sons Gregg and Jason went moose and mountain lion hunting for the six weeks prior to Christmas.

Claiming that she was extracting revenge for their absence, she got herself an artificial tree (a dreadful no-no in their family) trimmed it with white lights (another no-no) and decorated it entirely with a hunting motif.

The result looked more like a devoted wife's labor of love than an act of revenge. The tree turned out to be an adorable theme tree — probably every hunter's delight.

In lieu of an angel on top, a blaze orange hunter's hat took the highest position. Birdie made black bear and brown elk from felt and tucked them in the branches. Doggie biscuits hung from ribbons (the men use dogs to hunt the mountain lions), and dog chains were draped as garlands from hough to hough.

Fuzzy little teddy bears perched here and there, while an antique hunting rifle completed the picture, stuffed among the branches at a jaunty angle.

When the men returned last weekend from their hunting trip, they unanimously gave a nod of approval to the tree.

"They loved it," Birdie said. "My husband loved it, my sons loved it — darn it."

The tree of revenge might become a new tree of tradition.

A hunting they will go

New marina building, railroad fishing pier in city plans

planning commission, said of the businesses. "To tear that building down means we're losing all our old buildings."

Councilman Bob Timms was also opposed to the idea.

"I opposed tearing down the Parkside, and I'm opposed to this," he said. "People don't come to Charlevoix just to sit in the parks. We want them to come and spend money in town. I'm opposed to this even if we can do it for free."

Brownie Flanders, a member of the planning commission, had a different perspective on the issue.

"This is a unique community to see when you drive through, and everybody has to drive through — you can't get there any other way. Round Lake is one of the most beautiful harbors in the world. I think it should be showcased," Flanders said.

"I liked the Parkside building — now that it's gone, I like it even better," he added. Flanders did express concern about losing the businesses that are in the building, but noted that other buildings further down the street have empty retail space available.

After listening to comments from all the council members present, mayor Butch Russell made the decision to pursue the grant application to buy the building.

"We have five people on council who are undecided, so it's worth it to take the next step," Russell said.

The city will get an appraisal for the building by the second week in January. The deadline for the grant application to buy the building is Feb. 1, 1999. Wiesner also said he knows of a person in town who is willing to head up a fund-raising drive to come up with the 20 percent local matching funds for the grant.

Continuing with the green belt concept along Round Lake, Wiesner discussed goals for the city marina, restrooms and chamber of commerce building. Using a variety of funding sources, including grant funding, Wiesner recommended rebuilding the park between Antrim and Mason streets in a similar fashion to Bridge Park, with chamber offices, marina offices and restrooms built below ground level, leaving the street view wide open to the lake. Building below ground in that section of East Park is made easier because it won't be necessary to build a sloping road to the water, as was necessary at Bridge Park.

Grant funding for half of the engineering work on that project is available through the state Waterways Commission, which is a division of the Department of Natural Resources.

Wiesner would also like the city to apply to the Waterways Commission, which governs municipal harbors and marinas, to get permission to hike transient docking fees by 12 percent.

According to Wiesner, Mackinac Island, Petoskey and Grand Haven are three coastal cities that charge higher rates than other Michigan coastal communities. Wiesner would like Charlevoix's dock slip rates to be in keeping with those communities.

One medium priority project for the council that was boosted up to a high priority is Michigan Beach.

The concession stand, restrooms and wall all need repairs and up-grading.

Everyone on the council agreed that Michigan Beach is one of the most popular spots in town, and should be improved as soon as possible.

The former railroad grade near the Coast Guard Station on Lake Charlevoix will potentially be added to the city's roster of public parks. The property will be paid for with grant funding, plus a local match of a little more than 30 percent. If the council votes to buy the property, it will be turned into a fishing pier with handicapped access and a shelter for fishermen.

When making the grant application to the Natural Resources Trust Fund, the city put a price tag of $350,000 on the project, which would include the land acquisition and the improvements.

The property is owned by Waterfront Properties Inc. A sale price has not yet been determined for the thin strip of land that extends for 200 feet between Lake Charlevoix and the Coast Guard Station.

Holly Daze trees were highly desired this year

Hospital board member Sulane Hamilton (left) talks with a friend about one of the 16 trees decorated and ready for auction at the newly added Friday night party during Holly Daze. The two-day event raised more than $10,000 in donations for Charlevoix Area Hospital. More than 100 donors of trees, wreaths, an Amish rocking chair, gift items and other bid articles made this year's Holly Daze an amazing success. Another new feature to Holly Daze was the live auction of trees, with the help of Dr. Dennis Joy, who served as auctioneer. He got the crowd excited and the bidding was fierce. ## Rayders pin Mancelona in local wrestling tournament

By Jamie MacMillan

For the first time in almost two years, a varsity wrestling tournament was held in town with Saturday's Charlevoix Christmas Classic in the local high school gymnasium.

The Rayders were joined by four other clubs — Mancelona, Glenn Lake, Cheboygan and Grayling. Each team squared off with each other in a round robin format with an overall winner determined by the highest cumulative score when points from all the matches were added up.

Grayling came away with the top spot, scoring 222 points, followed by Glenn Lake, 199; Cheboygan, 170; Mancelona, 123; and Charlevoix, 113.

Despite finishing fifth, the Rayders had their highlights that included a thrilling 54-48 win over Mancelona to start their day.

The Ironmen had destroyed Charlevoix in a previous match-up, but bolstered by the home crowd, the Rayder wrestlers came through in style.

"The guys were very pumped up," coach Joe Johnston said of the match. "We definitely felt the hometown advantage of being on our turf in our own school."

Josh Chamberlain, 112 pounds, Nate Holmes, 119, Jerry Zeitler, 145, and James Pop, 171, each won on pins. Combined with two other wins via forfeits, and the match was Charlevoix's.

Chamberlain and Holmes each were behind on points but refused to be pinned and ultimately turned the tables on their opponents.

"They were getting beat, but when they got a break, they capitalized on their opponents' mistakes," Johnston said.

In other matches, Charlevoix lost to Cheboygan, 21-59 despite wins by Ryan Novotny, 140, Zeitler, 145, Luke Whitley, 160, and Pop, 171. Novotny, Whitley and Pop each won in the 22-66 loss to Glen Lake and Whitley provided the only non-forfeit win in a 16-64 loss to Grayling.

"I feel very good, very confident that we are improving," Johnston said. "Overall, it was the best we wrestled, especially with our intensity. The guys also showed a lot of stamina which was thrilling for me as a coach."

The grapplers were scheduled to participate in the Alpena Invitational over the holiday break, but the meet was canceled, Johnston said.

The club will next be in action Thursday, Jan. 7 against Rogers City. The meet will be at home in the high school gymnasium and is expected to begin at 6 p.m.

Rayders win conference opener

By Jamie MacMillan

Averaging just over 80 points a game, the Charlevoix Rayders are gliding into their holiday break with a 3-0 record on the young basketball season.

The squad overcame a less than stellar performance on the offensive end to down Traverse City-St. Francis, 75-68, and remain undefeated. The game was the Lake Michigan Conference opener for both schools.

The Rayders were impatient on offense, failed to develop an inside attack and were too reliant on long range jump shots, coach Keith Haske said.

The team won despite shooting a dismal 2-for-16 from behind the three-point arc.

The Rayders trailed after the first quarter, 25-23. A second quarter surge lifted them to a halftime lead, 42-37, that they would never relinquish.

In the third quarter, the Rayders pushed their lead to double digits on three different occasions, but could never completely shake the pesky Gladiators.

With less than four minutes left in the game, the Glads trimmed the margin to 65-61, but the Rayders reeled off six straight points to put the game out of reach.

"It's the mark of a good team to go on the road, not shoot well and still win the game," Haske said. "It shows that they were playing good defense and creating turnovers. This was a huge step."

The Rayders forced 25 turnovers, many of which were turned into fast break points.

Matt McClellan paced the club with 20 points, 14 of which came during the first half. Justin Thorp added 15 points, Tom Cunningham, 10, Matt Dennis, nine, Jim Kanine, eight, Todd Schaperkotter, four, Andy Granath, four, Sean Stockman, three, and Adam Wood, two.

The Rayders were closer to full throttle in a 96-66 win over St. Ignace earlier in the week, which saw 11 Rayders score at least one hoop.

McClellan paced the attack with 16 points, followed by Thorp, 14, Dennis, 12, Wood, 11, Stockman, 10, Cunningham, nine, Ward, eight, Granath, six, Kanine, six, Shay Hutchison, two, and Schaperkotter, two.

Thorp and Wood each scored five points in a 14-0 surge to end the first quarter. The run gave Charlevoix a double digit lead, 20-8, that was never really threatened.

The Saints cut the margin to 37-26 by intermission, but Charlevoix outscored them 59-40 in the second half to win going away.

In addition to scoring, Thorp grabbed 12 rebounds, Stockman snared nine and Jim Kanine dished out 14 assists.

"It was a fast-paced game," Haske said. "It was the opening home game, so our kids came in pretty focused and we got a big scoring lift from our bench."

The varsity next plays Tuesday, Jan. 5 at home against Roscommon.

In other basketball action last week, the Charlevoix JV team matched the varsity squad with a pair of wins over St. Ignace, 80-57, and Traverse City-St. Francis, 66-56.

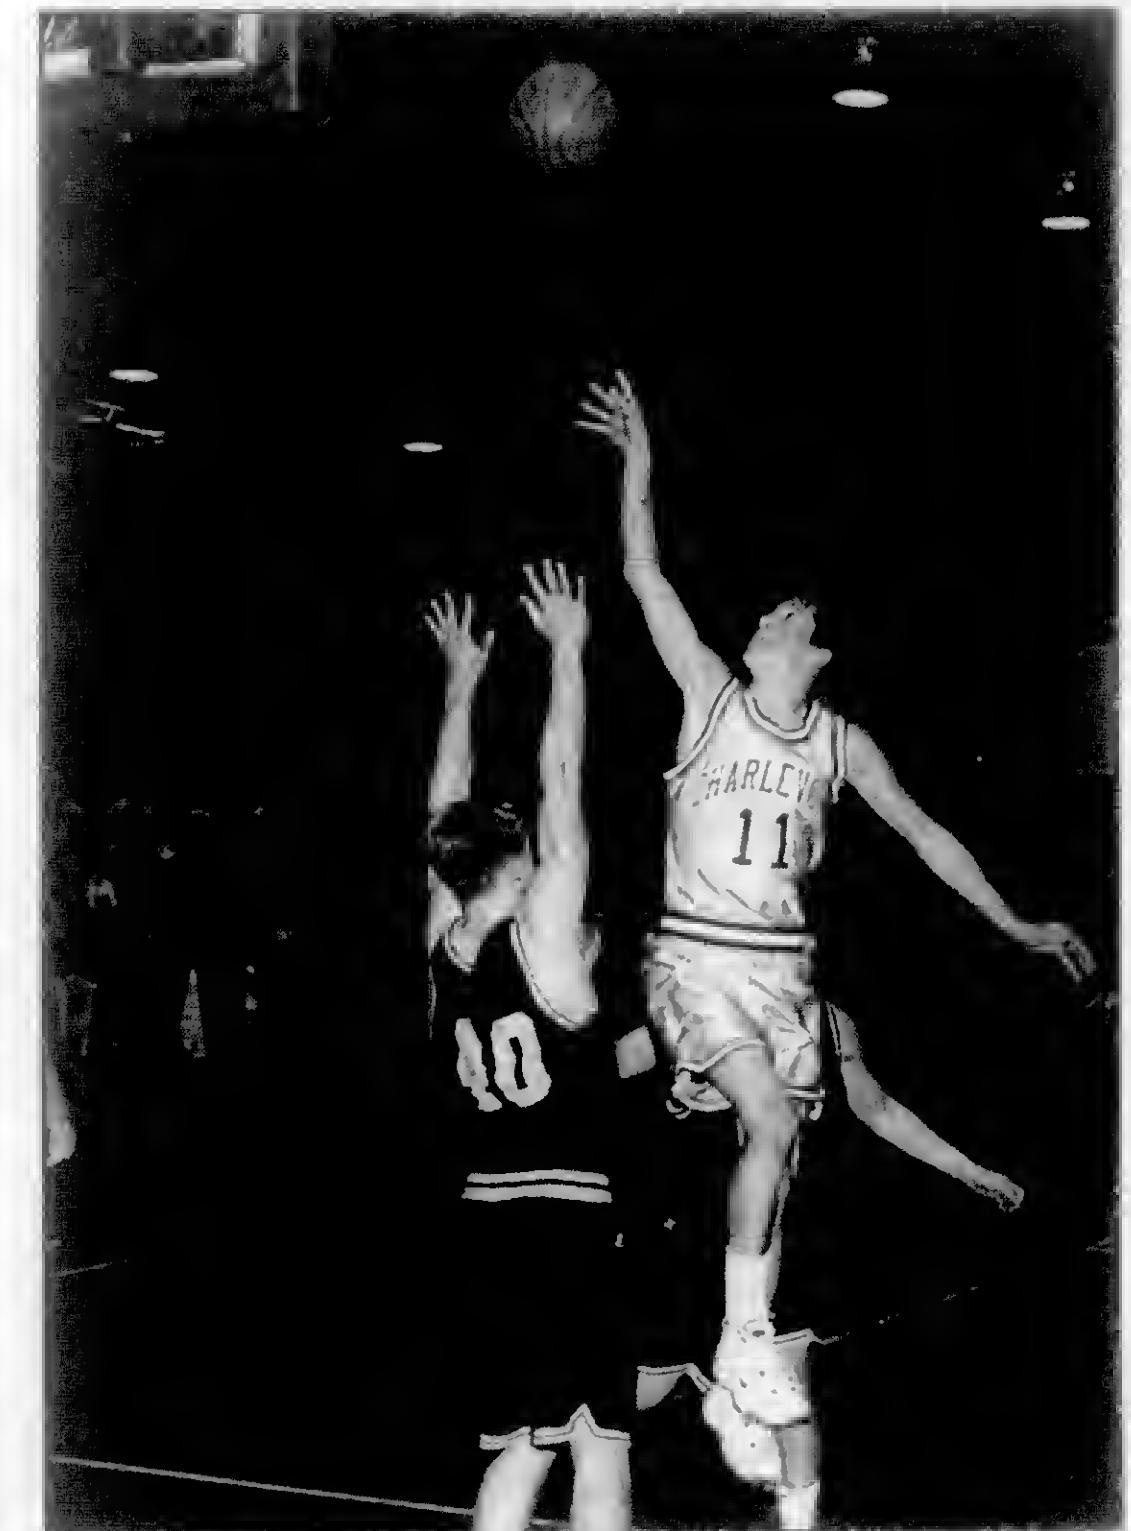

The club spotted St. Ignace a 5-0 lead before rallying to score 11 unanswered points during a 21-6 run to take control of the game.

Against the Glads, the going was a bit closer, but Scott Parrish keyed the win with 16 points. Zach Dennis added 13 and Ben Coen scored 11 for the Rayders.

The freshmen club split games last week falling to St. Ignace, 64-57, before drubbing Traverse City St. Francis, 78-58.

Against St. Ignace, Jim Sheppard and Keith Daly paced the club with 15 and 12 points respectively.

In the win over the Glads, all ten players on the team scored lead by Sheppard's 27 points. Rob Boss scored 14 and Ryan Rafacz added 13.

Patrick Gowell (11) twists in the air to get a good shot at the basket in a junior varsity game against St. Ignace last week.

Volleyball team takes fourth place

The Charlevoix varsity volleyball team split a pair of matches and finished in fourth place during a preseason tournament in the opening week of the high school volleyball season.

The club opened the year with a convincing 15-4, 15-4 win over the Northern Michigan Christian Academy, but fell a bit flat in a 2-15, 6-15 loss to Elk Rapids later in the week.

Undaunted by the uneven performances, the club rebounded to finish in fourth place at Saturday's Roscommon Invitational.

The eight teams invited were split into two pools with Charlevoix knocking heads with Traverse City West, Hale and Grayling.

Roscommon, Kingsley, Cheboygan and Lake City were in the other bracket.

In pool play, the Rayders lost twice to TC West, 2-15 and 10-15, and fell once to Grayling, 10-15. However, the club also beat Grayling, 15-14, and swept two from Hale, 15-13 and 15-1.

TC West won the pool with a 6-0 record, but Charlevoix's 3-3 record was good enough for the second slot and a spot in the tournament semifinals. Grayling and Hale each finished 2-4.

In the semis, the Rayders lost to Roscommon, 5-15, 1-15, which forced a rematch against TC West in the consolation match. The Rayders pushed TC a bit more than in the previous match-up, but still came out on the losing end, 1-15, 15-9, 4-15.

Kingsley topped Roscommon in the finals to take home the championship.

"We did better than I thought we would, and the best part was that we played some really good teams," coach Brenda Bryan said.

On the day, Amanda Webb, Juli Swenor and Courtney Butler were the top servers and Webb was the team's top setter. Swenor and Megan Vogel keyed the defense while Butler, Ann Spang and Christine Sweeney paced the offense.

"It was a good day and a good way to end our early season schedule," Bryan added.

The Rayders won't play until Thursday, Jan. 7 when they travel to Boyne City. A JV game begins the play at 6 p.m.

Petoskey's community college wants Charlevoix in district COLLEGE

rently pay $46 per credit hour, while students living out of the district pay $67 per credit hour," said Carol Krumbach, the college's director of marketing.

Since an associate's degree at the college requires 60 credit hours, a student living in Charlevoix County would save $1,260 in tuition while earning an associate's degree if the county joins the school district.

The decision to ask Charlevoix County voters to join the NCMC district was based on a survey conducted in September of 1998 and a formal recommendation made to the college board by a group of business and school leaders who served as the Charlevoix County Citizen's Task Force.

"North Central Michigan College is one of our area's greatest resources, and a vital economic asset to our county, just as it is to Emmet County," said the task force recommendation. "We must continue to expand opportunities for our families, friends and neighbors to enjoy the benefits of having a center for higher education in our local area."

The county survey, which was taken by Kathy Feaster of School Public Relations Consultant Services, indicated that 65 percent of voters would favor joining the college district and paying the 2.5 mills in property taxes.

When asked what they liked about the college, survey respondents most frequently mentioned the college's close and convenient location, the fact that it's a small college with a friendly atmosphere, and the wide range of courses offered.

The 2.5416 mills is the same amount Emmet County residents currently pay in property taxes to the college. For a person whose home has a market value of

Pool offers holiday swimming times

The Charlevoix Community Pool is announcing the next two sessions of swim school. Classes for all abilities will be offered. The six-week sessions will begin on Jan. 9 and again on Feb. 27. Classes meet on Saturdays between the hours of 8:30-11:30 a.m. The fee is $36 for the six lessons. Classes for infants through adults will be offered. Stop by the pool and pick up a winter brochure. All classes are American Red Cross certified and taught by Red Cross Water Safety Instructors.

Registration for an age group competitive swim program is also going on at this time. This team is designed for ages 7-18. The team was started in the fall and had 21 participants. We hope to compete in the near future.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool will close at 4 p.m. on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve. The pool will be closed Christmas Day. Pool hours on New Year's Day will be 1-4 p.m. for open swim. Some extended open swim times will be held between Christmas and New Year's Day.

$100,000, their taxes would increase by $127.08 annually. Owners of a home valued at $150,000 would pay an additional $190.62 annually.

Of the taxes collected for the college, 2.24 mills goes toward operations and .3 mills is used for building and renovation. Of the 2.24 mills for operations, 1 mill would be up for renewal in the year 2006 in both counties and the remaining 1.24 mills is a permanent (in perpetuity) millage.

If Charlevoix becomes part of the college district, all elections in the future will be two-county wide elections, with a majority of votes from both counties required to pass any proposal.

North Central will use the additional tax revenues to expand job training programs, college services, customized training for business and industry, and bachelor's and master's degree programs. The college is interested in developing a university center where several colleges and universities would offer a variety of programs. NCMC president Robert Graham said five Michigan institutions have already expressed interest in being involved in such a project.

"In 1997, when we asked Emmet County voters to approve an additional 1.54 mills, we were at a point where we were having to eliminate some services and we were falling behind with equipment and technology," Graham said. "Over the past two years, we've been able to add several new programs and update computers and other technology. But to continue to grow, and to be able to respond effectively to the needs of Charlevoix and Emmet counties in the future, the college needs to do this. This is an investment that will come back to Charlevoix County many times over in the future."

Patient so pleased with treatment he donates money in wife's name

John Clark's wife, Thelma, liked the people and benefits of the Cardiac Rehabilitation Department at Charlevoix Area Hospital so much, that when she died June 15, John thought of a special way to thank the department.

"We felt a donation would be in order," John said.

John and Thelma Clark of Boyne City were both patients at one time of the Cardiac Rehabilitation Department at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Thelma was the first of the couple to exercise under the close supervision of Monica Speigl, Exercise Specialist, and Tina Foltz, Registered Nurse. Then John, too, became a cardiac rehab patient.

Cardiac rehab is a program in which patients who have coronary artery disease or have had various cardiac procedures exercise to regain strength and endurance. While attending cardiac rehab, patients receive education including anatomy, risk factor modification and diet counseling. Patients work out on stationary bicycles and treadmills while being attached to heart monitors, all supervised by Speigl and Foltz to ensure that the patients don't overwork their hearts. The department is a shared program with Northern Michigan Hospital, with patients working out three days a week.

Speigl and Foltz go to great lengths to make the work-outs interesting for the patients and sometimes use creative ideas to motivate their patients. They also make numerous presentations at local service clubs, schools and businesses on the importance of proper exercise and eating healthy, low-fat diet.

The Clarks liked their therapists' enthusiasm toward their work.

"It's a pleasure to work with these people," John said.

After Thelma passed away, John made a generous donation to the department. Speigl and Foltz were able to purchase a new TV and VCR for playing videos to inspire patients while walking on treadmills. They also purchased educational videos created by the American Heart Association to teach patients about cardiovascular risk factors, the heart and how it works.

They were also able to purchase several educational tools for demonstrations and speeches that illustrate the effects of stress and smoking on the human body.

"We have benefited greatly by these donations," Speigl said.

Foltz said, "I have used the hands-on education tools daily since they arrived. Our patients say it's easier to understand how an artery looks when it's blocked or how much fat is in that piece of pie."

The Northern Michigan Hospital/Burns Clinic Foundation presented the cardiac rehab department with a plaque thanking the Clarks for their generous donation.

Academy bands draws crowds for concert

The Northwest Academy Band performed before an audience of more than 200 last Saturday evening at their annual Holiday concert. The performance was in conjunction with the parent teacher committee open house and silent auction.

A total of 61 students in the school's three levels of bands performed a variety of music. To round off the concert, the Northwest Academy Jazz All-Stars played some of the selections from their recent performance at the Michigan Association of Private Schools Convention in Ypsilanti.

Highlights of the concert included solo pieces by Anora Ruehle on alto sax, Hiroshi Yoshida on violin, the NWA String Ensemble under the direction of Krista Knight and a special appearance of Dr. James Stewart on bass. Gary Stutzman, band director, thanks all who helped make the evening such a huge success.

We accept Blue Cross of Michigan

Because our physicians understand how important affordable health care is to the members of our community, we continue to participate with Blue Cross Blue Shield insurance.

Our partner hospitals — Community Memorial Hospital, Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital — also continue to accept Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan.

We appreciate the opportunity to care for the people of Northern Michigan and welcome your phone calls to discuss any concerns you may have.

Discover a good time with kids at Raven Hill

Raven Hill Discovery Center is a regional science and technology center located four miles southeast of East Jordan. The overall goal of the center, which also serves as a cultural, historical and art center, is to foster an interest in and to convey information in science, history and the arts by inviting visitors to have quality, hands-on experiences.

Visiting Raven Hill is to immerse oneself in a world of discovery by trying and touching. Visitors may climb inside a kaleidoscope, weave on a loom, ride a generator bike to turn on lights, manipulate a laser, play traditional games like Caroms and Skittles, build sculptures, arches and towers on a huge magnet table, or play a variety of musical instruments. They may explore collections of old-fashioned tools, shells, furs, skulls and rocks. Raven Hill is also home to a number of exotic animals. The museum is open to the public and also offers classes for children and adults.

Raven Hill Discovery Center will be open over the holiday period with the following schedule:

From noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 26, and from noon to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, Dec. 28-31 and Jan. 2.

From 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 27 and Sunday, Jan. 3.

Admission is $5 per person and includes the museum and the animals. The average visit is one-and-one-half to two hours. The entire museum is indoors.

For more information, call Cheri at 536-3369.

Someone flipped the winter switch to the "on" position

After weeks of ridiculously pleasant weather, Old Man Winter finally blew into town last week, bringing small amounts of snow at first, then greater accumulation early this week.

Left: Mt. McSaubia should be opening for skiers soon, with colder temperatures and recent snowfall making it possible to begin the season. (Photos by Laurie Lounsbury)

Why Shop Locally? Because...

Local merchants can provide things you can't get in the "big cities."

1. Have they ever bought ads in your yearbooks or tickets for your school activities?
2. Have they ever opened after hours when you were in desperate need of something they sell?
3. Have they ever bought tickets for your church suppers or contributed to worthwhile community projects?
4. Have they ever put up your posters in their windows?
5. Have they always been handy and willing to service their merchandise when you needed it?
6. Have they always cheerfully & quickly exchanged merchandise or let you return merchandise for a cash refund?

YOUR LOCAL SMALL MERCHANT PROVIDES THESE EXTRAS BECAUSE HE OR SHE IS YOUR FRIEND AND NEIGHBOR AND YOU SEE THEM EVERY DAY IN YOUR COMMUNITY.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

1. On November 3, 1998, the Honorable Richard M. Pajtas, Circuit Court Judge, entered a Judgment and Order for Sale in this matter in favor of Plaintiff Knight Enterprises, Inc., and against Defendant Martin J. Weil.

2. As of the date of this notice, this judgment remains unsatisfied. Therefore, pursuant to the terms of the judgment and order for sale, on Friday, January 15, 1999, at 11:00 a.m., at a public auction to be held in the lobby of the County Clerk's office in the Charlevoix County Building, 203 Antrim Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, I shall offer for sale to the highest bidder all right, title, and interest of Defendant Weil in and to the following property situated in the Township of Eveline, Charlevoix County, Michigan:

Land located in the Township of Eveline, County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, described as:

Commencing at an iron pipe at the intersection of the section line common to Section 18, Town 33 North, Range 6 West and Section 24, Town 33 North, Range 7 West with the shore of Lake Charlevoix; thence North 56°47' West along the shore of said lake 400 feet to the Point of Beginning of this description; thence South 36°58' West to the center line of the Ironton-Boyne City Highway; thence Northwest along the center line of said highway to the east 1/8th line of said section 24; thence north on said 1/8th line to the shore of Lake Charlevoix; thence southeasterly along said shore to the point of beginning; being a part of Government Lot 1, Section 24, Town 33 North, Range 7 West.

The above described land is subject to the right of way of said Ironton-Boyne City Highway.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS: Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a mortgage made March 21, 1997, by James R. Baker and Terrell L. Baker, husband and wife, as mortgagors, to NBD Bank, as mortgagee, and recorded on March 25, 1997, at Liber 313, Page 708, Charlevoix County Records; and the entire balance secured by said mortgage having matured and having become due and payable in accordance with the terms of the mortgage and the obligation secured by the mortgage; and on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this notice $151,499.32 principal and $6,315.24 interest; and no legal or equitable proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by the mortgage; and the power of sale contained in the mortgage having become operative by reason of the default.

Notice is now given that on Friday, January 8, 1999, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., in the main lobby of the County Building, 301 State Street, in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, the premises described in the mortgage, situated in the City of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and described as follows:

(PARCEL A)
Lots 4, 5, and 6, Block B, MILLER'S ADDITION, to Spring Harbor (now City of Boyne City), according to the recorded plat thereof

(PARCEL B)
Lot 100, Block M, SOUTH BOYNE

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, December 23, 1998 — PAGE 25

ADDITION, as per the recorded plat thereof, ALSO: Thirty Six (36) feet off the South end of Lot 102, Block M, SOUTH BOYNE ADDITION, to the Village, now City, of Boyne City, EXCEPTING THEREFROM, HOWEVER, Commencing at the Southwesterly corner of Lot 102, Block M, SOUTH BOYNE ADDITION, according to the recorded plat thereof; thence Northwest along the Westerly line of said lot 10 feet to the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing Northwest along the Westerly line of said lot 26 feet; thence Northeast parallel with Bruce Street, to Maple Street, which is the Easterly line of said Lot 102; thence Southeast along Maple Street, on said lot line, 26 feet; thence Southwesterly parallel to Bruce Street, to the point of beginning.

This sale is for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid on the mortgage, together with the legal costs and charges of sale, including the attorney fees allowed by law and in the mortgage, and any sums which may be paid by the mortgagee subsequent to the date of this notice to protect its interests in the premises.

The length of the redemption period will be six (6) months from date of sale.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Pastor's church welcomes public to farewell open house

The Charlevoix Community Church of God will be offering a community worship service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 27 in honor of the departing Rev. Bruce Hamilton. Following the service, there will be a potluck dinner and everyone in the community is invited to join the church for the service and dinner.

At 2 p.m., the church will host an open house reception for Rev. Hamilton. The community is encouraged to attend.

County board cancels meeting

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has canceled their regular Board meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 23, 1998. It has been re-scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 30, 1998.

City planners cancel meet

The City Planning Commission will not meet Monday, Dec. 28, as scheduled due to the fact that it is the holiday week. The next scheduled meeting will be at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 25, 1999.

A complete agenda will be posted prior to the meeting.

Lunch is available for needy people

The Community Lunch Program is sponsored by Ministerial Association and is from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. This program is sponsored by several area churches.

Antrim Ski Academy still taking skiers

Registration has been extended for Antrim Ski Academy's upcoming season. Winter has finally arrived, and with programs starting in January we feel confident about excellent snow conditions by then. Students 5 to 18 years old may register for the Academy from now until the extended deadline of Jan. 1, 1999.

Brochures with registration forms are being distributed through local schools or are available by either calling Steve Kershner at 533-7066 or Kevin O'Meara at 377-9108. This season, once again sessions are offered on Tuesday and/or Wednesday evenings for eight weeks, beginning in early January. New this year is the addition of snowboarding lessons. These sessions begin in January and run for four weeks. Membership in Antrim Ski Academy entitles the participant and their parent/guardian to discounted season passes at Shanty Creek.

The Antrim Ski Academy is entering its fifth season and is dedicated to providing quality, affordable ski instruction and race training to school-age students in the northwest Michigan area. Instruction and training take place on both Schuss and Summit slopes at Shanty Creek for eight week sessions on weekday evenings.

Lack of agenda items cancels city meeting

The regular Charlevoix City Council meeting scheduled for Monday, Dec. 21, has been canceled due to a lack of agenda items. Council will meet again at 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 4, 1999.

The City of Charlevoix will provide necessary reasonable auxiliary aids and services, such as signers for the hearing impaired and audio tapes of printed materials being considered at the meeting, to individuals with disabilities at the meeting/hearing upon one (1) week's notice to the City of Charlevoix. Individuals with disabilities requiring auxiliary aids or services should contact the City of Charlevoix by writing or calling the following: Jo Anne Patrick, City Clerk, 210 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720. Phone (616) 547-3250.

About those coming events...

As a courtesy to readers, announcements of local coming events of broad general interest that arrive by the 10 a.m. Monday deadline are published in this section of the newspaper on a one-time, first-come, first served SPACE AVAILABLE basis.

Because there is no guarantee of placement, readers should not rely on this free service as their only means of reaching the public.

SCRAPBOOK

In 1910, groceries and shoes could be bought at the same place

READY FOR THE HOLIDAY TRADE

Charlevoix Merchants Have Made Special Preparations JOURNEY THRU ADVERTISING COLUMNS
Courier Forced to Double in Size This Week

To Accommodate the Increased Advertising - Special Bargains Offered in All Lines - Trade In Charlevoix.

This week we are forced to double the number of pages to accommodate our advertisers. Charlevoix merchants have made special preparations this year for the holiday trade and there is no better place on earth to do your holiday shopping than right here. A journey through our advertising columns this week is like a trip through fairy land, so many and so varied are the many beautiful things which are offered and so tempting the prices. Our everything at great reductions.

Fred G. Bellinger has a fine display of holiday jewelry and with reluctance we leave his store for here we could find something for everybody.

Chapel's drug store is next visited and here again we are bewildered by the grand array of holiday goods which they are showing.

Our next stop is at the Charlevoix County Bank, the oldest bank in Charlevoix county, the officers being among the most influential men in the city.

J. L. Crane's, which is one of the most popular stores in the city is next visited. Here we find presents which will long be worn and treasured by their recipients. Since our visit last year we find that M. A. Levinson & Co. have moved, or rather VanPelt has built them a new store, and they are now occupying more than double the space they did formerly, to take care of their growing trade.

F. E. Frazier has some useful gifts to show in fur shoes and slippers as well as his other lines of reliable footwear.

Frank N. Metcalf the new proprietor of the Ivy Drug store has made special preparations for the holiday trade and we pay a long visit here. F. H. Wood has something to offer in the electrical line which makes the most acceptable Christmas gifts imaginable.

F. S. Blanchard has a desirable line of hardware and cutlery and hard indeed would anyone be to suit for whom a present could not be selected here.

Cashier Rachow greets us at the State Savings Bank and informs us that they have made a splendid growth the past year. This bank enjoys the confidence of the public to a marked degree.

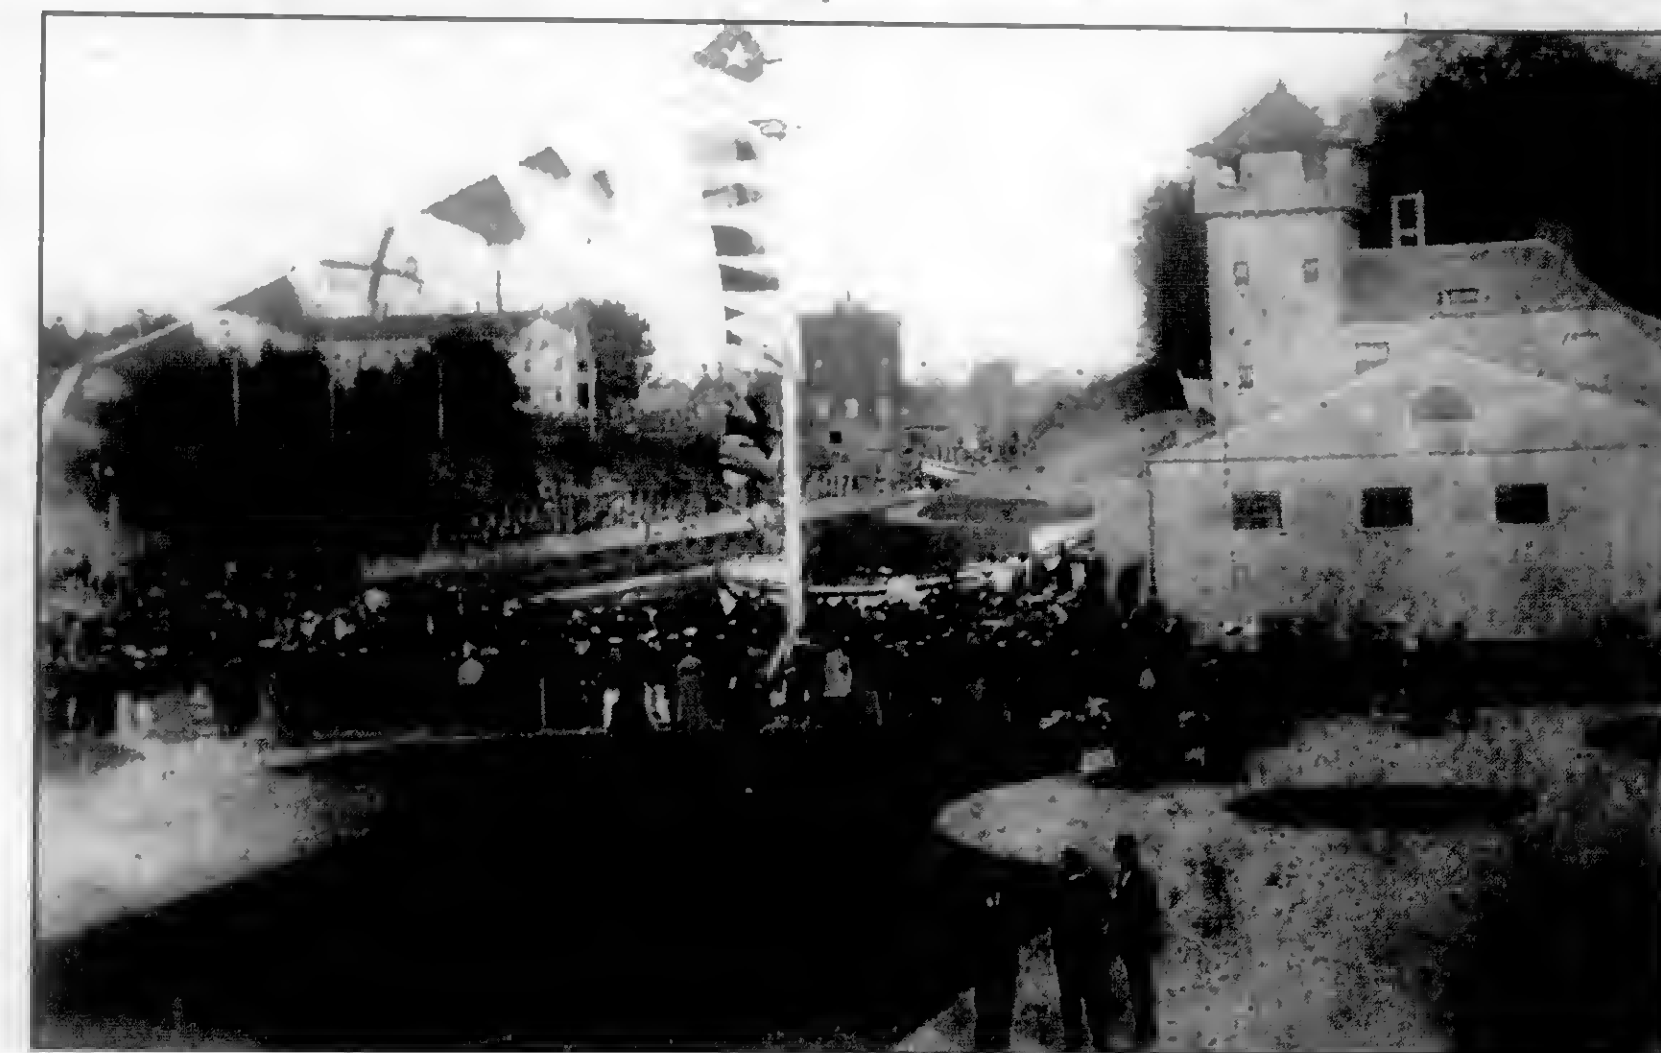

At McCann Bros. bakery we stop to leave our order for Christmas fruit cake as we want the best on that day.

C. R. Bellinger the pioneer jeweler, has a beautiful line of table silverware as well as all other lines.

The "Curio Store" is thronged with eager shoppers all finding what they want in this great stock of holiday goods.

The next place is the mammoth plumbing establishment of Robt. M. A. Johnston & Co. where we find an immense stock of electrical and plumbing supplies not excelled in northern Michigan.

Crossing the street the first place visited is S. M. See & Sons where

A banner day

In last week's Courier, we ran this photo submitted by Bud Kohler, not knowing exactly why the crowd was gathered near the south pier. Geoffrey Reynolds sent us the following information about the picture:

"The undated photograph in the Scrapbook section of the Dec. 16 issue of the Courier is the July 5, 1900 official commissioning of the U.S. Life Saving Service Station under the command of Captain Frank Fountain. Crowds like this gathered like the one in the photograph each July Fourth for many years to watch the men of the service perform life saving drills in Pine River near the station boat launching area.

"Fountain decided to leave the south pier life saving station at the entrance of the Chicago Harbor because, as he stated, 'I have three young children and they have got to be in a place where I can bring them up properly and send them to school. I figured it out that there was more grass, sand and fresh air at Charlevoix.'

"The U.S. Life Saving Service was merged with the U.S. Lighthouse Service to form the U.S. Coast Guard in 1939. The Life Saving Service Station was demolished in 1968 after the Coast Guard moved its operations to the upper river location it occupies to this day."

we purchase a fine piece of furniture.

L. S. See, grocer, is next visited. Mr. See carries a mammoth stock of high grade groceries and we leave a good order here.

Raymond Bentley has a fine stock of hardware, a portion of which is especially suitable for Christmas gifts.

The Sugar Bowl is always one of the busiest and most beautiful places in the city at this season and this year is no exception.

Charlevoix has one of the best photographers in the state and a call at Priest's studio finds him busy with holiday orders.

At this time we find that we need a new cutter and we easily make a choice from Sam Beaubian's new stock.

As usual the Charlevoix Hardware Co. has a fine display of goods and a particularly fine cutlery window display.

Bert Mason is the next place visited and we find Bert and the boys busy as bees selling groceries and shoes at prices that explain why his store is so crowded.

At Cohen's we are told that their great Christmas sale is in full blast and by the looks of the crowd we are satisfied that the bargains offered are attracting a splendid trade.

Bert Beaudion has several special offers in candy of which we take advantage. We also leave an order here for ice cream.

The Palace Clothing store, which commenced business last summer has rapidly grown in public favor and the reason for its growing trade is easily found out by a visit and talk with Manager Cohen.

B. W. Miller's is the next place visited. Here we find everybody busy as it has become a truism. "If bought at Miller's it's all right."

Going up the hill our last stop is made at S. Orlovski & Sons where special bargains are being offered in groceries and shoes, of which we take advantage, going home satisfied there there is no place like Charlevoix for Christmas shopping.

The deadline for advertising and news copy for the January 6, 1999 Courier will be 5 p.m. Thursday, December 31.

Charlevoix's shining citizens are named for 1998

By Laurie Lounsbury

In a departure from their regular format, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce decided to announce the winners of their annual awards prior to the annual chamber of commerce meeting.

In past years, the chamber of commerce has kept the names of award winners a closely guarded secret, revealing the names only at their annual meeting held in January.

But this year, chamber president Jacqueline Merta and chamber board chairman Steve Andrae did something different.

Acting like members of the Publisher's Clearing House Prize Patrol, Merta, Andrae and incoming chamber chairman Jay Balasz drove from one location to the next, dropping in on award winners and surprising them with the announcement of their honor.

"We wanted the winners to know in advance, so their families and friends could attend the chamber of commerce annual meeting, where they will be officially recognized," Merta said.

Taking the top honor is W.W. "Bill" Price, who received the Outstanding Citizen Award. The purpose of the award is to recognize an individual who, over a number of years, has given freely of time, talents and resources to make Charlevoix a better place to live.

"Bill Price has pride in volunteerism," Merta said. Throughout all his years in Charlevoix, he has given generously of his time to the community. He is active in many different civic arenas and is an exceptional role model to inspire others to give of their time and talents to improve the Charlevoix community.

The Chairman of the Board Award went to Cliff Biddick. The award, formerly known as the President's Award, goes to an individual who has volunteered time and/or resources during the current year to help the chamber of commerce. This person is selected by the chairman of the board, with approval of the board of directors. Biddick is always there when the chamber needs something, according to board

County recycling program needs consideration of commissioners and planners

By Jamie MacMillan

If creating a county-wide recycling program is indeed a goal of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in 1999, it appears it is a long way from reality.

The board has yet to have any serious discussion on the topic, and the county's new solid waste plan will only touch upon the subject of recycling, stating that the county should set up a program in the future.

"There is a desire by the solid waste committee to see recycling happen," county planner Larry Sullivan said. "But a lot of the discussion gets hung up on cost issues."

The 14-member solid waste committee has been meeting since January to design a new solid waste plan. Sullivan said with 14 individuals it's hard to develop a plan, since everyone had differing opinions on how to implement a recycling plan.

While it's the committee's job to outline how the county will collect, handle and dispose of waste into the next century, Sullivan said it's not necessarily appropriate for the committee to design a specific county-wide recycling program. Instead, he said, it should be the role of both the county planning commission and the board of commissioners.

To that end, the solid waste committee has commissioned a survey

"We need this badly,"
— County commissioner
Shirley Roloff, talking to get an idea of what county residents think about the subject.

The survey will be mailed out next month and will try to ascertain how much trash a household generates, how much of it could be recycled, how much money people would be willing to spend on a county-wide program and how far people would drive to drop off recyclables.

Sullivan said the committee wanted to have the survey out in the mail earlier, but it was feared that with all the other holiday mailings, the survey would either be ignored or get lost in the shuffle.

"Hopefully the survey will get people thinking about the topic," he said. "We need to know what the community is willing to do."

Despite a lack of a county-wide plan, there are options to county residents. The Cedar Ridge Landfill, owned by Waste Management, does accept certain recyclables but charges $2.50 per bag. The East Jordan Iron Works is a large recycler of scrap iron.

A curbside collection program exists in East Jordan, and Sullivan said in the short run it might be more feasible to simply expand that to a few other more urban areas of the county like the cities of Charlevoix and Boyne City.

Even that idea sparks debate, raising such questions as how do you man a drop-off area, what hours do you set and if you set hours, does it make it less convenient for people. Sullivan did say that local grocery stores have said they would welcome drop-off areas outside their stores.

Anything beyond a basic program would probably have to be funded by taxpayers, either through a straight millage, surcharges on bags of garbage and an additional $25 tax on property tax bills of residential property.

Sullivan said the latter method has received less than enthusiastic responses from committee members.

"The cleanest way would be a voted millage," he said.

County commissioner Shirley Roloff, who represents the city of Charlevoix and Beaver Island, said she could endorse a millage. She did say that the board has had some discussions on the subject, but that it needs to be a major issue in the upcoming year.

"We need this badly," she said. "Hopefully this isn't just talk — I feel the board is behind this and ready to make a commitment."

A little holiday magic

With a matching donation, middle school sets amazing record

All that was left to do last week after delivering thousands of food items to the food pantry was to award the Golden Corn Trophy to the class that brought in the most donations. Caroline Smith's class of eighth grade students took home the prize after garnering in 6,257 donated items during the three week fund-raiser.

By Jamie MacMillan

Thanks to a hefty matching donation from a local businessman, the Charlevoix Middle School Spirit of Christmas canned food drive surpassed its previous best and had another record year.

The middle school students canvassed the area since their return from the Thanksgiving holidays, trying to raise both foods and funds for the local food pantry.

Every year the food drive is a big boost for the food pantry, but this year it was a bit more important since the federal government stopped funding the program and there are 125 local families who need help.

"Your response the past three weeks has been nothing short of spectacular," Tom Sothard, middle school teacher and drive coordinator, told the students during an assembly prior to the holiday break. "Your teachers, your parents, everyone in Charlevoix marvels at your accomplishment."

The students raised a total of 42,000 items through cash and food donations. Local businessman Frank Shepherd, however, delivered a matching grant of 40,000 items to push the grand total to 82,000 items. This year's total broke the previous record of 55,000 items set last year.

While the drive is motivated by the holiday spirit, it is pushed along by friendly competition to see which class collects the most.

The class that does that wins the Golden Corn Award, and this year's winner is Caroline Smith's home-room of eighth grade students. They collected 6,257 items.

Individual recognition went to students who collected 100, 500 and 1,000 items.

Collecting 100 items were: Anna Taylor, Mallory Mahoney, Jackie Heckerdorn, Kristi Brewer, Tom Castiglione, Anne Strawbridge,

Collecting 500 items were: Kari Way, Maggie Kantola, Natasha Kleiber, Chris Golski, Mike Wojna and Hal Foster.

Collecting 1,000 items were: Jamie Nevins, Lindsay Miller, Katie Sheldon, Ryan DeYoung, Taylor Martin, Todd Carey and Kelly Zimmerman.

Zimmerman actually collected 4,576 items, breaking the school record of 3,220 set by Brian May.

"You have experienced the true meaning of Christmas and helped many adults remember it too," Sothard said to the students.

chairman Steve Andreae. In 1998, Biddick's leadership played a major role in making the laser light show a reality. With the help of Irish Boat Shop and its manpower, Biddick arranged moving two barges into place in Round Lake, then supplied and transported equipment for the show.

Dan Barron claimed the Ambassador of the Year Award. This award is designed to recognize an individual who promotes the spirit of the chamber of commerce and its programs. When Barron served as president of the chamber of commerce in 1989 and 1990, many significant goals were accomplished under his leadership. He put the chamber on a new and more positive course, which it still follows today. He continues with his community spirit by contributing in many ways to the growth of the community.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will officially recognize these award winners at their annual meeting Thursday, Jan. 14, 1999, which will be at the Charlevoix County Club.

Let's see the impeachment process through to the end

LAURIE LOUNSBURY

For seven months, I have strenuously avoided writing a column about President Bill Clinton and his meanderings, misdeeds, miscalculations and miserly misgivings.

I figured every columnist in the country would be writing about the topic in every daily newspaper nationwide. There was no need for me to jump on the bandwagon and say essentially the same thing being said by other writers.

So I will continue to stick to my policy of not discussing Clinton's behavior.

But I can't resist talking about the impeachment process.

Many people have said they're sick of the whole business and wish it would go away. They're hollering for some form of censure.

To them, I say, "Bah humbug."

Let the proceedings begin. Clinton has chosen not to resign, so it's up to our elected officials to see this process through to the end.

I think it's a real opportunity for everyone in this country, both young and old, to see how our government actually works. It's democracy in action, and it's highly visible for a change.

For the first time I can recall, my kids are asking me questions about the political process. They are learning about the Articles of our Constitution.

This is a government lesson of great importance.

We Americans have a tendency to get soft and complacent about our government. As long as the economy is good, we don't care much about what's happening in Washington.

Now we care. Now we all pay attention.

I truly believe, in spite of my natural cynicism toward Washington politicians, that the men and women in the Senate are taking their responsibility very seriously — and objectively.

The beauty of the Constitution is that it is impossible to boot a president out of office based on partisan politics. It takes a two-thirds majority in the Senate to remove the president from office.

Regardless of everything that has occurred up to now, the process will no longer be partisan. Sure, there's a likelihood that more Republicans will vote for Clinton's removal than Democrats. But a handful of Republicans won't do the trick.

It will be a fascinating lesson in politics to watch what happens now. I think it would be a shame, at this juncture, for the Senate to dismiss Clinton's impeachment and vote for censure.

A judiciary committee found enough reasons to recommend impeachment to the House of Representatives.

The House of Representatives found enough reasons — and congressmen — to vote for Clinton's impeachment.

To stop the process now would be unfair to Americans, and unfair to the founding fathers of this country who wrote the Constitution.

They designed the process to ensure that no president will be wrongfully removed from office. There are plenty of safeguards against that.

So let the chips fall where they may.

Clinton had the opportunity to resign before he was impeached.

But he believed in the process enough, and must have felt secure enough in his position, to let the process continue.

So let's go all the way. What have we got to lose? What does Clinton have to gain?

Either Clinton will be removed from office or he will serve out his term as a lame duck, forever stained by his behavior.

Clinton is no longer acting like a president. He's acting like a lawyer, gambling on legal technicalities and slippery word definitions to get him off the hook.

Most of the Senators are also lawyers, who should be able to see right through those word games.

Live by the sword, die by the sword.

Twist a word definition in your favor, and it might be twisted by someone else against your favor.

If the process continues, the Senate will put on a spectacular show, with some of the nation's mightiest lawyers interpreting one of the most important documents in our country — the Constitution — and evaluating some of the diciest testimony ever given by a president.

It's the ultimate legal case.

A made-for-TV movie.

The stuff that makes Greta Von What'shername drool in her dreams.

To stop the process now would be Clintonesque — a withdrawal before things have reached their natural conclusion.

Farmers gather and share ideas at annual Farm Bureau meeting

Charlevoix County Farm Bureau members joined 1,600 other Michigan farmers, including about 450 voting delegates, in Traverse City Dec. 8-11 for the 79th Michigan Farm Bureau Annual Meeting. Representing Charlevoix County were Neil Jones, Timothy Matchett, Irene Speltz, Connie Vellenga, Peter Vellenga, Christine Wacholz and Thomas Wieland.

Delegates representing each county discussed and voted on well over 100 policy resolutions developed from recommendations submitted by the state's 68 county Farm Bureau groups. The policies approved by the delegates will guide the activities of the organization through the next year and serve as goals. Policy highlights included the Right-to-Farm superseding over-restrictive township ordinances, farmland preservation and wildlife management.

Farmers attending the Michigan Farm Bureau Annual Meeting had the opportunity to explore the ideas of value-added cooperatives during a session entitled "Adjust: For Profitability." They also got to voice their opinions during a "Speak Up" session on how Michigan Farm Bureau should proceed over the next three years. Sen. Harry Gast of Michigan's 20th Senatorial District earned the Distinguished Service to Agriculture honor. Sen. Gast was honored during the annual banquet, Dec. 10, but was unable to attend. He will be personally recognized at an upcoming Farm Bureau function.

In conjunction with the annual meeting, 140 farmers and 13 Farm Bureau students acted as teachers for one day, Dec. 10. They were in Traverse City third and fourth-grade classrooms, teaching more than 1,500 children about agriculture.

Local Hondurans grateful for community support

Dear Ms. Lounsbury,

We would like to take this opportunity to thank you, on behalf of our family, and the people of our native country of Honduras, for your recent story on the local relief efforts being made to aid those most devastated by Hurricane Mitch. To date almost $1,100 has been collected and the first check has been forwarded to the American Red Cross. This is an ongoing effort, as this rebuilding project will take an estimated 20 years.

Personally, the response of our adopted community has truly touched our hearts. The fact that so many people have contacted us to ask about the effect this tragedy has had on our family still living in Honduras, reminds us once again that Charlevoix is a unique community that cares for its members.

Once again, thank you Ms. Lounsbury, and all those who have contributed to this effort.

Sincerely,
Carlos Lopez and family
Charlevoix

Barbie Doll bonanza

Mrs. Bill (Bonnie) Bellows (left) is shown here with the two beautiful Barbie Dolls she won at a fund-raising raffle at the Charlevoix Senior Center this month. The Princess Holly Bride doll and her bridesmaid were donated to the center by Mr. and Mrs. Dick Mayhew. Mrs. Mayhew spent many hours crocheting the beautiful gowns on the dolls and also made a lovely, hand-decorated carrying case for them. Bellows was thrilled to be the winner of the dolls, which she mailed the next morning to her granddaughters for a dream-come-true Christmas present.

Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Knapp

Katherine Pease and Scott Knapp were married in an afternoon wedding at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix on Oct. 31, 1998.

The bride is the daughter of Karla and Jerry Pease of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Dianne and Charles Knapp of Saginaw.

Rev. Philip Schairbaum performed the double ring ceremony, with 200 guests in attendance.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father, Jerry. She wore a white, off the shoulder gown with a full length tulle skirt and detachable train. She carried a free form cascade of white roses, lilies, stephanotis and ivy.

Elizabeth Humphrey was the organist for the ceremony. The bride's aunt, Janet Graham, was the pianist, the bride's cousin, Logan Graham, was the cellist and the bride's cousin, Kevin Pease was the soloist.

Michelle Jacobs, friend of the bride, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Melanie Suk and Amy Knapp, sister of the groom. They wore black, floor length chiffon gowns with spaghetti straps and carried bouquets of flowers in fall colors.

Flower girl was Taylor Storm, who wore a long white satin and chiffon dress.

Best man was Matt Ruhlig, friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Brad Stedry and Chris Pease, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Mike Peterman and Aaron Kamp.

A reception was hosted at the Belvedere Casino by the bride's parents. Sheilah Bogart served as hostess.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Argonne Supper Club the night before the wedding.

St. Lucia was the destination for the couple's wedding trip, which they took over the Christmas holiday.

They are making their home in Farmington Hills, where the bride teaches third grade in Walled Lake and the groom is a sales manager with Three-com.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Michigan State University.

Kristin Czerkes of Charlevoix, a second-year dental hygiene student at Ferris State University, recently participated in an oral health outreach project in Muskegon County. Lisa Costello spearheaded the program and solicited volunteers from her class to assist Dr. James Donley in the oral health promotion activity. Students traveled to Muskegon on a Saturday to provide oral health screening and education to children. The event was hosted by the West Michigan Children's Museum in the Muskegon Mall.

"This event was initiated and managed by the students, which demonstrates their commitment to the profession," said Linda Meeuwenberg, professor of Dental Hygiene.

Joan A. Chessman

Joan A. Chessman, 39, of Gaylord, died Sunday, Dec. 27, 1998, at Otsego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord.

She was born in Petoskey on March 26, 1959, the daughter of Kenneth and Marilyn (Beal) Coy.

She was a registered nurse, having graduated from Hillsdale School of Nursing and Ferris State University. On Oct. 20, 1996, in Ellsworth, she married James Chessman. They made their home in Gaylord.

Joan enjoyed cooking, gardening, collecting decorative plates and traveling.

Surviving are her husband, James; her parents, Kenneth and Marilyn Coy of Charlevoix; sisters and brothers, Judy Coy of Charlevoix, Merlyn (Barbara) Coy of Lewiston, Marvin (Sherrie) Coy, M.D., of Cheboygan, Meredith (Laurie) Coy of Petoskey; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be at 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 31 at the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church, with Pastor Wilbur F. Woodhams, retired pastor of Petoskey Seventh Day Adventist Church, officiating.

Friends may call at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth from 2-4 p.m. and from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 30. Memorials may be made to the Carp Lake Seventh Day Adventist Church Building Fund.

BEACONS

Editor's note: To the best of our knowledge, this is the first Beacons of Blessing column ever written by Pastor Bruce Hamilton. We noticed how his writing style changed over the 13 years that he wrote this column. Many of us have grown to anticipate his warm and amusing anecdotes that became the trademark of his columns.

By Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Wednesday, Sept. 25, 1985

In terms of church-pastor relations, I'm enjoying what is known as the honeymoon right now. I have every confidence that it is going to be a long and joyful time because I have faith in God and I also believe in His people. Charlevoix, you are beautiful. But do you know how blessed you are?

You are blessed because God is! I've noticed a lot of dairy farms nearby. Every time I see a black cow eat green grass, give white milk and yellow butter, I know God is. What kind of a world would this be without God? Why do atheists argue so hard against something they say doesn't exist? The Bible shouts it. History confirms it. Common sense declares it. God is and we are blessed.

Charlevoix, you are blessed because God has spoken. What he has said is in the Bible. Maybe not every single word. John said all the books in the world could not hold all He has said or done. But there is one complete, inherent Word and this is how a lost soul can get to heaven. God has spoken and we are blessed and ministered to by His Word with all the knowledge we need to get from Charlevoix or Bay Shore or Boyne City or from wherever to glory. That does something for my soul. We are blessed because that precious Book points us to Jesus. Suppose I were to ask you to go to the Traverse City airport and pick up a friend for me. I didn't give you any description or arrival time. I just said go. Would you go? I don't know too many who would wander through an airport stopping people to ask, "Are you Pastor Hamilton's friend?"

But what if I told you to meet the Republic flight that arrives at 1:15 and that my friend weighs 400 pounds. He'll wear a green suit, purple socks and a red tie. Would you know him then? Why, you couldn't miss him. We are blessed because we know who our Savior is. He is not Buddha, Krishna, Moon or anybody else. He had to be born in Bethlehem, not in Florida or India. He had to be born of a virgin, wrapped in swaddling clothes. There's no doubt about his being baptized in the Jordan or doing miracles. He was sacrificed on a Roman cross, buried in a borrowed grave. But most of all, he arose from the dead on the third day with all power. We are blessed because we know Him. He's the source of my joy, my excitement with you, Charlevoix the Beautiful. With Him in our lives there is nothing we cannot do.

Calling all ministers...

With the departure of Rev. Bruce Hamilton, who left Charlevoix' Community Church of God to lead a church in Florida, we find ourselves in need of someone to write the Beacons of Blessing column on a weekly basis.

In the past, ministers in the Charlevoix Ministerial Association have taken turns writing this column. We're hoping one or all of the ministers will step forward to help us again.

The Beacons of Blessing column is not limited to Charlevoix ministers. Pastors or priests from area communities are welcome to contribute to this column.

Deadline for submitting a column is 10 a.m. Monday preceding the Wednesday that the column will run. Thanks for your help.

School enrichment foundation grants awarded

The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation helped spread the holiday cheer when, earlier this month, it awarded grant money to a handful of school projects.

The foundation, started by former superintendent of schools Gordon VanWieren about 10 years ago, awards grants twice a year. After a round of funding in March, the foundation recently announced a total of $3,500 in new funding.

Receiving funds will be:

— $600 for Keith Haske to go toward awards for positive reinforcement for students with perfect attendance.

— $325.64 for Karen Pierce to purchase Science Big Books.

— $171.59 for Carol Elliott, Krista Jarema and Michelle Schwartzfisher to purchase trade books for teaching core democratic values.

— $2,000 for Tom Sothard to purchase two video projectors for classroom use at the Charlevoix Middle School.

— $400 for Gail Cherry to host a seminar assembly on respect.

Foundation Chairman Mary Ann Chew noted that the foundation usually hands out more grants, but the Char-Em I.S.D. was already able to secure funds to purchase additional lap-top computers for the schools' special education classes.

The organization consists of a 20-member board with representation from throughout the community. The group raises money through a golf scramble in June and a Letter Drive in the fall. Chew said that many other people simply donate money to the group in honor or memory of someone.

"This has been a good resource for teachers who are doing special projects," the retired elementary school teacher said.

"We feel that it has been a very positive force in the schools."

Demonstrating the true meaning of Christmas

Charlevoix second graders not only grasp the meaning of Christmas, but spent an hour last week performing a pageant which further illustrates the meaning and origins of the holiday. They explained the holiday from A to Z, teased the crowd with Christmas riddles and portrayed Christmases in other lands, giving those gathered both entertainment and education. ## Local woman receives cross country trucking award

Churchill Transportation has announced that Charlevoix resident Patty Loper has been awarded the company's Frank Butler Achievement award.

The award is in honor of the recently retired Frank Butler, one of the Detroit-based company's original employees when it was founded in 1977. The award is in its first year of existence.

Loper has been a truck driver since 1994, and has been with the Churchill company for three years over two different stints.

She was not eligible for the company's driver of the year award because she has not reached the time of service requirement, but, according to safety supervisor Steve Fitzpatrick, she was an automatic choice for the Butler award.

"She was the only one this year who had a perfect record from road side inspections to the overall condition of her truck," Fitzpatrick said. "Patty has such strong support from within the company, it was real easy to acknowledge her. We wish we had 270 Patty Lopers."

Loper, a truck fan her whole life, became interested in trucking as a career when she was a co-rider on a route with a friend of hers. Now well into a career in the field, the 47-year-old grandmother of two has taken her 1995 Kenworth rig into every continental state in the country except North Dakota.

"I would never have had another chance to see our country had it not been for truck driving," she said.

She logs about 2,500-3,000 miles a week and being on the company's "open board," her routes and cargo are always changing.

In addition to the award, the owner of the company, Jerry Butler, has donated 20 hams to Loper's favorite charity, the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry.

"This field has given me some nice opportunities and has been very good to me," she said.

Patty Loper (left) became a cross country truck driver after her children were grown. She was recently honored by her company with a special achievement award.

Charlevoix log home builder wins national design award

A log home in Charlevoix won the 1998 House Beautiful Home Building Design Competition Award for the most outstanding log home design entry. The award was presented to Hiawatha Log Homes of Munising.

The home was built by Eagle Design and Construction in Charlevoix. Jim Firebaugh, owner of Eagle Design, is an independent representative for Hiawatha Log Homes. It was Firebaugh who came up with the design concept for the home, which is located in Nine Mile Point.

Working with Firebaugh's design concept, Hiawatha Log Homes came up with the architectural plans to build the home, which features a wraparound porch, dormers, and an open living and dining concept with window seating in the dining area.

"House Beautiful's design competition attracts a large number of high quality entries, due to the magazine's national prominence," said Paul Essinger, owner of Hiawatha Log Homes. "To be selected as the best is truly an honor, given the level of competition."

Brenda Kelley, owner of Kelly marketing, is in charge of Hiawatha's marketing and promotional efforts. She was the one who chose to enter the Charlevoix home in the competition.

"The reason I selected and entered this particular home is because of its capability to function as either a primary residence or vacation home, allowing for both private, quiet areas and larger spaces for entertaining. The presentation is exceptional as the landscaping is done nicely and the entryway is inviting."

East Jordan launches fire safety campaign

Glen Thorman, chief of East Jordan Fire Department, announced the fire department is continuing a commitment to fire prevention. As part of this commitment, the department is organizing its annual Fire and Burn Safety Program for the children of East Jordan. Over 650 youngsters, ages 5 through 12 will receive educational fire prevention materials created and geared to each specific age level. This comprehensive program includes fire safety guidebooks that contain 24 activity pages designed by educators to stimulate the child's awareness and independent thinking about the everyday fire hazards he or she may encounter. Various other fire safety booklets, folders, posters, and brochures are made available to encourage the prevention of destructive fires, painful burns, disfiguring injuries, and needless death.

Bob Koch, of the National Fire Safety Council, Inc. (NFSC) will be helping local fire fighters in planning and delivering programs to the school children. Koch is the Area Fire Safety Coordinator of the NFSC. The National Fire Safety Council is a federal, tax-exempt nonprofit organization under the Internal Revenue Service Code of 501-C-3 and all contributions are tax-deductible.

The East Jordan Fire Department is in the process of mailing sponsor request letters explaining the entire program to the area businesses, industrial and professional leaders asking for their financial support to help cover the cost of the materials used by the department.

Chief Thorman stressed to prospective sponsors that this is the only program of this type that the East Jordan Fire Department will be conducting this year. Should any other person solicit for support, especially by phone or in person, and does not have a letter from Chief Glen Thorman, please contact the fire department immediately.

Young lady goes to the mat as member of wrestling team

By Jamie MacMillan

Charlevoix's recent revival of the high school wrestling program has brought together all sorts of athletes.

From freshmen to seniors, from honor students to underachievers, coach Joe Johnston has pulled from many different elements of the student body to form a cohesive unit.

One of those elements is a transfer student from Kodiak, Alaska. What makes the story unique, however, is that the student is Adrianna Lackaff, a 14-year-old freshman, who, whether she wants to or not, is proving that wrestling is no longer the domain of the male student-athlete.

"I'm not a big sports fan, but I wanted to do something," she said. "So far, it's been fun."

Joining the wrestling team, though, is not her first athletic endeavor. In Kodiak, where she and her family lived for the last three years, she was a member of the local swim team, specializing in freestyle and breast stroke.

With no swimming competition in Charlevoix, she noticed a void in her life and was bored.

"I missed the commitment of being a swimmer," she said. "and I felt like I needed to do something after school."

As it turns out, her old sport is helping her adjust to her new one. In both sports, she noted, there is a concentration on improving upper arm strength. She also said the endurance she developed as a swimmer is helping her cope with the grueling practices and matches that wrestling requires.

Wrestling, however, is not your typical sport. Somewhat barbaric in nature, it involves almost complete physical contact with your opponent and can lead to multiple bumps, bruises and strains on the body.

For those reasons, there was skepticism on the part of Johnston when Lackaff's intentions to join the team were made known.

Johnston, an associate pastor at the Charlevoix Assembly of God, still has reservations about girls wrestling in the male-dominated sport, but also said Lackaff's interest on the team is both genuine and serious and that he never even tried to discourage her from joining.

"For her, it's a challenge and it's fun to do this," he said. "She really wants to be a part of this team."

"She does everything the guys do," he said referring to all the training involved. "She's faithful, even more so than some of the guys. I like that because I know I can count on her."

Lackaff is the daughter of Corey and Ingrid Lackaff. She has an older brother, Alexander, and a younger sister, Danielle. The family moved to Charlevoix through their father's involvement with the Coast Guard. Corey is an engineering officer on the U.S.C.G. Acacia.

He said he was not too keen when his daughter first informed him of her desires to try out for the wrestling team. He figured she would try out for the ski team instead.

In the end, though, he supports his daughter, and is pleased with the values a team sport, like wrestling, can teach a child.

"When it comes down to it," he said. "I would rather have her doing this than sitting at home watching TV or playing video games."

Johnston noted that girls on wrestling teams is becoming both more accepted and prevalent. A rarity in his earlier days as a coach in both North Carolina and Michigan, it is now becoming the norm during multi-school invitationals to have at least one team with a girl on its roster. In fact, when this year's Rayders took to the road for a match against Sault Ste. Marie, the opposition had three girls on their team.

Lackaff was able to wrestle with one of them in an exhibition match and won — a highlight, she said, of her first season.

Other than that, the going has been rough for her. She hasn't won any other matches and currently is out of action with a leg injury.

"After the first three days in the weight room, I had bruises all over," she said. "but it felt good."

Adrianna Lackaff

She said the difference between practice and the actual meets is like night and day. She said it's confusing not only with all the different moves, but when to use which move.

"It's hard to know exactly when to put moves in," she said. "In practice, things are kind of controlled, but in the actual matches you're constantly moving. You just have to see something and just go for it."

Lackaff, who also enjoys snowboarding and horseback riding, said she was so nervous prior her first match that she couldn't stand up.

She gets her share of interesting looks prior to each match. She said her opponents carry a wry smile and aren't as quick to jump into the match as they would against a male opponent.

"They don't know what to do," she said. "They're scared to lose to me and with that I have got a great advantage."

Her teammates have been more than helpful, she said, teaching her some of the game's finer points. Johnston said the guys have been perfect gentlemen and stick up for her like they would any other teammate. She also is making waves throughout the school.

"Kids come up to me all the time and say, 'I wouldn't have the guts to do that sport,'" she said.

Local wrestling fans have a chance to see Lackaff and all the Rayders in action during their next home meet at 6 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 7 against Rogers City.

Recreation options have increased in town with the opening over the weekend of Mt. McSaub. Jeff Stevens and his daughter Bailee, 4, ride up the tow rope together. (Photo by Jamie MacMillan)

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Food distribution dates are set for January

Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency (NMHSA) in Petoskey announces the following times and places for January food distributions under The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP).

• Antrim County — 10 to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 27 at the Mancelona Lions Club, Valley Rd.
• Charlevoix County — 1 to 2 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 27 at the East Jordan VFW Hall, M-32.

• Emmet County — 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 14 at the Harbor Springs VFW Hall, West Conway Rd.

In Emmet County the food distribution will take place during the monthly Commodity Supplemental Food Program. Food for both programs will be delivered at the same time. This change in delivery will occur in Emmet County only. Food distributions in Antrim and Charlevoix counties will take place as usual.

The food package is distributed four times a year (though this may not necessarily be every three months) and is available to anyone who meets the income guidelines. To determine eligibility you must provide current proof of income, Social Security cards and birth dates for the entire household. This information will be required in January even if you were signed up in 1998.

For more information about the food program or other services offered by Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency please call the Petoskey office at 347-9070.

Evening garden club schedules meeting

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will be meeting at 7 p.m. Jan. 5, 1999 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The speaker for the evening will be Michael Hoffman of John E. Hoffman Landscaping, Inc. He will present a program about trees: planting, pruning and anything else you need to know to grow trees.

The garden club welcomes new members so if you're interested, come give them a try. They are a Federated Garden Club.

Lunch program continues for needy

The Community Lunch Program is sponsored by Ministerial Association and is from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. This program is sponsored by several area churches.

Sheriff warns of stock market scam

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to advise the citizens of the area to the possibility of a stock market scam. Unfortunately for older adults, 78 percent of Americans targeted for these scams are seniors. And only 1 percent of all victims ever gets their money back.

Fraudulent investment brokers are very different from reputable brokers. Some early warning signs include:

- Promises of sky high returns (reputable brokers do not make projections)
- Claims of having inside information

(it is illegal to trade on inside information)

- Knowledge of secret technology
- Claims of little or no risk (there is always risk)

• High pressure tactics
Sheriff Lasater advises not to give in to pressure to act immediately, or deal with anyone who refuses to provide written information. Always use common sense and never be blinded by greed.

If you think you have been the victim of an investment scam, don't be afraid or embarrassed to call the sheriff's office at 547-4461, or file a complaint with Corporation, Securities and Land Development Bureau, Enforcement Division at (517) 334-6209.

Jail chaplain appointed by sheriff

Sheriff George T. Lasater announces the appointment of volunteer Sheriff's Jail Chaplain and Assistant Chaplain.

The volunteer Sheriff's Jail Chaplain will be Rev. Andrew Kipapa of the Trinity Fellowship Church of Boyne City.

The Sheriff's Chaplain has the following responsibilities:

- Coordinate weekly jail/chaplain schedule for inmates.
- Respond to emergencies with citizens as requested by sheriff.

— Assist sheriff transport officer on transporting prisoners to correction facility if inmate is having a problem dealing with prison sentence.

— Counsel inmates who are having problem adjusting to jail.

About those coming events

As a courtesy to readers, announcements of local coming events of broad general interest that arrive by the 10 a.m. Monday deadline are published in this section of the newspaper on a one-time, first-come, first served SPACE AVAILABLE basis.

Because there is no guarantee of placement, readers should not rely on this free service as their only means of reaching the public.

SCRAPBOOK

Durance farm is one of few family farms still around

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

Pioneer families in Charlevoix are getting harder and harder to find with the passing of the years and increasing mobility of Americans. But one such family, the Durance family, continues to hold on to the legacy of hard work and the value of the land that the recently departed 105-year-old Frances Durance relayed to me and the many friends she knew.

Arriving in the Charlevoix area during fall of 1885, Frances' parents, George and Margaret Durance, first took up residence in a house near the present day Irish

From the Archives

Marina. In November of 1889, they moved to, then later purchased from James Gellick, the farm still located on the corner of Mercer Blvd. and Waller Road. There they raised 10 children and operated a farm that produced vegetables, strawberries, dairy products, and honey for sale to local families, hotels and resorters. A small brick making business was operated early in the farm's existence, but was soon dissolved due to poor clay quality.

While farming, the family came into constant contact with the wealthy family of E. C. Waller, a man that owned much of Charlevoix Township and was a cottage owner at the Chicago Club resort. Other personalities included the local McCauba family that lived to the north on Waller Road and the Civil War veterans, Tom Palmer and Mr. Hobbs, who first settled the North Point area.

Other contacts were made with other nearby farming families such as the Reynolds, Edwards, and Wilson sisters. It was my great-great-grandfather, Albert, who began the Reynolds family friendship with the Durance family back in 1899 and continued until Frances' recent death. It still amazes me that Frances lived to know five generations of my family and was able to relay to me many personal stories of generations long gone.

After George's untimely Thanksgiving Day death in 1921, the four surviving Durance children grew and eventually left the farm, but for some it was only temporary. Genevieve became a druggist, William a teacher and lawyer, Frances a teacher, and Albin built cars for Chrysler in Detroit. Daniel, George, Samuel, Lizzie and Myrtle died at an early age; the three boys all in fall of 1888. Frances returned

Jeff Haas builds cultural bridges with new music compositions

Jeff Haas has taken on a new role — builder of bridges across generations, races, countries and time itself with "HaGeshen Chai — The Bridge Lives," a jazz suite in 10 movements, written by Haas. He premiered the piece in November at the Gem Theater in Detroit in November.

According to Haas, his goal was to capture the Jewish vibe and the Detroit vibe as it existed in his childhood.

"I felt like my growing up in Detroit really provided me with a great opportunity to celebrate diversity and experience different cultures," Haas said. "That's what I had in mind for the piece — via music, to build bridges between cultures and generations."

At 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 9, at the Ross Stoakes Theater in the McCune Arts Center, Haas will perform four movements from the suite, along with 'hip arrangements of some jazz classics by Gershwin, Cole Porter and Thelonious Monk.'

The concert is part of the Crooked Tree Arts Council 1998-99 Concert Series.

Tickets are available at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey and the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs. Individual ticket prices are $15 for adults and $8 for students.

Call for information about group rates for groups of 10 or more. As always, tickets sell fast, so call 347-4337 to reserve your ticket. Last year's performance was standing room only.
